Field Work Got Under Way Here Last Week

Spring field work got under way around Klemme the middle of last week. A few farmers were able to work their land on Wednesday, while on Thursday and Friday there were quite a number of farmers in the fields.

The Spring season is a little late here in North Iowa but farmers were unable to do any seeding because of the wet and cold ground.

Spring in Iowa

These spring days make a person happier than ever that he lives in Iowa.

I was driving out in the country this week. Everywhere wonderful farms, and folks busy plowing, discing, getting ready for another year of bumper Iowa crops.

Did you ever stop to think where all those bumper crops go?

For example, I learned the other day that our brewing industry alone bought more than three hundred million dollars worth of grains and hops last year. That's a mighty big market, right there, for our Iowa farmers.

Those purchases include corn, wheat, barley . . . soybeans!

I mentioned this to Co the other evening . . . the brewing industry play farm prosperity. We ping a temperate glass after supper. "Well," "It's good to think that our own Iowa grain g making beer so famous beverage of moderation."

And it is, too. It's good of farm prosperity any t

SEND HEALTHY CHILDREN TO SCHOOL NEXT YEAR

Is your child starting school next fall? When we send to our schools each year a group of healthy children as well protected from disease as possible, the maximum is gained in education, money is saved, absences and illnesses are reduced to a minimum.

Let us plan for a thorough physical examination for these children by the physician followed by correction of all remidial defects. By having the physical examination in May, the summer furnishes time for corrections. Booster immunizations are being offered at the school rate of one dollar an inoculation.

We will explain about this examination at group meetings for preschool children and their mothers. These are for town and rural preschool children For those who will attend rural school, please attend the town conference nearest your home.

At these meetings arranged by the kindergarten teachers and Nursing Service with help of the Farm Bureau Health Council, Legion Auxiliary and other groups there is an opportunity for the children to become acquainted with the schoolroom and mingle with other starting pupils. The Public Health Nurse is available to discuss any health problems that may hinder progress in school.

Dates for meetings are as follows: Kanawha, Friday, April 22, 9:00 A. M. at high school; Goodell, Tuesday, April, 26, 2:00 P. M. at school; Garner, Thursday, April 28, 1:30 P. M. at the high school gym; Klemme, Thursday, May 5, 2:30 P. M at the school.

Featured at the meetings are Mrs. Helen Lovell, State Nutritionist, who will attend the one in Garner. A film entitled "When Bobby Goes To School" will be shown at several of the meetings.—Harriet Oxley, R N., Public Health Nurse.

New Law On Milk Standard Now Effective

A new Iowa law requiring milk products sold for human consumption to meet certain standards became effective Friday.

Dallas V. McGinnis, field secretary of the Iowa Dairy association, outlined the requirements as a reminder to persons who sell milk and milk products. The law requires that milk or cream be pasteurized or meet grade A raw milk standards.

The grade A regulations include rules on cleanliness of the barn, barn yard, milk house, water supply and utensils. Milk or cream from which ice cream, buttermilk and skimmed milk are derived also must be pasteurized.

Cows from which milk and cream are sold must be tuberculin tested at least once a year.

You can win a 1949 Buick super Sedan—a Ford Custom Sedan—a thousand dollar Television Set or any one of 30 other big prizes by entering the sensational "What's My Name Contest" which appears in The Chicago Herald-American. All members are requested to bring their used Christmas Cards to the next meeting as they have a request for them to be sent overseas. The President had part of the Blue Book Quiz. A nice lunch was served.

GOVERNMENT BUYS BUTTER TO HOLDPRICE

Washington— The government Thursday bought 233,187 pounds of butter to support farm prices. It also announced a new support operation that will "tend to support prices" of mily used for cheese and evaporated milk.

The new support operation, announced by the agriculture department, calls for purchase of all extra-grade skimmed milk powder offered to the government at specified prices.

Price support for milk at 90 per cent of parity is required by law. Prices of fluid milk are above this level but milk going into manufacturing use has dropped close to support levels and threatened to fall further in the coming season of flush production, officials said.

"The program will tend to support prices of manufacturing milk in general" the department said. The support operations will set a floor of $3 07 per hundred pounds during spring and summer for this milk That compares with an average market price to farmers of $3.20 in mid-February.

PLAY IT SAFE AROUND

Norval Wardle, the extension farm safety specialist at Iowa State College, says that Iowa farmers can prevent many accidents involving animals if they arrange lots so they don't have to mingle with running livestock and take chances of being kicked. crushed or maued.

Another safety measure as well as a time-saver is to arrange the feed troughs or bunks so you don't have to walk among livestock when feeding them. One way to eliminate this is to run livestock out of the feeding lot while you put the feed in the bunks. Then let them in to eat.

Planning the feeding program can help in three ways, according to Wardle. It saves time cuts down on the labor of the farmer and leaves the livestock more contented.

Never trust an animal, he reminds. Many people even are seriously injured by pets.

It is a good idea to keep the bull in a separate pen that is built sturdily. Check the fences frequently to see if they need repairing. Place all male animals where they can be kept away from the family or visitors.

Another tip is to organize farrowing or maternity pens so you can do the feeding, cleaning and caring for the animals without actually getting in with the animals. Animals with new-born are more apt to injure intruders than other animals.

Junior-Senior Banquet

The date for the annual Junior-Senior Banquet has been set for Saturday evening, April 30th and will be held at the Klemme High School Gymnasium.

WHAT LIVESTOCK CALLED MAY BE SAVING ON TAX

Call them what you will, a federal court says cows and brood sows are "production machines"

So what's in a name? Well, Wallace's Farmer and the Iowa Homestead magazine reports that this court decision may lead to a federal income tax saving of $50 to $150 a year to the average farmer

The U S circuit court at St. Louis in a recent action held that a Minnesota farmer was justified in reporting profits from the sale of sows and cows under the capital gains rule rather than as ordinary income.

Under income tax regulations, the magazine said in last week's issue only half of the capital gain on property held over six months is taxable whereas all profits in the form of ordinary income are fully taxable.

In the past, tax collectors have insisted, the publication says, that the full tax be paid on all sales of breeding stock unless such sales were made to reduce the size of a herd or to change breeds.

Under this interpretation, brood sows sold after raising one litter have not been given the advantage of the capital assets rule, the magazine reports.

Celebrated First Birthday

Eldon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Geary, was one year old on Saturday, April 16th. A number of relatives were invited in Friday evening to help him celebrate The biggest attraction to Eldon was a little red wagon given to him by his grandparents, Mr and Mrs Edd Schoenwetter.

A large birthday cake with one candle was cut and ice cream and cake enjoyed by all.

Those present were Mrs. Edd. Schoenwetter and Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Schoenwetter of Garner, Mr and Mrs. Merle Schoenwetter and family, Mr and Mrs. Forest Cutshall and son Vernon, and Mr and Mrs. Russell Hanson and family of near Kanawha

TROUT SEASON OPENS MAY 1ST

The trout season opens at 5:00 a. m. May 1st, and conservation officials expect a record breaking turnout on the 42 official trout streams in ten northeast Iowa counties. Trout fishing is legal from 5:00 a. m. until 9:00 p. m. each day after the opening.

Trout stocking is well underway and it is believed that more than 100,000 legal-sized trout will be stocked before the opening date. Some 90,000 additional legal-sized fish will be stocked during the season.

Brook or speckled trout have been native to the northeast Iowa streams since earliest times. The brown and rainbow, now common in the area, have been stocked from the state hatcheries.. It is believed by biologists that very few if any trout spawn in the wild and their numbers are maintained only through constant stocking operations.

Maps showing the location of Iowa's trout streams may be secured from the local conservation officer or by writing direct to the State Conservation Commission, 914 Grand Avenue, Des Moines.

PICK GILTS WHILE PIGS ARE STILL WITH LITTER

Picking future brood sows is a job that should be done while pigs are still in litters, says Paul Henderson, county extension director.

The reason for this is that reproduction of hogs depends largely on the abillity a sow inherits. Therefore, one of the best ways to maintain or increase litter size is to choose gilts from large, sturdy litters. It is best to pick gilts from litters of 7 or more weaned pigs. It is even better to select gilts from sows that have farrowed two such litters.

Henderson says there are other factors that will influence the size of littlers. Some of these are condition of sow at breeding time, her health, age, and the condition and use of the boar.

Gilts picked to be kept for sows can be marked in a number of ways. Each farmer can choose his own method of marking.

In the fall, marked gilts should be checked again to make sure they conform to good brood sow type and show good mammary system development.

Pioneer Of Hancock Dies At County Home

Funeral services for Anna Trca were held at the St. Wenceslaus Catholic Church in Duncan at 3 p. m., Friday, with the Rt. Rev. Msgr Hradecky officiating. Burial in St. John's cemetery at Duncan. The Bohn funeral home of Garner was in charge.

Anna Trca died at the Hancock county home last Wednesday. She had been an inmate at the home since it was built. Her exact age is unknown as records are incomplete but old timers believe her to be at least 100 years old.

HANCOCK COUNTY TRIPLETS CELEBRATED SEVENTH BIRTHDAY

TWO RURAL SCHOOLS TURN OUT FOR PARTY LAST WEDNESDAY

Hancock County's First And Only Triplets Now In Second Grade

Wednesday, April 13th was a red-letter day in the Elmer Beier home in Liberty township, as on that date their triplets, Janis, Joann and James celebrated their 7th birthday.

A surprise birthday party had been planned for them after school and Mrs. Beier had invited Mrs. Glen Bridges and children from Klemme; and the children from schools Nos. 8 and 9 and their teachers, Miss Edna Smidt and Mrs. Asa Legge to the party.

Mrs. Kenneth Zwald, Mrs. Elmer Schaefer and Mrs. Irwin Blank assisted Mrs. Beier with games and serving a nice lunch to the 33 children present. For the occasion Mrs. Beier had baked and decorated three birthday cakes for the triplets. They received many nice gifts from their friends. All of the children had a fine time at the party.

BEARDSLEY SIGNS SCHOOL AGE BILL

A senate bill setting up a new law covering age limits on admission of children to the first grade of school was signed last Wednesday by Gov. William S. Beardsley.

The bill provides that a child cannot enter school unless he reaches 6 years of age by Nov. of the year in which the fall school term begins. If he becomes 6 after November he will have to wait until the following fall.

Annual Easter Egg Hunt And Family Dinner At Koerner Home Sunday

Each year Mr. and Mrs. Albert Koerner have a family gathering and dinner at their home on Easter Sunday. It is a big day for their grandchildren as Mrs. Koerner has about a bushel basketful of colored eggs hidden around the big yard and right after dinner the grandchildren go on an Easter egg hunt. This year Mrs. Koerner's grandson, Dennis Ridder, colored all the eggs for the occasion.

Those present at the Koerner home for the family gathering and dinner were Glen Bridges and family; Gerald Koerner and family; Orville Stokesbary and family; Levi Ridder and family; Kermit Koerner all of this community, and Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Rule of Dow City.

Avery Sunbeams Met

The Avery Sunbeams met at the home of Harriet Ostendorf on April 2nd. Sixteen members answered roll call by having an Easter favor. It gave us many new ideas for the setting.

We discussed our plans for the Mothers Day Tea which is to be May 14th, at the home of Lois Helps. Different committees were chosen for the different things which must be done for the Tea.

Darlene Ostendorf closed the meeting by having a game.

Soybean Support To Be At 90 Per Cent

H. E. Hazen, Iowa PMA chairman, said Thursday the support price for 1949 soybeans (grade No. 2) will be at 90 per cent of the comparable price as of Sept. 1, 1949.

The support price was set by the agriculture department in Washington. Grades other than No. 2 will be subject to premiums and discounts, Hazen said.

The support price will be through loans and purchase agreements available from harvest through January 31, 1950.

Suprise Birthday Party Held For Mrs. Henry Medaus

About 16 friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mrs. Henry Medaus on Monday afternoon and surprised her on her 73rd birthday.

The afternoon was spent in visiting after which the self-invited guests served a nice lunch. They presented Mrs. Medaus with a gift of money. All enjoyed a fine time.

SIXTY-FIVE YOUNG PEOPLE HAD EARLY EASTER BREAKFAST

The young people of the Klemme Methodist Church sponsored a 5:30 o'clock breakfast and early Easter morning services at the Methodist Church which was attended by about sixty-five young people from the two Klemme churches and the Liberty Church, and Peace Reformed.

Tables were decorated in gold and purple crepe paper and the tables were set in the form of a cross with lillies and daffodils adding the finishing touch to the Easter theme.

The breakfast was in charge of Mrs. Claude White, assisted by several mothers of the young people.

Isabelle Gibbs, president of the C. S. C. S. was leader of the service and was assisted by Marjorie Lau. Rev. C. Grosshuesch gave the Easter Service address and Maurice Jacobs gave an organ number. The Beier girs had a specia number

BAPTISMS AT KLEMME METHODIST CHURCH

The following infants were baptized during the Easter Worship Service on Sunday morning in the Klemme Methodist Church: Donald Eugene Kreitlow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Aron Kreitlow; Diana Starr Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Johnson; Wesley Lindon Patterson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Patterson; and John William Schwichtenberg, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John William Schwichtenberg.

A class of new members was also received into the church during the service, five being received by certificate of transfer from other Methodist churches and six being received on confession of faith.

A class of three new members was also received in the Liberty Methodist Church, all three joining on letters of transfer from other Methodist Churches.

Pact Is Likened to Alcoholics 'Anomnibus'

. . . BUT HE'S KEEPING HIS UNIFORM IN MOTHBALLS

By H. I. PHILLIPS

PURKEY ON ATLANTIC PACT

Ex-PFC Oscar Purkey, veteran of the last war, feels better after reading the Atlantic pact, but he still thinks it's smart to keep mothballs in his uniform and not swear off canned eggs for life at this point.

"If the world was in its right mind, in fair health and not so jumpy, this Atlantic pack would be okay," he writes, "but you got to remember that it is in the same shape as Alcoholics Anomnibus holding a street-corner huddle when a liquor truck turns turtle in full view.

"At first I think this Atlantic pack is not serious on account of it is not accompanied by no news that six blocks along First avenue, New York, is to be torn down to make way for a headquarters," his letter continues, "but I find it is on the level and the matter of a official address will be took up later.

"The swell thing about getting eight out of a dozen nations together like this is that at least it ends the day when they would not go far enough out on a limb to give each other their right phone numbers. They now agree not only to do this, but each one promises to answer the phone, no matter who is calling or how hot is it.

"I am sure the pack is a good thing on account of Henry Wallace and the Daily Worker and Russia is giving it the old elbow. If Henry was for it, I would be pretty suspicious. The way it shapes up to me is that with England, France, Canada, the United States, Belgium and those other nations on my side, I can afford to let Henry stay on the bench.

'I can't quite figure out what the Atlantic Pack does to the UN. Everybody says it does nothing serious, but my common sense tells me you can't have two police departments on the same job in the same spot without some difficulties here and there. I hope they work okay together in this case, but one of 'em will want the star's dressing room maybe and there is apt to be some professional jealousy. If the friction don't start a new war, I will be satisfied.

"All this Atlantic Pack does is to provide an agreement that all the nations outside the galvanized-iron draperies will consult together if any enemy starts playing rough. Personally, when the shooting starts I'd feel nervous if my side were just to confer on the matter. In the next global war, the sneak-puncher is going to have a awful head-start on the boys who go into a conference first. But I guess our side will find a way to perfect the jet-propelled huddle so that there will be only a few seconds of elapsed time between the attack and the answer.

"The western nations in this Pack may seem a little too gentlemanly for comfort in a global crisis, but it looks to me like this time they are with Stonewall Webster or Kayo Henry or whoever it was that said we have got to hang together or wire the newsreels men to photograph us all hanging separately. Anyhow, the news about this Atlantic pack has done me some good. I ain't taking so many aspirin."

Answered

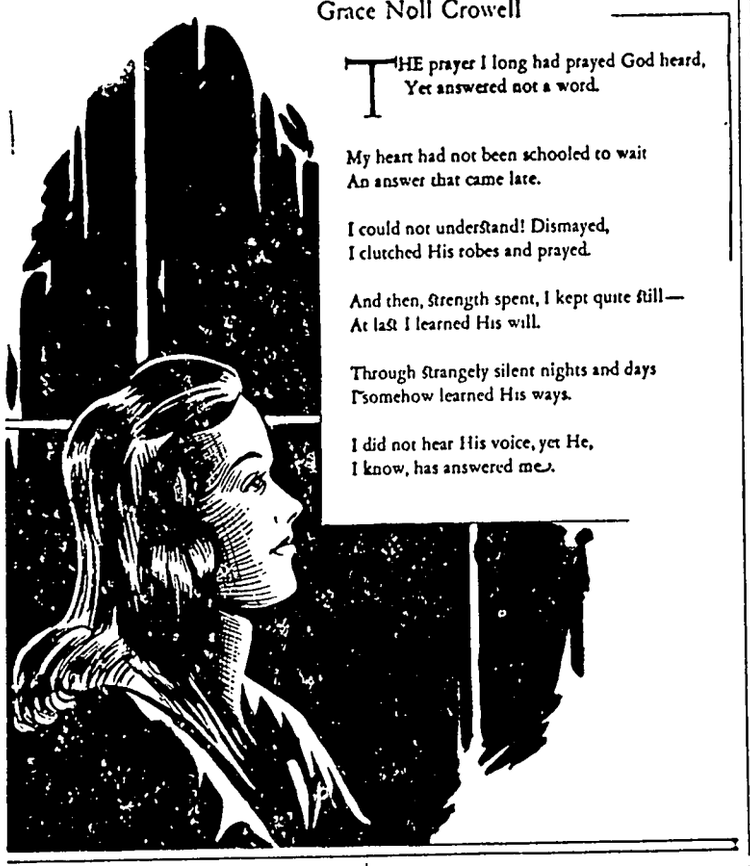
Grace Noll Crowell



THE prayer I long had prayed God heard,
Yet answered not a word.

My heart had not been schooled to wait
An answer that came late.

I could not understand! Dismayed,
I clutched His robes and prayed.

And then, strength spent, I kept quite still—
At last I learned His will.

Through strangely silent nights and days
I somehow learned His ways.

I did not hear His voice, yet He,
I know, has answered me.

The Easter Miracle

Bell Syndicate—WNU Features

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

"IF I COULD actually have seen a miracle, in the days of Christ's life on earth, of course I'd believe!"

So many people—bewildered, anxious, troubled in these dark days—say that, that it seems worth while to point out to them in this time of Easter, a real living, inexplicable, undeniable miracle.

Well, then, there lived a young carpenter 2,000 years ago, who talked strange talk of God's being his father God, the avenging, cruel, mysterious ruler of the old religions, just as a father, understanding and wise and loving! This was so extraordinary an idea that it is no wonder that this young man, Jesus, was regarded with dark suspicion.

He never wrote a line, never had any position or money, never gained an influential friend, and He presently died the death of a common criminal. All this happened in a little oriental town more obscure than is the nearest crossroads village to you. No railway to his town, no telephone, radio, movie news Nothing Nothing, one would think, to prevent this political criminal from sinking into the obscurity that has swallowed up such young radicals from the beginning of time

Radical in His Ideas

For radical He was He said children were way ahead of the rest of us in the secret of eternal life, He said the humblest among us would one day stand first; He said anyone who needed your kindness was your neighbor He said things about feeding the hungry, clothing the naked that were quite new to oriental philosophy

And He went further, He went against all human precedent and custom. He said, "Forgive your enemies." Why should you? He said, "If your enemy take your cloak, give him your coat also." Who ever heard such nonsense? He said, "Overcome not evil with evil, but overcome evil with good."

Why, said the wiseacres then—as they are saying today—if you did that, your enemies would simply walk over you, and you'd be destroyed! So they began to regard Him as dangerous, and in the end satisfied themselves that they had destroyed him.

Spread Across the World

However, they hadn't. With the inexorable power of its divine origin, that strange doctrine of His spread—spread to the new world of Europe, the new world of the western hemisphere And the blazing, irrefutable miracle of this Easter Day is that the name of this obscure carpenter is today the one best known among all men. We call our world Christendom We call our philosophy Christianity.

Christianity ruled Europe for hundreds of years What else did Europe have that the oriental nations didn't have? I can think of nothing fundamental.

Was it Christ's law, then, feebly and imperfectly as it was followed, that raised the cathedrals and the hospices, that painted the great Madonnas and cut the marble saints, that added streets, hospitals, museums, colleges, libraries, bridges and laws becoming steadily more and more humane?

You don't see all this where Christianity is not. Built upon the old Jewish faith, carrying over much of its ritual magnificence, still the law is that of the humble carpenter who let them crucify Him, and forgave them with His dying breath.

Had we followed His law closely and heroically, we would not be where we are today There would never have been slums and poverty, heartless wealth and bitter need.

When spring brings the glory and beauty, the lilacs and buttercups of Easter, we must admit that there is something we don't understand in the power of Christ's name—that name that eclipses all other names

FIRST AID to the AILING HOUSE

by Roger C. Whitman

QUESTION: My mother's two-family brick house is 36 years old. The tenant on the second floor complained that the front room was filled with smoke. The chimney from the furnace goes through this room. My mother put out the furnace fire in order to clear up the smoke. Later, when a new fire was started, she noticed smoke seeping through the brick on the outside of the building. Do you consider this dangerous?

ANSWER: It may be a serious fire hazard. Your mother should engage the services of a competent mason as soon as possible. Evidently the mortar in the brickwork of the chimney has disintegrated to a point where it is now a fire hazard.

STAGE—SCREEN—RADIO

By INEZ GERHARD

HAL WALLIS, Anatole Litvak and Rouben Mamoulian will judge the motion picture synopses submitted for the National Five Arts $100.000 award; Norman Corwin, Arch Oboler and Erik Barnouw will pick the best radio scripts. Plays, popular songs and short stories will be judged by equally prominent authorities

HAL WALLIS

Each sub-contest carries prizes of $2,000, $1,000 and $500, plus up to $70,000 in fellowships as well as professional productions of the winners. For details write to National Five Arts Award, 715 Fifth Ave., New York City. All entries should be sent to that address. Here's a wonderful chance for unknowns!

Anatole Litvak is known for many successful directorial jobs; "Sorry, Wrong Number" and "The Snake Pit" are two recent ones. Wallis has signed Joan Fontaine for "September," to be filmed in Italy in August for Paramount.

Pat Knight thinks maybe it is an omen forecasting her future stardom — during filming of Columbia's "Shockproof" she found a letter in her uniform's pocket, addressed to Joan Crawford, who wore the uniform in "A Woman's Face".

A Moroccan Michoue", something new in New York parties, launched George Raft "Outpost in Morocco". Shot against magnificent, authentic backgrounds, it is a story of the French Foreign Legion, with plenty of action. The men in the supporting cast, headed by Akim Tamiroff and John Litel, are excellent. Marie Windsor must have been cast only for her looks.

Joanne Dru became an actress because she was too shy to make friends and took dramatic lessons to overcome her shyness. Howard Hawks saw her at a dramatic school, hired her for "Red River"

BLUEBEARD'S BET

By Lilliace M. Mitchell

"THEY'RE all curious," insisted Arthur Jordan. "There never lived a woman who wasn't 99-44/100 per cent curiosity. I could quote you a dozen bits of poetry proving the fact—"

"For goodness' sake, don't!" urged Clem Tate "I'll take your word for it. Honestly. But Elsie isn't that way I'm telling you."

"You're the kind that would never be happy with your wife asking you this and looking over mail and rooting about in your desk when you're out of the house I know you.

"Don't speak of Elsie Lyons as 'rooting', if you please," Clem Tate said coldly. "I'll tell you what I'll lock the office door and give her the key — since you mention Bluebeard —and then you and I will go out. I'll keep the key of the corridor door, however, and we'll come in again and sit here I'll tell her not to use that key at all See? Then if she is as curious as you say, she'll come bouncing in a la Mademoiselle Bluebeard or whatever her name was and we'll be sitting right inside here."

3-Minute Fiction

"O.K. with me," said Arthur Jordan. "She'll be in here and don't you forget I told you so. I'd as soon have a homelier girl and one who wasn't so careless anyhow. She's decorative but she'd forget her head if it weren't for the curls there."

Now Elsie Lyons was pretty. She knew that fact as well as anyone else Fluffy golden hair framed a heart-shaped face with a pointed chin below a widow's peak of hair at the upper edge. Her great grey eyes turned to pansy-color at times But looks and business efficiency do not always go hand in hand unfortunately and Elsie ran about ninety-nine and forty-four one-hundredths per cent efficiency.

"I am locking the door to the private office, Miss Lyons," said Clem Tate distinctly. "I want no one to go in there. No one. Is that clear, Miss Lyons. Here is the key."

"Certainly, Mr. Tate," she said demurely, placing the key in her desk drawer.

The two young men walked resolutely into the outer corridor and the outside door swung too gently behind them

"Well, Bluebeard, how about it?" asked Jordan when he put the key into the door to the private office

As the door swung open they both looked in eagerly They heard the telephone in the outer office Silently they sat down and Jordan gave his partner a poke in the ribs when Clem Tate looked too triumphant as the moments passed.

AT THE END of a half hour Clem Tate rose to his feet. Jordan followed him and they made their way silently into the outer corridor again.

"Well, was I right, Jordan?" asked Clem.

"You win, Bluebeard—er, I mean, non-Bluebeard," said Jordan. "Say, I've got to have a breath of air after that self-imposed silence. I think maybe we both like talking a little better than we thought we did I had a thousand things I wanted to tell you while we sat there. But as for your charming little Elsie — she's the real thing all right, all right. Never even clicked the key in the lock, did she? Or looked through the key-hole at us?"

Jordan ambled towards the elevators with a wave of his hand. Clem Tate stood an instant at the outer door and then entered the suite of offices. He hurried through to the door of the private office and tried the knob.

"Oh—" he said, "Miss Lyons, I forgot that this door is locked Let me have the key, will you, please?"

"I—I'm sorry, Mr Tate. But I simply can't think what I did with that key There was a telephone call the moment you left and I looked for the key so that I could —could—er—lay the message on your desk.

"But I said not to go in."

She laughed gently Dimples peeped in and out charmingly. She bent again and then with a sigh she murmured: "Oh! Here it is! I'm so careless!"

Ice Cream, Cake Make Acceptable Desserts For Nearly Every Meal

THERE'S NOTHING FANCY about ice cream and cake, but they make a wonderful dessert for any occasion, plain or fancy. Then, too, there are few who can resist turning down a heaping bowl of creamy ice cream and a slice of feather-like cake, so you have no worry about pleasing family or guests.

For youngsters who have difficulty getting their daily quota of milk and other dairy foods, ice cream is the perfect answer The same is true, too, of adults who cannot drink their pint of milk.

Ice cream is a highly nutritious dairy food that furnishes energy as well as minerals such as calcium and phosphorus. It also gives significant amounts of vitamins A and B2 and quality protein, all of which are needed for proper growth, strong muscles, bones and teeth.

You don't need to do anything special to make a festive dessert out of ice cream. Simply pile it in a glass bowl for easy serving and to get the full benefit of its luscious appearance. Around the bowl you may have bought or homemade cupcakes or several bowls of assorted jellies, jams or sauces for make-your-own sundaes.

HERE ARE SOME delicious cupcakes which you may want to serve:

Fudge Cupcakes
(Makes 12 cakes)

- 2 squares unsweetened chocolate
- ¼ cup sugar
- 2 tablespoons milk
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- ¼ cup butter
- ½ cup sugar
- 1 egg
- 1½ cups sifted cake flour
- 1½ teaspoon baking powder
- ¼ teaspoon baking soda
- ¼ teaspoon salt

Melt chocolate over hot water, add one-fourth cup sugar and two tablespoons milk; stir until very smooth. Add vanilla and remove from heat.

Work butter and sugar to a soft cream, add egg and beat hard until blended. Stir in milk, then the flour mixed and sifted with the other dry ingredients When mixed, stir in chocolate mixture and pour into buttered cupcake pans. Bake in a moderate (375°.) oven for about 25 minutes. Cool and cover tops with.

Apple-Raisin Sauce
(For Ice Cream)

- 2 cups sweetened, strained apple sauce
- ½ teaspoon cinnamon
- ½ cup seedless raisins
- 1 tablespoon orange marmalade

Mix apple sauce with all other ingredients and heat slowly to the boiling point. Simmer 10 minutes over a slow fire or until raisins are plump. Cool before serving.

Coffee Cream Sauce
(For Ice Cream)

- 1 cup light brown sugar
- 1 tablespoon instant powdered coffee
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon cornstarch
- 2 tablespoons butter
- ½ cup coffee cream

Mix sugar with cornstarch, coffee and salt. Add butter and cream and stir over a slow fire until boiling. Boil for one minute, remove from fire and cool slightly. Add one teaspoon vanilla. Serve cold

Another delicious way to serve ice cream and cake is to arrange two slices of spice cake for a serving. Place a portion of ice cream in the center and top with fruit sauce, an apple-raisin sauce, as given below, or crushed pineapple, pineapple and ginger or mincemeat sauce.

Chocolate Frosting

- 2 squares unsweetened chocolate, melted
- 2 tablespoons hot milk.
- 1½ cups sifted confectioners' sugar (about)
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- pecan nut meats

Melt chocolate over hot water, add hot milk, sugar and vanilla to make a thick frosting. Beat vigorously to make it creamy and more sugar, if necessary, to make frosting spread easily, without running.

Coffee flavor goes beautifully with vanilla ice cream. If you like a sauce, here's just the one:

HERE ARE SOME excellent uses for leftover cake that are served with ice cream. A bit of dressing makes them glamorous desserts.

Quick Alaskas
(Serves 6)

- 6 leftover cup cakes
- 3 egg whites
- 6 tablespoons granulated sugar
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- 1 quart vanilla ice cream

Cut the centers from the cakes, leaving a wide center to hold the ice cream Save the cake centers for another dessert. Beat the egg whites until stiff enough to hold peaks. Fold in sugar, one tablespoon at a time, then lemon juice. Just before serving, place the cakes on a bread board, fill centers with ice cream and cover the ice cream and all the outside of the cake with a thick layer of meringue. Bake in a moderate (375°) oven for five minutes and serve immediately

Leftover cake is easily glamorized if served in this way: place two thin slices of the cake on a plate, center with ice cream and top with a spicy fruit sauce like apple-raisin, given in this column.

Ice Cream Trifle

- 3 cups crumbled spice, pound or sponge cake
- 1 cup orange juice
- 1 cup chilled pineapple juice
- Ice cream
- ½ cup chopped nuts

Place cake crumbs in a large serving bowl and pour mixed fruit juices over them. Let stand for at least one-half hour. Fill bowl with small scoops of ice cream, then sprinkle with chopped nuts.

LYNN SAYS:
Make the Most Of your Meats

When you roast beef or lamb, cut small slits in the fat of the meat and insert in these small slivers of garlic This adds a lot of flavor to the meat that many like. Remove garlic before serving.

Honey mixed with orange juice and grated orange rind may be poured over the scored fat of ham.

Sauteed mushrooms may be added to beef gravy to provide interesting flavor

Leftover beef, like lamb may be curried and served on hot, fluffy rice

If hamburgers tend to look skimpy, place a thick slice of cheese on them before broiling.

Add drained horseradish to medium white sauce if you want to a boiled cut of the meat.

Minced scallions and parsley may bring out delicious beef flavor if be added to melted butter to bring out the full flavor of chicken steaks or chops. which have been broiled

International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

By DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

SCRIPTURE: Luke 12:16-21; 14.27-33. DEVOTIONAL READING: Mark 9:42-52.

Rules of Temperance

Lesson for April 24, 1949

THERE IS REALLY something funny about it. Consider a First Church congregation singing:

"Jesus, I my cross have taken,
All to leave and follow thee;
Destitute, despised, forsaken,
Thou from hence my All shalt be."

Oh, come, come, ladies and gentlemen! Your cross? Where is it? "All to leave"—?

Dr. Foreman

You are going right back to your homes for an extra-good Sunday dinner. "Destitute"—? (Some congregations, believe it or not, actually sing "naked, poor," instead of "destitute.") Not a one of you ever has been on relief; you probably have more money in the bank than most of the people who didn't come to church.

Some People Cannot Be Christians

IT MAY BE FUNNY to compare what the congregation is singing about themselves with what they really are But it is sad, too, because that hymn illustrates how foggy-minded some Christians are about their own "cross."

They can sing blithely about it, and even complain (in song) about their own condition as something for the Salvation Army to look into, when they don't mean a word of it.

The fact is, Jesus did demand just the thing the hymn describes. He said, in so many words, "Whoso ever doth not bear his cross and come after me cannot be my disciple."

What Did Jesus Mean?

THERE ARE TWO ways of misunderstanding Jesus here One wrong line is taken by those who think Jesus did not mean a word he said. The other wrong line is taken by a very few people, a very few indeed, who take Jesus absolutely literally. They believe that no one can be a true, 100 per cent Christian, usless and until he gives up all his property, all his family, and lives alone and wild, a hermit in the wilderness. The facts show that both these interpretations are false The world has never been really made better, either by selfish, comfort-loving, worldly Christians, or by the wild and woolly hermits who are clean "out of this world."

"Love Thyself Last"

THE WISEST, the most devoted Christians, have known better what Jesus meant. Jesus' own parable of the "rich fool" gives us the hint. He tells of a man who had everything he wanted . . . but when he came to die, discovered he had nothing. In that little story Jesus shows us a man who put himself before all other persons; who put himself before God; and who put things before character. He lived for his body, he lived for his comforts, he lived for himself.

The neighbors, maybe, called him smart because he was rich; but God called him a fool, and what God calls a man, that he is.

Taking the cross means living as Jesus lived, not as that fool lived.

Christian's and Liquor Don't Mix

CONSIDER JUST ONE illustration of what Jesus means. Should a Christian drink alcoholic liquors? If you are not a Christian, you can try to answer this from non-Christian reasons; but that is not the question. Shall a Christian drink? Just think about this in the light of what Jesus said. The disciple of Christ will deny himself; does the drinker deny himself? The disciple of Christ will put Christ first always; but what does the drinker put first? Jesus called a man a fool who lived for his bodily pleasure, lived for himself; what would he call the man who thinks he can "take it or leave it" but who is actually tied to his bottles?

It is true, a selfish man may perhaps (for selfish reasons, such as saving money) deny himself liquor, tobacco, or even tea and coffee, and still be no Christian.

But a man who really denies himself, who loves himself last, will find that other self-denials follow as a matter of course. A man who lets his appetite dictate to him, especially his appetite for alcohol, is a man who is letting real self starve.

Irrigation, Fertilizer Equal Bigger Crops

Fertilizer pays under irrigation in the Panhandle, according to F. B. Hunt of Hale county, Texas. With 200 pounds of ammonium nitrate an acre applied in the fall before sowing-over land that had been summer-fallowed, he increased his wheat yield from 45 to 55 bushels; on land in continuous wheat, 200 pounds of ammonium nitrate per acre raised the yield from 15 to 30 bushels.

Mr. Hunt is one of hundreds of Panhandle farmers using well irrigation. With water, which permits the growing of legumes, they are starting crop-rotation systems to hold the soil at high-production levels.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Elder, Martha and Charles, of Ames, came Sunday afternoon to see Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Elder, as Mrs. Elder is still very ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Gast entertained to dinner on Easter Sunday: Mr. and Mrs. James Fredin and Carolyn of Fort Dodge; Mr. and Mrs. Gast, Roger and Judy of Miller; Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Gibbs and Ronna; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Zwald, Winola and Eugene; and Mr. and Mrs. Loren Gast and Kathryn.

Birthday Party Held April 13

A birthday party was held on Wednesday, April 13th for Dorothy Palmer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Palmer of Clear Lake, who was six years old.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Dan Webner; Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Bier and Roberta; Mr and Mrs. Arnold Downey, Sherril and Sonny; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Coyier; Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Coyier; Mrs. Marcella Johnson, Linda and Junior.

Lunch was served and Dorothy received many nice gifts.

Beier Children Are Good Spellers!

It is really something when 2 or 3 children in one family bring home a report card saying each had 100 in Spelling, but when SIX children all in one family each bring home 100 in Spelling . . . that is something!

Six of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Beier's children: Bobby, 8th grade; Gordon, 6th grade; Ronny, 3rd grade and the triplets Janice, Joann and James, all in the 2nd grade at Liberty No. 8 of which Mrs. Asa Legge is the teacher, all had 100 in Spelling for the past six weeks!

EVERYDAY OCCURRENCE— LINE-UP FOR LUNCH

The line-up for nourishing school lunches grows longer every day as the National School Lunch program pays off in healthier children. Cooperation of parents, teachers and school lunch supervisors has made this program available to 118,000 Iowa school children this year.

It's not an oddity these days to see younsters lined up at school for their share in a real, "home-cooked" meal at noon. So familiar has this routine become in many Iowa schools that youngsters are rapidly forgetting the wearisome, cold, sack lunches they used to tote to school.

More than 1½ million school children in 11 Midwest states have lined up every day during this past school year for their plateful of well-planned food and bottle of milk. To be exact, there are 1,670,000 younsters now taking part in the school lunch program—an increase of 182,333 from a year ago.

And with Uncle Sam and parents working together to foot the bill, the cost for feeding each child has been kept to a minimum.

Iowa has 118,000 school children in the program—an increase of 1,298 over the year before, and prospects are good for an even larger number in the year ahead.

Reason For Program

Occasionally some parents, who plan wisely and well for their own younster's health, question the need for a school lunch program, says Mildred Nelson, extension nutritionist, Iowa State College. They are sincere in their query, for they rightly reason that it's the parents' responsibility to insure the health and optimum growth of the child.

But, she points out, when parents work together with school authorities to provide appetizing, nourishing lunches for all children, they are not only assuming their own immediate responsibility but are going a step further—they are insuring the future of the nation.

Foresighted parents well know that better grades, more alert students, less absence from school because of illness, and general better health and growth are direct rewards of the school lunch program. They are aware, too, that education for better nutrition and health is not always learned as quickly as the a, b, c's. And some children need to reap the benefits of good lunches at least once a day, for there may be many reasons why they aren't too well fed otherwise.

Plentiful Foods Help

Planning menus with variety, appeal, and plenty of health-giving vitamins and minerals is not an easy task. Moreover, filling up hungry, growing the youngsters takes man-sized helpings of food. Much of the economy in carrying out the program has come through using foods produced in surplus. Potatoes, fresh cabbage, canned applesauce, canned prunes, canned orange juice, dried eggs, dried fruits, cheese, peanut butter and tomatoes are some of the many foods which have regularly gone out to our Iowa schools, reports C. W. Bangs, head of the school lunch program for the state.

This last year 675 Iowa schools provided type A lunches—complete meals providing one-third to one-half the day's nutritional requirements. Three school provided type B lunches, which are less complete and may be supplemented by food from home; and 204 carried on the type C program, which provides ½ pint of whole milk to each child. Many schools have improved their facilities for the efficient handling of the lunches. While it takes thought and community planning to make any school project successful, this is one which is well worth the effort.

BEARDSLEY SIGNS SCHOOL AID BILL

Gov. William S. Beardsley has signed the $12,000,000 a year general school aid bill.

The measure increases the amount available for general aid from $7,235,000 to $12,000,000 annually. The money goes to all school districts on an average daily attendance basis.

It is the principal measure in a legislative program to increase the total of all state aid for schools from $13,000,000 to $22,750,000 a year. Legislative action has been completed on virtually the entire program.

NO DRIVER

A driverless semi-trailer cattle truck ran away at Independence recently, knocking over a parking meter and two gas pumps before coming to a stop. Glen Albert of Dike, the driver, had gone inside to have a bottle of pop. When he came out, his truck was half a block down the street and had done about $250 worth of damage.

SPECIAL MEASURES NEEDED TO PRODUCE QUALITY MILK IN SPRING

Quality milk is one item that doesn't roll around wtih spring, unless special measures are taken by dairymen each year, says Paul Henderson, county extension director.

Extra time required in the field means too little time spent in keeping cows and barns in good condiion, and often results in poor wash jobs on dairy utensils and equipment, Henderson says. He thinks it's a good idea to turn cows out in the spring sunshine, but he points out that barnlots are often muddy and special precautions must be taken to keep dirt from eventually finding its way into the milk.

To cut down milking time, Henderson suggests installing an automatic hot water heater capable of heating 12 gallons or more Having hot water on hand saves 30 minutes to one hour, when it comes to washing off cows and washing equipment after milking. There's still time this spring to lay out a room in the barn, seal it off, and install cleaning and cooling equipment. The room should have an outside entrance and can serve as a milkhouse, where equipment can be arranged for time-saving, systematic operations.

Henderson also suggests a thorough checkover for cooling tanks and cooling systems that may need adjusting and repairing before warm weather arrives.

Another thing that may cut back the quality of milk in spring is off-flavors that may result from quick change to an all-grass diet. He recommends a gradual change to a summer ration of grass, with grain supplementing pasture.

CLEAR LAKE BILL IS SENT TO BEARDSLEY

By a vote of 92-0 the Iowa house sent to Gov William S Beardsley Thursday a bill to appropriate $15,000 for the state conservation commission to finance a survey of pollution of water in Clear Lake.

The bill has passed the senate by 46-0 last Tuesday.

Stipulations in the bill call for the commission to report its findings to the governor, the Clear Lake City council and the board of supervisors of Cerro Gordo County.

It also states that the state shall be repayed for the cost of the survey in proportion to benefits received if sanitary or drainage districts are created to stop pollution.

DISC CUTS DEEP

12 year old Mary Lou Goodmanson of Ireton turned her ankle on the sidewalk recently and fell onto a newly-sharpened disc which the blacksmith shop had placed out on the sidewalk. Several stitches were required to close the deep cut received in the large muscle of her leg.

HYBRID

Bud Grafing of Rock Rapids has an eight weeks old "calf," out of an Angus cow, that apparently was sired by one of the buck deer which have been seen around his farm. The little hybrid has the sharp hooves and stiff hind legs of a deer, a white patch underneath the short tail, black tongue and pointed face. It jumps around mighty spry, too.

45 YEARS

Back in 1904, Harry Lindsay got off the train at Lake View and started to work for the Deur drug store there. He is still working at the same job, a 45 year "hitch" with the same establishment. His present employer is the son of one of the former owners.

HONORED

On April 2, many of the "babies" which Dr W O. Wyland of Underwood brought into the world, plus neighbors and friends, gathered at the Underwood school to honor the doctor on his completion of 60 years of service to the community.

PITCHFORK

When Don Peters, Rembrandt youth, ran out to the barnyard to greet his father, his father failed to see him coming and rammed him with a pitchfork One tine went through to the cheekbone, narrowly missing the boy's eye.

ANNIVERSARY

At Sumner, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Sorge have observed their 62nd wedding anniversary They were married in 1887 He is now 87, Mrs Sorge is 82.

BLOWOUT

While driving to a funeral in Illinois, Mr and Mrs. Raymond Wilson nearby caused their own. A rear tire bew out and they overturned. Neither occupant was seriously hurt and they continued on their way to the funeral.

LAMBS

A four-year old ewe belonging to Dave Angle, of near Adel, gave birth to "quadruplet" lambs recently. The four little fellows are doing very well.

SINGED

As he pumped air into a blowtorch, Leonard Johnson of Elk Horn was badly singed when the pump was blown out of the torch, enveloping him in flames.

BIRTHDAY

Thomas Bakewell, of Waukon had real occasion to celebrate his 92nd birthday recently. On that same day, March 6, a great-grandson was born in California.

51 YEARS

For over half a century — 51 years, in fact, Aaron Nelson of near Red Oak has rented the same farm. The ownership of the farm has been passed down to the daughter of the original owner, the late W. H. Stafford. There has never been a written lease.

STAMP ODDITY

Back in 1895, the postmaster at Jefferson ran out of one-cent stamps. To tide his over, he took ordinary two-cent stamps, cut them in two and wrote "due 1 cent" on each half. The 20 or so of these make-shift stamps which went into circulation have now become a collector's item, valued at around $50.

BIG DAY

Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Strait of Milton became grandparents twice on March 18. Their sons, Maurice and William, each became proud fathers on that day.

FUN?

Four Sheldon youths who shot at the store windows there with a BB gun to hear the "ping" were dismayed to find that each pellet pierced the glass and knocked out a hunk about an inch in diameter on the far side. They ruined about $3,000 worth of plate glass while riding around the city in an automobile, shooting their air pistol. Charges have been filed.

PLOW

Just south of Exira, and old "walking plow" has grown up inside a tree, with only the handle and part of the plow protruding. Old timers say the plow was left near a young sapling about 1875 and somehow the tree grew up completely around it.

STAMPS

Mike Twedt of Britt recently received a letter from General Claire Chennault of China, and the back side of the envelope was covered with Chinese stamps, $3,100 worth of them.

STRING

Rev. C. A. Carlson of Greenfied has the hobby of saving string. Back in 1910, his wife had a "hobby party" and her husband's contribution to the party was a ball of twine which he had saved, as big as a fist. 39 years later, the ball is now over two feet in diameter.

OAT BIN

Little Virginia Loy Wise, 9, of near Manson, was smothered to death recently when she fell into an oat bin The tragedy was not discovered until the girl's body plugged the bin outlet some time later

LONG TIME

At Audubon, the late S. M. Luse had maintained an account in one of the local banks continuously since 1884, which possibly is some kind of a record for an individual account.

WRONG MAN

Jerry Peters of Holland, Iowa, dropped in at a Waterloo hospital to inquire about his friend Wilbur Smith. He learned that Wilbur was doing fine, and sent him some flowers. It was several days later before he learned that he had gone to the wrong hospital and he had sent flowers to the wrong Wilbur Smith.

NINTY-THREE YEARS

W. E. Warnes of Eagle Grove passed his driver's license examination last week and is believed to be the oldest licensed driver in Iowa. Mr. Warnes is 93.

FELL

Removing storm windows has brought death to Otto Sanow, of LeMars last week. He fell from a ladder while working on a second story window, receiving a fractured skull.

FOLDING BATHTUB

Recently, Mrs. Inez Fair of Adel purchased a folding bath tub at an auction there for $14. Since then she has learned the tub was made in 1800 and may be a collector's item. It is made of rosewood, lined with tin and folds up like a roll top desk. She has been offered as high as $150 for it.

BOY

Shoppers in Williamsburg received an hour's free entertainment one day there recently, when a three-year old boy locked his mother out of the family car and refused to let her in. Eventually, an auto mechanic was called upon to open one of the doors.

How Coal Plays in Wales To Boost Building Output

More than 3,000 men are working night and day to complete the bed of a vast new steel works at Margan, near Port Talbot, in Wales. The plant will cost 60 million pounds (240 million dollars). When finished, this huge enterprise will be the most modern steel plant in all Europe and will produce some 16,000 tons of pig iron and 29,000 tons of steel ingots per week.

The new plant will boost still more Britain's steel output, which continues to break records. Production target for 1948 is 14,500,000 tons of ingot steel. Output during the first four months of this year was at the rate of just over 15 million tons a year, a record for the industry.

Architect for this tremendous project is Sir Percy Thomas, honorary member of the American Institute of Architects and three times president of the South Wales Institute of Architects.

The Steel Company of Wales will draw all its limestone supplies from its own quarry at Cornelly. The wharf and dock at Margam are to be enlarged to cope with extra ore required for the increased production. Welsh mills already produce 70 per cent of Britain's tinplate.

Check Pastures, Haylands, For Ferns, Farmers Urged

Livestock raisers are warned of the danger of fern poisoning if pastures become scanty as a result of hot, dry weather.

The warning, by American Veterinary Medical association, declared: "Dairy cows are likely to eat dangerous quantities of ferns when good grass becomes scarce as a result of over-grazing or unfavorable weather. An animal stricken with fern poisoning may become suddenly and acutely ill and die within one to three days. Or, the condition may come on more slowly, starting with a loss of appetite and a slight nosebleed. These cases linger on for five or 10 days, but practically all are fatal."

To guard against such losses, farmers are urged to check their pastures and hay lands for the presence of heavy growths of fern.

"If a case of fern poisoning is suspected, the herd should be moved to new forage immediately, pending the results of a diagnosis to determine whether this or some infectious disease is the real cause of trouble.

Worst Food Thief

One hundred thousand bushels of wheat were stolen from American farmers in a single year. That was the estimated loss due to leaf rust in 1938. Today that grain thief is still at large in many fields in the naton's winter and spring wheat belt. The world-wide spread of this virulent, centuries-old plant disease, and the economic importance of wheat have made leaf rust the gravest menace to the world's foremost food crop.

Freezing of Eggs

Only fresh clean eggs should be selected for freezing When preparing whole eggs, stir each egg slightly with a fork—just enough to mix yolk and white. Pour into small bags, seal and freeze When yolks are to be frozen, beat them slightly—not enough to make them fluffy. To each six egg yolks add one teaspoon of sugar or one-half teaspoon of salt. This prevents yolks from congealing during storage. A one-half pint package is convenient for freezing eggs, since all eggs in a package should be used promptly after thawing. Containers should be filled only nine-tenths full to allow space for expansion during freezing

Family Income Figures

More than four out of every 10 non-farm families with incomes of $5,000 a year or more live in small towns—cities with populations of under 50,000 and rural non-farm areas. This is shown in data by the U. S. bureau of the census on the distribution of family income in the United States by size of place of residence The other families in this income class live in the larger cities. ven here, however, the big cities do not have a preponderant edge, indicating that big family incomes and big cities do not necessarily go together, any popular notion to the contrary.

When Margarine Made Debut

Margarine was first developed in 1870 in response to the demand of Napoleon III of France that someone provide a nutritious spread to safeguard the health of France's fat-starved soldiers and civilians. When the French chemist, Hippolyte Mege-Mouries, first manufactured margarine, he used principally beef fat churned with milk. Today's margarine is entirely different from the French chemist's original product, for margarine now is made almost totally of vegetable oils and is fortified with Vitamin A.

Facts About Rotenone

Rotenone is one of the home gardener's helpers in producing more food with less effort, but the insecticide is sold in many different forms. To be effective in killing insects, the material should contain at least three-fourths of 1 per cent rotenone if it is to be applied as a dust and 4 or 5 per cent of rotenone if it is to be mixed with water for a spray.

Personality Plays Big Part Accidents, Survey Shows

People who habitually crumple the fenders of other people's cars do not do it because of poor eyesight but because of personality. This is the conclusion reached by Northwestern university psychologists after a study of personal characteristics of commercial bus drivers as related to their accident records.

Extensive questionnaires among bus drivers with both good and bad records were issued, in order to determine which personality factors coincide with accident proneness. They found that, contrary to general belief, differences between safe and accident-prone drivers on the job could not be attributed to any differences in visual acuity, depth of perception, night vision, recovery from glare, complex reaction time or mental test scores, but rather to basic personality differences which tend to make an individual "accident-prone" or "accident-free." Rigid company screening, however, had eliminated applicants who were markedly deficient in the former qualities, the educators pointed out.

Answers showed that the accident-proned drivers tend to decide things on the spur of the moment, without forethought. They like to tell "tall stories" and enjoy parties at which there is a lot of "loud fun " They have a ready, often unreasoned, retort when their work is criticized.

The safe driver will stick with a "lost cause," think about himself and his plans a great deal; and although believing a person should get eight hours of sleep to be healthy, he wears himself out by taking on too much work. He prefers conservative styles in clothes; likes to think through a problem before he tackles it, and enjoys spending an evening alone.

Wire Window, Door Screens, Need Care for Best Results

Rain spattering off dusty window screens can cause needless soiling of draperies, curtains, upholstery fabrics and even rugs. To prevent such unsightly streaking, clean wire window and door screens regularly with the dusting attachment of the vacuum cleaner or with a soft brush.

If the cleaning discloses small breaks in the mesh, repair them with ready-made screen patches. Larger holes can be patched temporarily with pieces of metal screening one-half inch larger than the opening. Remove cross-wires around the patch to form a fringe and bend the fringe down so its wires slip through the screen around the hole. Then pinch the fringe tightly against the screen.

Screening gives longer, more efficient service when it is painted regularly Wipe the screening with benzine, then apply varnish thinned with turpentine and linseed oil This mixture keeps the mesh openings from clogging and insures good light and air circulation.

Childbirth Is Less Painful

University of Michigan hospital is making extensive use of caudal anesthesia, which virtually eliminates pain while the mother remains awake all during the birth process Dr Reynold L. Haas, assistant professor of obstetrics and gynecology at the university medical school, points out that caudal anesthesia is entirely different from spinal anesthesia, an alternate method of reducing labor pains In caudal anesthesia the drug is injected in the lower end of the spine and blocks the nerves to the organs of birth In the spinal method the drug is put directly into the spinal fluid. The use of caudal anesthesia has not become extensive because of the special training required to administer it, according to Dr Haas

Early American Gangster

A noted thief and daring burglar, Sile Doty not only led a gang of counterfeiters, horse thieves and burglars of the New England, Middle and Western states but also was the terror of Mexico during 1849. Doty was an expert mechanic and tool maker who would make handcuffs, sell them to a sheriff and then keep a duplicate key in the sole of his shoe. Fighting in the Mexican war, he stole a blooded charger from one of the grandees south of the Rio Grande, and presented it to Gen. Winfield Scott.

Polish Coal Estimates

Polish coal resources are estimated by Polish experts at anywhere from 75 billion to 80 billion tons. Ten per cent of the deposits are in the western territories—the lands Poland absorbed from eastern Germany. Poland's hard coal resources have been estimated at 10,500,000,000 tons by a special commission of mining experts. The commission stated that this includes only definitely ascertained deposits in mining claims to a depth of about 3,300 feet.

Goat Replaces Horse

The horse, driven from the roads by the automobile, lost its place in the garment factory to the smelly goat; for it is a goathair fabric that is now used in suit linings. It is a cloth made by conventional weaving methods, in which goathair is used as the filling yarn in a warp of cotton, wool or rayon. It differs from the old horsehair fabric in that the goathair is blended with wool or rayon and spun into yarn so that it goes into the loom as a strong, continuous thread.

Postal Rates Boost

THERE IS EVERY indication that this congress will boost postal rates. The increase will not be the figure which the post office department has asked, and because of the influence of big publishers in the magazine field, it is likely that some small newspapers may stand the brunt of the increase unless they take measures early to build a back-fire with their congressmen.

There is no question but that the post office department should be granted an increase in rates in most every class of mail unless the taxpayers declare they are willing to continue paying into the kitty for a postal subsidy.

It seems to this reporter however, that some of the big subsidies the department is now paying, specifically to the airplane industry, should be investigated by the congress The cost of carrying mail on the railroads and the competition of the express monopoly, all should have a thorough airing before the smaller users of the mail service are penalized by a 50 to 100 per cent boost in the postal rates.

Correct Prediction

A reporter is even presumptious to attempt to predict what may happen in this new coalition congress, but despite this, we predicted approval by the Senate of Mr. James Boyd, who has been serving for a year without pay as director of the U. S. bureau of mines. Approval would come, for one reason: that John L. Lewis did the one thing that united the senate — he called his mine workers out on strike in opposition to the Boyd appointment on the slim theory that Boyd had never worked in a mine. Fact is that John J. Forbes, a 35-year veteran of the bureau and a veteran miner, is chief of the division of mine inspection and safety. Also all 400 mine inspectors in the bureau have had at least five years experience in the bureau. Lewis' objection to Boyd, was poppycock. Mr. Boyd is an administrator and a scientist from the University of Colorado and the health and safety division of the bureau is only a small part of his job which includes research in metals, economics, statistics, metallurgy, explosives and fuels.

How big is your business? If you are doing under a half million gross annually you will not be affected by the proposed minimum wage increase to 75 cents. As this is written that's the situation of the minimum wage bill as voted out by the house committee.

Lucas Ineffective

Two figures have come out of the filibuster which shot to pieces the President's program in this 80th congress One is handsome Sen. Scott Lucas of Illinois, who failed miserably as a leader of the administration forces. It' takes a rough and tumble fighter the likes of Vice-President Alben Barkley to stand down there on the floor and do battle. Senator Lucas, it struck this reporter, was averse to getting his hair mussed and was more intent on keeping his better profile turned toward the cameras.

The other figure was that of Sen. Allen J. Ellender of Louisiana, who reached the highlight of his senatorial career when he proved that he could stand on his feet, without changing shoes, talk, without help, longer than his former boss, the late Huey Long, of Louisiana. Senator Ellender was speaker of the Louisiana house of representatives when the late "King Fish" called the dance and every politician in Louisiana danced to his tune. And ironically, Huey Long's son, the 30-year old junior senator from Louisiana, sat and witnessed the Ellender talkathon.

Said Sen Raymond E Baldwin of Connecticut, one of my favorite Republicans. "The previous congress has been called a do-nothing congress But if the 80th congress had a housing problem to deal with it was because a Democratically controlled 79th congress, 78th congress, 76th congress, 75th congress and 74th congress failed to deal with it." If the Connecticut senator had had second sight he would have included the 81st congress

Two Disagreed

Sen. Claude Pepper of Florida and Estes Kefauver of Tennessee were the only two southerners who didn't go along with the 23 Dixiecrats and the 23 Republicans who joined hands to wreck the Truman campaign program Said Senator Pepper: "I know that in my part of the country the first thing a man does, if he gets rich, is to buy himself a double-breasted suit, and the next thing is that he wishes he were a Republican."

Kisses Mean Different Things

By Lawrence Gould

Will a girl who really loves one man kiss others?

r: That may depend, not "really" she loves him, but a kiss means to her. And er, kisses mean quite dif- things to different people war Japan, for instance, a considered so extreme an that the censors cut all scenes out of the movies. At r extreme, I know social in which a kiss is regarded ly a bit more cordial than hake. But courtship is diffi- en certain actions appear important to one partner rial to the other.

"wisecrackers" have a sense of humor?

r: Not always, at any rate. ical wisecrack is a form of essence of which is to de- meone by making him look s, and particularly, doing er conditions in which he ow resentment because it is gag." It is closer to the practical joke—which is almost pure sadism—than to humor, which prompts us to laugh at ourselves as well as others. The wisecracker who is short on humor will betray the fact by getting angry if you suggest he is ever "unintentionally funny."

Can words help drive people to drink?

Answer: Yes, and I do not mean only "harsh words." For the feelings with which words become associated may affect our attitude toward the things they describe. A Swedish psychologist, Dr. O Sundet, calls attention to the fact that in the Scandinavian languages the words which describe a person who does not drink have a disagreeable implication, while those for intoxication suggest sympathetic feelings To make abstinence from liquor popular would take a new national vocabulary, which would be a long, hard job.

Large Plans for Pete Reiser

By GRANTLAND RICE

A YEAR AGO a hustling second baseman by the name of Eddie Stanky asked the Brooklyn management for an increased stipend or paycheck Brother Rickey promptly traded him to the Braves and thereby helped move the same Braves into first place.

Stanky did more than his share in whipping Al Dark, a fast, intelligent, natural ballplayer into pennant form before Eddie was hurt. The Braves left the Stankyless Dodgers far in the rut.

Grantland Rice

There is now a chance that Branch Rickey is pulling a repeater. He is on his way to being Billy Southworth's "cousin." Some time back, Rickey sold another Dodger star, Pete Reiser, to the same Braves. Reiser is jubilant. So is Southworth.

"I don't think I ever felt better." Reiser told me the other day. "My legs are fine again—and so is my arm I'm running into no more walls I'm up to full weight—180 pounds" It might be noted that Reiser was only 30 years of age on St Patrick's day, sharing this date with Bobby Jones

Reiser is in his prime. I saw him play third in a recent spring training game and make four beeline throws to first, even rocking the stalwart first baseman, Earl Torgeson Pete was burning the ball across.

"I have big plans for Reiser," Southworth told me "I mean if his arm is O K. I'm not worried about his legs or health. He is not only a fine ballplayer, but a great hitter and a natural competitor He can help us more than you might think. Pete has known more than his share of raw luck The tide is about due to turn the other way If it does, the Braves will look even better than I think they are—and I'm not selling them short "Watch that Torgeson at first He might be the best first baseman in either league this season Sain and Spahn are my stand bys, but Vern Bickford has improved sharply and Bill Voiselle will be quite a help Stanky is again in top condition. His cracked ankle is O K. I have a fine-looking young catcher in Paul Burris.

"My club is much better than it was last year. It has to be. Every team in our league is stronger. At least most of them are. For example, the Cardinals and Pirates will be better, and the Dodgers, with all their fast kids, is no club you can ever loaf against.

"But I still honestly believe we have enough to win for Boston again. If I didn't think so, I certainly wouldn't say so. But this is going to be a scramble."

The Most Improved Team

The most improved team in either league, probably is part of the Philadelphia Story. The Philadelphia Story in baseball has been a rather sad one for some time.

But Connie Mack revived old dreams last season, and not only the veteran Connie but many so-called fairly-smart people believe his Athletics have a pennant chance this new season Not second—not third—not fourth—but first.

Just as big a story is the chance the Phillies have. They are too young to win any pennant. But smart baseball people tell me they can finish second or third. They probably won't. But they look like a big league ball club on a rampage.

They have a better outfield than either the Braves, Dodgers or the Cardinals in Del Ennis, Richie Ashburn and Bill Nicholson. They have one of the best infields in either league with Eddie Waitkus at first, plus Puddinhead Jones at third. Their catching is only fair

The Phillies represent the story of the new National league. They can finish second or seventh. They can finish seventh and still be almost as good as the 1949 pennant winner. They deserve support from their fans, for here is not only a good ball club, but an interesting one.

I had a long talk today with my favorite pitcher. His name is Ewell Blackwell of the Reds.

In 1947 Blackwell was far and away the best pitcher in the game—not barring Feller, Newhouser or anyone else. Working for the lowly Reds, he won 16 straight games He pitched a no-hitter and came close to another in his next start. Working with the Yankees or Dodgers that same year, Blackwell would have won 30 games and lost three or four He might have won 35 games.

Livestock—Solution To Three 'Problems'

Increased production of livestock will solve the bug-a-boo of surplus grain, aid soil conservation, and create efficiencies which will make possible the profitable sale of more meat and animal products at prices more people can afford to pay.

Moreover, the need for soil conservation is just another argument in favor of more emphasis on animal agriculture, according to H. E. Babcock, one of America's top agricultural leaders.

Grass crops hold and build up the soil, and animal manure adds valuable humus while acting as fertilizer: for example, the rich black soil of Iowa is the result of centuries of grass and grazing buffalo.

The electro-coagulation method removes all malignant cells (dangerous, such as cancer cells or suspected malignant structures) to avoid carrying malignant cells into the system, thus reducing chances of starting a growth (cancer) in other parts of the body.

The next important use for coagulation is in hemophilia (where the blood will not clot) and in operations on organs which are very rich in blood and blood vessels, such as the liver and spleen. Also, it is valuable in an emergency when the patient is anemic, run-down or elderly.

Of course, in cases of plastic surgery, surgery by the usual method — the knife — should be used because only tiny scars are left, whereas scars made by electro-coagulation are large and slow in disappearing.

The type of anesthetic used is local, spinal or into the veins, to prevent any chance of an explosion occurring.

Visiting around Iowa

by Joe Marsh

Iowa is Lucky

We don't have many radicals in Iowa.

That's another good thing about living here.

You've noticed, and I have, too, that we aren't bothered much by agitators, parlor pinks, or "isms." Iowa folks believe in moderation and tolerance . . . and practice it in their own habits, and their attitude toward the other fellow.

Take the other evening. Some folks dropped over to Ed's house for his birthday. When refreshment time came, some had a temperate glass of beer, others had lemonade or coffee. Each one h his own preference, and no o tried to push his ideas onto t other fellow.

We Iowans respect each othe point of view like that . . . whet it's in the choice of a mild gl of beer or ale . . . or in the cho of a candidate in the electi That makes good neighbors. makes Iowa a good state to l in. Let's always keep it that w

David Rodriguez, husband of the former Ethel Swanson, died suddenly of a heart attack at his home in Burbank, California at about mid-night Friday. He had not been in ill health but was apparently in the best of health and feeling fine.

Mr. Rodriguez was an interior decorator by trade and had been working steadily each day

Funeral services were held Tuesday at Burbank and burial was in the Burbank cemetery

Relatives from around here who left via Ames Saturday night for Burbank were Miss Mary Swanson, Mrs. Reuben Lemke, and Mrs Francis Lawhorn. They would arrive in Burbank Monday morning.

Bob Hartzell Resigned As Post Office Clerk To Go On Farm

Bob Hartzell returned home the latter part of the week from the Veterans Hospital at Des Moines where he had been for nearly two weeks undergoing examination and treatment. The doctors advised Bob to get an outdoor job, and so on this advise he has resigned as clerk at the local post office

Mr. Hartzell will operate the Lester Stille farm, and has already began work there. Mr. and Mrs. Stille expect to move to Klemme sometime in the future

At present Mrs. Dwight Hummel is taking Hartzell's place at the post office until a permanent clerk is hired

NOW WE HAVE HEARD EVERYTHING ABOUT FISHING FOR CATFISH

Carl Finders and M. L. Harson drove over to Livermore early Sunday morning to try their luck catching catfish in the Des Moines River.

Carl succeeded in hooking one catfish, but the payoff came when Harson hooked onto what he thought was a big catfish Mert was about ready to throw a fit when he saw what was attached to the other end of the line: an eel measuring about 30 inches long. Mert let out a whoop and was about to cut the eel loose from the line, but Carl saw visions of a most delicious eel dinner so he got a handful of sand and held the slippery customer and unhooked it from the line. Carl brought both the eel and the catfish home and dressed them for a real dinner.

M. L. just don't like the looks of an eel!

LET'S SPEED UP DENTAL CARDS

Several schools have recently become 100 percent as regards dental card return. We congratulate them all Seventeen are 100 percent thus far

In order of achievement the schools are as follows Liberty No. 7, Bingham 3, Ell 6, Ell 4, Ell5, Garfield 5, Liberty 9, Liberty 8, Avery 5, Orthel, 3, Liberty 4, Erin 2, Garfield 6, Erin 3, Bingham 4, and Orthel 1.

Ell township is surpassing last year's efforts. Amsterdam, Britt, Erin, Orthel and Twin Lake Townships are particularly behind last year's record, but we feel confident they will recover in the next month The parade date, May 14th is what the children are working toward.

Ell 4, 5, 6 Liberty 9, and Avery 5 are schools who are 100 per cent for the first time this year. Bingham 4 did not receive dental cards until Jan but have completed the job already Twelve of the 39 rural school 100 per cent last year have reported the same response this year We still have a long way to go to equal the 1948 record. Five town school rooms last year were also 100 per cent and we hope to hear soon that some of the town rooms are making such progress.

We do urge attendance at the preschool meetings in the various towns on these dates Garner Thursday, April 28, 1 30 p m and Klemme, on Thursday May 5th, 2.30 p m

IOWANS NOW CONCERNED ABOUT WELLS

Des Moines—It isn't every week that a little girl falls into a well.

Paradoxically, state officials pointed out Friday, that's one reason why people have suddenly become so concerned about filling up old wells, checking well covers for safety and taking similar precautions.

People, especially parents, have become conscious of the dangers connected with wells because of Kathy Fiscus and Betty Johnson And the tragedy of Kathy and the near-tragedy of Betty were big news partly because—it isn't every week that a little girl falls into a well.

But it was every week, on an average, that a little girl or boy died in an Iowa traffic accident last year.

It was about every 2 weeks, on an average, that a small child died in an Iowa fire.

It was about once a month, on an average, that a little boy or girl was killed in a fall.

A check of state records showed that Iowa street and highway accidents claimed the lives of 52 children 9 years old or younger in 1948 Fires brought death to 25 in the same age group, while 15 died of burns suffered in other ways. At least 13 children under 10 were killed in falls, several in their own homes.

Many of these accidents, safety officials agreed, could be prevented if people could become as keyed up about accident hazards in general as they are now about the comparative remote danger of a child falling into a well.

But they thought it was nice that the wells are being filled up, too.

Commit Aged Man To Hancock County Home

Tony Slattenow, 74, who has been living in a shack alone at Crystal Lake, was recently committed to the Hancock County home after an incident at Crystal Lake when he is alleged to have molested a telephone operator. County Attorney Curtis G Riehm and Sheriff L. M. Brower were called to investigate, and following a hearing, Slattenow was committed to the county home.

DATE SET FOR COUNTY DENTAL PARADE AT BRITT MAY 14

Miss Harriett Oxley announces that the Dental Parade will be held at Britt on Saturday, May 14th. There will be picnics, prizes, parade, free movies and other entertainment for the children. A signed dental card admits them.

Teachers will receive their material about May 1st. Carl Frick of Britt is chairman of the event.

Seniors Sending Out Invitations To Commencement This Week

The Seniors have received their commencement invitations from the Times Print Shop and some are mailing them out this week. Commencement exercises will be held at the high school auditorium on Thursday evening, May 19th.

Minimum Entrance Age

The State Legislature recently passed a minimum age to enter kindergarten or 1st grade. Under this new law a child must be five years of age on or before November 15 to enter kindergarten or pre-first grade, and six years by the same date to enter first grade.

Juniors-Seniors Will Hold Annual Banquet April 30

PRE-KINDERGARTEN PARTY

A pre-Kindergarten party will be held in the Klemme Public schools at 2:00 p. m., Thursday, May 5th. This party is for all children who plan to enter kindergarten next fall for the next school year 1949-50. We urge all mothers to bring their child and attend this party.

Election of Teachers

The Klemme Board of Education at a recent meeting re-elected all the teachers for next year. The following have signed their contracts to return next year.

Mr. T. G. Ahrenkiel, Supt.
Mr. W. Patterson, Coach
Mrs. Kay Andreae, Home Ec.
Mr. Robert Andreae, Math. and Science
Mr. Stan Bulka, Band
Mr. Robert Juhl, 7th and 8th
Mrs. Robert Randahl, 2nd grade

The board hopes to fill the following vacancies as soon as possible: Kindergarten, first grade, 3rd and 4th grade, 5th and 6th grade, and High School English-vocal music.

NEARLY THOUSAND PEOPLE VIEWED MRS. STILLE'S PAINTINGS

It is estimated that close to a thousand people stopped in front of Wellemeyer's Store, or went inside, to view Mrs. Quentin Stille's display of paintings which were on display in the store window on Saturday. Some over 100 people signed the register book in the store.

Mrs. Stille was on hand and explained her work to many interested persons. She took orders for a number of the paintings.

Many people were awed to think Klemme had an artist with such fine ability. Mrs. Stille is probably a "natural" painter as she took up painting only last September. She has some remarkable paintings. Mrs. Winnie Smith of Goodell is her painting teacher.

KLEMME CHURCH WELL REPRESENTED AT MEETING

The Klemme Evangelical and Reformed Church was well represented at an all day Regional Guild meeting held at Ackley last Wednesday.

Mrs. August Josten of Klemme, one of the Guild chairmen, took part in the program. Others from the Klemme church who attended were: Mesdames Walt Rosendahl, Carl Wille, Erwin Nuehring, A. H. Dulmes, Fred Barz, Ed. Thiemann, Ronald Barz, Martin Karsjens, John Meinders, Mitchell Bock, Harvey Barz, Marvin Barz, Naska Bock, Ed. Becker, Clara Barz, Lena Schroder, Mary Waterman, Calvin Grosshuesch and George Lawhorn.

LARGE CROWD ATTENDED BANQUET AT LIBERTY CHURCH

Some over 100 men and boys took in the father and son banquet sponsored by the Brotherhood of the Liberty Methodist Church, at that church on Monday evening. Community singing was enjoyed during the meal.

Following the dinner a good program was given in the auditorium with Loren Gast as the master of ceremonies who welcomed the dads and lads.

Liberty's mens' chorus sang two numbers. Rev. H. Carbaugh of Thompson was introduced and gave a good address directed to the fathers and sons. A colored movie on railroading, from early days to the present and showing miles of beautiful scenery was shown for the closing of the program.

NEXT 2 WEEKS CRITICAL IN CONTROLLING FLIES

To a large extent the next 2 weeks hold the key to the success of your 1949 fly control efforts, according to Harold Gunderson, extension entomologist at Iowa State College.

He points out that the first flies appear during this time to lay eggs. How many breeding places they find around your premises will determine how many eggs will be laid and in turn how many fies will be around this summer.

Flies require filthy, damp places in which to lay their eggs. They prefer such places as garbage heaps, trash piles, rotting leaves, manure piles, compost piles and outdoor toilets. Cleaning up such places and then treating the ground with borax will do more toward preventing annoyance from flies this summer than any other one thing.

Sanitation is even more important to fly control programs this year. Gunderson says this is true because flies may become resistant to DDT and other chemicals. Too, methoxychlor, which is now recommended for dairy cows, dairy barns and milk handling buildings, is a chemical relative of DD and resistance to it may develop rapidly.

7th, 8th Grade Pupils Due For Examinations

Hancock County Supt. Charles S. Whitney announces that 7th and 8th grade pupils will write state examinations on Friday, April 29. Pupils are asked to be at the writing centers by 9 o'clock on that date.

Supt. Whitney expressed the hope that all 7th grade students would participate. No grades will be given for their work but the teacher will have a ranking sheet to consult in planning for the pupils' work.

Writing centers will be Garner, Britt, Klemme, Kanawha, Woden and Forest City.

A GLANCE AT CIVILIZATION REVEALS . . .

Jackpot Question: What's the World Coming To?

. . . CONFUSION, FEAR, HYSTERIA, DESPAIR

By H. I. PHILLIPS

A GLANCE AT THE GLOBE

The world is in queer shape. Everywhere civilization is wishing it could find a cure for its savagery.

Confusion and fear are running neck and neck with hysteria and despair. Half the world is looking for trouble and the other half acts as if afraid there won't be enough to go around.

People have always been called different from animals in that they were rational beings. But the animals appear to be outsmarting us. For centuries man seemed to be getting more intelligent, but he never looked dumber than at the close of today's business.

We belittled the caveman, but he had his own cave and all he needed for attack and defense were rocks. He didn't require millions of dollars, thousands of scientists and countless bureaus to help him when the slugging began. From the rock, man went to the bow-and-arrow and on up through javelin, gunpowder and machine-gun to the jet plane and atom bomb. Mars can now get him all his miseries wholesale.

This planet has had two world wars in 30 years and it has not only lost the goal posts but isn't sure in which direction the field lines run.

Millions fought to end tyranny, but seem to have swapped two small tyrants for a big one. We have ended secret diplomacy and substituted open covenants openly arrived at. And broken by microphone!

We have the biggest peace organization in history, but it is too busy fighting to get anywhere with a peace effort. All the world wants peace, but it first insists on the necessary ambulances and identification disks.

Look at modern man! He is cockeyed, bow-legged, swivel-headed, punch-drunk, weak-minded, hysterical, confused, befuddled and on a treadmill carefully set between a buzzsaw and an abyss.

The United States looks closer to normal than most countries, but she still resembles a cross between a vaudeville show, a trip over Niagara Falls, an outing of drunken magicians and a clambake of monkey-wrench tossers. Everybody is trying to save somebody from something if it kills the beneficiary.

In our yen for greater security we are winning ourselves a compulsory ride on a greased pole, and in our quest for the more abundant life we are winning unhappiness in carload lots.

With the atom bomb hanging over us, we are concentrating on better hair tonics, government distribution of baby-sitters and a turkey in every chicken pie.

This is the question of the hour Can a nation exist half intelligen, and half jackpot crazy? No coaching, please!

Cuff Stuff

A celebrated Hollywood star got into a nightclub row the other night because he refused to remove his hat when he sat down at a table. It is just possible he felt that his head-size was changing too rapidly to take any chance.

The mayor of New York's telephone lines have been tapped so much that his personal calls now have a Hooper rating and he may get a commercial sponsor for them

England is supplying wigs to its people free in its nationalized health service. Instead of "Britannia rules the waves" and "The sun never sets on British soil," now it's, "How's your hair and can I be of any help?" What a come-down!

Gromyko is returning to the U N. He did not go home, it appears, to have his No's lifted.

"Handkerchief Man Briefed On Code"—N. Y. Times headline. . . The usual spring code in the head, eh?

"Come See a Man"

COME see a man," the Nazareth lads would say,
And peering through an old shop's open door,
Would watch One swing an adz, see muscles play
Like rippling steel, and mark along the floor
Huge timbers that a driven saw and plane
Had smoothed and polished to its bright clear grain.

"Come see a man," the word ran like a fire
Down every street and every crooked lane,
And throngs besought Him, wild with their desire
To rid themselves of agonizing pain
"Come see a man whose power is strange, and such,
His hands alone can heal men with its touch."

Samaria, and noon above the land—
A flushed-cheeked woman, hurrying to tell,
With strange excited voice and lifted hand,
Of One who waited by an ancient well
"Come see a man who told me everything. . ."
Surely this is our long awaited King!

"Come see a man," the cry still rings today,
"Who knows no fear at all, so brave is He."
So strong and clean, He went His quiet way
To climb at last the hill called Calvary,
There to be lifted that a whole world might Be drawn to Him its Saviour and its Light.

—Grace Noll Crowell

KATHLEEN NORRIS

Mental Homicide

DON'T YOU THINK it's pretty hard," asks 22-year-old Marcella Ward, "when just one person stands between you and being perfectly happy? My mother-in-law lives with us, and although she tries to be nice, she spoils everything She has no money, nowhere else to go, and she's only 58. She thinks I don't take the right care of the baby, she demands a lot of attention from Andrew and me, and she talks all the time. I find myself wishing she would die, and hoping she will, and it makes me feel awful What can I do?"

Unfortunately, Marcella, you can't do much, and even more unfortunately, you are far from being alone in your trouble For most of us, at long periods in our lives, the existence and demands of just one person — just one! — darkens our whole scene

Sometimes it's an old relative, as in your case, who simply can not step up his tempo to meet the household requirements, and drags on and on, year after year, stubbornly clinging to life Sometimes it's the rich uncle, who doesn't enjoy life anyway, and whose money will some day make the greatest difference to his heirs Often it is the office tyrant — the man or woman who rises to the manager's job without any qualifications for it, and who upsets, delays, confuses everything complacently and puts all the other workers out of step

Superfluous Persons

Often today that superfluous person right in the middle of the picture is the stepchild, in a second marriage When Helen serenely watched her boss getting his divorce, and thought that she would always love his little girl, she didn't realize what a pest — and even worse, what a bore'—a ten-year-old girl can be Pamela had been well schooled by her mother to believe that her father's new wife is a home breaker and a gold digger. And

. . . one person darkens the scene . . .

Pamela's schooling and teeth-straightening and clothing are expenses upon which Helen didn't count.

As for those unhappy women who are being blackmailed — and there are more than you might imagine, their thoughts as the sneaking triumphant figure goes his way, with their money in his pockets, can be easily imagined.

Yes, Marcella, everyone, at one time or another, finds herself saying "if only she would die." Death ends everyone's story, and there are certain stories to which we want to write finis. We find ourselves thinking of the freedom of the inherited money, of the office with a rational and capable figure at its head; of the relief of not having to send John's first wife that enormous check every month, of the easier household without dead old Uncle Peter or John's critical old mother

Courage to Endure

But wiser than waiting for a dramatic change is the character and courage that accepts the utterly inacceptable and endures the completely unendurable. As long as there are young households, there will be fumbling, troublesome old persons in them. As long as there are offices at all, the higher-ups will step right over the claims of faithful old workers and put raw college sons and nephews into positions of trust. As long as girls do indiscreet things for just a temporary loan, there will be sneaks about who will cash in on these secrets later on. And in the too-common story of divorce and remarriage there will always be children drifting about to come between the grown-ups problems with acute problems of their own.

So do what the bees do. When they find a foreign body in the hive, they rapidly wall it away in sheets of clean wax and go merrily on storing honey in the cells all about. Wall away your problem with philosophy and good sense. Don't let any one other individual spoil your life. Don't wish anyone dead; it's a sort of murder to begin with, and it's perfectly futile anyway. Time works inevitable changes here as everywhere.

By ANNA E. WILSON

THE PORCH was broad and sunny, and Elsie placed the big chair where Dad could see the people passing and look across into Barnes grocery store.

"You see, Dad," she said cheerfully, "you'll be happy here in the sunlight, and you can watch what goes on over there in the store — it'll be no time at all until you forget about the shop — Goodness knows, a man who's worked until he's sixty-five years old has earned a rest."

Dad sank back in the chair and sighed wistfully. "I know, Elsie, and the company was real nice. Mr. Twilinger presented me with a watch, and said they were real sorry about my eyes, and hated to let me go. Watch making is such fine work and," Dad finished carefully, "there was no other place open in the shop where they could work me in. Mr. Twilinger explained about it all before I came away."

3-Minute Fiction

"Yes," Dad tried to settle himself uneasily, "but sitting here isn't going to help pay for this house, and I did hope to see you settled in a home of your own before I died."

He was glad when Mrs. Frisby stopped to talk. She was gossipy and friendly and liked a chat.

"Glad to see you taking a rest at last, Dad. Goodness knows, it was time. I see you've been looking at the sketch for the new Memorial. Isn't it wonderful that a great artist like Mr. Bonelli's been engaged for the job. They say he's been asking for medals to copy on the figures of the war veterans and I'm hurrying right down with this one of Willie's.

Dad stared at the sketch of the Memorial, thinking of what Mrs. Frisby had said. Something of value. Dad went over all his meager possessions and they weren't much. Just his clothes, neat and clean, the watch Mr. Twilinger had given him and that old coin.

Dad was confused by the noise and bustle when he entered Mr. Bonelli's studio, but Mr. Bonelli smiled at Dad and took him into a little office in the rear.

"It's about a coin," said he humbly, and took out his lucky piece.

"Where did you get it, and why do you want to sell it, Dad."

It was easy to talk to Mr. Bonelli, and Dad explained about his home and Elsie.

THE ARTIST sighed — "It might have been valuable once, but it's too defaced now for restoration —I'm sorry," he looked as if he really was." I wish I could tell you that it's worth something but I'm afraid it's not.'

Dad thanked him, but as he got up to go, Mr. Bonelli spoke.

"I have a friend coming tomorrow and if you drop in you can talk it over with him.'

All afternoon Dad polished the coin and when he went down to the studio in the morning the metal in the coin shone.

Mr. Bonelli was talking to another man, when he saw Dad he beckoned him in. Dad took out the coin and the stranger glanced at it, but he was really looking at Dad.

Dad in his neat worn clothes, was worth looking at. He had lived a good life and all this good living showed in his wrinkled face and clean blue eyes. Mr. Bonelli's own eyes twinkled.

"We find you have something of value, Dad, after all," he said softly.

"The coin was worthless," he continued. "We want to use you as a model for one of the figures on our Memorial. We want to employ you in the studio to keep track of valuables loaned to us Mr Twilinger says we couldn't get a better man. The pay is good, well over five hundred dollars for the year's work," he said gently. "You see Dad, the thing you have of value is yourself. You've been a good citizen and it shines—right in your face."

The Winter Book at Work

THE WINTER BOOK on either racing or baseball hits you with a chunk of low-priced odds on many favorites that seem far from inviting.

The Winter Book, as you know, is supposed to offer advance odds on horses or teams that give you a better break than if you wait until the race gets underway. They are not giving anybody a better break in making Cleveland 6 to 5 and Boston's Braves 7 to 5.

Grantland Rice

They have Blue Peter at 3 to 1 in the Derby, and I'm not sure you can't do better on Derby Day.

Col. Ed Bradley, the departed horseman and gambler, whose advice was highly valued, used to say it was 4 to 1 or maybe 5 to 1 against any certain nominee even starting in the Derby. Out of more than 100 early entries, only 10 or 12 go to the post. Who can say what fine horses will or will not be present on the big day?

Sun Briar never went to the Derby post. Stagehand didn't, when he apparently had the big race sewed up on the Tuesday before the race. Ocean Wave didn't, after wrecking the Derby Trial.

Getting back to baseball's Winter Book, I would say the Braves, Cardinals and Dodgers are extremely close—that the Pirates have a good chance—that the Giants are not clearly out of it, but not too threatening either.

The Braves, Dodgers and Cardinals are all ranked well over the Giants by Florida-trained ballplayers who remember the Giants from last year—and can see little or no improvement.

I still think the Cardinals are the best ball club in the National League by six or seven games. But no one can say how many Cardinals will be on the ball field, and how many in the hospital, after mid June or early July. They are an eight-year-old club, dating back to 1940, 1941 and 1942.

They have many more good ballplayers on their roster than either Braves, Dodgers, Pirates or Giants, I mean such stars as Musial, Slaughter, Marion, Brecheen, Pollet, Schoendienst—maybe Kurowski and Munger. But they have too many bad backs and sore arms to consider.

The Winter Book figures on Cleveland in the American League are clearly out of line. The Indians were 11½ games ahead of the Red Sox last June and had this big lead shot away. The Indians and the Red Sox should each be 2 to 1 or 2½ to 1.

The Yankees can have the best pitching staff in baseball. Their infield and catching is still their big problem. They need more infield power.

Connie Mack is quite sincere in believing his Athletics can win. And they might. It is the first time in 18 years that 86-year-old Mr. Mack is extremely optimistic.

The Racing Side

Racing is now ready to break out in a wild rash from Maryland to New England—not overlooking New York.

A number of questions will soon be answered: How good is Blue Peter? How good is Capot? Mr. Busher? Old Rockport? How will Citation look on his return to action? What horse will beat Coaltown? What overlooked racer will suddenly pop up as Assault did in 1946? Who will take over the Triple Crown? How will the Triple Crown look without a Calumet challenger of class? Will there be one?

Blue Peter, owned by Joseph Roebling, trained by Andy Schuttinger, is at least partly a mystery horse. Andy Schuttinger ranks Blue Peter, at this stage, over Citation at the same spot on the calendar last year.

There are many who believe Blue Peter is well ahead of the other three-year-olds. There are other horsemen who don't think Blue Peter has the ruggedness to be a great three-year-old. They keep darkly hinting at uncertain legs over a distance. There has been no proof that anything is wrong with Blue Peter's legs—except their winning speed.

Blue Peter won six stakes in a row, including most of the big ones, as a two-year-old. But there can be a swift and decisive change from a two-year-old to a three-year-old. Also there will be other horses running in the Derby, Preakness and Belmont—Greentree's Capot, a certain threatener—Mr. Busher, if in shape—Old Rockport, with the blood of Equipoise and Man o' War in his veins—Ben Whitaker's Prince Quest—one or two John Hertz' possibilities — and Fred Hooper's Olympia and Ocean Drive.

One of the burglars eventually was caught, the other managed to make his getaway.

Jesus Is King

Lesson for May 1, 1949

IT IS A SIN to tell the truth out of season. So declares a famous Protestant creed. It is not always good nor wise to tell everybody everything you know. Keeping your mouth shut may be one of the best things you ever do. Jesus himself knew how to keep a secret till time to tell it. He never uttered an untruth about himself, but for a long time he did not openly declare his conviction, in spite of being pestered to say Yes or No about it.

Dr. Foreman

The question was: Are you the Messiah? This was the same as asking, Are you the King? Jesus would not say Yes, because the mere word would be taken to mean "revolutionist" or "traitor." But he would not say No, because he was a King; indeed of all men he had the best right to the title.

Royal Entrance

BUT WHEN the time came, Jesus did declare himself king in a spectacular way. We know the story as the "Triumphal Entry into Jerusalem," the story of Palm Sunday, now so fresh in our minds. Jesus lived in a nation of people who were familiar with the meaning of symbols, both in word and action.

When Jesus rode into the ancient capital where his forefathers reigned, astride a mule colt, the people knew, and he knew they would know, that this was not just somebody riding a mule on a Sunday morning. In the history of the Hebrews, mules were the steeds of kings.

King Solomon was crowned riding on a mule. There was a famous prophecy (Zech. 9:9) that when Jerusalem's great king should come, he would be riding on just such a royal steed. So when Jesus rode into Jerusalem, the people threw their palm branches and shouted their welcome, not to the teacher and prophet, but to the King.

Tears in Triumph

IT WAS NOT altogether a victorious occasion. Jesus knew too well how cheap and easy "demonstrations" can be. In his mind's eye he could see a cross standing outside Jerusalem, and in his inner ear he could hear this same dusty-throated mob, now shouting "Hosanna!", yelling instead "Crucify him!" Tears stood in Jesus' eyes. But they were not tears for himself; he never wasted energy in self-pity. They were tears for that blind city, tears for its coming destruction — the city that did not know the way to peace.

Master of the Temple

BOLDER THAN JESUS' triumphal entry was what he did inside the city. It was one thing to claim royal rights over the nation; but at the temple Jesus' claims reached far higher. It should be remembered that in the eyes of all Jews at that time the Temple was absolutely sacred. It represented the dwelling-place of the invisible God. Now the priests at that time were more profiteers and politicians than priests. They carried on what today we call a "racket" in the sale of animals for sacrifice and in changing the ordinary money of all countries into the local Jewish shekel (in which coin alone could temple offerings be paid).

The racket was notorious; every decent Jew hated the priestly profiteers. But no one had ever done anything about it, for that would mean assuming an authority over the temple that no man dared to assume.

But Jesus took it on himself. His direct and even violent action in smashing the racketeering ring was a mark of something more than ordinary self-confidence. He laid claim to being no less than the Master of God's Temple. He was acting in the name of God and with the authority of God.

Master of Man

WHEN THE CHRISTIAN church calls Jesus "Lord" and "King" today, we are making no claim for him which he did not make for himself. What we mean by these titles is that Jesus Christ, for us and for all men, is the authority above all others.

Oysters—Gem and Edible

The finest pearls in the world are taken from oysters found in the Persian gulf, chiefly around the Bahrein islands.

There is no direct relationship between edibility and pearl-bearing since the worthless pearls found on edible oysters were formed in the same manner as the valuable ones found on pearl oysters—and only a small percentage of pearl oysters actually contain pearls, while dozens of the gems may be produced on one shell.

JOLLY WORKERS CLUB MET

The Jolly Workers Club met at the home of Anna Conners Wednesday, April 13th. Nineteen members answered roll call by reading the Easter verse in their Easter cards. We are sending a dollar to the Easter Seas and a dollar to the Cancer Fund.

We played Bingo for recreation and all enjoyed it, each member received a gift as we each brought a prize for the Bingo game. A lovely lunch was served by Anna Conners with Alvina Helps as co-hostess.

In May we are to send our Mystery Friend a remembrance and a card for Mothers' Day. The May meeting will be at the home of Wemkie Cavitt with Nettie Roths and Nellie Ausborn as co-hostess.

MAKE CLOTHES OUT OF CORN

Science has found a new use for corn—except that of food and for making liquor. It may now be a corn-shirt or suit for the men, or a corn dress for the women.

The new substance is known as vicara, a textile fiber made from protein derived from corn. Commercial production of the material already has started at Taftville, Conn., where the Virginia-Carolina Chemical Corp., has constructed a large plant.

Thus the farmer is getting a new product from his farm. The fiber, according to the Chemurgic Digest, is exceptionally soft and warm, and has considerable absorbency and tensile strength.

Cloth made from the material, reports said, has a high elastic recovery, high resistance to deformation, is moth--repellant, mildew-resistant and non-itching. It is odorless and does not wrinkle readily.

The company now making the product developed vicara during a research program designed to find new uses for farm products. The research turned up the discovery that a substance known as zein, a pure protein extracted from corn, was well suited for fiber production then followed several more years of research, refining the material and designed equipment to speed up production.

Domestic Rabbit Competes With Chicken in Many Ways

Many people, feeling the high cost of food, are raising rabbits for themselves and neighbors or for the market. Meat of the domestic rabbit is so different from wild rabbit meat that many will not believe it is the same animal, notes Mrs. Andrew Rice, nutrition consultant of Nevada agricultural extension service. It is good any time of the year and can be produced and prepared much quicker than chicken.

As for cooking, explains Mrs. Rice, it can be broiled, fried, baked or casseroled. In fact, rabbit can be cooked and served in just about as many ways as chicken.

Many persons tell the story of serving rabbit to guests without comment and having them tnink it is chicken. In taste, this white, delicately flavored meat is comparable to chicken breast. As to food value, rabbit meat is classed with poultry, lean meat and fish.

In cost, rabbit is about the same as chicken when the higher proportion of edible meat on a rabbit is considered.

Domestic rabbit production in the Far West now has reached such proportions that rabbit meat is served regularly in many restaurants, hotels and homes.

Priority on Coldest Space Demanded by Certain Foods

Where and how food is placed in the refrigerator is important for keeping it fresh and wholesome, especially in hot weatner, household equipment specialists of the department of agriculture say.

Priority on the coldest space in the cabinet, which is usually nearest the freezing cabinet, should be given to the most perishable foods, for which a temperature of 40 degrees or slightly colder is recommended. The foods which need coldest storage because they spoil most easily are: fresh and cooked meat, poultry and fish, meat broth, gelatin dishes, milk, milk-and-egg dishes like custard, and cottage or other soft cheeses.

Modern refrigerators are designed to encourage this arrangement of food by providing tall shelves for milk bottles beside freezing units and a covered compartment for meat just underneath. In general, these very perishable foods keep best if covered. Uncooked meat should be loosely covered, or simply taken out of its wrappings and placed in the meat compartment of the refrigerator which provides it with enough ventilation for good keeping.

Sugar Country

Puerto Rico's principal crop is sugar. The 1948 crop is expected to bring 120 million dollars to the little island. In Puerto Rico there are immense fields of sugar cane as far as the eye can reach. Three hundred thousand acres of it make the island the third largest sugar-producing country in the western hemisphere.

Remedy for Carrot Yellows

If carrot tops have many small young leaves which appear to be undersized and are yellowish or reddish in color it is probably due to a disease known as "carrot yellows." Carrot yellows, explains A. A. Granovsky, professor of entomology at University of Minnesota, is a virus disease, transmitted by a species of leafhopper which spends the winter in weeds and in spring and summer moves to carrots. In addition to bushy, yellowish tops, carrot yellows show up in wooly, undersized roots. Yellows-infected carrots are hard and have an off-flavor characterized as a bitter taste with an astringent effect which clings to the mouth for some time. Best way to prevent carrot yellows and to control leafhoppers is to dust carrots with a 5 per cent DDT or spray with DDT. using one or two teaspoonfuls of 50 per cent DDT wettable powder.

Steps for Preventing Mildew

Leather shoes often mildew in humid summer weather. Here are some simple ways to protect them against this damage. Keep shoes on high shelves in the clothes closet. High shelves are drier and therefore safer against mildew than the floor or low shoe racks. Because damp air is heavy, it tends to settle along the floor and encourage mildew. Heat from an electric light bulb kept burning in the closet often will keep the air dry enough to prevent mildew on clothes and shoes. Frequent airing with an electric fan also helps. To absorb moisture from the air and thus help keep the contents of a closed closet dry, a jar of calcium chloride is an old standby. Its disadvantage is that as it absorbs moisture, it becomes liquid and must be drained and new solid chloride added.

Improved drugs for the relief of frostbite, trench foot and other painful circulatory disorders caused by runaway nerves were described by Dr. Frederick Yonkman of Summit, N. J., at the first national medicinal chemistry symposium sponsored by the American Chemical society. Many serious conditions result from overactivity of the so-called sympathetic nerves which construct blood vessels, increasing blood pressure locally and, in some cases, even cutting off the supply of blood to parts of the body, according to Dr. Yonkman, who explained that these nerves are stimulated by the body chemical adrenalin.

HANCOCK COUNTY WOMEN'S CHORUS MAKES FIRST APPEARANCE

The Hancock County Rural Women's Chorus made their first appearance at Rural Women's Day, April 21, at the Memorial Hall in Britt. Fifty-eight members were present to sing. Mr. Paul G. Shurts, Farm Bureau Fieldman for Hancock County, is the director with Miss Mariam Hueneman as accompanist. The two numbers the chorus sang were "Bless This House" and "Now The Day Is Over." Mrs. Donald Frank of Bingham township and Mrs. Robert Stuebbe of Liberty township sang a short solo parts with the chorus.

Miss Van Wert recognized Ell township for having the largest number of different women attend the extension lessons this past year. Avery township was second with Madison township being a close third.

Mrs. Clarence Greiman, County Farm Bureau Women's chairman, had charge of the afternoon's program. She gave recognition to Concord township for having the largest attendance and traveling the most miles to attend Rural Women's day.

Tea was served at the close of the afternoon's program.

At Dow City. Miss Mildred Wiggins has taught school for 50 years in the same school. Prior to her half-century at Dow City, Miss Wiggins taught five years in the rural schools of the same county. What's more, she is probably the only school teacher in Iowa today who has administered a spanking to her present superintendent. Supt. E. R. Butterworth of Dow City was a member of Miss Wiggins' first class back in 1898, and received a spanking from her.

COLLECTORS

PLAIN TALK ABOUT

"Fresh Bread"

We don't put special preperations in our bread to make it "seem" fresher. We believe in good, old-fashioned bread, bread that contains the highest quality ingredients, plus the best of the modern enriching ingredients. But, no special "fresheners."

We try to make our bread come as close to the "kind that mother used to bake" as is possible. That is our purpose.

We don't make any extravagant claims Our bread won't make you feel seventeen again, if you are seventy. But it is GOOD, HONEST Bread We're proud of our bread. We want you to try it.

MILK PRODUCTION RISES BUT NOT TO WAR'S PEAK

Iowa's dairy cows are putting more milk in the bucket in an effort to meet demand, but the total production is still down below peak production in the early war period.

Francis Kutish, Iowa State College extension farm economist, points out that cows produced more milk during March than a year ago despite a reduction of 40,000 milk cows in the state He credits better feeding and improvement in quality of herds for more than offsetting the fewer cows.

Milk output for the first three months of this year was the lowest for Iowa since 1937 Total production was down about 16 per cent from the peak reached in 1943 when milk cow numbers were at their record high.

The store room is always filled with Juniors now, as they are busy making things for the banquet. Invitations have been sent out long ago and on this we have found out it is to be in the gym on Saturday, April 30th, at 6:30 P. M. Everyone agrees that they have done a good job of keeping the theme a secret?

TEACHER INTERVIEW

In our series of interviews previously we have carried the grade teacher interviews. This week we begin our series on high school teachers. As there are only three weeks of school left in which we will publish our paper we will carry two interviews each week.

The first teacher on our list of interviews is Mrs. Robert Andreae. Her home town is Fayette, Iowa but they are now living in Klemme.

Mrs Andreae attended high school at Fayette. She graduated from Upper Iowa University and has a Bachelor of Science degree. She teaches Engish I, Biology and Home Economics. Her main purpose for teaching is to teach her Home Economics girls to be good home makers. Mrs. Andreae has taught two years here in Klemme.

Besides teaching school and being a housekeeper Mrs. Andreae still finds time to read a hobby.

Next we have Mr. Robert Andreae's interview.

Mr. Andreae is formerly from Olewein but now has his home here in Kemme. He attended high school at Volga and college at Upper Iowa University. He has a Bachelor of Science Degree. Mr. Andreae teaches General Science, Algebra, Physics, and Geometry. Before teaching at Klemme, he was math-assistant at college. His main purpose for teaching is for the satisfaction he gets from imparting knowledge to others. The age group which he favors most are those around six weeks old.

Mr. Andreae also can find time for reading, as a hobby, even though teaching school keeps him quite busy.

GRADE NEWS

First And Second Grade News

Last Wednesday, Roger Sobek caught a baby rabbit in the school yard. We made a nest for it in a box and fed it. We drew pictures of the bunny and wrote stories about him. "Wee Wiggle Nose" was the name chosen for him. This is Marlin's story: "Wee Wiggle Nose is a little rabbit. He likes to wiggle his nose. He likes to hop in the box. His eyes are brown." This is Maurine's rabbit story: "The rabbits' name is Wee Wiggle Nose. He likes to hop. He is Roger's rabbit."

We saw a movie about the circus so we drew pictures about it and then we will make a booklet.

Third And Fourth Grade

Below are samples of poems we wrote. Some of us are poets and don't know it.

Every time I look at you, I get feeling in my shoe.
And if I ever find you dead.
I will lay down and hide my

—Dennis Reed

Last week we saw two movies, "The Circus" and "Egypt". The fourth graders especially enjoyed the last one, since they had made an imaginary trip through the Nile River region.

Mrs. Bisom and little Mary visited our room last Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Johnson visited last Thursday afternoon.

JUNIOR HIGH NEWS

The junior high students will be taking a county test this Friday. We are in hopes of getting some fine grades to prove our ability to learn.

In eighth grade arithmetic we have started our study of square roots which is very difficult. If we expect to finish our books we will have to work very hard for the rest of the year.

The seventh graders are now studying about the different angles (straight, right, obtuse, etc.) in arithmetic.

It won't be long now and a few of us had better settle down and get some good grades or we will be in the same grade again. Here's hoping we all make it.

The seventh grade health class wrote articles on "The Economic Value of Good Posture." The one chosen for publication was written by Daisy Schaefer. It is given below.

The Economic Value of Good Posture

The value of good posture is worth a million dollars to you. You will have poor posture that isn't worth two cents if you don't take care of it. To have good posture you should sit in a desk that fits you, wear comfortable shoes, eat the right foods, and sit and stand up never sit on stand on one foot. Many people have nice straight backs and very good posture while others have poor posture. As your teacher has probably told you many times to sit up straight you will probably appreciate this in years to come.

Good posture equals good health and good health equals less doctor bills. That way you can have saved more money and at the same time have friends that respect you.

—Daisy Schaefer

Our weekly motto is, "When you have something to say that is worth saying, say it simply and cleary."

PLANNED STORAGE HELPS YOU FIND—

A PLACE FOR EVERYTHING

Whether your house is new or old, with rooms odd-shaped or square, you can find ways to add extra storage space Less clutter, easier housework and better care for possessions will be your reward.

Overflowing shelves and crowded closets don't make housekeeping any easier, as any homemaker who's short of storage space will agree.

Why not take time out to plan for better storage for the family possessions right now, before it's time for spring decorating in your home? Naomi Shank, home management specialist at Iowa State College, suggests many ways a homemaker can add extra storage space. The time it takes will more than pay off in a more orderly household from day to day.

Make a List

First, she says, list all the things that need to go into closets, cupboards and on shelves.

You'll want to plan easy-to reach spots for the items you use every day—cleaning epuipment, kitchen utensils, linens and foodstuffs. Garden tools, porch furniture, bedding and winter clothing which gets only seasonal use may be tucked further out of sight. Then there are 'dead storage" items like old trunks, baby carriages, furniture and pictures which usually find their way to the attic.

Find a step-saving location for your cleaning equipment, since it is used in every room. Perhaps you can fit a cleaning closet into the landing of the stairway to the basement, or into a back hall or at the end of the kitchen Hang the brooms, mops and dustpans on special clips to hold them in place.

Shelves towards the back add usefulness to many clothes closets, Miss Shank says. And do not forget those space-savers, racks for shoes, ties and belts.

Let's not let that space under dormer windows or eaves go to waste, warns Miss Shank. A little carpentry knowledge is all you need to build in storage space.

She points out that a corner cupboard in the dining room can relieve an overloaded buffet of a big share of its burden, too.

It's often a good idea to build stoarge space under the celler steps for staple supplies. You may also be able to build a closet for wraps under the stair steps on the first floor.

An empty hall closet is a very handy place to store linens and bedding. Often this space can be made more useful is shelves 10 to 15 inches apart.

If you have an old bathtub with legs in your bathroom, you may be able to box it in and use the space below for cleaners and plumbing epuipment.

Keep Utensils Handy

Store kitchen utensils close to the place they'll be used. Sugar and flour and mixing bowls, pans, knives, spoons and small utensils should be stored near the refrigerator and the food preparation center.

Find a handy place near the sink for towels, soap, kettles and sauce pans. Skillets, fork, spoons, roasters and seasonings are will be handy when located near the range The "serving center," between the sink and the range is the place for dishes, silver, linen, bread, cake and cookies and ready-to-eat cereals.

In any room in the house, Miss Shank adds, partitioned drawers and half-shelves make stored articles easier to reach.

does your soil need FERTILIZER?

Fertile soils are essential to profitable production.

Top crop yields demand that growing plants receive a full, balanced feed of nutrients. These nutrients are converted by the plants into roots, stems, leaves and grain.

The more bushels per acre you get, the lower is your cost per bushel. That will leave more money in your pocket, even with lower selling prices.

Use these guides for building soil fertility:

- Have your soil tested to find which nutrients are most needed for full crop production. Your county extension director can give you instructions for taking soil samples. The Soil Testing Labratory at Iowa State College will make the chemical test for a small fee.
- Select fertilizer to fit the needs of your soil as indicated by soil tests and by the hunger signs your crops show. Buy your fertilizer on the basis of the grade printed on the fertilizer bag. The first number shows the percentage of nitrogen, the second the phosphate and the third the potash contained in the fertilizer. Iowa State College agronomists will be glad to provide a list of recommended fertilizer grades.
- Use legume-grass mixtures, manure and crop residues to add organic matter that will mellow and loosen your soil. Then the soil will have plenty of room to store water and circulate air.
- Farm on the level with strips and terraces where needed. These will help keep soil and water at home. They will combat erosion and boost crop yields.

Talk over with your county extension director the soil improvement program that will cut your costs and help beat the squeeze between higher fixed expenses and lower selling prices. See us for the fertilizer you need.

Uncle Sam Says

You American citizens who have been looking for an opportunity to take some aggressive action which will express faith in your country are now being given that chance. It is participation in the U. S. Savings Bonds Division's "Spring Opportunity Drive" which opens May 16. Through this drive you can help in the preservation of a prosperous economy in your land and show the world that Americans, men and women, still have that spark which has led the country to "accomplish the impossible". Volunteer workers are needed to help in this great drive and this is your opportunity to prove that you have the courage to protect the freedoms that are ours. Your community, your county, your state, and your country needs your help. Volunteer today.

Meaning of Wool Labels Explained by Specialist

Homemakers and other consumer buyers often wonder just what such terms as "reused wool," "reprocessed wool" and "virgin wool" mean when they are found on the label of an article in a store.

Extension service clothing agents explain that these are terms provided in the wool products labeling law, enacted seven years ago by congress. Here are main provisions of the act

All fabrics or their products of wool or containing wool (except upholstery and floor coverings must bear a label showing the percentage of fiber content and indicating the percentages of wool, reprocessed wool or reused wool.

"Wool" must refer to fleece wool being used for the first time in the complete manufacture of a wool product. It may include new fleece wool that has been previously processed up to, but not including, weaving or felting

"Reprocessed wool" includes scraps and clips of woven and felted fabrics made of previously unused wool These remnants are "garnetted"—that is, shredded—back into a fibrous state and used in manufacture of woolens.

"Reused wool" also is called shoddy. It is made from old wool which has actually been worn or used—including the rags and other old clothing collected by rag dealers. These are cleaned and shredded into fibers again and then blended to make utility fabrics.

"Virgin wool" is wool that never has been processed in any way before its complete manufacture into the finished product. The highest quality fabrics are always made of virgin wool

Aged Persons Increasing, Population Figures Show

A high percentage of the U. S. population always has been in the younger age groups, but the proportion of older persons has been increasing steadily

One useful measure of the age-trend of a population is its median age at various periods. Using this measurng tool, the median age of U. S. population has risen from 16 years in 1800 to nearly 23 in 1900 and to 30 years in 1947 The three main reasons for this increase are the long-term drop in the birth rate, the imitation of immigration and a lowering of the mortality rate of infants and young adults. All these factors are expected to continue to alter the national age pattern in the future, continuing the unbroken trend toward an older population, according to National Industrial Conference board.

The proportion of persons 65 and older has risen steadily from 3 per cent of the total population in 1870 to 7.5 per cent in 1947. By 1975 the U. S. may have 18 million aged, compared with 11 million at present. Thus, more old people mean more markets for goods and services for the aged. A greater number and percentage of older persons in the labor force also may require some adjustment in the policies toward employment of older workers.

Most of the famous old Mississippi river boats have been scrapped, but to oldtimers their memories linger on Each boat was a personality to the men who followed the river or just loafed along its shore. Probably the most distinguishing thing about each craft was its whistle. In the golden years of steamboating, no owner would think of sending a new packet to ply the Ohio or the Big Muddy without a beautifully toned blaster Now, like the steamboats they once graced, the whistles and bells are gone from the scene, although many still are close to the river. They can be heard at cotton gins, lumber mills and steam powered plants, or calling hands to work on the big plantations.

More Milk At . . .

HALF the COST!

Lush pastures boost milk production and cut costs in half. More of the milk check stays in your pocket. We like it too because we have more milk to keep our equipment in full use during the slack summer season.

Pastures yield all the way from 500 to 2300 pounds of total digestible nutrients per acre. On the basis of costs of the feed nutrients in grain, good pastures are worth beween $20 and $92 per acre for the season.

Here are six pointers to make your pasture program pay most:

1. Test your soil to find its needs for lime and fertilizer. Failure to get stands and poor growth of grass and legume crops may result from lack of lime and fertilizer.

2. Many low-producing bluegrass pastures can be converted to superior legume-grass mixtures.

3. Oats, seeded alone or as a companion crop to a new legume-grass seeding, provide one of the best temporary pasture crops for spring and early summer grazing.

4. Plan for sudan grass or other temporary pasture crops to provide grazing during the midsummer period when bluegrass is dormant.

5. Use fall-seeded winter rye for fall and early spring grazing.

6. For that "early bite" in the spring, top-dress with 100 pounds of ammonium nitrate per acre. This application should be made early, preferably by Marnh 15.

Your pasture crops will not grow if they lack plant food. Test your soil and watch for hunger signs on your plants to find out the plant food you need. Then put it on. You'll have more milk and lower cost.

Pesky Beavers Flood Massachusetts' Bottom Land

Beavers and gray squirrels have caused such property damage this fall that the Berkshire County, Mass., Farm bureau is urging the state conservation commissioner to "push" legislative control.

While squirrels have caused large grain losses, the chief target of wrath is law-protected beavers in the towns of Lenox, Hancock, Richmond and Tyringham.

Duane S. Slater of Crystal Brook farm, Tyringham, told his associates that early this year three beaver-built dams along Hop brook flooded many acres of his most fertile land.

Beaver dams in Richmond caused threats to railroad tracks.

Hancock had such a problem keeping stretches of highway and culverts from being washed out on the Brodie mountain road leading to Pittsfield that Louis J. Dee, road superintendent, destroyed four beaver dams.

and tomatoes add wonderful flavor to round steak. A low temperature is used in baking so the meat will be properly tender.

Tomato Steak
(Serves 6-8)

3 pounds round steak, cut 2 inches thick
3 tablespoons fat
1 pint tomatoes
2 carrots
1 large onion
1 turnip
2 cloves
3 bay leaves
2 teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons water

Score the steak by slashing with a sharp knife. Sear in heated fat in skillet. Prepare vegetable and put through coarse knife of the food chopper Add them as well as the other seasonings to the meat. Cover carefully and bake in a slow (275°) oven for three hours or until tender. Remove meat from liquid. Combine flour and water. Add a little of the hot liquid to this, then add to remaining liquid. Boil together until thickened, then pour over meat and serve.

Apples and raisins are tucked into a sage-seasoned dressing for roast pork.

Stuffed Shoulder of Pork

1 4-5 pound pork shoulder
1 cup bread crumbs
½ cup raisins
1 egg, beaten
2 tablespoons butter
½ teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
1 grated onion

Have the butcher cut a pocket in a shoulder of pork, from which the blade has been removed. Make the dressing as follows: Mix ingredients in order given and fill the pocket. Skewer or tie with coarse string. Rub the roasting pan lightly with a clove of garlic, if desired, and dust the pork shoulder with salt and pepper and paprika. Place in a 350° oven and cook two and one-half to three hours.

LIVER HAS little fat of its own, so bacon and pork are used with it to provide juices for cooking it. Here's an unusual way to prepare liver that's certain to be a favorite:

Liver Rolls

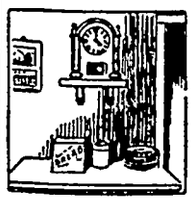
Have desired number of slices of calves' or beef liver cut in one-fourth inch slices. Sprinkle with fine bread crumbs and spread with a mixture of sauteed onions, celery and chopped parsley. In the center of each slice, place a finger-length piece of salt pork. Roll each slice tightly and tie or skewer together. Dust with salt and pepper and roll in flour. Place in a baking pan to which a small amount of water mixed with bacon drippings has been added.



To keep yolks from which the whites have been used, place in a cup of water to prevent a hard crust from forming. Store in the refrigerator

Never beat muffin or pancake mixtures too thoroughly. Slight lumps should be left in the batter so the finished product will be really tender.

When heating iced rolls place in the oven in a paper sack or in a heavy skillet on top of the range. Do not sprinkle with water since this may melt the icing.

MIRROR of your MIND

Kindness May Frighten Some

By Lawrence Gould

Will kindness put anyone at his ease?

Answer: No. It will work in most cases, but there are some people who are actually frightened by kind treatment. They believe this is because they are afraid you're trying to put something over on them, but what really terrifies them is the possibility that you may be sincere. For a person of this type has built his life around the idea that everyone is against him, and excuses his bad disposition as well as his failures by the fact that no one ever gave him a break. To admit that you were kind would break down his defenses

Can inhibitions be a cause of illness?

Answer: Definitely, writes Dr Sidney Tarachow of New York in the Psychiatric Quarterly He maintains that there is a whole "syndrome" (a pattern of symptoms) which results when inhibitions prevent our releasing inner tension by expressing strong emotions such as love or anger. The "syndrome of inhibition" includes fatigue, migraine headaches, lowered immunity to infection, an exaggerated impulse to cough, sleepiness, constipation, itching and hives, and several other ills for which no adequate cause had been discovered.

Can a child spend too much time with grown-ups?

Answer: Yes, once he has ceased to be a baby. The mark of normal development from infancy to childhood is a growing preference for the society of other children and comparatively little inclination to stay with his parents except when he's sick or sleepy. A child who spends much time even with his mother after he is old enough for school either remains too much dependent on her or is "over-stimulated" into trying to behave and think as she does. And this makes him feel "inadequate" because he cannot really keep up with an adult.

Frustration and Overweight

By Dr. James W. Barton

THOSE of normal weight know that when they are upset in mind, they are not hungry; and if they do eat, they are often sorry.

One naturally would think, therefore, that this same rule would work out on overweights because they usually are jovial in disposition and so emotional disturbances would upset them even more, and so greatly reduce their appetite.

As a matter of fact, nervousness and emotional disturbances appear to have the opposite effect. Thus, we learn that obesity (overweight) largely is a compensation for frustration and is explained by the eating of more food than is required.

We are familiar with the fact that many nervous individuals who have a problem they are trying to solve, a conflict which occupies much of their time, eat poorly. When they have their problem solved or their conflict settled, they begin to eat and sleep better.

It has been found that those who already are overweight and those beginning to accumulate excess fat, when they have a problem to face or some of their hopes have been frustrated, that, instead of eating less food, they find themselves eating more in an effort to make up to their bodies for the frustration that has occurred in their minds.

It must be admitted, of course, that when not enough juice is manufactured by the thyroid gland or the pituitary gland, there will be excess fat accumulated.

But it can easily be seen how a frustrated woman or man may sit with a box of candies or rich food available and continue to eat and eat to make up for this frustration. And the comfort and satisfaction of eating seems to make up or satisfy the emotions caused by frustration. It just seems a nice, pleasant way to overcome disappointment by satisfying the appetite.

★ HEALTH NOTES ★

It is because cancer of the stomach gives few, if any, evidences or symptoms that it is not always recognized in time to be treated to save the patient's life. It is hoped that it will soon be possible to detect early cancer of the stomach by examining cells obtained from a smear of the uterus, kidney, bladder and from bronchial tubes, so that beneficial treatment may be commenced.

It is only too true that where there is a lack of enough food there is always a parallel lack of the proteins — meat, eggs, fish — and unfortunately in most cases a greater lack or shortage of proteins in proportion to the lack of other foods. Thus, the shortage of rice and tapioca containing but a small percentage of proteins is less than the foods rich in proteins.

The Egg and Iowa

Do you know that Iowa leads the nation in egg production?

Another Iowa "First" of which we can be proud!

And eggs are wonderful food, no matter how you cook them. Grace and the kids like theirs' "sunny side up." I'll take mine turned over.

So we keep the whole family happy by giving mine an extra flip in the skillet, after the others' are done. And isn't that the secret of happy families everywhere . . . a little "give and take" on tastes and preferences?

It's the secret of happy communities, too. Goodness knows, we aren't all made alike. But as long as we realize that the other person's feelings are as important to him, as ours are to US . . . then we'll get along fine.

One man likes his eggs scrambled, another likes 'em boiled. One likes coke on a hot afternoon, while the other prefers a temperate glass of beer. Each has a right to his preference, and in assuring that right to others, each of us helps assure the same right for himself.

Missal Explains Tax Set-Up In Hancock County

BOARD ENDEAVORS TO MAKE VALUATIONS JUST AND FAIR TO ALL

Board Of Review Will Meet In All Parts Of County To Adjust Values

The 1949 assessment of real and personal property in nearing completion and the work of equalization has begun. In same towns the assessment is still in the process of being completed and failure to have this assessment completed as required by statute does not in any way impair the right of property owners in appeaing to the Board of Review if they feel their assessment is not equitable.

The new method of assessment of property no doubt will cause many taxpayers to appear before the County Board of Review and this is as it should be. For only by so doing can a good job of equalization be had. The errors in assessment are chiefly the result of the assessor's office not having received all the pertinent facts necessary for an intelligent appraisal.

Assessment of property is merely an appraisal by which the assessor endeavors to equalize the base on which levies are spread to raise the money necessary for the function of government. Values are determined by various factors grouped together and sometimes value exceeds sale price.

Valuations will be higher than for the past four years but this was to be expected as records in the office of County Auditor Schoneman will indicate that the tax base used for the 1948 levy was considerably below the base used in 1932.

Taxpayers seem to be more conscious of real and personal property taxes and yet these are the smallest part of the tax load. In 1948 local taxes accounted for only 11.13 per cent of all taxes collected. State Tax (which includes state sales, income and other miscellaneous tax) was 4.66 per cent and Federal Taxes totaled 74.21 per cent. In spite of the fact that Federal taxes account for the heaviest part of the tax load, there is less squawk on this item than the other two, with local taxes receiving the most attention.

Hancock County is not employing the services of an appraisal firm and not all the inequalities can be ironed out in the short space of time allotted to make the assessment. This is due to the fact that it takes time to train a fied force and we could not have the time to adequately train all of our people for this reason we invite taxpayers to meet with the Board of Review with their problems.

The assessor's office has, however, uncovered property, such as buildings, left off of the assessment roll in recent years and stocks of merchandise of non-resident firms doing business in the county, that will run into thousands of dollars.

Certain classes of property have been woefully under assessed and some taxpayers will pay more taxes but if the various taxing bodies keep their 1950 budgets in line with 1949, and in the face of a receding economy, a go slow policy on public expenditures should be inaugurated) the average taxpayers should pay no more than in the past year and in many cases it could be a little less. With expenditures by taxing bodies stabilized at the 1948 figure levies should reduce materially under the new valuation.

The County Board of Review with the Assessor's office will spend the entire month of May on the 1949 equalization and with but one purpose in mind, to give Hancock County the best assessment humanly possible with all factors considered.

Your Board of Review are all men of experience and judgement selected by your representatives, the Board of Supervisors, County Board of Education and Mayors of the towns of Hancock County. C. H. Schissel, Garner, retired merchant, experienced merchant and farmer; W. C. Keraus, Klemme, experienced in real estate and insurance; Chris Jacobson, experienced in the oil business, retail field and farmer; H. D. Schroeder, Kanawha, experienced in the building and construction field; and Ernest Senne, Woden, farmer, who has served as trustee, director in Co-ops and on the School Board.

After this board has completed its work, the valuations are submitted to the State Board of Review for comparison with other counties and when they are approved by the State Board they will be submitted to the auditor to be paced on the tax list.

—Fred Missal.

SET DATE FOR LETTING COUNTY ROAD PROJECT

Hancock County engineer, C. F Merten, has recommended a letting on the casting, blading, and rolling of 5 miles of local road in Hancock county and the report was approved by the Hancock county supervisors at a meeting last week The time for letting has been set for Monday, May 9, at 10.30 a. m. at the courthouse in Garner. The engineer estimates the cost of the proposed construction at $9,160 Work on the project is scheduled to get under way by June 1 and to be completed early in the fall.

FORMER KLEMME GIRL ONE OF BEST CAKE BAKERS IN FORT DODGE

At the annual housewares fair featured by the Boston store in Fort Dodge, Mrs. James Fredin of 18½ South Seventh Street, Fort Dodge, won the second prize for the best chiffon cake. First place went to Mrs. J. R Vander Pol and third place to Mrs. Harry Nelson, Fort Dodge

The Fort Dodge Messenger carried a news story and a large picture showing the cakes being judged by three well-known Fort Dodge home economists. Several thousand people attended the displays and demonstrations.

BIDS ASKED ON FOUR HANCOCK BRIDGES

Hancock County Supervisors Monday ordered a letting on the construction of four wooden bridges to be constructed in Boone, Ell and Erin townships during 1949. The letting will be held at the courthouse at 10:30 May 9th. County engineer Charles F. Merten estimates the cost of material on the project at $13,200 and labor for construction at $4,500. The letting is on labor only.

Post Office Improved

"Bill" Johnson, owner of the Post Office Building has improved the post office department by having a door cut in the west wall next to the street. In this way postmaster Kluckhohn will have pick-ups and deliveries made at the rear door, which will make handling of the mail much easier.

Echard Zeidler took a day off from his fishing and did the carpenter work for Johnson.

Annual Chicken Dinner

The directors and personnel of the Klemme Cooperative Grain Company made their annual inventory of stock at the elevators Monday. At noon they enjoyed a delicious fried spring chicken dinner prepared by Mrs. "Sport" Bridges. This is an annual event at the elevator, and one the boys look forward to.

MATERIAL FOR BUILDING IN BETTER SUPPLY NOW

Iowa farmers will be able to get more building materials and supplies this year, and at moderately lower prices than a year ago.

Iowa State College agricultural economists note that stocks of lumber are up Stocks of the lower grades, which are most important for farm buiding, are up most and have shown the biggest decline in price As a whole, lumber prices will average 5 to 10 percent below 1948 according to the economists

Little change is expected in the amount of galvanized sheet metal available, but reports say the supply of farm fencing now more nearly meets demand than at any time since the beginning of the war New farm machinery will be more plentiful than last year.

A few important items may continue in short supply in some parts of the nation, but supplies of most farm materials have improved considerably in the past year, the economists point out.

WILL MOVE TO VENTURA

MRS. GEO. COSGRIFF HAS RESIGNED AS CHIEF OPERATOR HERE

CANCER DRIVE THIS WEEK

CANCER DRIVE IS ON IN KLEMME THIS WEEK

The Hancock County drive for funds for fighting cancer is on this week only. There will be no house-to-house canvass, but each town will have a booth to collect funds during the week.

In Klemme there will be a booth at the First National Bank and some Klemme lady will be in charge each day to receive contributions.

Your contributions will help fight this disease that is annually taking thousands of lives. Great strides have been made in combating cancer, but more funds are needed to carry on the fight. Give to this worthy cause.

ATTEND YOUTH RALLY AT ALGONA

Those attending were Isabelle Gibbs, Gloria Haefner, Janice Hummel and Sylvia Egeland. Rev. and Mrs. E. Morris Egeland were also in attendance.

The program of the day included a worship service in the afternoon with a sermon by the Rev. J. O. Nelson, executive secretary of the Iowa Inter-Church Council.

The evening program concluded with a sound motion picture, "The Great Commandment." Approximately 250 people were in attendance at the convention.

Klemme School Activites For The Remaining Days

RETIRED FARMER DIES AT HOME NEAR GOODELL

Funeral services for Archie Landon, 61, were held Monday at 2 p. m. at the Congregational Church at Belmond. He died Thursday at 9 p. m. at the Harold Simerson farm four miles southwest of Goodell after an illness of about a year with heart trouble.

The family resided on farms west of Goodell for the past 25 years. Because of Mr. Landon's health, he and his wife lived in the Simerson house.

Surviving are the widow and 4 daughters, Mrs. Raleigh Watermiller, Thornton; Mrs. Edward Halpap, Goodell; Mrs. Earl Hinman, Belmond, and Mrs. Gail Thompson, Mason City.

BROTHER OF PAUL GRANGE KILLED IN ACCIDENT TUESDAY

Word was received in Klemme Tuesday of the tragic death of Walter Grange, of Ruthven, brother of Paul Grange, who was accidently killed Tuesday morning while helping a neighbor with blasting.

Particulars of the accident were not learned.

KLEMME CHURCH HELD ELECTION OF OFFICERS

At the annual election of officers held Sunday in the Klemme Methodist Church the following were named to serve in varying capacities. Elected as church trustees for a term of three years were Benn Coobs, Verner Nelson, and Harry Schuster. Mrs. Lester Stille was voted a 3 year term as Parsonage Trustee and James C. Thomas a 2 year term in the same office Stewards named for the three year term were as follows: Chester Renner, Melvin Neuberger, Lester Neuberger, Mervin Groesbeck and Mrs. Carl Finders. Mrs. Henry Busse and Mrs D P. Anderson were chosen as District and Reserve District Steward respectively, and Mrs. Vernon Bisom and Mrs. Jack Etchen, Communion Stewards. The District Stewards will serve for 1 year and the Communion Stewards for 2 years.

The membership also elected Emil Beier Lay Member of the Annual Conference and John Chambers as Alternate. Named Church Lay Leader was Roy I. Schaefer and Sunday School Superintendent, John Schwichtenberg. Others elected were Mrs. Dwight Hummel, Financial Secretary; Mrs. John Chambers, Assistant Financial Secretary; Asa R. ### SOFT BALL SEASON TO GET UNDER WAY HERE NEXT WEEK

The Klemme soft ball team will practice at the local field Sunday to get ready for the season ahead.

First Game Tuesday Night

The Klemme Coop. Grain Co. has challenged the Northern Lumber Co. to a game to be played Tuesday night, May 10th. Anything can happen in that game. So far they have not been able to find anyone who will take a chance on umpiring the fracas.

New Lights At Food Market

The Josten Appliance last week installed a new flourescent lighting system at the Klemme Food Market. This is a fine improvement and adds greatly to the attractiveness of their nice place of business.

Manager Martin Barz has "gone all out" the past year by having a lot of new equipment installed in the store to make it convenient for the shoppers.

SENIOR CALENDER

From now on until the end of the school year the seniors will be kept quite busy. On Friday, May 13, they will have their skip day and attend Veishea at Ames. Even if it will be on a Friday the thirteenth we hope to have a good time.

Sunday evening, May 15th we have our baccalaureate at the Klemme Evangelical and Reformed Church. This will be quite an event for the seniors.

Thursday evening, May 19th, the seniors have their commencement exercises. We shall have as our speaker, Leonard Howe, radio news broadcaster from station WHO Des Moines. When the final diploma is handed out everyone will be very much relieved.

Finally to end up everything we have our annual school picnic when everyone sees just how much they can eat and still survive. The picnic puts the final touch on our school activities and school will be out for the seniors for good until they decide to go on to college in the fall. After all the more we know the more we need to know.

LUNCHES

Starting next week pupils will either have to bring their own lunches from home or buy them up town. This is our last week for serving lunches here in the school. Students who have extra tickets may turn them in for a refund.

JUNIOR-SENIOR BANQUET SERVED ON HAWAIIN ISLAND

Those who attended the Junior-Senior banquet held at the Klemme High School gynasium Saturday evening would not have to stretch their imagination far to think they were being served on some island in the Hawaiian Group.

The Juniors did a fine job of decorating, using a Hawaiian theme throughout. There were realistic palm trees, sand beach, glittering stars overhead, blue waves of the ocean and a grass green hillside in the distance. To arrive at the small tables underneath the palms, it was necessary to cross a rustic bridge spanning the blue waters of the bay.

Small tables were scattered about the "island" while the longer speaker's table faced the others. All were decorated in the Hawaiian theme with Hawaiian favors. The menu and program were also carried out in the Pacific Island style.

Speakers on the program and their topic were Luella Priebe, "Aloha," W. E. Patterson, "What's In Hawaii," Supt. T. G. Ahrenkiel, "Sailing Onward."

Isabelle Gibbs and Maurice Trumbell gave the Senior History; Norma Early and Mildred Meinders the Senior Prophecy and Alice Meyer and Donna Greiman the Senior Will.

Party For Children And Mothers At Klemme School

On Thursday, May 5th at 2:30 p. m. a party will be held in the Klemme school. This is for all children starting school in the fall and their mothers. We will also have advance registration at this time.

A feature of this gathering will be showing of the film, "When Bobby Goes to School." Light refreshments will be served.

Children starting to rural school this fall and their mothers are also invited to attend.

Isolationism Exists

THAT ISOLATIONISM is not dead, at least in the United States senate was clearly indicated when Sen. William E. Jenner (R-Ind.) in a three-hour speech on the senate floor called for repeal of the Marshall plan, urged the senate to refuse to approve further appropriations for it; refused to adhere to any bi-partisan foreign policy; praised the action of Senators Lodge, Borah, Hi Johnson and other isolationists of the 1920 era in keeping this country out of the League of Nations; declares this country is "hated around the world" because of our material possessions and our humanitarian attempts to relieve suffering and our out-pouring of money to stay other Democratic governments, declared that World War II was not the result of our failure to join the League of Nations, but that it was "deliberately planned"; castigated our foreign policy and charged that "secret diplomacy is the rule and not the exception"; charged that this nation "our own country and our own leaders have been a party to conspiracy which has permitted Russia to gain the place she holds today in world affairs"

He charged that this country has directly violated the Atlantic charter; that the signing of the Atlantic pact is what Russia wants and will enable Russia to win the cold war without firing a shot; and the Hoosier senator predicted that the very countries we are helping today will "automatically become ingrates, hating us because we helped them."

Not in recent months has a more bitter speech been delivered on the floor of the United States senate. Some newspapers such as the Chicago Tribune gave the senator's speech banner headlines Paradoxically, the senator's home state metropolitan newspapers in Indianapolis gave his address scant attention.

Rural Renters Menaced

There is every indication that the folks who rent property in the smaller towns and rural communities are due for substantial rent increases under the new rent control law recently passed by congress lifting the bulk of responsibility from the shoulders of congress to local officials in the cities and towns and the governors of the several states This is another indication of the passing of that party and personal responsibility in this congress about which we wrote last week.

Results will be certain abolition of rent control in rural areas, particularly in the South, and the southern solons could go along on this premise, since relatively few renters in the South are voters. But in northern states and the larger cities there likely will be no decontrol because it would be political suicide for local officials to lift controls.

So with rent controls in the North and no rent control in the South, just one more artificial barrier is created between the two sections of the nation.

Martin Policy Sound

This reporter recently had a long talk with Congressman Joe Martin of Massachusetts Although he has moved out of the speaker's office which he occupied during the 80th congress, by virtue of his job as minority leader, he still rates a pretentious private office in the Capitol

It's to be reached down a narrow corridor which slants off from the Hall of Statues. First on his program is a campaign to sell the American people on the record of the Republican party in both the 80th and the 81st congress. And his coal black eyes snap when he talks about it, for he believes if the people once "know the facts", the results will be different in the next election.

The canny New Englander has a down-to-earth philosophy with which few can disagree at least while he's talking, using frequent gestures with a paper knife to punctuate his remarks. And apropos the position of Senator Jenner on our foreign policy, here's Joe Martin's position on foreign policy.

"The United States has made its course, and we should all stick by it regardless of party."

Futile Fiddling

Freshman Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn.) in his maiden speech took occasion to castigate his colleagues for fiddling away so much time without accomplishing some legislation. Said the Minnesotan: "What the people want is for the senate to function. Sometimes I think we become so lazy we feel so secure in our six-year term, we forget that the people want things done."

of the bowl with watercress and radish roses.

Fresh Fruit Salad Bowl
(Serves 4)

2 bananas, cut lengthwise
4 slices avocado
Lemon juice
1 head celery, shredded
4 long strips cantaloupe
4 slices pineapple
8 orange segments
12 black cherries
12 honeydew melon balls
French dressing

Dip banana and avocado in lemon juice. Line a salad bowl with chicory and on this arrange the banana and cantaloupe Alternate pineapple, avocado and oranges in the bowl. Make a nest of the cherries and garnish with the melon balls. Serve with dressing.

Cottage cheese is the base of this next salad, accompanied by greens and fruits. It's nice to serve Sunday evening for supper or for luncheon on a warm day.

Cottage Cheese-Fruit Salad
(Serves 6)

1 grapefruit, segmented
2 oranges, segmented
1 avocado, pared and sliced
½ head lettuce
½ head French endive
½ bunch watercress
1½ cups cottage cheese
Sour cream
French dressing

Marinate fruits in French dressing and chill. Toss together all salad greens in salad bowl and pile cottage cheese which has been mixed with sour cream, in center of greens.

2½ cups cooked ham, ground
½ cup celery, chopped
½ cup radishes, sliced
½ cup green pepper, chopped
½ cup real mayonnaise

Soften gelatin in one-fourth cup cold bouillon. Heat to boiling the remainder of the bouillon and add to gelatin mixture. Chill. When beginning to jell, add onion, ham, celery, radishes and green pepper. Fold in real mayonnaise and pour into a mold. Chill until set. Unmold on platter, garnish with watercress and radish roses Serve with mustard mayonnaise, made by mixing three-fourths cup of real mayonnaise with one-fourth cup mustard-with-horseradish.

Scoop out cucumbers and fill with tuna fish salad Serve with potato chips, sliced, hard-cooked eggs and tomato slices

Fruit salad dessert idea. melon balls, white grapes, strawberries, pineapple spears, peach halves and scoops of sherbet

MIRROR Of Your MIND

'Decisiveness' May Mask Fear

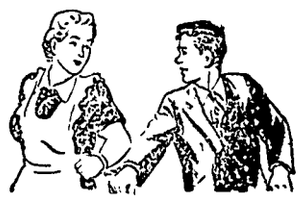
By Lawrence Gould

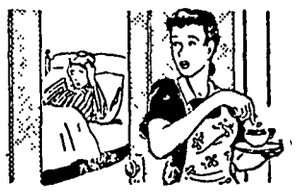
Can "decisiveness" mask secret fear?

Answer: Yes—the fear of being or appearing "indecisive," says Melitta Schmideberg in the Psychoanalytic Review. It is not "weakminded" to hear both sides of a question and take time to weigh them before coming to a conclusion, but some people who are basically sufferers from ambivalence and do not want to admit it will compel themselves to make "snap judgments" and will stick to these through thick and thin rather than face the painful truth that at heart they're uncertain about everything and everybody.



Can you tell if you have a "mother complex"?

Answer: You have a mass of "associations" with your mother (which is all a "complex" is) if she brought you up, and if not, with anyone who took her place And only the nature of these associations decides whether or how far this "complex" has kept you from growing up emotionally. If you still depend upon your mother or a "mother substitute" to bolster up your self-esteem and settle moral issues for you; if your confidence in business depends on the knowledge that your mother (or your wife) "believes in you," then you have a "mother complex" in the bad sense.



Is there any harmless drug for alcoholics?

Answer: Not yet, anyhow, warns Dr. Edwin G. Zabriskie, eminent neurologist and chairman of a newly organized committee for the study of medical treatment of the "problem drinker." The committee is seeking funds to investigate a drug known commercially as "antabus" on which favorable reports have been received from Denmark, but does not yet feel sure enough of its effects or its possible toxicity to advise releasing it for general use In any case, "Medical treatment must be followed by psychotherapy aimed at the social rebuilding of the patient."

KEEPING HEALTHY

Emotions Will Affect Circulation

By Dr. James W. Barton

When I wake in the morning, I find my heart rate usually about 48, sometimes 54. After lying awake and thinking over the plans for the day, I find my heart rate to be 68, sometimes 72.

When I return home from boxing bouts, notwithstanding the fact that I did some boxing when young and have examined every heavyweight boxer except Gene Tunney, I find my heart rate up to 80.

Apparently, although I remain calm, my thoughts are on every blow of the boxers and unconsciously I am delivering blows or warding them off. In other words our hearts beat faster and stronger and we pump extra blood when we are excited or upset in mind.

We have our heart or blood pressure tested or undergo a metabolism test to find whether our thyroid gland is pouring a normal amount of juice into the blood (or less or more than normal), we are supposed to be in a complete resting state. Unfortunately for the test, if we have something on our mind, are worried about the outcome of the test, the heart will be beating faster and harder and the blood pressure will be increased.

In the Journal of Clinical Investigation, Drs. J. B. Hickman, W. H. Cargill and A. Golden point out that because physical rest does not mean emotional rest or relaxation, widely-different values are obtained.

A study of the effect of emotional disturbance (anxiety) in 23 unselected medical students showed that the average output of blood from the heart was raised from 4.2 in the control period (that is, both mind and body were at rest) to 6.2 in the anxious period.

HEALTH NOTES

Any illness involves a certain amount of nervousness or mental disturbance. The patient wonders what is wrong, what the outcome may be. About one-half of all patients who consult their physicians have no real physical or organic disease, but have symptoms which are the same or very similar to those present in organic disease.

After an operation for low back pain caused by a protruding disk exercises should be taken to straighten the muscles in the back that hold the spine erect. One simple exercise is lying on the abdomen and trying to bring the head and heels together, the knees kept straight. This should be done several times night and morning. . .

A New Way to Make Better Bread -Quicker, Easier!

Perfected for Use With Robin Hood Flour

ROBIN HOOD
White Bread

Recipe by Rita Martin

2 tbsp. salt
¼ cup sugar
4 cups lukewarm liquid (if milk is used, scald and cool to lukewarm)
12-12½ cups sifted ROBIN HOOD ENRICHED FLOUR
2 cakes comp. yeast or 2 packages dry granular yeast
3 tbsp. lukewarm water
¼ cup shortening, melted, cooled

ADD—sugar and salt to liquid; let yeast stand 5 min. in lukewarm water.

BEAT—2 cups flour into liquid mixture using rotary beater; add yeast mixture and beat again.

ADD—4 cups flour, beat until smooth; then mix in shortening. Stir in remaining flour, mix thoroughly; turn onto lightly floured board, cover and let rest about 10 min.

KNEAD—until smooth and satiny (about 5 minutes).

ROUND UP—dough, place in a large greased bowl. Cover with damp cloth, set in warm place (85° F.) and let rise until double (about 1½-2 hrs.)

PUNCH DOWN—and let rise again until nearly double. (May omit this 2nd rising to save time).

CUT—dough in 4 equal parts, round up, cover and let rest about 10 min. on lightly floured board.

*SHAPE—into loaves and place in well greased bread pans. (See easy illustrated method below).

COVER—lightly and set in a warm place, allowing dough to rise until sides reach top of pan and corners are filled (about 1½ hours). Dough should feel light to the touch.

BAKE—in moderately hot oven, 375° F., about 50 minutes.

YIELD—4 Loaves.

*Use new Robin Hood "Rolled Dough" Method for shaping perfect loaves of better bread.

Step 1. With rolling pin, roll dough out to uniform thickness, stretching by hand to form rectangle approximately 9" x 12". Make certain to break down all gas bubbles in the outer edge of the dough.

Step 2. From upper edge, roll dough toward you, jelly roll fashion, sealing dough with heel of hand after each roll of dough. (About four turns will bring you to last seal.) Be sure to seal final seam on bottom of loaf.

Step 3. Seal ends of the loaf by using the side of the hand to get thin sealed strip.

Step 4. Fold sealed ends of loaf under, using fingers, as above. Avoid tearing dough.

Step 5. Place shaped loaf, with seam side down, in well greased bread pan.

Step 6. Proceed in usual way for raising and baking . . . for a perfect loaf every time!

9 Out of 10 Women Say New Robin Hood "Rolled Dough" Method Gives Them The Finest Bread They Ever Baked

● Now! Home bread baking easier than ever before—with never-fail results! Women who bake bread several times a week—women who had never baked bread before—all agree that this new Robin Hood "Rolled Dough" Method is easy, gives a perfect loaf every time.

With this new method you get a loaf of bread that's bigger—looks better—tastes better than any other home-baked bread.

It was originated, developed and perfected by Rita Martin, famous home economist, for use with Robin Hood Flour. You cannot get the same perfect results with any other flour. Only Robin Hood Flour and the Robin Hood "Rolled Dough" Method together can produce such large, uniform loaves.

Use the recipe for Robin Hood White Bread on this page—follow the easy step-by-step Robin Hood "Rolled Dough" Method—and we guarantee you will make the finest loaf of bread ever.

Get Robin Hood Flour from your grocer right away and try this new way to make better bread.

17 GILTS PRODUCE 180 PIGS ON FARM

Pork will be cheaper next year if production will do the trick, according to a report from Herman Paul, steward at the Hancock county home He says 17 gilts at the home farrowed over 180 pigs

The 17 gilts now have 172 that are 2 weeks old and thrifty, according to Paul One gilt farrowed 19 pigs and none farrowed less than 10 Some had to be killed as the gilts were unable to nurse all that were farrowed The gilts are the 2nd cross of the Farmer Hybrid variety.

It was unseasonably hot in North Iowa Tuesday when the thermometer registered 91 degrees at the official station at Mason City That is real summer heat!

PIKE SEASON OPENS MAY 15

May 15th adds walleye pike, sauger, perch, silver and yellow bass, and northern pike to the list of other fishes already open to fishing in all inland waters.

The nesting species of game fish on which the season does not open until June 1st, includes large and smallmouth bass, warmouth bass, sunfish, bluegill, and rock bass

The frog season opens May 12, with daily bag and possession limit twelve

CARP TRAPS MAKING BIG HAULS

Fourteen large fish traps on nine major lakes have been installed to trap rough fish, principally carp and buffalo. The traps are installed at the mouths of bays where fish enter to spawn. Although the spawning season is barely underway, large catches of carp and buffalo have been made to date. A single trap in Storm Lake in a three-day period caught 33,000 pounds of carp and 10,000 pounds of bullheads, the carp being removed and the bullheads returned to fishing waters. A single trap at Hale's Slough at Spirit Lake took 10,000 pounds of carp and 10,000 pounds of miscellaneous game fish in a single night.

The trapping program supplements the Conservation Commission's long-time program of seining rough fish, the objective being to relieve the pressure on game fish populations.

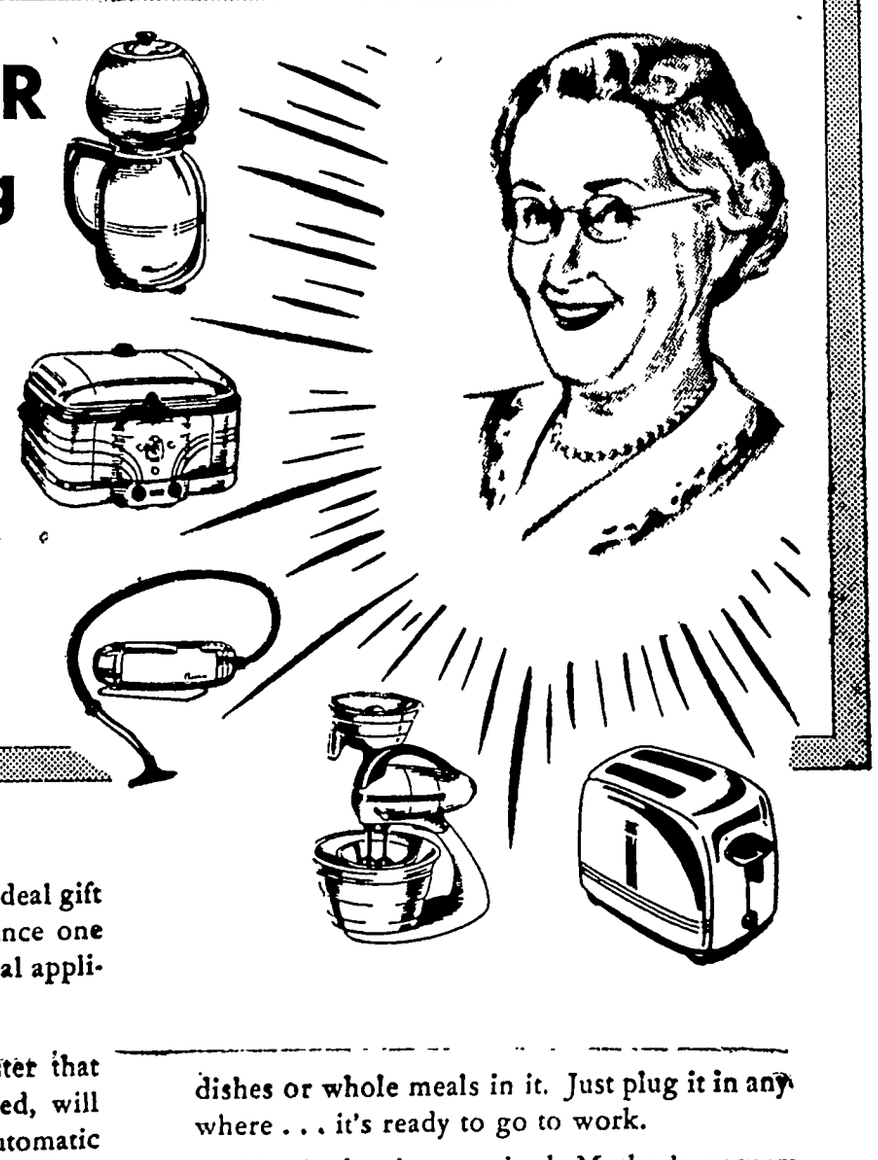
Give MOTHER Work-Saving Electrical Gifts
THAT BRING HER ADDED FREEDOM



IF YOU want to give Mother the ideal gift . . . make her Mother's Day remembrance one as practical as it is beautiful . . . electrical appliances for every day use!

For instance . . . an automatic toaster that does a neat job on the toast, unattended, will save her time and effort. So will an automatic coffee maker . . . and she'll get a big thrill out of its beauty and utility.

An electric food mixer will take more work off Mother's hands than is easily imagined . . . is a quick, convenient, efficient daily helper. Also, a modern electric roaster will be just the perfect gift . . . for Mother can prepare special dishes or whole meals in it. Just plug it in anywhere . . . it's ready to go to work.

Now's the time to check Mother's vacuum cleaner, too. How she'll enjoy the easy, efficient way a new one operates.

So . . . give Mother "added freedom" this Mother's Day . . . give her electrical appliances. See these . . . and many other practical suggestions at our nearest office — Now!

Connie and Lonnie and Mack

By GRANTLAND RICE

SEVENTY-FOUR years ago a kid of 13 saw Aristides win the first Kentucky Derby. His name is Matt Winn, now nearly 88 years old.

Seventy years ago, another kid showed up in one of the minor eastern ball parks, possibly Pittsfield, as a lean, lank scrawny catcher. His name is Connie Mack, now 86 years old.

Grantland Rice

Also some 70 years ago a high school kid did some pitching and playing end before he entered Yale. His name is Alonzo Stagg, also set at the tender age of 86

Here are three men who might have the slogan, "Life can begin at any age, but it only warms up in the 80s" For Matt Winn is handling the production act for the 75th Kentucky Derby, the greatest of them all in the words and mind of this incredible turfman

At the same time, Connie Mack is dreaming of his 10th pennant, actively in charge of a ball club that has a chance to win with just a few lucky spins from the wheel of chance.

And with Messrs Winn and Mack featured entries in racing and baseball, Lonnie Stagg is actively helping young Lonnie, his son, to teach the young men in a Pennsylvania college how to tackle, block, run and throw passes.

Here are three men who can lay claim to a total of 260 years and are not only actively connected with sport, but in two instances, Winn and Mack, with the biggest shows of the year.

This has never happened before. Certainly no two men at the ages of 86 and 88 have played such leading roles in sport, and Stagg, at 86, is probably in better condition than either.

At a party one night in Los Angeles two years ago, I recall the block that Stagg put on the burly Curly Lambeau, explaining some play, as the big man, then coach of the Green Bay Packers, showed his astonishment, Connie Mack said, "I think I'll leave for my seat before I get killed."

It was Victor Hugo who wrote, in effect—"I feel in myself the future life. I am like a forest that more than once has been cut down. The new shoots are stronger and livelier than ever My soul is more luminous when my body powers begin to fail. The snows of winter may be on my head, but the sun shine of eternal spring is in my heart."

This is the answer to Winn, Mack and Stagg—"The snows of winter may be on their heads, but the sun shine of eternal spring is in their hearts" They never look behind They look only to the days and years ahead The past is dust. It is only tomorrow that matters This keeps 'em young

The Big Year

Unless an unexpected jolt arrives at some early date, Messrs Winn and Mack both figure that 1949 may be the best year either has ever known

Colonel Winn is certain that his Derby will lure more than 100,000 spectators into his stands, and set a new mark There seems to be grave doubt in many centers that any Kentucky Derby ever drew 100,000 fans

Two years ago this doubt was expressed in loud tones. I asked Colonel Winn for the correct figures

"I'll tell you," he said "Tell those who doubt the figures that I will be glad to bet $10,000 that we had 100,000 or more spectators, and if they care to take the bet, I'll guarantee to prove it to their complete satisfaction" No one cared to take the bet.

Derby Day at Churchill Downs is beyond description You can call the place a madhouse and then retire. But for all that, it is a terrific show, due largely to tradition and the showmanship of Colonel Matt Winn. The amazing feature is that so many take their beating year after year, and come back for more

So far as competition goes, 1949 has everything it takes to build up interest with the possibility or probability of a big, well-balanced field. The next two weeks will tell us more about this.

In the same way, Connie Mack believes he has a good chance to win the American league flag again. He makes no pennant predictions, but he will explain to you that if one or two things happen, his Athletics will be in front at the finish. He fully expects to be running one-two-three down the stretch in September, and this time he is equipped with reserves to handle bad breaks.

HEADLESS ROOSTER . . . Mrs. Martha Green's remarkable rooster, to whom decapitation didn't matter very much, is shown putting away a tidy breakfast of egg yolk and warm milk. This is rather interesting when one stops to realize that the rooster has been without a head for several days. Mrs. Green was the most surprised shopper in Los Angeles when the beheaded bird she had bought at a meat market started squawking as soon as she got it home.

LIKE A PAGE OUT OF THE PAST . . . Take a look at the faces giving this umpire a bad time. It's possible you may be seeing them again this season, wearing the same sneers but different uniforms. This picture, taken in 1937, shows two members of the original St. Louis Cardinals "Gas House Gang," Manager Frankie Frisch (left) and shortstop Leo Durocher staging a verbal battle at the plate during a tight game. The boys are back together again, only Durocher is manager of the New York Giants and Frisch is one of his coaches.

EVENTS MATCH-UP WITH NAME . . . Seldom have the events in a person's life so happily matched up with a name as has happened in the case of little Mary Happy Heitman, shown here. The 3½-year old miss is both "merry" and "happy" since a major film studio has offered her a long-term contract and a judge has approved it. She will earn from $100 to $1,000 a week over a seven-year period. She is the laughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Heitman, of Los Angeles.

EASTER BONNET . . . Margaret Truman's Easter bonnet didn't have any bird on it, but this is how it would have looked to a bird if he had happened to be around. Like any other American girl, she got a big bang out of a becoming bonnet.

"HAIR-RAISING" PROSPECTS . . . Model Pam Shard displays one of the futuristic hair-dos that have invaded the New York style scene. They're creations of a Dali-like hair stylist whose trade name is Mark. Wires, lacquers, multi-colored switches and top-knots are all utilized.

POLITICAL FACES . . . This belongs to British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin who is shown concentrating on some official papers with the aid of a protruding tongue. The picture was taken at a United Nations general assembly meeting in New York.

LADY ENGINEER . . . Phyllis "Sandy" Evans, junior in the Drexel Institute college of engineering, studies a vibration tachometer. She has been elected first president of the society of women engineers.

EVENTS MATCH-UP WITH NAME . . . Seldom have the events in a person's life so happily matched up with a name as has happened in the case of little Mary Happy Heitman, shown here. The 3½-year old miss is both "merry" and "happy" since a major film studio has offered her a long-term contract and a judge has approved it. She will earn from $100 to $1,000 a week over a seven-year period. She is the laughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Heitman, of Los Angeles.

SIGNS LAW . . . President Truman signs legislation giving the federal government's consent to the five-state upper Colorado river compact. Arizona, Utah, Wyoming, New Mexico and Colorado are signatories to the pact.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

By DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

SCRIPTURE: Mark 11:27—12:44. DEVOTIONAL READING: Mark 12: 1-12.

Jesus And Critics

Lesson for May 8, 1949

DURING JESUS' last week, his enemies were firing at point-blank range. They were dead set to kill him; but they did not want to do that if they could ruin him some other way. What they tried to do was to make him out either a rascal or a fool, or both. Mark's story shows how Jesus took it.

Dr. Foreman

The first question they asked sounded perfectly fair "Where did you get your authority?" As we saw last week, Jesus had assumed simply tremendous authority. Wasn't it fair to ask him where he got it?

The trouble was that the men who asked the questions didn't want to know They only wanted to heckle Jesus

The world is full of just such license-hunting snoopers as these. They do not like it when a man succeeds. They particularly do not like it when a man succeeds without their help.

"Who is this fellow anyway? Where did he get his start? what family does he have, where is his diploma?" Jesus never answered this question, because he knew why they asked it. (Mark 11.27-33.)

Taxes

IN JESUS' TIME you could not vote either for more taxes, or less. You paid what the Roman soldier at your door said to pay, and you were thankful not to be poked in the ribs with his sword while you were fishing up the money But no one dared to complain. The Romans had some deep dank dungeons for people who complained about high taxes So the next question Jesus' enemies asked him was about taxes, or tribute, which means the same thing. They thought they had Jesus on a spot where whatever he said would put him in the wrong. Suppose he said: "Yes, pay taxes by all means." Then they would snarl: "Bootlicker of the Romans! Traitor to your country!" But if Jesus said, "No, don't pay taxes," then they would howl "Treason! Police! Arrest this man who defies the Emperor!" Jesus' answer was a masterpiece, because he not only did not dodge the hot question, he did not leave the questioners a leg to stand on. (Mark 12.17).

Hairsplitters by Trade

THE CRITICS of Jesus were hairsplitters by trade. Yet none of them had ever been able to answer another tricky question with which they now expected to floor Jesus.

"Which is the greatest commandment of all?" The question had been going the rounds for generations. The greatest minds in Jewery had wrestled with it. But it was a foolish question after all.

Which is the most important brick in a wall? What position on a volley-ball team is the most important? What is the most important link in a chain? An answer to these questions would seem about as easy as answering that one about the greatest commandment. Jesus knew they were trying to show him up as a bungler, as a very poor and amateurish hairsplitter indeed. But instead, he did what no one expected him to do: he answered their question, and answered it so well that it is one of the cornerstones of our religion today.

How to Take Criticism

THE READER should consult Mark for the whole story It bristles with practical thoughts, one of the most practical being how to take criticism All of us can take it from our friends and families: we know they mean it for our own good But criticism that is unfair, from people who want only to show us up for fools or to get us into hot water—that is hard to take Jesus should be our example

He did not let other people's criticisms interfere with his work. He never avoided criticism. He did not "twist the lion's tail, he did not deliberately provoke criticism. But he would not claim exemption from what every one has to stand, being looked over and rated by the people who knew him.

He never broke his heart over what people said of him. He did not go around crying to himself.

...TON MAY MAKE GROMYKO A YES MAN...

...at if Science Could Control Man's Thoughts?

...OR A RAY MIGHT MAKE HARRY CHEER KREMLIN

By H. I. PHILLIPS

...D CONTROL

...assuming any man-...rophecy, it is fair to ...bility to control man's ...h precision through ...no means out of the ...is more awesome in ...tions than was the ...loud in 1945."—Dr. John Ely Burchard, Dean of Humanities at Massachusetts Tech.

There goes that gooseflesh creeping up our spine again!

Say it ain't so, doctor! Tell us you don't really mean that the laboratory will find a way to throw a switch and make a man's thoughts come out the designated slot! Admit you are not serious in contemplating a day when a button may turn a yes man into a no man, nice as it might be to see in converting Gromyko—presto!—from a no man into a yes man!

Or is it to be done by rays? Turned by Joe Stalin onto President Truman, might they halt Harry in the middle of a stern "We intend to stand by to the bitter end" and bring forth an abrupt cry, "Hooray for the Kremlin!"

Do you see a time when the Thirteen Men of Moscow, giving uproarious approval to a Pravda editorial denouncing America, may, under a magic ray in the hands of Uncle Sam, suddenly glow with anger and order the Pravda editorial writer shot at once?

Is the time near when Vishinsky, loaded with expletives and rising to excoriate the democracies, will, due to a current, a ray or an isotope, break into a broad smile and say, "Ladies and gentlemen, I am just a Happiness Boy. There is nothing in this world like friendship. See what the boys in the backroom will have!"

Can Henry Wallace, mounting the platform, be reached by a mystery beam and his address denouncing ERP, the Truman administration and the Atlantic pact converted into a talk on how to produce better laying hens?

We see the following possibilities:

1.—Moscow issues orders for the complete seizure of China. The Chinese Communist general gets it, but Washington calls on its Thought Control tower, centers the beam on him and renders the general incapable of saying anything but "Nuts!"

2.—The politburo prepares to issue a blast at America. Under the Thought Blitzer the boys cannot think of the words "Wall Street," "Money Bund" or "Exploiters." This leaves them completely helpless.

3.—A new play opens on Broadway. It is lousy. But the producer has scientific connections. He controls the thoughts of the critics to such an extent they can't even dismiss it as "adequate."

4. We go to the races with the right combination in the Daily Double It is 2 and 6. The guy at the window who has a thought control apparatus fills our skull with the numbers 4 and 7.

(P. S.—Nothing keeps us sane except the fact that the winning combination turns out to be 5 and 8.)

It probably will be a long time before a return to the day when evidence that a man was under the influence of alcohol was not proof he belonged in the upper brackets.

TRIBUTE

Grace Noll Crowell

AND DAVID, AFTER HE HAD SERVED HIS OWN GENERATION . . . FELL ON SLEEP. Acts 13:36.

NO finer tribute ever could be given
Than that brief simple utterance of praise.
God asks no greater service than this leaven
To raise the standard of men's earthly days.
David, the king, "had served his generation"—
Straightforward words that shine in his behalf,
More challenging in their adulation
Than any chiseled-marble epitaph.

To serve one's generation, to be giving
New strength and courage to one's fellow-man,
To tread life's highroad bravely, ever living
With one clear purpose, one exalted plan,
Will rear for any man a shaft so high
Its climbing peak will reach and pierce the sky.

Play Your Own Role

Bell Syndicate—WNU Features

YESTERDAY I went to see a friend in a state hospital for the insane. She has been there four years. When she first was committed, on her psychiatrist's advice, her family's heart almost broke. Mother, father, sister, husband, all felt the fearful shock of having this happen to Marjorie.

But now they are all somewhat resigned and, what is sadder, Marjorie is, too. She drifts in the dim half-life of the enormous institution; she talks trivialities; she never asks for her boy and girl any more. The twisted life about her is all that interests her; her weaving, her fitting of blocks into holes in a board, her meals.

Walking away from this place of shadows I felt very sad. For I have known Marjorie since she was a pretty, eager, normal girl I knew her in her happy early wifehood and proud motherhood. When Mark went away to war I saw with just what gallantry she bore herself, and I saw the dullness and the problems of the postwar half-peace engulf her.

Money Would Have Helped

Nothing has ever been the matter with Marjorie that money could not have cured No psychologist ever told her that, or anything like it, but it is true. If at any time during the past few years Mark had had a raise; bills could have been paid, luxuries and trips anticipated, friends inspired with envy of the new house, car, fur coat, Marjorie's vapors would have blown away like mist.

Hers was the common trouble of trying to live like everyone else. But no woman's problem is like those of her neighbors. The only successful woman today is the one who takes her job as a thing apart and fits herself to it, and it to her resources If money is short, she doesn't waste it. If living in the city forces too swift a pace upon her, she moves to the country. By what she has and what she must do, she works it out and she plays her part with all the relish of a favorite Hollywood star

Marjorie never solved her domestic problem. It rode her night and day. High prices, dentist bills, flowers for somebody, a dress she had to have or she simply couldn't go to the dinner, Anne's private school, a waitress in for the company dinner—there was simply no end to it. And all the time this disturbing talk of another war, and Miller being put over Mark in the office, and people trying to get her to buy tickets and patronize sales and contribute to this and that.

Too Much for Her

It was simply too much for her. She began to have hysterical outbursts, and say the children and she and Mark would be better apart. She wouldn't listen to anyone and gave up sleeping almost entirely

Someone suggested psychiatry and Marjorie leaped at it. For awhile, although it didn't accomplish anything, it didn't seem to hurt her Then the cost of it became a worry added to all the others, and the psychiatrist suggested an institution, where the charges were low—$200 a month—but all treatments included, and less than she was paying him.

Really upset and frightened now, and with good reason, Marjorie went into custody, and she will never come out. And walking home, free and at peace in the spring dusk, my heart ached for her and for the hundreds of other women who work themselves into nervous and emotional disorders, and can't work themselves out.

There was nothing the matter with Marjorie that she could not herself have cured Simpler meals, earlier hours, no alcohol, new interests, daily walks, and above all, as complete a forgetfulness of self as she could have managed, all would have helped.

Honest facing of the budget, and eliminating the hundred petty extravagances that mount up so maddeningly, would have struck at the very roots of it. A decision to move away, perhaps rent the present house, find smaller quarters in a more modest neighborhood, would have challenged quite unsuspected capabilities in her.

She would presently have come to realize that any life that is full and useful is as good as any other

The President's job — the film star's job, is no more exciting than yours, if you do yours right.

Chemists Surpass Natural 'Scents'

Until recently it took almost 25 tons of violets to produce a single ounce of essence, or natural oil—and a ton of roses produced only 10 ounces of rose oil. Moreover, to date no one has been successful in extracting lily-of-the-valley or lilac fragrances from the blossoms because the natural oils of these flowers are too delicate to survive the process.

However, modern chemists can synthesize these—and many other scents known and unknown in nature—by means of coal tar compounds.

ARTISTIC ANCESTORS

By Richard H. Wilkinson

"I WISH," said Aime Butterworth wistfully, "I only wish there had been some one in our family who really did something, something worth while, something—" she smiled as she said it—"I could brag about."

Fred Butterworth laid aside the morning paper, gulped down the last of his coffee, shoved back his chair and said: "What?"

Aime overlooked his rudeness. "The bridge club meets here this afternoon," she said, "and I dread it. I dread it because Aggie Spencer and and Gertrude Wilcox will monopolize the conversation with stories of their ancestors.

3-Minute Fiction

Fred scratched his chin and contemplated the wistful look in his wife's eyes. Suddenly he banged the table. "By George, I'd almost forgotten it! Darned if I hadn't. You sit here a minute, sweet, till I rummage around in the attic. I'll give you something to brag about!"

Later he returned with a book. "But what is it?" asked Aime.

"It's a book of poetry, that's what it is! Written by my mother and published 20 years ago. There's talent in my family, I'll have you know."

Aime's eyes lighted, then glowed with sudden joy. "Fred! You dear! Is it really? Was your mother really a poet? Oh, why didn't you tell me before! It's just too exciting!"

Fred grinned delightedly. Enroute to the station he began to smile. And by the time he had boarded the 8:15 the smile had developed into an occasional chuckle. Tom Cooke, who usually sat with Fred during the short run to the city, became curious.

"Say, what's eating you this morning? Let a man in on it if you've got something that'll fetch a laugh these dull days."

Fred laughed outright. "I'll tell you, Tom. It's too good to keep. But don't on your life breathe a word. It would kill Aime."

TOM MADE SOLEMN promises and cocked his ear. "Well," said Fred, "Aime was upset this morning because she didn't have anything to brag about at her bridge club. The other members, it seems, have artistic ancestors. It made Aime feel bad to think she married into such an uninteresting family, so I dug into an old trunk and produced a book of poems that mother published 20 years ago, and told her to brag about that."

Tom looked puzzled. "What's wrong with that? I'd say a mother-in-law poet was O.K."

"But here's the rub," Fred grinned. "That book of poems is an old manuscript that belonged to my grandmother. After grandmother died, mother found the 'script, thought the poems were worthy of publication, added a few of her own choice verses, and submitted the retyped copy to a publisher. Mr. Publisher ate the stuff up.

"Mother was thrilled. She thought she must have real talent, and went down to the library to study up and read the masters. While perusing a volume of Walt Whitman she discovered some of the very poems that her mother had supposedly written.

"Of course, mother immediately wired the publisher, advising him to cease manufacturing the book, and explaining that her mother must have copied some of her favorite Whitman poems, in order to save them. But Mr. Publisher had already printed about 2000 copies, which were ready for distribution Mother bought up the edition and destroyed all but one, which she kept for sentimental reasons. That one is the book I gave Aime this morning."

Ahdreae, and the 32 and playing is directed former Music Instructor lka. His organization is mous and has made numerous movie shorts. Quite a disturbance has started on the left side of the club, the head waiter (Raymond) calls the bouncer and I am surprised to see Mr. Andreae, former Math. teacher toss out the disorderly people. A little ater Raymond asks me to meet the owners of the Club, and who do you suppose it is? The former Supt. and Principal of school, Mr Ahrenkiel and Patterson. Who, I am informed are joint owners. They told me that this was much easier than teaching. Also Raymond does more work here in four days than he did in four years in high school. They took me around the Club showing me spacious offices and etc. Walking by the bar I looked up and said hi to Mr. Randall He is the bartender. And who do you suppose is polishing the wood work and the bar with his elbow, none other than Geo. Lawhorn.

After such tiring travel Mr. Patterson informed me of a nice comfortable rezort in the Yakima Valley in Washington. After arriving their the owner, Norma Early, who finally found a man that suited her, she took me out fishing and told me that she spent most of her time doing this and left the resort in charge of her husband. After spending a week there I left for Hollywood where Norma told me I would find Marion Anderson. I was so surprised when I found her designing men's clothes and she does special work for the movie actors. She is unmarried as yet, but I understand there are some very good prospects. Leaving Marian I went to a Los Angeles airport to take a plane to visit some of my classmates that live abroad. I was wondering around the airport because I had some time to waste before my plane left and who should I meet but Wilford Back. He told me that after finishing high school he had spent some time in the air force and after being honorably discharged he has been spending a great deal of his time on an airplane of his own origin. It was announced over the loud speaker that my plane was ready to leave. I then boarded the plane and several hours later landed in Tokyo, Japan.

Going down the street I bumped into Major Art Harrington a former classmate. I had a short visit with him and he told me that Isabelle Gibbs is a missionary in Japan. I then dropped in to visit Isabelle who is staying in a hotel. Isabelle isn't married and still has ideas about staying single.

After leaving Japan I flew on around the world and stopped at Munich, Germany where the Former Donna Greiman is living. Her husband, Mjr. Richard Finders is head of an Army Post and in their spare time on Dicks leaves they travel to the scenic places of Europe. Leaving Germany by plane and returning to the United States I landed in New York City I found that Robert Baack was going to play on the New York Allstate basketball team. I stayed to watch a game and found that he was as good as ever. Most likely he will be named guard of the year.

After seeing the sights in New York I decided to go to Tampa, Florida. There I found Ardel Rosendahl who has settled down and is drawing interest on his first million which he made on raising chickens and now is trying to find himself a wife.

From here I decided to journey to a small town in Ohio where I found my last classmate Phyllis Boland, who is teaching the 5th and 6th grades there. She seemed very happy with her job and told me she was engaged to be married to a blonde who is the coach there. I wished her lots of happiness and boarded the first plane back home. I am very tired but the trip was worth it to see and contact all my classmates and former teachers.

Wills his technique to Virgil Pringnitz, watch out girls.

Raymond Christians:
Wills his quietness to Willis Bock, personally I don't think there's a word of truth in it.

Phyllis Boland:
Wills her love letters from A. H. to Beverly Beier, if they're not too aged to read

Norma Early:
Wills her weight to Sylvia Egeland, but don't take it all because it seems to appeal to Maurice

Donna Fjetland:
Wills her ability to study to Marlene Roths, because the tendency to fool around is mutual.

Paula Goll:
Wills her Forest City boyfriends to Darlene E., but don't take all of them.

Donna Greiman:
Wills Dick's Model A to Don and his girl for the time being, and that's long enough.

NO-PASSING STRIPES PAINTED ON HIGHWAY 69 LAST WEEK

Those long, yellow stripes painted on Highway 69 the past week are "no-passing" marks.

The now yellow stripes are painted on hills and slopes along highway 69 as a warning to motorists that no passing is allowed on that section of the highway "Do NOT pass when the yellow stripe is in YOUR lane" That is a simpe rule to remember However, if the yellow strips is in the lane to YOUR LEFT, you can pass a car as you are then on the down grade and visability is clear. Don't pass a car when the yellow stripe is in YOUR lane.

The yellow stripe no-passing marks have been used in Missouri and Kansas for a couple of years and motorists like that system much better than signs placed along side of the road Roads in southern Iowa, where it is quite hilly, were marked with yellow stripes last year.

Circle No. 1 Met

CORN PLANTING IS WELL ALONG IN HANCOCK COUNTY

With favorable weather the past week and fields in excellent shape, many farmers planted corn last week. Some who regarded last week as a bit early are in the fields this week planting corn. The largest percentage of corn will be in the ground this week end.

Small Grains Look Good

The weather has been quite favorable for oats, seeding and pastures. The oats looks good in most fields with a good stand.

Many early gardens are showing results and it won't be long until the home gardens produce a steady flow of radishes, ettuce and onions. Strawberries are beginning to blossom and fruit trees were in blossom last week.

The fragrant lilac is in full bloom in many yards this week and the air smells sweet.

Prospective Kindergarten Pupils And Mothers Entertained

Miss Lorraine Seims, kindergarten teacher, and her pupils entertained next falls' prospective pupils and mothers Thursday afternoon. The motion picture, "When Bobby Goes To School," was shown, as well as demonstrations by the pupils. All enjoyed a fine time.

Baccalaureate First Of Activities For '49 Grads

May Is Check-Up Month For Child's Health

May marks the observance of Child Health Month in Hancock County! Nationally this is an annual observance since 1923. During this month all groups interested in Child Welfare are urged to give special attention to bettering child health.

Each child is entitled by birth to good health. There are certain things all children need to develop normally. Basically they need the sense of security and parents who love them. Good food, clean surroundings and clothing, exercise in, fresh air combine to make a child well and happy.

We need to protect children against accidents as a shocking number of children lose lives in this manner.

Parents expect the school to provide the best in teaching staff for their children. The school has a right to expect that those children entering school are sound physically to develop their mental powers to the best of their capacity.

Weed Commissioner Visited Times Editor

Ray Hunsley, of Britt, Hancock County Weed Commissioner, was in the Klemme territory Thursday afternoon, and as usual, stops at the Times office to visit the Editor. The Editor outslickered Ray this time as the Commissioner did not get out of the office until he had plunked down two bucks for a year's subscription!

He'll probably get even before the summer is over. Ray has "a nose for weeds" and he'll be on our neck to do something about that thistle patch on our land near Garner. Everytime Ray sniffs those weeds it has cost us thirty bucks. But anyway, the thistles are gradually getting licked out.

SENIORS ATTEND AMES VEISHA FOR "SKIP DAY"

The Klemme High School Senior class will be among over 40 other high school Seniors attending Veisha at Iowa State College today for their annual "skip day," May 11th.

Special events have been arranged for the visiting preps and there will be a full day of activities closing with the show "Stars Over Veisha."

Move Back To Klemme

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Keil have sold their home in Forest City and have moved back to their farm home north of Klemme.

The Liberty Go Getters Learn Artificial Respiration

At the meeting held May 2nd in the Frank Zrostlik home, Delwyn Stromer and Lyle Katter demonstrated "Artificial Respiration."

Pictures were shown on "Hog Production" and "Swine Parasities" by Co. Ext. Youth Asst. Leonard L. Book.

Wiener roast date has been set for May 25th at Clear Lake State Park. The 4-H T-shirts and ball caps were distributed to the members.

Delegates were selected for the Clear Lake Camp and for the Boys' Convention as follows: Paul Zrostlik and Elmer Wellik, and John Buzicky, alternate, for camp; John Buzicky and Joe Wellik, alternate, for State Convention. The dates set for these two event are 14, 15, and 16 and 27-30 of June respectively.

The new 4-H boys uniforms were explained by Leonard L. Book.

BACCALAUREATE SERMON WILL BE AT KLEMME REFORMED CHURCH

The annual Baccalaureate Service will be held at the Klemme Evangelical and Reformed Church this week, Sunday evening, May 15th at 8:00 o'clock.

The sermon to the 1949 graduates will be delivered by Rev. E. M. Egeland of the Klemme-Liberty Methodist Church.

Maurice Jacobs will play the processional and recessional marches on the organ.

Commencement Thursday Eve

Commencement Exercises will be held at the Klemme High School gynasium on Thursday evening, May 19th at 8:00 o'clock.

Len Howe, WHO news caster of Des Moines will deliver the address. Honor awards will be presented by Prin. Wesley Patterson and Supt. T G. Ahrenkiel will present the graduating class. Glen Bridges, president of the school board, will present diplomas to the graduates

FORMER KLEMME YOUTH TO TEACH IN HANSELL HIGH SCHOOL COMING YEAR

"Billy" Zabilka, son of Rev. and Mrs. Wm. Zabilka, formerly of Klemme, has been signed up by the Hansell schools as director of music for the coming year.

Zabilka, who is a War II veteran, will begin his new work June 5th when he will direct the band there for the summer. His work in the school will include both instrumental and vocal music and typing.

Bill will graduate from college at Mt. Vernon this spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Stille Purchased Patterson House

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Stille last week purchased the Wesley Patterson residence in southwest Klemme and will take possession June 1st, when they will move to town.

Mr. Patterson will attend a summer school this year and the family will rent a house in Klemme for the coming school year. The Stilles are retiring from active farm life and Bob Hartzell has taken over the Stille farm.

NEW CHIEF OPERATOR

MISS PATRICIA SMEAD

Clear Lake Young Lady To Take Over As Chief Operator

Miss Patricia Smead of Clear Lake, has been appointed as Chief Operator for the Klemme telephone exchange to take over the position formerly held by Mrs. Geo. Cosgriff who has resigned to go into business at Ventura where the Cosgriffs will operate a coffee shop, taking over May 15th.

Miss Smead has been working under Mrs. Cosgriff this week, being taught the details of the work.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Truman Signs Bill for Extension Of European Aid Another 15 Months; U. S. Launches Bond Sale Drive

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Men Who Found Kathy Remembered by Mail

The men who dug for little Kathy Fiscus, 3-year old who died in a California well shaft, were being remembered all over the nation.

More than 2,200 letters had been received by the Kathy Fiscus rescue fund from virtually every state in the union. Mayor Clark E. Bell, San Marino, chairman of the fund committee, said the first envelopes opened contained $1,020—an average contribution of $5.10.

Donations ranged from 10 cents to $50. It was pointed out that if the average continued, it would mean a total of more than $11,000 for the men who worked for 52 hours to reach the child who fell to her death 92 feet down the well pipe.

AID BILL:

Has Truman Okay

A bill to give 5.58 billion dollars to the European recovery program over the next 15 months—with one billion available at once—was signed by President Truman.

MR. TRUMAN, as is a quaint capital custom in such matters, signed the bill with several pens—eight, in fact. Even Mr. Truman, himself, was moved to observe jestingly that "this will probably look like a forgery, but it really isn't."

The bill which Mr Truman signed allots more than one-eighth of the entire budget of the United States to foreign aid

Mr Truman, ever a meticulous man, carefully wiped the points of the pens, handed one each to seven witnesses to the signing, and kept one for Sen Arthur Vandenberg, who was unable to attend.

THERE WAS a check and balance in the bill, however. With the billion dollars to be made available at once, aid could be kept flowing to the Marshall plan countries of western Europe until congress votes the rest of the cash later.

CHURCHMEN:

UN Asks Facts

The United Nations wasn't heeding protests of Hungary and Bulgaria against its consideration of the trials of Cardinal Mindszenty and Protestant churchmen. Instead, the UN invited the two Soviet satellite countries to tell their stories of the imprisonment of the Cardinal and other clergymen.

THE RUSSIAN delegation indicated the two nations would disregard the invitation, since both Hungary and Bulgaria have contended the trials were internal matters and no business of the UN

The world organization, however, voted 30 to 7 to put the church cases on its agenda and to go on with a full discussion of them.

U. S. delegate Benjamin V. Cohen argued the committee should delay inviting any nations or churches to send spokesmen until it decides how it wants to deal with the question

Russia's Jacob A. Malik indicated the two Russian satellites would reject such an invitation and accused Bolivia of violating the UN charter by seeking to invite religious organizations.

To the casual observer, the entire matter was even less than a tempest in a tea pot Whatever the UN might find as a result of rehashing the convictions of the churchmen—what could UN do about it? The force of UN in world peace retention efforts has been so meager as to cause critics to begin comparing it already with the old League of Nations which died of impotency.

BOND DRIVE:

Plan for Security

Kick-off speaker at the opening of the "Opportunity Bond Drive," in which the government hopes to sell one billion, 40 million dollars worth of U.S. savings bonds to its people, President Truman keyed his remarks to the need for national security.

HE PICTURED the bond drive as providing another opportunity for purchasers to assure security for themselves and their country. Among other things, the President said:

"We know that we cannot have a sound and secure nation unless security is the common possession of our people. Farmer, factory worker, banker, merchant, school teacher, housewife—all are buying security for themselves and each other when they buy savings bonds."

He added that "every bond they have bought has given them much more reason to feel secure about the future—their own and their country's."

THE PRESIDENT said the kick-off dinner was to honor three million volunteers in the bond sales program, and declared they would be joined by another 250,000 newsboys who would "ring the nation's doorbells, bringing the message of the Opportunity Bond Drive into 12 million American homes.

Top question plaguing bond officials was the recession in employment, lower prices and less consumer cash interfering with the bond drive's reaching its goal.

OASI COST:

In Billions

American taxpayers in covered employment would have to dig into their pockets to the tune of 3.75 billion dollars by 1955 to finance old age and survivors insurance under the proposals advanced by President Truman and his administration.

BY THE YEAR 2,000—when the program is expected to hit its peak—the proposed cost would have mounted to approximately 13 billion dollars.

This estimate, made by the Research Council for Economic Security, Chicago, is based on a report from the advisory council on social security to the 80th congress.

Of a labor force of over 60 million, OASI now covers about 35 million, or roughly three out of five jobs. Coverage is now limited to persons employed in industry and commerce. It is proposed that the system be extended to cover the entire labor force.

In presenting both sides of the question, the council's report includes a full page of pros and cons. Each side might be summarized as follows.

ON THE ONE HAND, if employees of commerce and industry are entitled to this protection, why not employees on the farm and in the household? If the goal of the system is to provide even a minimum of subsistence, benefits must be raised now to keep in step with living costs. An adequate OASI system will reduce substantially the heavy burden of old age assistance.

On the other hand, opponents of the proposed extension point out that of those excluded, the majority are either protected by other systems or are able to provide for themselves, while the lowest income classes are employed too irregularly to earn insured status under any program. If the cost of living is a valid reason for raising benefits now, then logically the whole system should be geared to the cost of living, fluctuating down as well as up. The bigger the system, the better the promises of bigger and better pensions.

| Average Monthly Wage | Retired Worker | | Retired Worker and Wife | | Widow | | Widow and Two Children | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| | Present | Proposed | Present | Proposed | Present | Proposed | Present | Proposed |
| $100 | $27.50 | $41.25 | $41.25 | $ 61.88 | $20 63 | $30.94 | $48.13 | $ 80.00 |
| 150 | 33 00 | 48 75 | 49.50 | 73.13 | 24.75 | 36.56 | 57 75 | 97.50 |
| 200 | 38.50 | 56.25 | 57 75 | 84.38 | 28 88 | 42.19 | 67.38 | 112.51 |
| 250 | 44 00 | 63.75 | 66.00 | 95.63 | 33.00 | 47.81 | 77.00 | 127.50 |
| 300 | 44.00 | 71 25 | 66 00 | 106.88 | 33.00 | 53.44 | 77.00 | 142.51 |
| 350 | 44 00 | 78 75 | 66.00 | 118 13 | 33.00 | 59 06 | 77.00 | 157.50 |

COMPARATIVE BENEFITS . . . Under present provision of the social security law it is assumed the worker has 10 years of coverage. Under proposed provisions, however, monthly benefits would not be affected by length of time spent in covered employment. Chart, prepared by Research Council for Economic Security, offers comparison of present benefit scales with those proposed in the administration program.

ACCIDENTS:

Fewer Noted

Hope was indicated that the appalling toll of death and injury on U.S. streets and highways might be lessened. The National Safety Council reported that 92 cities of more than 10,000 population went through all of 1948 without a traffic death.

The council reported that Medford, Mass, with a population of 67,477, was the largest no-death city last year.

Rural Housing Off

According to Senator Fear (D., Del.) some of the nation's worst housing conditions still exist in rural areas—a conclusion familiar already to many, many Americans. The senator's statement was made during a hearing by a senate committee on the multi-billion-dollar housing bill pending in congress.

There has been little talk of rural needs in discussion of the housing problem to date, although that need is as pressing, almost, as any other.

ANOTHER EASY WAY to take care of a birthday is to serve a delicious bowl of scoops of de- lightful, refresh- ing ice This may be bought already made in any flavor de- sired, or may be made in your re- frigerator from the following recipe:

Fruited Orange Ice
(Makes 1½ quarts)

3 cups water
1 cup sugar
5 cups orange juice
½ cup lemon juice
Grated rind of ½ orange
3 bananas, sliced
½ cup maraschino cherries, sliced

Make a syrup by cooking the water and sugar; cool Mix orange and lemon juices; add grated orange rind; add syrup and sweeten to taste. Freeze until mushy Add bananas and cherries and continue to freeze until totally frozen To serve place scoops in a large bowl.

When serving a bowl of ice or ice cream, carry out the birthday theme with a plate of special cookies, each of which has a small candle in- serted through the center Nat- urally, the cook- ies should be un- usual as they are really sub- stituting for the cake Here are several good types from which to choose:

London Bars

½ cup sweet butter
4 tablespoons confectioners' sugar
2 egg yolks
½ cup flour
Apricot jam
Nut meringue
¾ cup blanched, shredded almonds

Cream butter and sugar, add egg yolks and flour Press dough one-eighth inch thick into a buttered and floured pan. Bake in a hot oven until light brown, about 10-12 minutes Remove from pan, spread with apricot jam, cover with nut meringue, sprinkle with the almonds and return to the oven until almonds have browned When cold, cut into strips, three inches long and one inch wide

Youngsters will love these new cookie treats Use your favorite oatmeal cookie recipe, fold in one half cup of finely cut gumdrops There's a real flavor surprise in every bite

Serve stew in a noodle ring, made by packing cooked noodles into a greased mold, then turning out on a chop plate and filling the center with cooked stew

Dip thin calves-liver slices in French dressing, then in bread crumbs and saute quickly in butter This is truly delicious!

Judgment Day

Lesson for May 15, 1949

FORTY DIFFERENT Christian denominations sponsor this column, although it goes without saying that not all of the millions of Christians in those denominations would agree point for point with everything that is said here. Now if the reader could interview one leading Bible expert from each of these 40 denominations, and ask each one the same question: "In your personal opinion, exactly what is the meaning of Mark 13?" you might not get 40 different answers, but you certainly would get more than one.

Dr. Foreman

There is no chapter in the Bible that has been the subject of more arguments than this one, and no arguments have ever been more useless than these.

Leaving extreme views aside, let us try to discover some meanings which all 40 denominations would find in this chapter, some truths on which all reasonable Christians can agree

A Certain Fact

IN JESUS' view one thing is certain: God's judgment on this world and on all persons in it. Christian churches have different ideas about what happens after death We have different ideas about how the judgment is to be carried out, or where it will be held, or when. But that every man will have to give account of himself before God is something Christians believe.

Your true unbeliever is not the person who goes around saying there is no God. A more subtle and dangerous form of unbelief is in the person who takes the Christian creed upon his lips but lives as if the creed were a lie.

He repeats the Apostles' Creed: "From thence he shall come to judge the quick and the dead." If those words are sincerely spoken, the believer will honestly try to please God above all others. But the unbeliever, whatever his words may say, shows that he does not believe by the fact that he tries to please, first of all, either himself or his family or his neighbors, and not God above all.

An Uncertain Time

IT IS ONLY children who think that if something doesn't happen Now, it will never happen. Now and Never are not the only times on God's clock. When will the judgment be? The disciples wanted to know, but Jesus did not tell them. He did not claim to know, himself, when it would be (Mark 13 32.) What he did say was, Watch! There is a sense in which God's judgments are going on all the time The end of your world will come in your own lifetime, whoever you are; for there is not much difference whether the world folds up and leaves you or whether you fold up and leave the world.

Death is the end of the world for every one who dies. Further, whenever a person suffers by and because of his own wrong-doing, here in this life and on this earth, God is judging him by the eternal moral laws which are the very warp and filling of the fabric of life.

There is also a sense in which God judges societies and nations. We have recently seen how terrible a judgment Germany drew down on its head. The nation that takes the sword shall perish by the sword. The nation that sets out to enslave others by force will come under the same death-sentence that cut down Assyria and Rome and Japan and Germany. But not all God's judgments are on this earth. "God does not settle all his accounts in October." There is a final accounting, and no man, in this life or any other, can escape that solemn meeting with God.

The Only Judge

TWO THINGS are sure. One is that the only true judge of any man is God. The man himself is partial, his friends are partial, his enemies are prejudiced against him. Further, no one knows all the facts but God. Only God knows what a man's motives are; only God can trace to their final end all the consequences that flow from a man's act.

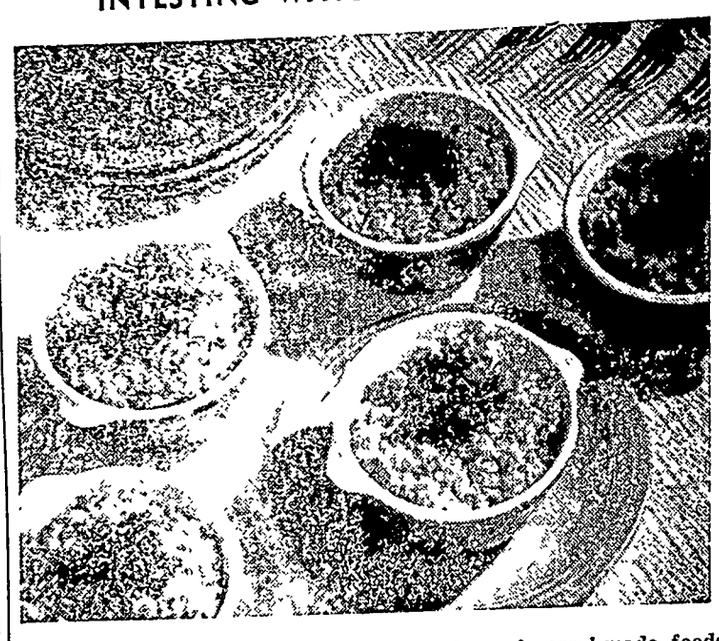
For Meal Variety Plan— INTESTING WAYS WITH CEREALS



Spanish rice is just one of many versions of cereal-made foods which add a wealth of variety to everyday meals. Special accompaniments such as vegetables or fruits and meats can make cereals the highlight of any meal.

It would be hard to imagine how to plan our meals without the use of cereals. Most of the time we tend to take this large family of foods for granted. Perhaps they don't appear as glamorous as some other foods, but for variety, food value, and ability to team up with fruits, vegetables and meats, cereals are highly important, points out Margaret Kagarice, extension foods specialist, Iowa State College.

Imagine, for a moment, a sping breakfast without strawberries and breakfast cereal, or out- of-door suppers without Johnny cake, or noon-day meals without such substantial dishes as Spanish rice or spaghetti. There would be no plain or fancy breads and rolls to tempt the appetite and add energy, minerals and vitamins to our diets.

On the health side of the ledger er, whole grain or enriched cereals offer such B-vitamins as thiamine, niacin and riboflavin. These are the vitamins which help us have steady nerves, good appetites, and a general status of good health.

Essential Minerals

They also contribute such essential minerals as phosphorus iron and copper And, of course, when they are used with milk, calcium is added to our diets In addition, cereals are a high-energy food

Because they are starchy foods, they require special cookery Different cereals need different amounts of water depending upon the amount of starch they contain. Flaked cereals such as rolled oats or flaked wheat take 2 to 3 cups of water for each cup of cereal, whole cereals such as rice, steel-cut oatmeal, hominy or cracked wheat need 3 to 4 cups of water to each cup of cereal; and granular cereals such as farina or cornmeal will nead 4 to 5 cups of water for each cup of cereal.

Put the water in a kettle, add 1 teaspoon of salt for each quart of water used and bring the water to a boil. Sprinkle the cereal in gradually Mix finely ground cereals with cold water first to remove all lumps. Stir only occasionally so cereal will not become pasty Boil gently for 3 to 5 minutes. If the cereal is not a precooked or quick-cook variety, cover and place over a double boiler to finish cooking

Here are two cereal recipes which make good partners for a meal

Spanish Rice

Combine cooked rice with tangy tomato sauce and add celery, green peppers and onion.

"Malekized" or "converted" rice is a newcomer on the market Unlike ordinary rice which has lost much of the B vitamins through hulling and polishing processes, the new rice retains a good portion of the vitamins in the bran layers.

Johnny Cake

Use two-thirds cup sifted flour, three-fourths tsp. salt, 1 tsp. soda, three-fourths tsp. baking powder, 1 tbsp sugar,1 and one-third cups cornmeal, 2 eggs well beaten, 1 and two-thirds cups sour milk and ¼ cup melted fat.

Mix and sift together the first five ingredients and combine thoroughly with cornmeal. Add well-beaten eggs to milk and shortening and stir thoroughly Add wet ingredients all at once to dry ingredients. Stir lightly until just blended. When ingredients are moistened pour batter into well-greased pan and bake at 400 degrees F., to 35 minutes.

LEGUME PASTURE MAY CAUSE BLOATING

Don't turn hungry cows out n straight alfalfa or clover asture this spring if you want o avoid bloating, advises Han- ock County Extension Director, aul Henderson.

Bloat can be prevented if a w simple precautions are tak- n.

Bloat is formed by gases that re not released as rapidly as ey are formed in the rumen. rdinarily, gases are released by e common belching process. n accepted theory is that the lching is stimulated and ac- vated by the irritation of the men wall. Coarse grasses, y hay or straw are sufficient- irritating to stimulate belch- g.

Henderson suggests feeding ws plenty of dry hay just be- re turning them out on legume sture. At first the cows ould be allowed to graze only short while, but the time can increased as the cows become customed to the pasture and e legume become more ma- re.

A mixture of legumes and asses makes a safer pasture om the standpoint of bloat in iry cattle Where the pasture ntains plenty of grass, it can grazed without danger of oat.

However, Henderson advises tching cows closely when ey are first turned out to pas- ture, especially if the pasture is lush and green. In case bloat does occur, early treament is necessary.

A simple treatment that is suggested by Ray Murley, extension dairyman at Iowa State College, is to tie a small block of wood in the bloated animal's mouth. The wood may be held in place in much the same manner as a bit is held in a horse's mouth. Stand the animal with the front feet higher than the rear feet, to aid the animal in belching

A bloated cow must be watched closely and where preventive and curative measures fail, she may have to be tapped just below and ahead of the left hip bone, where the rumen wall lies next to the skin. A veterinarian should be called to do the job if he is readily available.

However, when promptness will mean saving the animal's life, the owner may do it himself. A knife may be used in an emergency, but it is not as safe as a trocar and canuala The instrument and the area to be punctured should be thouroughly disinfected before the puncture is made, Henderson cautions.

CAKES

When Mrs John Boles of Toledo baked her first cake for Gallagher grocery in Toledo in 1924, she had no idea that her cakes would circle the world. A cake-baking specialist, Mrs. Boles has shipped wedding cakes to Ireland, Germany, Canada and to every state in the union except three During the war, she sent over 900 fruit cakes overseas One year she entered 11 cakes in the Tama county fair—and ten of them won first prizes

Who Made Iowa?

I suppose you've read in the pers about Iowa's beautiful Tu- Festival.

What a thrill, to see all those rgeous flowers and colorful tch costumes!

As Grace and I were driving k the other day, she turned to and said . . . "Joe, just think all the nationalities that helped ild Iowa. Isn't that one of the asons why this is such a great te?"

And I guess she's right. The tch, Irish, Scotch, Scandinavi- , Czechs, Germans, and scores others! Each group had its n customs. But each was toler- of the other fellow's ideas. they settled here as neighbors . . . and like good neighbors, each respected the other's tastes, customs, and beliefs.

That's Iowa . . . where folks think of the other fellow, as well as themselves. One person may wear overalls, another blue serge . . . one may like ginger ale while his neighbor likes a temperate glass of beer . . . one may prefer grand opera while his friend prefers Sweet Adeline.

Isn't it wonderful to live in a state where kindliness toward one another makes such fine neighbors!

Senator Balks At Weird Items In U.S. Tracts

WASHINGTON — Economy-minded Sen Styles Bridges (R., N H.) asked if any of his fellow senators knew "how to tell the sex of watermelons."

If they did not, he said, they could find out about it in a government publication.

He also asked if they knew anything about the economic status of the band-tail pigeon.

He admitted that he did not know that said pigeon had an economic status until he found a government booklet on "Habits, Food and Economic Status of the Band-Tailed Pigeon"

Could Shorten Shelf

Bridges suggested that the book was—or at least might be—one of the reasons why congress should shorten the "1,000-foot shelf" of Government books He said he was not criticizing any particular publication but that congress ought to do something about "Uncle Sam's Book of the Minute Club, Unlimited."

No one can estimate the over-all cost, he said, but the appropriations committee, which he headed in the last congress, collected 83,000 publications when it asked each federal agency for one copy of each publication

He reported the government printing office had delivered 133,582,867,587 copies of printed matter in the last 10 years And, he added, the government departments and agencies turned out additional "immense quantities" themselves

"The people ought to feel fortunate that we didn't pass a law forcing them to read all that stuff," said Sen Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.)

Sen. Clinton P Anderson, (D., N. M.) who used to be head of the agriculture department, interrupted to say that the printing mentioned "included 500,000 reprints for one senator alone"

Wants "Useful" Books

Bridges hoped that senators and house members would try to supply only useful publications to their constituents.

"Let's continue to send them 'Infant Care' and let's think twice before we send them publications on 'eliminating Bats from Buildings.'" he suggested

He disclosed, incidentally, that bats were evicted by closing all but one or two escape hatches in a barn in the daytime At midnight, when all the bats are presumably gone through those two outlets, they are plugged too

"Remarkably simple," said Bridges, "but do we need a government brochure?"

He particularly enjoyed reading from a book of muskrat recipes He asked Scott W Lucas, senate Democratic leader, when the Democrats would supply recipes on "how to eat crow"

That would be more appropriately written by Republicans, snapped Lucas, who became senate majority leader after the Republicans lost control of congress in the 1948 election

Doctor Says Operations Inside Heart Possible

CLEVELAND -- A research specialist has predicted that surgeons would be operating inside the heart before many years

"Ways will be devised to stop the heart, keep the brain alive open the heart close it and start it beating again," said Dr Claude S. Peck in an address to the city club forum

Dr Peck said the newest technique of heart surgery involved the grafting of a section of vein between the aorta and coronary veins to act as "feeder" to dry areas of the heart blocked by clotted arteries The operation already has been performed on human patients, he said.

Dr. Peck is engaged in research work to conquer coronary disease commonly known as "heart attack" He and his associates have performed nearly 5,000 experimental operations on animals and humans he said.

Lucite Now Being Used In Plastic Eye Lenses

LOS ANGELES —The lucite that made the bubble turrets of combat aircraft is now being turned into a sort of bubble turret for the poor eyed public

It is the material from which tiny new plastic lenses, covering only the cornea of the eye, are being produced. Although they were considered in the stage of "active research" until a few weeks ago, the corneal lenses may someday make contact lenses obsolete

The lens caps only the colored part of the eye and is held in place by natural capillary attraction There is no flange to fit the eyeball and no auxiliary fluid needed

Nor do they flip out with a hearty slap on the back or a sly wink Tears, just tears, hold them in They are visible only to the expert.

Cowcatcher Helped Solve Early Railroad Problems

That most familiar of all railroad accessories, the cowcatcher, is a unique American institution, Mitford M Mathews, University of Chicago dictionary editor, says.

No other industry has affected the American language as much as the railroads, which began to play a very important part in the nation's culture as early as 1830, according to Matthews.

The cowcatcher was called a "cowlifter," a "horselifter," and several other titles before someone hit upon the happy combination "cowcatcher."

The early cowcatchers were forged of grillwork 10 feet long, extending from the front of the engine to the track, with the foremost section resting on its own pair of wheels. With good reason many people called the contrivance a "pilot."

Developed by the early American railroaders to solve the problem of rescuing stray cattle that wandered on the track, the cowcatcher solved a problem not met in any country The word came into usage in 1830 when the engineer stopped his train and got help to lift the cattle down from the grill work.

Sharp Knives Are Needed To Do Good Kitchen Job

Chief among kitchen tools are sharp knives. You may use them 100 times a day or more though you don't realize it.

One well-made paring knife is worth a dozen specialized gadgets when you count up the jobs it does for you. The balance of the knife and the way it fits your hand affect its usefulness. And the three parts of the knife—handle, blade and shank or tang—are all important in making it easy to use.

Blade shapes vary from a rounded sharp edge to a straight edge. Generally a slightly curved blade works best for the greatest number of jobs. Look for a good point; it's helpful for digging out potato eyes and for similar jobs.

Metal in blades is usually some form of steel. Your best guide for buying a good blade is to choose a reliable brand name. Stainless steel blades usually have a sharp edge. Look for words "stainless steel" on a knife to be sure that's what it is. If the blade is plated, the plating generally will sharpen off.

1949 Hillebrand Prize

Dr. Edgar Reynolds Smith, chief of the physical chemistry section of the national bureau of standards, has been awarded the 1949 Hillebrand prize of the Washington section of the American Chemical society. Dr. Smith, who prepared the first samples of heavy water, now used by other countries in their atomic piles, was cited for his "original work in physical chemistry, more especially contributions to electrochemistry and ebulliometry." Ebulliometry is the precise measurement of the boiling points of liquids. Although previous recipients of the Hillebrand prize have been selected on the basis of one or two outstanding achievements, the 1949 award committee declined to single out any of Dr. Smith's research accomplishments for special honor, because of the general excellence of his work.

Discovery of Guncotton

In 1846 while American troops under Zachary Taylor were storming Mexican strongholds and California followed Texas in declaring itself an independent state, Alfred Du Pont took some cotton and treated it with nitric and sulphuric acids, after a formula discovered by a European scientist. The result was one of the first samples of guncotton, or nitrocotton, to be produced in America. In 1869 John Wesley Hyatt produced an ivory-like product by treating with camphor the same syrupy nitrocellulose solution that had interested Du Pont a generation before. This product, called celluloid, became the forerunner of the modern plastics industry.

Radio Replaces Congo Drums

When future travelers in Belgian Congo hear the throb of a distant drum, more than likely they will find it accompanied by the wail of saxophones playing at some London or New York dance. For the "white man's tom-tom" has moved into the African jungle. A new radio service to Belgian Congo natives has been inaugurated in six local dialects, under the direction largely of native announcers and technicians. It puts the old tribal drums in the horse-and-buggy class. Drum communication has a language all its own, with each blow representing a spoken syllable.

A Desert That Blooms

Namib desert stretches its desolate length 850 miles along the Atlantic coast of southwest Africa. Away from a few tree-bordered streams, this desert is mostly a barren waste of rocky, sandy flats and hills, with sand dunes near the shore that are blown by high winds to heights of 60 feet and more. When the infrequent rains come, however, the desert blooms with green vegetation, attracting considerable small game, including the graceful springbok, or African gazelle.

FORTY YEARS

DAMAGES

A jury at Storm Lake awarded a $345 to little Marolyn Claussen, 8 years old girl, for injuries sustained when a Dalmatian "coach dog" leaped upon her as she was leaving school last Sept. The dog bit her lip, the wound requiring several stitches. The amount asked in the suit was $1,535.

PLOWING

When Forrest Lamer of near Walnut was ill recenly, 23 neighbors gathered and plowed 100 acres of land for him in six hours.

LIGHTNING

Lightning struck the Buresh brothers barn near Riceville recently, but won't strike again. The barn isn't there any more. It burned to the ground.

PEG LEG

Back in 1947, a prize cow belonging to Howard Martin of Hardin County broke her hind leg, which had to be amputated. Anxious to obtain a calf from the prize heifer, Martin fixed her up with an artificial leg of wood and leather and after two years, the cow is still "getting around."

IDENTITY

When Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ruffcorn of Elgin went and viewed a body, supposed to be that of their son, which had been sent by authorities in Seattle, they found it to be a case of of wrong indentification. A phone call to Seattle revealed that their son Lewis was still alive and well. The deceased was identified as David Wires, formerly of Villisca.

BIBLE

When he tore down the Presbyterian Church at What Cheer recently, contractor At Craig found a Bible in the cornerstone, put there when the church was built back in 1890.

BLOW TORCH

When the electricity went off in Dexter recently, some households with electric stoves had cold suppers. But not Dwayne Applegate, who was entertaining some soldier buddies. Always good at improvising, the soldiers got out the blow torch and prepared a suitable supper.

OLD DOG

At Cherokee, a fox terrier belonging to Claus Tilton appears to be setting a record for canine longevity. The dog goes by the name of "Boots", and now in her 24th year and was going strong until last spring, when a car hit her The accident slowed her up a little. Dog fanciers say that the age of 24 years, for a fox terrier, would be about the equivalent of 150 years for a human being.

FELL FROM CAR

Three year old Russell Baker, Jr., of Northwood, opened the door of the family car one day last week while it was traveling 60 miles an hour. The wind whipped the door open, catapulting Russell out onto the shoulder of the highway. He rolled over a few times but got up unhurt, except that as he ran across the highway he was nearly hit by a truck. Otherwise no harm done.

AROUND IOWA

REUNION

Carl Schneider of Reinbeck was host to a former buddy from Minnesota recently, Francis Wall. The two men were fellow-prisoners of war, being captured by the Germans in Africa were members of the 34 Division and spent the last two years of the war as prisoners near Prussau, Germany.

BULLET

A stray bullet broke a window glass, pierced the window shade and curtain and lodged on the opposite side of the room, in the E. E. Brouwer home at Sheffield last week. No noe was home, fourtunately, and the bullet hole was not noticed until the next morning.

RUNAWAY

Although injuries from runaway horses are no longer common in Iowa, it still happens occasionally. William Pitts, a Felding farmer, was found unconscious and bleeding recently after being trampled and dragged thorugh the barnyard by a team of horses.

RECORD

The Montezuma Republican has been trying to find its "oldest" subscriber. Present record-holder appears to be Mrs. Mary Pollard, of Montezuma, who reports that the weekly paper has arrived at her house since 1884, or 61 years ago. Some house, too.

FIRE

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Culver of Oskaloosa lost most of their household goods by fire recently, while on the open road. The trailer in which their furniture was being transported to LoPorte caught fire and vehicle and contents were badly burned.

MACHINEST

W. A. Johansen of Paullina has an unusual hobby, making miniature machines, engines and other types of metal, wood and plastic work. His prize creation in some 25 years of following his hobby, is a miniature Corliss steam engine, one foot wide and two feet long, which develops a quarter horse-power. Another bit of his work is a clock , on which the hands stand still and the dial moves.

Yours For The Making—
SPRINGTIME SALADS

Fresh rolls and tasty vegetable salads—what an appetizing combination to tempt winter-jaded appetites. Fact is, say nutritionists, that one reason garden-fresh foods taste so good is because they do contain many nutrients that winter-preserved foods just don't retain.

The first sprigs of asparagus from your garden patch or along the fence rows, the first green onions that get big enough for salads or eating "as is," and the first "mess" of greens you collect from the pasture or lawn—how good they taste.

Much as we need to can or freeze garden foods for winter months, there's nothing quite like a meal fresh from the garden. And there's penty of reason, Mildred Nelson, extension nutritionist, Iowa State College

Dandelion Green

Dandelion green, tender and fresh, provide calcium. Asparagus and fresh peas are noted for the vitamin B-1 they contain. B-1 is the vitamin which adds pep, overcomes fatigue and promotes good appetites. All greens (including water cress) contain iron—the mineral which helps build a rich blood supply—and they also contain vitamin A and C, which build up our resistance to cold and infections.

Thus it's only natural, after missing out on the freshness of these foods, to relish them in springtime meals. They help to satisfy that "hidden hunger" so many folks may have but never realize. "Hidden hunger" Miss Nelson explains, is the sort of hunger we don't feel but just keeps us from really good health It comes from being just unde the borderline of getting enough vitamins and nutrients.

Vegetable Salads

Canned vegetables, fresh vegetables or leftover ones can make up a wide variety of salads. Just now at the in-between season, a delightful salad can be made by combining water cress, tart apples and nuts. Add avocados if you wish. Use a fruit dressing.

Cooked peas, carrots and beets make excellent partners when marinated for salad. Or combine lettuce, new green onions, radishes, carrots and sweet peppers for a tossed salad. Dandelion green or spinach along with hard-cooked eggs and crisp bacon serve the purpose well Like wise asparagus cooked and then combined with other vegetables and marinated is good.

Here is a good recipe for making the marinade for cooked vegetables: Use 3 tablespoons salad oil, 6 tablespoons lemon juice or vinegar, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, ½ teaspoon onion juice and 1 teaspoon celery seed. Toss lightly and let stand in a cold place.

Miss Nelson says this marinade is also excellent in preparing meat, poultry or fish for salads.

Ring-Mold Salad

Perhaps one of the easiest recipes to prepare is a vegetable ring-mold salad. It can be made in advance and put away in the refrigerator until needed.

Use 1 envelope (1 tablespoon) unflavored gelatin, 3 tablespoons vinegar, ¼ cup chopped raw vegetables, ¼ cup cold water, 1 cup hot vegetable juice and ½ teaspoon salt.

Soften the gelatin in water. Add vegetable juice, sugar and salt. Stir until dissolved. Add vinegar and lemon juice. Chill until sirupy. Fold in raw vegetables. Pour into mold which has been rinsed in cold water Chill until firm. Unmold on lettuce. Fill center with potato salad if you wish. Garnish with deviled eggs.

Britain Trains Army Of Soldier-Scientists

One thousand young men have just entered a new college in Britain to train as army officers for the era now unfolding of super - weapons based on atomic power, rocketry and advanced electronics.

The formidable new range of weapons now being developed will require many soldiers of the future to be scientists or engineers. The new Military College of Science at Shrivenham, England, will train leaders for this new type of warfare. They will pass through chemical and physical laboratories that give training under the personal tuition of some of Britain's most renowned scientists.

Some of them will specialize in jet propulsion, which was invented in the '30s by Air Commodore Frank Whittle of the R.A.F. Others will concentrate on rockets of the V-2 types, now being extensively developed in the arid wastes of Australia by British experts. Their range has already reached over 2,000 miles. Another section of the students will explore the wide range of possibilities opened up by radar.

Modern Research Laboratory

A modern research laboratory, the largest in the world devoted exclusively to the development of safety equipment for mines, industry and public service organizations, will be built in Pittsburgh, Pa., by Mine Safety Appliances company. Facilities of the laboratory will be made available to all industry for the investigation of safety equipment problems affecting health and property. Activities of scientists there will be coordinated with those of the U. S. bureau of mines, U. S. public health service, industrial hygiene foundation of Mellon institute, Harvard school of public health, the new school of public health at the University of Pittsburgh and fellowships at other leading universities.

Comfortable Pillows

With a third of our lives spent in bed, we'd better plan to sleep comfortably. That means comfortable pillows as well as mattresses. When buying pillows look at the label; what it says will help you decide whether the filling will suit your ideas of comfort and will prove durable. Goose feathers, duck feathers, and down are the lightest and finest pillow fillings. Chicken and turkey feathers are inexpensive, but make a less durable pillow and they mat down more quickly than do the other feathers mentioned. A popular blend for filling is 74 per cent goose down and 25 per cent small goose feathers. This makes a soft pillow, and the feathers keep the down from mattitng.

Smoker's Bronchitis

Smoking too many cigarettes may cause a certain amount of irritation that makes a cold hang on longer than usual, according to recent findings. Excessive smoking often results in inflammation of the windpipe and vocal box. This is turn gives rise to smoker's bronchitis, which puts a heavy strain on the whole upper respiratory system. Added to the strain already brought on by the cold, this new burden severely hampers the fight the system is waging against the cold. The irritation can become so pronounced that the cold turns into a persistent cigarette cough.

The Shape of Beets to Come

Shape of the sugar beet root has become important now that large acreages of this crop are gathered with mechanical harvesters. U. S. department of agriculture scientists are seeking to change the shape of commercial sugar beets so they will come away from the loosened soil readily—either tumbled out by the plow points or raised by a gentle lift on the foliage. Sugar beets as grown today are long and pointed, parsnip-shaped, and cling in the soil with a tenacity suggestive of a nail in a board.

Housing Supply Increases Despite Present Shortage

Supply of housing in U. S. cities and towns has increased by more than 22 per cent since 1940, or substantially more than the rate of nonfarm population growth for the period, says Melvin H. Baker, chairman of the Construction Industry Information committee.

"Our usable nonfarm housing supply now exceeds 36.3 million units, or 6.6 million units more than the 29.7 million units we had in 1940," Mr. Baker says. "Within the same period, the nonfarm population has increased about 18 per cent.

Such a comparison shows that we have more dwelling space per person than we had before the war. Estimates based on bureau of the census reports indicate that there is about 3.5 per cent more dwelling space per person than in 1940. Yet, for those families looking for places to buy or rent at the present time, there are fewer available accommodations than in 1940.

There is no paradox in our having more housing per person, and yet having a situation in which housing is harder to find. The abnormal rate of new family formation and the high income and purchasing power in the hands of American families have resulted in greater consumption of housing than ever before, using up more of the total available supply as space standards for the average family have improved.

Rose, Queen of Flowers, Enjoys Wide Popularity

The rapid, almost phenomenal increase in planting of roses in recent years bears testimony to the popularity the "Queen of Flowers" has achieved in America.

The rose is the universal favorite in gardens large and small all over the country. No other flower seems to give such rich rewards in beauty, fragrance and satisfaction. No other flower is more gracious inside the home.

What pleases gardeners more than anything else is the ease with which these lovely flowers can be grown. With only a minimum of care, which any ordinary plant requires, roses can produce a profusion of lovely and fragrant blossoms in a wide range of colors. Moreover, with the improvements achieved by hybridizers, roses are increasingly sturdy, hardy and resistant to disease. Many of them bloom over a long season from June until late fall so that the gardener with the foresight to plant roses, can keep his home well supplied with this aristocrat of flowers and at the same time be generous to his friends. The joy of receiving a bouquet of freshly cut roses is equaled only by the joy of giving them.

Shampooing Furniture

When upholstered furniture looks slightly dingy, it's time to try a clean-up treatment. Shampooing with soap jelly is the treatment recommended for fabric that is colorfast. Home management specialists at the University of Illinois college of agriculture give this recipe for making soap jelly. Pour 1 cup of hot water over 2 cups of mild soap flakes. That proportion of 1 to 2 is easy to remember. Now beat the mixture to a jelly with a rotary beater. You will want to test fabrics to make sure they won't change color. Do it in a place that won't show, using this method: Dip a cloth in lukewarm water, wring it out dry, and then dip it in soap jelly. Rub the jelly on the spot. Then rinse with a cloth wrung dry out of clear lukewarm water.

When Dog Bites Self

Rabid dogs not only bite other animals and people; they often bite themselves. The Journal of the American Veterinary Medical Association reports that sometimes one of the first symptoms of rabies is self-injury, which may amount to chewing off a piece of the tail or other appendage. Rabid dogs also have been known to chew holes in wooden fences. When a pet does such things, and refuses to eat or drink, the owner should suspect rabies and place the dog under veterinary observation, the Journal advises.

How Dogs Follow Trail

How does a dog follow a trail made by a human being? Tests seem to indicate that a dog's success in trailing depends primarily on his accurate discrimination of earth odor from the compression and stronger vaporization of the spots stepped upon; plant odor from the destroyed vegetation; odor traces from shoes and shoe polish; odor traces from decaying animal or other organic matter and the body odor specific to any particular person.

Newcastle Disease Spreads

As a safeguard to public health the American Veterinary Medical association has urged still greater efforts to control Newcastle disease in farm poultry flocks. Recent research indicates that human beings may be susceptible to the Newcastle virus, the A.V.M.A. said. Research men have proved also that the virus can be spread through the air. Chicken and turkey flocks in 44 states have been stricken with Newcastle disease in recent years.

Pennant Hopes Spring Eternal

By GRANTLAND RICE

IT HAS been said that hope springs eternal in the baseball player's breast until around June. Then it begins to wither and fade. years. At least it was springing in But hope sprang with greater alacrity in April than it has in some more places.

For example, after a rabid discussion as to whether the Dodgers, Braves or Cardinals were to be the selected sons of swat this season, we ran into Art Rooney of Pittsburgh. Art Rooney owns the Pittsburgh football franchise. He also has a few horses and he is also interested in baseball as a fan.

Grantland Rice

"Braves, Dodgers or Cardinals?" he said. "Listen, the entire population of Pittsburgh has picked the Pirates to win. I agree with them. Pittsburgh is much stronger than it was a year ago.

"Murry Dickson will make a difference of 10 games. Bob Chesnes will be even better. Kiner is due to hit better. You can also make a note that Pittsburgh will outdraw every team in the National League as it did a year ago. I mean the Giants, Dodgers, Braves and Cubs

"And I'm not being comical or funny when I pick Billy Meyer's bunch on top I don't believe everybody in Pittsburgh can be wrong"

In the course of the next hour or so, wandering here and there, we ran into seven experts who had been in Florida. Here are their selections: two for the Dodgers, two for the Braves, two for the Cardinals and one for Pittsburgh.

The Giants? Since this crop of selectors had come up from Florida, they knew nothing about the New Yorkers. But Horace Stoneham and Leo Durocher are being quoted to the general effect that Giant pitching will be quite sufficient, coupled with the power that Giant bats have carried. This means that at least five teams have the "hope eternal" torch blazing these April days.

And you can be certain that the Cubs, Phillies and Reds will supply more trouble than usual, especially if the Reds can shove Ewell Blackwell into the picture. Even without the human pine tree, the Reds are an improved collection of ballplayers. With Blackwell and Vander Meer working, the Reds are a menace.

Here in April we had five National league ball clubs who believed they could win the flag, and three others who believed they had a chance to move up and win their share of games.

At this spot, the Dodgers, Braves, Cardinals and Pirates are closer than two Scotchmen. The Giants must show they belong with this group.

The National league mix-up this season can be one of the closest races among more teams than any scramble either league has known so far. It could be that way if you study the eight teams that will soon get down to serious work.

The Trouble with 'IFS'

The main trouble with "IFS" is that they seldom work out any too well. Bob Feller is a big IF in Cleveland, but Feller is getting along. Even Boudreau is worried over his ability to keep his curve or his fast ball burning. Lemon and Bearden have yet to prove they are 20-game winners over a period of time

Joe DiMaggio and the Yankee infield have yet to prove they are up to pennant-winning play This, of course, means DiMaggio's afflicted heel To have this heel in shape all season would be a big boon to baseball in general just as much as it would be to the Yankees DiMaggio has been too brilliant a star to be missed without mourning.

No one can say, this far in advance, that the Red Sox pitching staff will be any better than it was a year ago. Joe McCarthy's spring attitude makes you think everything is O. K., but Hughson, Harris and Ferriss still have to prove they are the pitchers they were in 1946.

Billy Meyer is more than worried over Pittsburgh's full and firm belief in a pennant year In a race such as the National League has on hand this season, Meyer knows his team can play good baseball and finish fifth. He knows the number of good breaks any team needs to win in a race of this type Billy Southworth knows he will need a better Warren Spahn than the left-hander was a year ago. So many rumors of dissension will not be inclined to help his club. Any outfit that would turn against Billy Southworth can't be pennant-minded.

MIRROR Of Your MIND

Verbal Mus... Not Danger...

By Lawrence Gould

Is talking to yourself a sign of mental illness?

Answer: Only if you think someone is listening. A person may talk to himself, even out loud, for the purpose of reducing his ideas to words so as to make them clearer, and the practice has been advocated as a way of learning how to speak in public. But the fact that certain types of mental patients who live in a dream world are apt to be unaware of their surroundings may lead them not only to talk to themselves when they are not alone, but to hold animated conversations with people who exist only in their sick imaginations.

Can physical disease change your personality?

Nervous Symptoms and 'Chronic Dis...

By Dr. James W. Barton

IT IS generally agreed that about one-half of all patients who consult their physicians have no real physical or organic disease, but have symptoms which are the same or very similar to those present in organic disease.

In all cases, the physician, after making a thorough examination, is able to tell the patient that an organic disease is or is not present. If not present, he is able to explain to the patient why the symptoms of organic disease are present. It is because of the nervous make-up of the patient. I am speaking of the general run of patients who consult a physician.

It is interesting to learn of a group of patients, all of whom are "chronics"—that is, have been under the care of physicians for a long time.

...AND THE DERBY

...Downs, one of the old-...cks in the land, it is ...s to be run for the ...the Louisville medical ... Kentucky Derby has ...man sick at the finish, ...the first time anybody ...thought of doing some-... doctors.

The track is run by the famous Colonel Matt Winn, always a man in green, seldom a man in the red and now for the first time appearing as something of a Man in White.

The colonel is a smart, colorful racing genius, but up to now had not been associated with a bedside manner and a stethoscope. If you saw him with a little black bag in hand you were under no illusion it held pills, capsules or ointments.

It has never been recorded that he was coupled in the betting with "Dr. Kildare." Observing him as he watched the crowds pour into the Downs for the Derby, we never got the impression he was thinking about what to do for the medical profession rather than what to do for Churchill Downs.

However, it will be strictly O. K. to see horse racing advancing the cause of humanity. It will be a great conscience soother for Derby addicts. Their alibi for the long trip and the Derby hysteria can now be, "Can I help it if I want to see ambitious medical students get a chance?"

He will feel better coming back from the Derby, too. If his bangtail finishes out of the money, he will have the satisfaction of realizing that Louisville Medical college (by Matt Winn-Ballyhoo) "finished strong and will bear watching."

We can picture the wide influence of the school of medicine on the Derby, and vice versa. Churchill Downs will probably be redecorated in white enamel, with a nurse at every mutuels window and an intern in the hot dog stands. Fans will have their temperatures taken before and after photo finishes, stethoscopes will be used to detect suppressed tips.

There will be special windows where fans may get a sedative. And if his inside information proves cold, there will be heat treatments on the mezzanine.

"Ladies and gentlemen," we can hear the track announcer say, "the horses are on their way to the post to advance the cause of medicine and correct diagnosis. You have only five minutes in which to help a student get through college."

Similarly, Louisville medical college professors will be alloted official colors or "silks," classes will be opened with "Boots and Saddles" and on the day of exams there will be a morning line and late scratches.

Life can be wonderful! But we hope no student will be flunked for bad behavior at the gate and "quitting when challenged." And let's have no dean of the medical school thrown out of training for a "popped osselet."

LET US NOT FORGET

Grace Noll Crowell

LET us not forget the ancient wisdom
With which our fathers walked their earthly days:
The saying of grace above a loaf, new-broken,
The Sabbath rest, the altars we should raise;
The teaching of our faith to these, our children,
The earnest study of God's holy Word;
The telling, again and again, the old sweet story
By which an apathetic world is stirred.

Let us not forget the ancient splendors:
The mountain-top experience that lights
The darkest valleys that our feet must travel,
Where God will be, as well as on the heights.
Let us not forget the old, old meaning
Of the sun and moon and stars above the land.
Considering these—God help us to remember
That we, like they, are held in Thy great hand.

FARM SURPLUS:

May Hasten Subsidy

The administration's farm experts weren't being too subtle in a movement to hasten payment of direct subsidies to farmers. They were pointing out in the capital that an over-supply of pork and milk expected within the next two months, may require President Truman to ask immediate authority for such action.

SECRETARY of Agriculture Brannan said he already had discussed such a proposal with the President. At the present time the government is committed to support prices of those commodities by buying any surplus and taking it off the market. This is supposed to keep the retail price up.

Farm legislation passed by the 80th congress authorized direct payments to farmers for pork and milk, but this law does not go into effect until January 1, 1950.

Meanwhile, the agriculture secretary said consumer prices on pork and milk probably would fall if the admisistration was allowed to make direct subsidy payments to producers.

DESPITE much sentiment to the contrary, Brannan said his department has had a "quite favorable" reaction to the proposed farm program which, briefly, would let farm products find their own price level through supply and demand, with the government paying the farmer the difference in this and the support price in cash.

Congressional critics of the farm program declare its cost will run into billions of dollars and that it will benefit neither the farmer nor the taxpayer, because, in the end, the farmer and the taxpayer will be paying additional taxes to finance the program.

CANCER:

Progress Seen

The men in white who wage an unceasing battle against cancer caught a glimmer of hope—they felt sure they had discovered, as they put it, "what is for all practical purposes a simple, cheap and reasonably sure blood test for cancer."

THE ANNOUNCEMENT was made with the customary caution and restraint of the men who work with test tubes—"reasonably sure" was how they described the test.

But if they had made such a discovery, it was a great stride forward toward victory over the terrible disease.

According to the announcement, comparative studies at the University of Chicago of the blood serum of cancer patients and normal and other non-cancerous individuals had revealed significant differences that led to the statement of the new cancer blood test.

Report of the university findings was made by Professor Charles B. Huggins, who 10 years ago originated a new treatment for prostatic cancer which has kept more than 25 per cent of the victims alive and well for more than eight years.

DISCUSSING the new test, he said that tests on almost 300 individuals—equally divided into cancer patients, apparently healthy persons, and patients with non-cancerous diseases—proved positive for all cancer cases, negative for all normal persons and negative for all others tested, except those with lung tuberculosis and massive acute infections.

Inasmuch as tuberculosis and inflammatory processes can be readily diagnosed, it was explained, the test was not expected to confound cancer with other conditions.

U. S. Farms Produce Persian Lamb Fur

Starting with two ewes and a ram, a farmer can raise enough lambs for a Persian lamb coat in five years.

According to Valley Hall, Dayton (Ohio) breeder, American farms are the source of about half of Persian lamb fur used in the United States: Persia also has Karakul sheep which bear Persian lamb fur and Karakul wool for weaving, but does not export the fur to this country.

Lambs destined to become coats are killed when they are one day old; nor is a lamb born prematurely a cause for grief, since the pelt is then broadtail — which brings a higher price.

The Fiction Corner — STRICTLY ANALYTICAL

By Richard H. Wilkinson

THE TROUBLE with you," Barry said, "is that you're too analytical. Why don't you throw caution to the wind for once and marry the girl?"

Hugh sighed. His face took on that look of faintly aloof indulgence that he always conjured when Barry became critical. "You wouldn't understand," he said. "You're too impulsive to see what I'm driving at. Let me tell you, it pays to be careful."

3-Minute Fiction

"Sure it does. But it doesn't pay to be overly careful. How does Valeria feel about it?"

"How does she feel? How do you think she feels? When a girl's in love she knows enough to be careful herself."

"Meaning, of course, that Val's mad about you and she's willing to wait until you get through analyzing and justify or compensate her shortcomings in your mind."

Hugh gestured indifferently. "Figure it that way, if you like."

"Wouldn't it be a shock to you if you discovered yourself to be wrong. I mean, if Val married someone else right under your nose."

"She won't," said Hugh confidently. "Girls aren't made that way." He stood up. "I haven't been studying psychology and human behavior five years for nothing."

"But if she gets tired of waiting and marries some one else in the meantime, maybe you'll regret it."

"Don't be ridiculous. Val won't marry anyone else. I know what I'm doing."

Barry let a fortnight elapse before he again broached the subject of Val. It rankled him, and he felt better to get it off his chest. "Hate to mention it again, Hugh, but Val seems to think you've been neglecting her lately. Can't blame her much, either."

"Cut it!" Hugh looked ugly. "I think you'd better let me tend to my own affairs, Barry. The girl loves me and when I get around to it, I'll marry her. Goodness, can't you understand that a man shouldn't jump into such things!"

"Or a woman either," Barry offered. "I happen to know Val was out with someone else last night."

"Good. Comparing the someone else with me will be the best thing in the world for her—and me too."

Hugh was annoyed. Blast it, why couldn't Barry mind his own business? Why did he always have to keep worrying about Val. It was plain as day that he didn't understand women. Val knew a good thing when she saw it. She loved him and was willing to wait. She was smart.

VAGUELY HE wondered who the other man could be she was out with. It was sort of amusing in a way. Probably Val had merely told Barry that so Barry would tell him. Childish. Why, even a first-year psychology student could tell you that was nothing but a feeble attempt on the part of the female to excite jealousy in the man she loved.

Three evenings later Hugh's phone rang. It was Barry. He sounded far away. "Can't hear you." Hugh yelled into the mouthpiece. "Talk louder."

"I say," came Barry's voice, more distinctly, "that the thing I warned you against has happened."

"What thing?" said Hugh.

"About Val. About her marrying someone else right under your nose. She's done it."

"I don't believe it," said Hugh, feeling for the first time a queer sensation of alarm.

"I saw it happen," said Barry, "I was there."

"Good lord!" Hugh was suddenly very much excited and very concerned.

"You can't say I didn't warn you," Barry's voice said, growing fainter.

"Hey! Hold on a minute, Barry! Are you there! . . . Yes, yes, I know you warned me. Guess I was something of a fool. Who was it she married? This is terrible!"

"Me," said Barry, very faintly. And then the line went dead.

TREATED SEED OATS CAN BE HELD OVER FOR YEAR

The best thing to do with left over seed oats treated with New Improved Cereasan or Ceresan M is to store it and sow it next year, according to Iowa State College specialists.

Dr. C. S. Reddy, plant pathologist, says that if treated oats is stored properly it still will germinate well if held a year. Store it in a dry place where there isn't too rapid a change in humidity.

Animal husbandmen say that feeding treated grain to livestock is taking some chance. Cases are known where farmers have fed treated ouats without any trouble. But on the other hand, the specialists know of cases where animals have been poisoned from treated grain.

If farmers want to feed the grain, Dr. K. W. Stouder, extension veterinarian, suggests 2 ways that the grain might be fed safely. Mix a small amount of the treated oats with untreated oats and feed, or give the livestock a little treated oats for a couple of days and then change completely over to untreated grain for a few days.

Stouder thinks it safest to feed treated oats to cattle. However, a report from the Minnesota Experiment Station indicates that treated oats can be fed safely to hogs if the ration does not contain more than 15 percent treated oats. Stouder thinks treated grain can be fed to poultry but says no data is available on its effect on horses.

LIBERTY 3-4, GOODELL AND KLEMME SCHOOLS WIN IN PARADE

About 4,000 People Attended Second Annual Health Day At Britt Saturday

Miss Harriett Oxley, county nurse; the members of the Junior Red Cross and the Britt Rotary Club have demonstrated what a lot of hard work can do The school teachers, both town and rural, co-operated to the fullest extent. It is marvelous the many ideas carried out in the 125 parade entries. A crowd estimated between four and five thousand came to enjoy the day with the kiddies. Mr. Hank Hook of Station KGLO brought his wife and two sons with him to witness the festivities and enjoy with him the day.

Judges of the parade were Wather Henster, of Corwith Miss Moore, of Clarion; Mrs. Cliff Stewart, of Crystal Lake; Mrs. Henry Bode, of Woden, and County Treasurer, R. L. McMillin. It was a real task to choose places as among the many entries and after an hour and a half of careful checking and re-checking they came up with the following Powered Foats: Liberty No. 3, first; Goodell, second; Erin No. 9, third.

Most unique Floats Erin No 2, first; Crystal No. 9, second Best animal drawn Float Miller Independent.

Best Individual Liberty No. 4, Uncle Sam

Best riding horse. Britt grades 6 and 7 tied and split the prize

Best bicycle Amsterdam No. 3.

Town Grades Klemme, first, Goodell, second.

The Klemme, Hayfield and Kanawha school bands did a fine job in serving the marshal music. There were 1500 school children and teachers in the parade There were 35 rural schools and three public schools registered 100 per cent dental program Only three townships were not represented in the Hancock County Health Day program.

After the parade was over Hank Hook announced the winners over Lynn Forshee's loud speaker system. Then the picnic groups spread their lunches. The committee supplied the chocolate milk, coffee and ice cream.

All the children were given a free show at the Princess theatre, there being one morning and two afternoon shows given.

BASS SEASON OPENS JUNE FIRST

WHAT! PLAY THAT ROUGH GAME?

LOWER PRICES VIEWED FOR WORK CLOTHES

Dad and brother may pay less for their work clothes these days, due to recent cuts in the price of denim. But they still need to be careful shoppers to get good fit and comfort for their money in overalls and jeans.

Size should be selected according to waist and in-seam measurements, say clothing specialists, Iowa State College. Look for the label "sanforized" to guarantee the garment won't shrink noticeably.

Bib lengths come proportioned to various sizes, and for comfort it's important that the bib fits properly. Wide double suspenders give long and most comfortable wear.

Triple stitching throughout the garment will mean greater durability. Look for full-cut reinforced pockets with inside pockets stitched, turned and stitched again. On blue jeans, look for rivets to reinforce the garment at points of strain.

Bible School Begins May 31st

The Daily Vacation Bible School will be held in the Klemme Methodist Church from May 31st to June 17th. This is a week later than originally announced. There will be classes for children who will be enter-in Kindegarten in the fall up through the eighth grade. Daily sessions will be from 9 until 11:30.

Fishing In Canada

Mike Lemke of Klemme, Slim Barnes and Aaron Greiman of Garner left Friday night for Canada on a fishing trip.

ROUND GRADES OF SEED CORN MAY BE GOOD BUY

Don't overlook the possibility of buying round grades of seed corn if your planter will handle them, says Joe L. Robinson, agronomist at Iowa State College.

Farmers who run short of seed at planting time need not steer clear of the round grades as long as they come from the same strain number of corn, Robinson says. Sometimes a farmer is led to finish out with a substitute strain just because seed of the strain he wants is not available in flat grades.

Round grades are taken from the butt and tip ends of the ear, while flats are taken from the middle of the ear. Round kernels may be either smaller or larger than the flats, depending on which end they were taken from. The rounds will grow as well and produce as good a crop as the flats, according to Robinson. They carry the same characteristics as the flats taken from the same ear.

The big advantage of planting round grades of seed corn is that they cost less. Quite often the kernels in the round grades are smaller, and a bushel will go farther.

While they are all right in drill planting for silage corn, the round kernels are not as uniform in size and therefore do not work as well as the flats for checkrow planting. The round kernels are graded into three different sizes, however, and selecting the right planter plates results in a resonably even drop, Robinson says. He recommends careful periodic inspections of the number of kernels dropped when the kernels are bing used in checkrow planting.

PRELIMINARY WORK ON PAVING HERE GETS UNDER WAY THIS WEEK

OUTLOOK FOR 1949 FARM PRICES GOOD

But May Average 10 Percent Lower Than For 1948, Economists Say

Demand for farm products is likely to continue strong through 1949, but it probably will be at a lower level than in 1948, according to a Bureau of Agricultural Economics report received by Francis Kutish, Iowa State College farm economist.

In fact, the BAE estimates that prices received by farmers in cash receipts for farm products marketed may average 10 per cent below the 1948 record. Production costs probably will be slightly lower than in 1948. Net income of farm operators will be down more than cash receipts, but this decline will be offset in part by lower rural living costs, according to the Bureau of Agricultural Economics

No Sharp Drop

The economists base this farm outlook on the belief that the level of general economic activity will hold up. They do not see a sharp drop in the general level of economic activity for the months ahead. Despite some decline, outlays by business for new plant and equipment, and private spending for housing will continue large during the first half of the year. Federal, state and local governments are spending more than last year. Consumer incomes are likely to continue to support larger consumer spending than in any year before 1948, according to the BAE report.

Weather's Hand

Kutish points out that prospects early this spring indicate that the 1949 agricultural production again will be large, unless dry weather knocks the props out from under potential crop yields. This prospective larger supply and the weaker demand are likely to mean some further decline in prices of farm products, he says. Kutish says that basically this is a period of price adjustment—the sort of one that has always followed periods of inflation. He thinks that the next few months will give a clearer picture of where the economy is heading.

Bond Drive Off To Good Start In Hancock Says Ollenberg

First report for the Opportunity Drive was made today by Herbert L. Ollenburg of Garner, Hancock County chairman, who said that sales of series E, F and G bonds in the county totaled $120,347. The county drive quota is $365,251.

All bond purchases made from April 1 through July 16 will be credited toward the quota, although all activities will be concentrated during the period from May 16th through June 30th.

EXPECT TO POUR AT AN EARLY DATE

Construction Crew Paving Now At Goldfield

Some preliminary work in connection with paving of the east end of Klemme's Main Street will be done by the Carlson Construction Co. this week

The Carlson Construction Co at present is paving some twelve blocks at Goldfield and as soon as the work is completed there they will move their heavy equipment to Klemme.

Some of the excavating and filling will probably be started within the next week.

When everything is all set it will only take a short time to do the work on the Klemme paving.

SATURDAY, MAY 28 ANNUAL POPPY DAY IN KLEMME

Nearly four years now have passed since the last shots were fired in World WarII—more than 30 since World War I reached its victorious conclusion. The world has moved on to face new difficulties, new dangers. Minds are busy with today's problems and tomorrow's uncertainties.

Yet, the dead of those two wars are not forgotten. Their memory has been kept bright all through the years by the little red poppy of remembrance which Americans wear on Poppy Day each year as a personal token of tribute to those who gave their lives for America Wearing their flower recalls their spirit and gives new inspiration for service to the country they served so heroically.

And in the hospital wards are men and women who are suffering because they defended America, comrades of those who died. The poppy is for them, too. They make the flowers of crepe paper in replica of the wild poppies that bloomed on the battle fields and battle graves in France and Flanders. For them the poppies mean interesting occupation and the encouraging experience of earning money again. Making poppies is a step in their rehabilitation.

The poppies are for children, also—for the children of the dead and disabled. Contributions for the flowers help bring to them the things they need for a happy, healthful childhood and a fair start in life.

These facts about the poppy need to be told again as 1949's Poppy Day draws near—told so everyone will understand and will welcome the opportunity to wear a poppy which the American Legion Auxiliary brings to you.

Wear a Poppy on Memorial Day. The Poppies will be sold in Klemme this year by the Girl Scouts.

Chase Osborn—a Tribute

WHEN CHASE OSBORN, one-time governor of Michigan, died a short time ago, there passed away, to me, one of the comparatively few men of modern times who knew his job and his place as an American public official. Chase Osborn was always a servant, never a master, of the people of his state.

My first, and lasting, opinion of Governor Osborn was formed by an incident that occurred during the period of his governorship, and of which I had first hand and definite knowledge

At the time Chase Osborn was governor of Michigan I was the editor of a newspaper syndicate service prepared for the daily and weekly rural press It was then one of four such services prepared and sold by different syndicates, among which there was keen competition. One of the four was releasing a weekly agricultural service for use by Michigan papers, the copy for which was prepared by the Michigan agricultural college I wished to issue a similar service, and asked the head of that state institution to prepare copy for it, or, if he preferred, to give me a carbon of the copy he was supplying to the competitor. He definitely refused to do either.

Then I went to Lansing in an effort to talk it over, but the head of the college refused to see me. It was then I turned to Governor Osborn. He listened to my statement of the situation, then told me emphatically that he did not like the owner of the company for which I was working, while the head of the state agricultural college was a valued friend. "But," he added, "what you are proposing would be of service to the people of Michigan, and it is my job to see that they get that service."

He then called the head of the college on the phone and asked him to see me. To that request there was a reluctant compliance. The governor asked that I present my case, and, after doing so, let him know the result.

I did that, and again received an emphatic refusal. When I reported back to the governor he again called the head of the college and asked for the reason for his refusal. The governor was told the school faculty did not have time to prepare a similar service, and it was not ethical to give me a carbon, and the college head stuck to that decision

"I, too, am busy," said the governor over the phone, "so busy that I cannot find time to sign the appropriation bill for the agricultural college now on my desk, when the college faculty has not time to serve the people of Michigan when opportunity offers."

Of course, I got the copy I wanted, and quick I also took away with me an intense admiration for a public official who would not consider personal friendships or animosities when doing so would have sacrificed the people who had entrusted him with the office he held.

That incident typified Chase Osborn His job as governor of Michigan was to serve the people of the state He was their servant. His personal likes and dislikes could have no consideration as against his duty to the people of Michigan For several years I saw him at more or less frequent intervals and it was seldom that I did not find some additional reasons for admiring a governor who demonstrated his determination to be a servant, not a master, of the people who placed him in office.

I have known many men in public life who have made claims to being a servant, not a master, of their constituents, but in the majority of such cases I have found such claims to be phony when personal interests were involved In the case of Chase Osborn they were proven to be real.

During the war the public did not seriously question what seemed to be wild and reckless spending on the part of the armed services The wastage of war excused, if it did not justify, such spending. In the full year of 1944, at the height of the war, the cost of the armed services amounted to a trifle over $6,000 for each officer and man in the services. During the past year we have had nothing more serious than the "cold war in Berlin, but the cost of the armed services amounted to a bit over $2,000 for each officer and man.

The supreme court has decided in the past that a treaty is more sacred than is the Constitution. Had the North Atlantic pact we signed provided for "military" aid, rather than the mere word "aid," the president could have legally declared war had any one of the participating nations been attacked The omission of that one word, "military," maintains for Congress its constitutional perogative to declare war The Constitution has been saved by so slight a margin as the omission of one word.

Fashionable Faille

This cafe au lait faille dress from the collection of a New York designer shows simple but elegant lines. The jacket is yoked below the shoulders and fastens with two-toned gold hooks and eyes. A choker necklace, perky hat worn to the side, and simple pumps complete the refreshing costume.

ing a suit, if you are tall, is to break the silhouette below the waistline. There are several good ways to do this. One is to use color contrast, a light colored jacket and dark skirt. Another good way, especially if you are ample hipped, is to wear a long jacket with the break coming well below the waistline.

When the tall girl is top heavy, she should wear a long dark jacket over a print dress. This plays down the large torso and still gives the color break with which to shorten the figure.

Avoid Tuck-In Blouse If You are Tall

The long torso blouse is perfect for the tall girl. The brief sweater or the tuck-in, high-waist skirts should be avoided.

If you are angular, wear the large ruff that comes with so many new blouses. If you are slim and tall, wear the large bows. If you are tall and heavy, wear the slimming revers.

Round-shouldered girls should not wear the round drawstring neckline for it simply accentuates the stoop. Keep the neckline flat in the back and wear a bolero whenever possible.

Tall girls should not wear the tight narrow skirts. They simply emphasize height. The droopy look, too, is to be avoided. Use draped skirts, snappy pleated ones or those with the peg pockets that give a suggestive horizontal line.

Tall slim girls would do well to choose swim suits with shirring and a voluminous skirt to hide their bony areas.

Another good selection in a swim suit is the soft dressmaker type with the shirred or gathered top.

Be Smart!

If your dresses are of the very pretty, feminine variety, You'll want to choose the ultra-feminine in footwear. This may mean a lovely lattice-work of straps and buttons or a dainty cut-out pattern of scroll work. This is a good type for early as well as late summer because it adds a suggestion of formality to the costume. Polished leathers in colors as well as many blond hues are vying for attention. Reptiles, too, have taken to color in a magnificent manner all their own.

South there is the Van especially useful where r is hard on other varie-

These new kinds are vigorous, and only a few bushes, which may be trained to stakes or to a fence, are needed to supply the home garden Black raspberries have not been developed into everbearers yet, but there are some fine new kinds on the market. Morrison has the largest fruits and seems to be almost seedless. Bristol is another one of good size. Sodus is a cross between black and red and is very good.

Blackberries have seen improvement. One of the best is Early Harvest, a variety that ripens ahead of the hot weather that injures some of the others The fruit is fine quality.

Strawberries are always welcome. Everbearing kinds need a richer soil but repay with more fruit and a crop the first year. There have been several good varieties lately but the best one is Streamliner. The large juicy berries are freely produced and are of the best flavor. It is truly an outstanding variety.

Grapes have come out of the juice class. The new Golden Muscat and Seneca are golden grapes with the thin skin of the California kinds. They are delicious for eating. The vines are hardy. Only one seedless grape has been put on the market. It is the Seedless Concord. Excellent for pies. Several other varieties of seedless grapes are being tested and will be on the market within a few years.

Use your fence space by growing some of these small fruits alongside. Grapes can be trained along the wires, while the bush fruits can be tied to the upper wire or rail and trained to a hill. The main point in growing these is to select the best kinds for flavor and usefulness and regularly to cut out the old stems in the brambles and to shorten the stems in grapes Mulching helps them all.

KATHLEEN NORRIS

Living Can Be Made Exciting

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

MOST OF US like sensation. In the singular, I mean; sensations in the plural we, of course, experience all day and every day. Heat, cold, fear, pleasure, fatigue, boredom—these sensations are no surprise.

But "a sensation," all by itself, stands for something more We love to say, "Wasn't Mona's marriage a sensation?" or, "Lily in that hat was a positive sensation yesterday"

Thousands, even millions of women, ploughing patiently and alone through their housework six mornings a week, and without much change or excitement ahead on the seventh morning, would be delighted if a sensation came along now and then.

For instance, a telephone call from Joe, at the office, "Sally, could you and the kid meet me at the Union Station at noon? I can't talk now, but it's important. Pack a bag for me, and notify the milkman We'll be gone some time."

Another "Sensation"

Or a stranger at the door. "May I come in? I am representing the trustees of the estate of your late great-aunt, in Scotland. You may not be aware that her estate proved to be far larger than was expected and includes a residence—"

Or even—for we are humans and not supermen, after all—an agitated neighbor rushing past the gate.

"Sally, the Brown's place is on fire! They say they got the children out; but my goodness, there won't be any club meeting there tomorrow. And those curtains she hasn't paid for yet—!"

The truth is, no matter how generous and charitable we are, there is something in the sudden scandals, disasters, chrises of our friends' and neighbors' lives that affect us very pleasurably. Especially if the pride of the said neighbors has taken a fall or the ridiculous marriage of middle-aged Ethel White with that handsome dancing teacher has gone on the rocks, or young Harriet Smith's preposterous feeding of her baby has resulted in threatened rickets.

It's too bad we're like that; it's not admirable, but that is human nature. And when our turn comes, and the boy of the family borrows someone's car and wrecks it, or the girl of the family gets mixed into the wrong high school group and is pictured in the paper as one of the youngsters who need better home influence, then we know that our circle will have its turn at discussing and pitying us.

Inject New Interest

Any woman who longs for more sensation in her own life can put it there. Naturally I don't mean accidents, fires, scandals and mistakes. I mean the delightful emotions that make every day an adventure, and put wings under one's life. The interest that wakes one, alert and refreshed, every morning, and sends one to bed planning and content every night.

For your life and mine contain exactly the elements that make the most sensational life in the world so enviable, although that stupefying fact isn't usually appreciated until one gets to be old. Yes, whether you take happy Princess Elizabeth in her palace, or a burdened young mother in a Chicago side street, it's all there. The right to be busy, to be loved, to serve isn't refused anyone.

And troubles—envy, restlessness, headache, pleasant opportunities missed and dull events endured—these come to palaces as well as to crowded Chicago flats. Royalty can be cruelly bored; Hollywood successes are only the prologue to Hollywood failures, and once a woman has tasted fame and power, lesser food never can satisfy her.

To make even a commonplace apartment lovely in its simplicity and order, to welcome home a tired, discouraged man who nevertheless lives only for you and his children, to plan a more satisfying future, when there will be a garden and a car and more bedrooms—that gives any imaginative woman a better chance than ever a princess had.

To the very highest to the very lowest, only the love of a few close intimates counts.

Mink coats certainly impress waiters and taxi drivers and passing little, shabby workwomen in the streets, but those aren't the persons whose opinion really matters in your life.

Jealously and restlessness and thwarted ambition and bitterness of all sorts have a way of moving into a mink coat with you, and the annals of courts and of the movie kingdom are perhaps the saddest in the world.

Allergy Seen As Cold Cause

Food, Drink Could Be Start of Malady

WASHINGTON — Something you eat or drink may be the starter for that common cold

Dr. John M. Brewster of the naval hospital, Great Lakes, Ill., believes the first phase of the common cold is "an allergic reaction" —which can be cured by drugs that fight allergies

He contends that when some food or drink to which we're sensitive gets into our mouths—or if we inhale some irritating substance—these "allergens" cause damage to the delicate mucuous membranes of nose, mouth and throat.

Then if the virus of common cold is present it will find a nice nesting spot in the damaged membranes.

So Brewster figures that if you can check this allergic reaction you can lick your cold before it really gets going And he says that a group of "antihistaminic drugs" can do the trick.

These drugs, which require a doctor's prescription, get their class name from the fact that they combat "hitamine"—a substance that is released in the body in abnormal quantities during certain allergic conditions, such as hay fever, asthma and hives.

More than a year ago Brewster reported "unusually satisfactory results" in checking common colds in the early stage with "Benadryl."

Now, in the Naval Medical Bulletin, he reports use of four other antihistaminic drugs, Pyribenzamine, Thenylene, Neoantergan and Histadyl.

Brewster says 19 of 21 patients in whom treatment was begun within the first hour after onset of symptoms were cured. That's a 90 per cent batting average

Of 156 patients who received treatment within six hours, 116 (or 74 per cent) were cured.

(All patients were warned that the drugs can cause drowsiness and they were cautioned against driving a car while under treatment.)

For comparison, he treated a much smaller number of patients with a combination of codeine sulfate and papaverine hydrochloride, which he said is "generally accepted as the preferred treatment for the common cold"

The percentage of cures obtained on these patients at different intervals after onset of symptoms ranged from 50 to 31 per cent.

The Lord's Supper

Lesson for May 22, 1949

LET US CLEAR UP some very common misunderstandings of what the Christian religion is. Some (both enemies and friends) think it consists in turning one's back on the world, living in a sort of happy wonderland where the evil of the world is altogether shut out and forgotten. Another notion is that Christianity presents an angry God (or one who can very easily be made angry) laying down the law to mankind. Another is that Christianity is a purely individual affair. And still another is that the Christian religion consists of the teachings of Jesus and that is all it is. Every one of these misunderstandings vanishes in the light that shines around the Lord's Supper.

Dr. Foreman

PEOPLE SOMETIMES think that religion shuts men's eyes to the ugly realities of life. Some religions try to do so; but not the religion of Christ. He knew the kind of world this is; he never let his disciples forget it.

On that last night, dark forces were abroad. Jesus' enemies were closing in on him. One of his own circle would betray him. Yet it was in that sort of atmosphere, heavy with betrayal and hatred, that Jesus began this sacrament of faith, hope and love.

The true Christian does not live in a fool's paradise, he does not imagine that everything is lovely in the nicest of possible worlds. The sacrament which is the heart of his worship is itself a reminder of the ugliness of the world which man's sin creates.

Blessing

"AND HE BLESSED the bread . . ." If Christianity consisted mainly of condemning wickedness and denouncing sinners, then at the center of our worship we would have some symbol of dread and awe, like fire and brimstone, a consuming flame

But no — at the heart of our worship is a thing as simple, plain and friendly as a loaf of bread, bread on which the blessing of God has been asked. Blessing, not cursing; invitation, not threatening, is at the heart of our religion.

Whenever you see some one whose chief idea of being a "good Christian" is going around proclaiming the meanness of the world, cawing at everybody and everything.

Breaking

"AND BROKE IT, and gave . . ." Artists have tried in a single picture to express the meaning of Christianity. Some of the pictures are beautiful, but many of them miss an important truth What shall it be? A picture of a shipwrecked woman clinging to a rock? Of a saint praying in a long solitary vigil? These leave out something vital. For Christianity is a fellowship. No Christian is complete by himself.

At the heart of our religion is a Communion. Few if any Protestant churches allow any one even a minister, to give the Holy Communion to himself, by himself.

The true Christian never finds himself, his true self, alone; only in fellowship. A Christian belongs with other Christians as much as one coal in a bed of coals belongs with all the rest.

Blood

JESUS TEACHINGS are so important, so full of wisdom and of living power, that often some one will say that Jesus was a teacher and only a teacher, and that following his teachings is all that Christianity is. Jesus did not think of it in this way.

True, his teaching is of the utmost importance; but that was not and is not all. As Middleton Murry said years ago, Jesus was the only teacher who has died for his teaching. But he did more than that: he died for those he taught.

The cup at the Holy Communion reminds every one who partakes of it that Christ was not only a teacher, he was a sacrifice.

AROUND THE HOUSE

Dipping casters in melted paraffin before placing them under tables and chairs will keep them from coming loose so often.

When carpeting reaches all the way to the walls, use vacuum around baseboard frequently—moths love to lay eggs in such spots.

Use an old powder puff when applying shoe polish: it conserves useful cloth, does not smear fingers, and fits nicely into can for future use.

Try tomato juice to remove stains from washable materials.

Apply a thin coat of sealer to wire clotheslines to keep them from rusting and make them much easier to clean.

Wash fluffy pile bedroom slippers—using same method as for chenille robes, etc.—. Do not wring: squeeze gently and shake occasionally while drying: when dry, brush vigorously to bring up nap.

To squeeze that extra drop of juice out of a lemon, use an ordinary pair of pliers.

If cheese is too soft to grate, soften it a little more in a warm place and press through a coarse strainer.

Purse mirrors placed under individual candle holders are an attractive insurance against dripping or spilled tallow.

Unused marshmellows will stay fresh after the box has been opened if they are kept in the bread box.

Mix odds and ends of left-over paint together and use to paint under-side of porch, steps, clothes props, etc. Before putting air-tight cover on left-over paint, pour a little turpentine over the paint. this helps against "skinning" or or drying out.

To give an illusion of greater size to a small room, paint one or more of the walls a different color; or, paint one wall and paper the others.

Camel Newspaper Campaign Features 30-Day Mildness Test And Big-Name Testimonials

In their present newspaper campaign for Camel cigarettes, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company features the 30-day Camel mildness test.

A similar coast-to-coast test was recently made by hundreds of smokers under the supervision of noted throat specialists. In this test, hundreds of men and women smoked Camels, and only Camels, for 30 consecutive days . . . smoking an average of one to two packs a day Each week the throats of these smokers were examined by noted throat specialists . . . a total of 2470 careful examinations. And these throat specialists reported not one single case of throat irritation due to smoking Camels!

Each advertisement in this campaign features two outstanding personalities who are Camel smokers. One a famous "veteran" star in some particular sport or other activity who has been a Camel smoker for years, and the other a rising young star who has recently switched to Camels as the result of making their own 30-day Camel mildness test.

Among the outstanding personalities used in this series are Johnny Vander Meer and Gene Bearden, baseball pitchers, Willie Hoppe and Willie Mosconi, billiard players, Gene Sarazen and Lew Worsham, golf professionals, Gladys Swarthout and Virginia MacWatters, opera and concert singers, Cole Porter, composer, and Patricia Morison, singing actress and star of the new Cole Porter musical comedy hit, "Kiss Me Kate."

This current Camel campaign is also being featured on the Camel radio programs, which include the Screen Guild Players, the Bob Hawk Show, the Jimmy Durante Show, and the Vaughn Monroe Show.

Dealers throughout the country who have cooperated in this campaign by placing Camel displays in their windows and on their counters have reported new sales records for this favorite cigarette.—Adv.

2 packages Red Star Special Active Dry Yeast
1¼ cups warm water (105° to 110° F.)
¼ cup sugar
1½ teaspoons salt
1 egg
2 cups sifted all purpose flour
2 tablespoons shortening, melted and cooled to lukewarm
Step 1: Dissolve yeast in warm water (105° to 110° F.) in large mixing bowl. Step 2: Add sugar, salt, and unbeaten egg. Add flour gradually. Beat well with electric mixer on low or medium speed, or by hand with large wooden spoon. Add shortening, beating until thoroughly mixed. Step 3: Spoon dough into well greased muffin pans, filling about one-third full. Step 4: Let rise in warm place (90° to 95° F.) until dough has risen level with top of muffin pans (about 25 to 30 minutes.) Step 5: Bake in moderately hot oven (375° to 400° F.) 20 min. Step 6: Remove from pans and serve warm. Yields 18 to 24 rolls.

Pet Mouse Fails to Live Despite RSPCA Formula

LONDON.—The Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals cited this telephone exchange between an agitated woman and one of its officials:

"What shall I do for my pet mouse which has been roughly handled by a cat?"

"Treat him for shock by keeping him warm and giving him a few drops of warm milk."

A spokesman for the humane society said the woman was advised to call again if she needed more help. He added with satisfaction:

"As she has not done so, we presume that the mouse is all right."

P. S. The mouse died.

Here's Beauty Treatment For—

DINING ROOM REDECORATING

Cheer, charm and convenience—that's the keynote for dining rooms these days. And with colorful walls, well chosen curtains or draperies, and spruced up furniture, there's every reason for the dining room to be attractive setting for many a meal.

Bright, new wallpaper or a coat of new paint can make a delightful change in any room. If your dining room is to receive a "new look" this year, why not give it a really up-to-date look? No more "oatmeal" paper or its next-of-kin, the timid stripe of pallid tone. And good reason!

Home furnishings specialists, Iowa State College, say that most dinning rooms need cheering up The reason is understandable. Much of our dining room furniture is dark in color It's formal looking and apt to be bulky Many of the same pieces are similar in size. They usually stay in the same spot year after year. Dining rooms often prove a problem to rearrange.

Then, too, there are not many places in a dining room where we can add colorful accessories.

All of this adds up to a sameness of feeling which many homemakers have tried to overcome with a set of colorful curtains, or a house plant or two.

Fortunately, the fact that we are dealing with just certain pieces of furniture much alike in appearance makes the job of fixing up the dining room easier This is the place, say home furnishings experts, to use lively patterns and say colors—to let your imagination go. Gaiety gives a friendly, hospitable look to any room

Wall Decoration

Walls are the biggest surface in any room. If well decorated, they can tie the whole room together Add curtains or draperies which harmonize, and a floor covering to key into the color siheme.

Whether you choose to paint the walls or to paper them, base your choice on the surface condition of the walls. Paint belongings over fairly perfect surfaces.

Wallpaper is a wise choice if the plaster of the room is not good, or there are other defects to hide. It's an inexpensive way to bring design and interest into your room with little effort.

Choose wallpaper on a trial basis if you really wish to be sure you will like to live with it. Take home a good-sized sample and hang it up for a few days before making a final choice.

Another suggestion is—it's always easier to match paint to wallpaper than it is to choose the right paper to harmonize with the paint.

Too much pattern or design in any room gives a feeling of restlessness." This can happen if the walls, rug and draperies all have evident designs or patterns

Floor Care

Keeping any floor in good condition is no easy task. To re-do the floor, take off the old varnish or paint with a recommended remover. Plane, scrape or sand the surface until it's smooth and fill the cracks.

Choose the finish to best suit your needs. Floor seal gives a natural finish which is very durable It is a little harder to apply than varnish. Use paint if the wood or the finish is not in too good condition. Floor, deck or porch paint is good. A nice, neutral tone such as grey-green, blue, brown or tan will harmonize well with the other colors in the room.

MRS. ELMER ARNOLD HOSTESS TO STUDY GROUP

The Study Group of the Methodist Church met Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Elmer Arnold, with Mrs. C. A. Arnold and Miss Minnie Lenz as hostesses.

Devotions on "Trust and Faith," was given by Mrs. E. Morris Egeland.

The lesson was presented by Rev Egeland, and was from the book, "Newness of Life."

There were 27 grownups and 9 children present.

After the meeting delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses.

Electric 'Eye' Is Found Useful In Myriad Ways

NEW YORK.—Don't look now, but you're being watched by thousands of electronic eyes.

Automatic controls using photo-electric tubes have become big business and are in use in many ways that affect your every-day life.

This type of device is most familiar to the public, perhaps, in opening doors of railroad terminals and other public buildings—the door swinging wide when you walk across an invisible beam of light.

But that use is only one of hundreds. Others include safety controls that shut off machines when workers get near danger zones, street lights that turn themselves on when it gets dark and off when it's light again, burglar alarms, machines that automatically wrap candy and cigarettes, and devices that count 10,000 pills a minute.

Really Big Business

Frank Rudolph, president of the Ripley co., of Middletown, Conn., estimates the manufacture of electronic controls using the photo-electric tube will be a ten-million-dollar business this year. His own company is not the biggest in the business but is one of the pioneers. Its growth from $20,000 in business in 1937 to an expected $475,000 this year, he says, is an indication of how the industry as a whole has expanded.

At least three other companies devote their full facilites to electronic controls and some big manufacturing companies, such as General Electric and Westinghouse, make them in quantity.

Rudolph and others in the industry are constantly thinking up new uses. One of his pets right now is a little attachment for your floor lamp that, when set, will turn the light on at nightfall so you don't have to stumble into a dark house or apartment on your return from an evening out.

The electronic eyes are in such wide use already, however, that the industry is hard pressed to get enough of some critical materials to keep up with orders

Protect Workers

They are in increasing use to protect workers operating dangerous machines. A heavy press, for instance, has a curtain of "beams" around it so that if a worker stumbles and falls under the press or carelessly sticks his hands under it, a beam is broken and the press it halted.

Burglar alarms using photo-electric tubes have been improved by use of intermittent beams. That's so a burglar, even if he discovers the device, can't foil it by shining his flashlight on the electronic eye to keep it from setting off an alarm while he walks through the regular beam.

Electronic eyes installed in ducts of air-conditioning systems set off immediate warnings if they detect smoke. Experiments are being made toward installing them in airplane baggage compartments and inside the wings to give advance warnings of fire. They are used in smokestacks of industrial plants to warn when too much smoke is coming out—more than is permitted by local laws.

Photo-electric tubes are used by some soft drink manufacturers for sorting returned bottles—separating them by the colors of special markings imbedded in the necks of the bottles.

Girls Seeking Jobs Get Warning of Over-Dressing

NEW YORK.—If you're a girl looking for a job in retailing, don't go for your interview dressed in the height of fashion.

The reason: It's easier for the store that hires you to dress you up, if it feels that way, than to tone you down if you're overdressed.

This advice came out of a panel discussion in which executives of five leading New York stores and merchandising organizations participated. It was part of a "clinic on careers in retailing" held by the New York university school of retailing.

Good grooming, the members held, is important for applicants being interviewed—but the matter of over-dressing is the downfall of many an otherwise acceptable one. Especially if the interviewer is a man, they told the co-eds, simple dressing is preferred.

College Graduates May Step Into Better Jobs

ITHACA, N. Y.—The college graduates of June, 1949, are due to step into better paying jobs than ever, according to a Cornell university placement expert.

John L. Munschauer, Cornell service director, said one large company has raised its starting pay from last year's $285 to $305 a month. Another went up from $275 to $300, and a third was up $30 to $295.

Those startling salaries are chiefly for engineering graduates and other specialists, Munschauer said, but he expects the trend to be echoed through the whole job range.

Fight Amebic Infection With New Drug Weapons

Two new chemical weapons have been found to fight amebic infections, according to Dr. E. W. Dennis of the Sterling-Winthrop Research institute, Rensselaer, N. Y.

These infections from living protozoan parasites called amebas are common causes of ill health the world over. Spread by contaminated food and water, the parasites generally first infect the large intestine with resulting discomfort or pain and diarrhea. Sometimes the amebas are transported to the liver, where serious abscesses are formed.

As yet the new drugs to attack the parasites are known only by their chemical names and laboratory numbers of WIN 1011 and WIN 246.

WIN 1011 was chemically described by Dr. Dennis in his joint paper with D. A. Berberian, M. D., and Sophie S. Hansen, also of the Sterling-Winthrop staff, as "bismuthoxy p-N-glycolyarsanilate." He declared it effectively attacks endameba histolytica, which infects an estimated one out of every twenty people in the United States. Furthermore, clinical experiments show that it apparently overcomes the tendency towards relapses which follow treatment by other drugs now in use.

Mathematical Ace Can Tally Figures In Blinking of Eye

NEW YORK.—Pai Sung Jin can add a column of numbers taller and wider than himself faster than the average commuter can tally a bridge score.

Pai is a Korean mental wizard, just arrived in this country, who astounded American adding machine experts in Korea last year by adding and subtracting any given combination of figures two and one-half times faster than an adding machine or an abacus, all in his head.

Pai says his system is really quite simple. All he does is translate mentally a number into a Korean phonetic "word," add up the words in his head, retranslate the answer back into a number and write it down. It took him 13 years to work out his formula, but the little Korean claims he can teach it to anyone in two hours.

For example, Pai can add a column of figures 11 across and 10 deep in 15 seconds He looks at the column intently, blinks once or twice, then scribbles the entire correct answer from left to right, in contrast to the average dullard who has to sweat over a row one digit at a time.

The occasion in Korea a year ago which brought Pai's uncanny ability to light took place at a contest between two American adding machine experts, seven Korean abacus champions and Pai. The Americans and the seven Koreans ended up in a draw, but at the final count Pai had accurately performed his arithmetic two and one-half times faster than all the rest. The contest was sponsored by the 24th American army corps.

New Telephone Instrument Controls Volume of Bell

NEW YORK —A new telephone instrument, with better reception, an improved dial, and a volume control for the bell is in the final stages of development at the Bell Telephone laboratories

Several thousands of the new sets will be installed on a trial basis this year

An important new feature is an "equalizer" which automatically adjusts the sound level of conversation to compensate in part for the distance between the telephone and the central office. The phone will have a control which permits its ringing tone to be made louder or softer

Truman Singing Voice Unknown to Intimates

WASHINGTON.—Is Harry Truman a baritone or a tenor?

A reporter spent a whole day trying to find out. Of course, he doesn't answer the phone himself when a little guy calls

When the reporter called, neither did Charley Ross, his press secretary, answer Charley and Harry were graduated from high school in the same class Sometime or another they must have harmonized on "Sweet Adeline" a few times in the washroom of the old school.

Charley was out of town His assistant, Eben Ayers, said he was sorry.

"The president never sings in my presence," he said. "As a matter of fact, I have never even heard him play the piano."

Ed Place, publicity man for the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America, Inc, said he didn't know, either

But he thinks the chief would come somewhere between a tenor and a baritone

That would put the president in the lead in a quartet—where any president belongs.

Anyhow, according to Ed, Mr Truman is a paid-up member of the SPEBSQSA—Kansas City (Mo) chapter. Being president of the United States, he can stand up there and be a monotone if he feels like it and nobody will care. After all, he can sit down and lick the next one at a game of playing the "Missouri Waltz" on the piano, can't he?

British Peers Checking Up on 'Help Wanted' Ads

LONDON —British peers are checking the "help wanted" ads these days.

Modern times and socialism in Britain have caught up with feudal nobility. Many an earl or lord has switched from dinner clothes to overalls to earn pocket money and to meet his overhead expenses.

Some simply are broke and need the money to live.

Others are burdened by the cost of keeping their mansions and estates. By the time they have paid their taxes, they find they can't run their cars, pay their club dues, keep up their social engagements or act the way noblemen generally are supposed to do. Some have taken to selling parcels of their land in order to save the rest.

Still others have turned to commoners' chores because they want to make themselves useful in Britain's great battle for production—its struggle to survive.

They have dropped the life of a man-about-town, therefore, and turned to earning a living.

Mercy Deaths Stir Up Storm Of Controversy

NEW YORK.—If you are suffering racking pain from "incurable" disease, should you have the right to ask your doctor for death by swift painless means?

Hundreds of ministers and doctors of New York state believe you should. So do more than 500 members of the Euthanasia Society of America. Voluntary euthanasia means ending human life by painless means to stop "incurable" physical suffering, but only at the request of the sufferer.

On the other hand, thousands of other prominent churchmen and physicians believe with equal conviction that you should not have that right.

Around these two points of view today swirls a controversy involving the Ten Commandments, man's relation to God and down-to-earth questions of right and wrong.

Has Many Supporters

The Euthanasia society, founded in 1938, has many members in science, medicine, letters and religion. Its founder was Dr. Charles Francis Potter, Protestant minister and founder of the first Humanist Society of New York. Its officers and advisory council are Dr Henry Sloane Coffin, president emeritus of Union Theological seminary, New York; Margaret Sanger, leader of the birth control movement, and Fannie Hurst and Somerset Maugham, authors.

Both sides are working hard in defense of their stands.

Recently 379 ministers petitioned the New York state legislature for a voluntary euthanasia law. Among them were Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, minister emeritus of Riverside church, and Sidney Goldstein, Rabbi of Temple Emanu-El, both of New York. A committee of 1,776 physicians also took a stand in favor of "mercy death." Two years ago 1,100 of them petitioned the New York legislature for it.

The Euthanasia society now is drafting a petition to the United Nations commission on human rights, asking it to recognize as a fundamental human right "the right to merciful death as a release from incurable suffering."

Opposition Listed

Strong active opposition to mercy killing is led by the Roman Catholic church. Mons. Robert E. McCormick, presiding judge of the New York archdiocese court, and many other priests are attacking it vigorously in pulpit, pamphlet and press. Dr. John Behnken, president of the Lutheran church-Missouri synod, condemned the 379 clergymen's petition. The American Council of Christian Churches, representing 1,500,000 church members, also condemned euthanasia in two resolutions.

Four hundred members of a New York county medical society recently passed a resolution opposing legalized euthanasia. It will be sent to all New York legislators.

The Euthanasia society aim is to have voluntary euthanasia legalized in all states, but is currently concentrating activities in New York. The concept is illegal in every state at present.

The society has drafted a bill which provides that any sane person of more than 21, who is suffering severe physical pain from a disease for which present medicine knows no cure, may send a written petition for death to a court of record. It must be accompanied by his physician's affidavit. The case would be examined by a commission, including at least two doctors.

Scientist Discovers Ants Pattern Human Behavior

NEW YORK.—A tiny corner of what used to be the attic of the American Museum of Natural History is the planning center for a far-flung program of esoteric studies conducted by Dr. Theodore G. Schneirla, who is one of the world's leading ant psychologists.

In his book-lined office, Dr. Schneirla keeps track of what is doing in the ant world by corresponding with other scientists and by perusing scientific literature. He frequently makes a flying trip to Central America to study his favorite, the army ant, in its natural habitat.

At other times he may be found, as he was yesterday, measuring the time it takes a bright ant to find its way through a maze cleverly designed to test the learning ability of an insect in search of food.

As an ant psychologist, Dr. Schneirla believes that many of the oddities of human behavior may be at least partly explained when the inflexible patterns of behavior exhibited in a rudimentary society of ants are understood. To this end, Dr. Schneirla has spent many hours crawling on hands and knees watching ants at work and play and fearlessly has prodded into ant nests and activities rarely seen by human eyes.

Dr. Schneirla finds that weather has a direct effect on ant actions and that their behavior varies according to the prevailing temperature and humidity.

Sitter Locked Out of House By Two-Year-Old Child

CINCINNATI.—Two-year-old Paul Feldman locked his baby-sitter out of the house causing her 45 minutes of anxiety before firemen came to the rescue.

Little Paul, son of Max Feldman, secretary-treasurer of Steinberg's clothing store, enjoyed every minute of the show at the expense of Mrs. Evelyn Scallon, 35, who was tending him while Mrs. Feldman went shopping. Mrs. Scallon had taken the baby into the yard for a sunning. When they returned to the house, the child cried for a toy he had left on the porch.

When Mrs. Scallon stepped out to retrieve the toy the toddler banged the door and the night latch snapped. Mrs. Scallon was locked out.

She rushed to the home of a neighbor and called police But, in her excitement she gave an address two blocks away. She waited. Paul looked out the front window and grinned.

The neighbor then called the fire department and gave the correct address.

Lt. Neff Schmit, in charge of Company 48, Carthage, responded. He put a ladder to an open window, climbed through, saw that Paul was all right and opened the door.

Mrs. Scallon felt faint.

New Surgical Knife Said To Prevent Loss of Blood

EXETER, ENGLAND.—A young hospital technician has said he has invented a surgical knife which immediately puts back into the veins blood lost by a patient during an operation.

The inventor is W D. G. Gregory, a sick-bay attendant in the British navy during the war and now an operating-room technician at Exeter city hospital.

His knife has not yet been used in the operating room. He told reporters it will prevent shock through loss of blood, sometimes fatal during an operation.

The new knife has a grooved blade with a thin tube running through its hollow handle. As an incision is made, a small electric pump draws away the flowing blood, passes it through a purifier, and pumps it back into a vein through a needle, similar to those for transfusions of blood plasma.

Gregory has registered his knife with the British patent office and expects the patent to be granted soon.

COUNTY 4-H GIRLS TO RECEIVE AWARDS

Hancock County 4-H club girls who do an outstanding job in their projcets and special activities this year will receive medals through the 1949 4-H club award program.

The medals will be given to the outstanding girls at the end of the club year, according to Elsie Mae Van Wert, county extension economist. She said that the awards will be given in recognition of good work and not as prizes in contests.

Members of girl' 4-H clubs who are selected to receive the county medals also will be eligible for state, sectional and national awards, Miss Van Wert said. These include trips to the National 4-H club congress, savings bonds, scholarships and other worthwhile awards, she explained.

First in the list of awards which will be given to Hancock County girls' club members is the medal of honor to be presented to the 4-H club girl with the outstanding record book. The gold-filled medal will be presented by Montgomery Ward and Company of Chicago.

The girl who makes the outstanding record in canning also will receive a gold-filled medal of honor, Miss Van Wert said. It will be given by Kerr Glass Manufacturing Corporation of Sand Springs, Oklahoma. The Spool Cotton Company of New York, N. Y., will present a gold-filled medal to the Hancock County 4-H club girl making the outstanding record in clothing project.

The County 4-H girl ranking top in frozen food work will receive a goldfilled medal of honor from the International Harvester Company of Chicago. Girls interested in dairy foods will be eligible for gold-filled medals to be given to the individual and team with the best dairy foods demonstration.

A set of eight pyrex cereal bowls will be awarded to the outstanding Hancock County 4-H club girl in general foods work.

U. S. Pipe Smokers Will Benefit Because Iturbi Burned Hand

NEW YORK.—Mankind, or that portion of it which smokes a pipe, will benefit because Jose Iturbi burned his valuable fingers tamping his pipe.

The story of the evolution of an automatic spring tamper has just been told. It is attached to the top of the pipe along with a perforated metal top which permits the pipe to "breathe" while being tamped.

Iturbi, concert pianist, conductor and motion picture actor, was in the MGM commissary a year or more ago, it seems, when he complained to Joe Pasternak, the director, that he was burning his fingers. He is in inveterate pipe smoker, in or out of the movies.

Pasternak, George Sidney, another director, and Arthur Freed, a song writer, were lunching with Iturbi and decided something ought to be done about it. They drew possible designs on the tablecloth. Freed mentioned the matter to his brother-in-law, an engineer at the studio, and after a year's effort a new boon to mankind was evolved.

Other movie people evinced an interest and so the Pak-A-Pipe came into being.

But it was decided that after all they were movie people and not pipe dealers and a commercial outlet was sought. Joseph Ross of John Surrey Pipe, ltd., was contacted and his company purchased the device. The "everlit pipe" will soon be on the market.

The device, Ross believes, will revolutionize the pipe industry. It permits tamping with a simple pressing of the thumb without burning fingers or the pipe going out. He did not say it does away with smudgy pencil ends employed by pipe smokers who learned long ago with Iturbi that tamping burns the fingers.

Ultrasonic Devices Seen As New Aid to Industry

NORTH HOLLWYOOD, CALIF.—An experimenter in a small laboratory here is head over heels in ultrasonics, the new science of sound that you can't hear.

The process he's perfecting, he says, may one day revolutionize industrial work, such as recovery of pure metal from ore, the hardening of steel and the sterilization of food. Someday you may wash clothes, instantly, with sound. It will mix paint, and keep it mixed.

The experimenter, Jack Hibbard of Los Angeles, has been a mining operator, oil driller and manufacturer for 24 years.

He got into ultransonics in trying to find a new method of extracting pure graphite from ore in a deposit near Lake Hughes, Calif.

He says he has produced 99.8% pure carbon flake graphite with sound.

Hibbard's associate is Hal C. Thomas of Los Angeles, business executive of their unincorportated general sound laboratories.

The partners have surrounded themselves with consulting experts, engineers, electronics men, chemists and metallurgists.

Independence Hall Opened By Boy Scout With Old Key

WESTFIELD, N. J.,—They may have to change the lock on Independence hall in Philadelphia, a spokesman at the shrine admitted because a 12-year-old Westfield Boy Scout opened the door of the hall, for which there is supposed to be but one key in existence, with an old one he found at home.

The boy, Hugh Williams, accompanied a group of Cub Scouts from near-by Cranford on a visit to Independence hall. After a guide pointed impressively and told the visitors "There's the only key in existence that will open the door of Independence Hall," Hugh pulled a large key from his pocket. "Here's one that will open the door," he announced. To humor the boy, a guard locked the door and allowed Hugh to step outside. To the astonishment of all, the scout unlocked the door in a few seconds.

Milwaukee Whistle Ban Lifted for U. S. Boats

MILWAUKEE.—Since 1914 almost every boat that has entered Milwaukee harbor has whistled defiance of local law.

A city ordinance provides that whistles can be used only as signals for bridge openings. Recently it was amended to permit five long toots as a fire warning.

But federal law requires whistle signals for passing, blind turns and other harbor activities. Tugs always have used whistles as signals, and every single toot has been a violation of the city's ordinance.

Commander E. J. Roland, acting commander of the 9th Coast Guard district, discovered the situation the other day and called it to the attention of Alan Steinmetz, an assistant city attorney. Saturday Steinmetz sent to the common council a proposed amendment to the ordinance exempting federal requirements from the local ban.

USEFUL

Mrs. Ben Mead of Oakland received a Mother's Day gift last year which is not only ornamental but productive, a "dwarf" Clunics lemon tree, which this year is bearing a number of sizeable lemons.

TWO LEGS

In Adams county, a colt with two normal hind legs—but no front ones—was foaled by a mare belonging to Earl Steele. The colt was well and "chopper" but Mr. Steele, in kindness, destroyed the little animal.

DIPLOMA

At Chariton, young farm wife, Mrs. Arthur Cain has received her high school diploma, which she earned the hard way. Six years ago she started to high school there but was forced to withdraw, due to illness. Since then she has kept up her work through a correspondence school in Chicago and has finally received the prized sheepskin.

FORTUNE TELLER

A fortune-teller was the victim of his own inability to read the future at Grinnell recently He took out a license in the name of "Madam Martin." What he didn't foresee was that he would be unable to find a location for his trailer so he returned to the city hall for a refund Officials every cheerfully gave "Madam" his money back

NEEDLE

Some 23 years ago, Mrs. Gerrit Van Donkelaar of Sioux Center had and infection in her hand and an x-ray picture showed the point of a needle lodged there The infection cleared up and the needle was forgotten until recently, when it worked its way out of the tip of her first finger, after having apparently traveled from its original position in the second finger

SWIM

Ralph Davis, Lineville banker, had his memory freshened up a little bit recently on what happens when you stand up in boats. He bought a new one while trying it out in Gun Club Lake decided to stand up for awhile. Over he went.

Counterfeit Hail Tested On Growing Soybean Crops

Studies of the damage hailstorms may do to growing crops of soybeans, made by the U S. department of agriculture and the Iowa experiment station through measuring the effects of artificial leaf removal and reduction of the stand by cutting out plants, have shown little loss unless damage is severe The investigators found that before the crop came into bloom they could remove up to half the foliage or cut out up to half the plants over the field—comparable to damage from a fairly severe hailstorm—with little or no reduction in yield.

But after bloom stage this simulated hail damage cut down yield, the farther the crop was along the greater the reduction.

The agronomists reason that this result sheds light on the probable effect on yield of damage to the crop from other causes, such as grasshoppers or other leaf-eating insects or diseases that damage leaves. They concluded their results should be helpful in deciding between different cultivation practices.

They call attention to the fact that many farmers do not use the rotary hoe, the spike-tooth harrow, or the weeder on young soybean plants because of the supposed yield reducing damage. From the insignificant yield losses shown in the leaf and plant reductions up to 50 per cent, they feel sure there is small risk of loss in using these implements up to the time the plants are four or five inches tall.

Meteors Fall in Siberia; Heard for Thousand Miles

A meteoric swarm fell in northern Siberia on June 30, 1908. The earth shock produced was detected on a seismograph at Irkutsk, some 300 miles distant, while the air wave was recorded on a sensitive barograph in England The sound was heard nearly a thousand miles away, according to scientists of the G. E. research laboratory

Because of World War I and the inaccessibility of the location, no detailed study was made until 1927, when an expedition of the Russian academy of sciences, headed by L. A. Kulik, reached the spot. They found a region several miles in diameter, within which there were some 200 craters, varying from one to fifty yards in diameter For miles around the trees had been uprooted and blown over, their trunks all pointing away from the center and scorched by the wave of compressed and heated air. A full report was published later by the academy.

Written Farm Leases

Written farm leases are not a cure for unhealthy landlord-tenant relations . . . but they do have many advantages. H. W Hannah, a member of the Illinois bar and a staff member of the University of Illinois college of agriculture, says that written leases are apt to be thought through very carefully. They furnish a written record of what the parties agreed upon at the time the lease was made. Such a record tends to establish farm management practices much more definitely than oral agreements do A written lease protects the interest of the estate and the tenant or landlord in case of the death of either party And if certain facts are questioned, the lease serves as the source of proof.

Restudy of Lincoln in 1949

For a restudy of Lincoln in 1949 there is no problem more important than his approach to questions of peace and war, according to J G Randall, University of Illinois professor of English and noted Lincoln author. Questioned on the present significance of Lincoln's attitude, Dr. Randall said. "He did not regard war as an instrument of policy. You 'cannot fight always,' Lincoln said, 'and when you cease fighting, the identical old questions . . . are again upon you.' As to military 'glory' he had no illusions He compared such glory to 'that attractive rainbow that rises in showers of blood—that serpent's eye that charms to destroy.'"

How Sauerkraut Is Made

In making sauerkraut, about 2 per cent of salt is added to the shredded cabbage and it is packed in large vats. The salt draws out sugar and other nutrients from the cabbage, forming a juice which is a good medium for the development of bacteria that are generally plentiful on the cut shreds. These bacteria cause the fermentation and convert the sugar into lactic acid, which is one of the most important constituents. Small amounts of acetic acid and ethyl alcohol are also formed.

Flue Linings in Chimneys

Clay flue lining is used to form a single, continuous, fireproof unit inside all types of chimneys. It prevents weather, heat and corrosive smokes and gases from eating away the mortar between the bricks of the chimney, thus eliminating the danger of flames reaching combustible materials through possible cracks. Because of its effectiveness, most communities now protect their citizens with ordinances requiring flue linings to be installed in all new chimneys.

Persian Gulf's Sea Life Surveyed by Scientist

A collection of more than 5,000 fishes and other sea animals of the Persian gulf has been brought back to the U. S. National museum by Donald S. Erdman of the staff of the Smithsonian institution.

Mr Erdman carried out a survey of the sea life of this region under the sponsorship of the Arabian-American Oil company. The gulf is of particular interest to biologists because it is probably the hottest body of salt water in the world. Water temperatures in mid - summer reach over 100 degrees Fahrenheit. The gulf might be considered an arm of the Indian ocean. It is exceptionally shallow, however, and is connected with the great sea by a narrow channel.

One result of this is that its water remains much hotter than that of the ocean in general. Consequently its sea life, so far as number of species is concerned, is much sparser. The species which have been able to adapt themselves to the warm water, however, often are very numerous as individuals.

Notable among the fishes brought back by Mr. Erdman are "sea moths." They are little brown creatures with large fins, which spend most of their lives on the surface and look like large moths which have settled on the water. Presumably they live chiefly on small aquatic Crustacea.

Notable also are the "fool fishes," so stupid and sluggish that they make no effort to escape, even when a bright light is shone on them at night.

Life Insurance Bought In 1948 Breaks Record

Life insurance in the United States has made greater gains in recent years than in any comparable period of its history. More new life insurance was purchased here in 1947 than the total owned at the end of the year in the United Kingdom, which ranks second to the United States in the amount of such insurance held throughout the world. New life insurance purchased in 1948 in this country amounted to $22.7 billion, bringing the total owned at the end of the year to $201 billion, the highest ever reported and more than the aggregate estimated to be owned in 1940 throughout the world. The total is still less, however, than the annual national income in recent years. United States families bought about as much life insurance in 1948 as the total in force here in 1915.

The number of policies owned in the United States now exceeds 189 million, and the amount of insurance per family averages nearly $5,000, almost twice the 1924 level.

Smallpox Certificates

All American tourists crossing the borders of continental United States for any destination, including Mexico, Cuba, Bermuda and Nassau must now have smallpox vaccination certificates for inoculation within the preceding three years before they can re-enter this country, Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club, warns. Removing exemptions of returning United States travelers from smallpox vaccination certificates, the new regulation was formulated by the International World Health organization. Concurred in by the United States and a majority of countries, the regulation means that a United States citizen must obtain a vaccination certificate even though the country to which he is traveling does not have such a requirement.

Allergic Animals

Animals, like people, suffer from allergies of various types. Some dogs are unable to tolerate salmon, horse meat, or wheat products, and nearly all species of domestic animals are susceptible to allergic skin diseases. Occasionally, animals get an allergic reaction from drugs, such as penicillin. Most cases of allergy in the large farm animals are traceable to grazing on certain kinds of pastures, including sweet clover, buckwheat, and sudan grass, followed by exposure to bright sunlight. This condition usually is called photosensitization.

Study Vibrations of Jets

An instrument which can measure as many as 300 vibrations per second is enabling engineers to study vibrations of jet engines in flight. The vibration meter, developed in the G-E general engineering and consulting laboratory at Schenectady, registers the amplitude, velocity, and acceleration of the vibrations. The detector itself is a cylinder three inches high and two inches in diameter, which converts vibrations of the engine into electrical impulses.

New Spanish Study Guide

Prof. Olie S. Bandy, head of the Spanish department at Florida Southern college, has recently presented a new type of Spanish study guide to the members of the teaching profession. The study guide emphasizes the oral approach, correct pronunciation, accurate understanding of both oral and written expressions and thinking in Spanish. Grammatical forms and rules are not forgotten, but are taught inductively as the need for such information develops.

THE IOWA MARKET RANKS

MORE RAIN!

This community had some more good showers late Monday and Monday night. Just what the farmers have been wanting!

House Cats Destructive To Wildlife

The house cat has long been recognized by conservationists as destructive to wildlife, with some biologists oven going so far as to state that cats destroy more game, especially young birds and animals, than all other predators combined. Cats selected for their mouse catching ability are useful if kept in their proper place, but should never be allowed to run in the wild, especially in May and June when young song and game birds are almost helpless.

Study Group Held Meeting With Mrs. Greiman

The Liberty Women's Study group held their yearly book club meeting last Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Ben V. Greiman. We discussed the books read this year and made plans for continuing reading for the rest of the summer. The remainer of the evening was turned over to our International Relations, Mrs. Floyd Greiman, who introduced Mrs. James Cooper as speaker. Mrs. Cooper gave us a very interesting informal talk on her home country of England.

One of the many interesting things told by Mrs. Cooper was the difficulty she and her family had in learing what to do with popcorn. They were first advised to soak it in cold water and then hot water. They then asked an American soldier, who told then to use hot grease not telling them how much popcorn to use so they poured in the whole can with results you can well imagine.

INTERVIEWS

This week we will complete our series of interviews.

The first teacher we interviewed is Mr T. G Ahrenkiel, Supt of schools here this year Before coming to Klemme, he taught one year at Whitten, one year at Radcliff and two years at Hubbard Mr Ahrenkiel attended high school at Goodell and College at Drake University He has a Bachelor of Science degree and has 20 hours toward a Master's Degree He was in the Army Air Force for four years and at the time of his discharge he was a Capt. His hobby is fishing and he has a liking for all sports in general Because of his liking for sports and his desire to be a coach, he chose teaching for his profession.

Next is Mr. W. E. Patterson, coach and Commercial teacher in high school. He has taught five years and all of those have been here in Klemme He attended high school at Seneca Consolidated and graduated with a Bachelor of Science from the Iowa State Teachers College His major was in Physical Education. He was also in the service for 38 months, with 19 of those across in the European theater and he was a 1st Lt at the time of his discharge. He chose teaching as a profession because he wanted to coach athletics His hobby is sports and all sports are his favorite

Our third interview is Mr C W Randall, who teaches English, World History, and Manual Training in high school. His home town is Mason City He went to high school in Mason City and also took one year of college at Mason Junior College Then he took 3 years at Iowa State Teachers College where he majored in Economics and graduated with a Bachelor of Arts Degree. This is Mr Randalls' first year of teaching Reading is his hobby and tennis is his favorite sport.

The last faculty member we interviewed was Mr Stanley Bulka. He is the band director in Klemme and also directs the Alexander band He attended high school at Edison High School in Minneapolis. For his college work, he went to Mac Phail College of Music and the University of Minnesota He holds two degrees, Bachelor of Music Education and Bachelor of Arts with his major in the violin He has 3 quarters of his Master's Degree and has gone one summer to Drake University Besides teaching in Klemme two years he has taught at Conder, South Dakota one year, six months in a public school in Minneapolis and one year at Wells, Minn He was also in the Army four years and worked himself up to the rank of Capt He played in the Army Band for a year and a half and was in England for one year and a half His hobby is playing in dance bands. He has no particular sport, but he likes to see a good football game

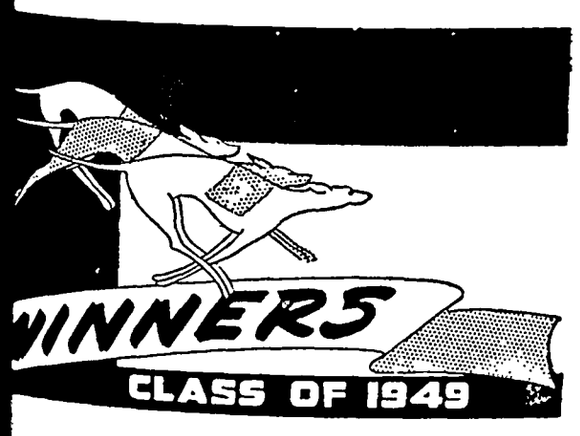
These following poems were written by the 5th and 6th Grade Reading classes

I really got the jink
In the roller rink
I got tossed here and there
Throughout the air
When I wanted to skate around
They threw me to the ground.
—By Beverly DeMerritt

Teaches jolly
Teachers gay
She smiles at us
Every day
She helps us with our studies
She wipes away each tear
What will we do next year
Without our teacher dear.
—By Lois Boland

Way up in the sky so high
You can see the birds fly by
Some stop to build a nest
But others only stop to rest.
—By Warren Terhufen

The fifth, sixth, seventh, and eighth enjoyed a skating party at Forest City Roller Rink last Tuesday, May 10th. Douglas Jones and Terry Koerner wiped the floor clean for the rest to fall down. There was one bad accident, Dick Dulmes fell and broke his wrist.



You're out in front.
Stay there.

Strandloopers Not Extinct, S. W. African Official Says

Extinction of the primitive strandloopers of Africa, like Mark Twain's death, may have been exaggerated, according to a report from the administrator of southwest Africa. Traveling in the coastal Namib desert, near Zesfontein, this official of the Union of South Africa's trusteeship territory tells of coming on remnants of the Strandlooper group long referred to as extinct in most reference and ethnological books. The name "Strandlooper" means shore runner, notes the National Geographic society. It indicates the way of life of these people who have been always associated with coastal regions.

Racially, the strandloopers are linked with the African Bushmen and Hottentots. Some ethnologists call them a group of Bushmen who simply adapted their lives to their coastal environment.

Today's Strandloopers are reported still to be living in the primitive fashion ascribed to their ancestors, eating shellfish baked in ashes, and adding to their meager diet such delicacies as small rodents, lizards and insects.

Their surroundings are harsh and inhospitable. The Namib desert, west and southwest of the Zesfontein settlement, stretches its desolate length 850 miles along the Atlantic coast of southwest Africa.

Peanuts High in Protein

Peanuts furnish high quality protein and more of the B vitamin, niacin, than any other nut. A handful of peanuts and an apple is the best kind of between-meal snack. And you might try apple slices spread with peanut butter or celery stuffed with it. Chopped peanuts sprinkled on top of fruit or cabbage salad or served with puddings and ice cream, add a nice touch. For home candies, try peanut brittle or clusters of peanuts dipped in chocolate.

Duplication of No. 20 Oil

It is not possible to duplicate No. 20 oil by mixing kerosene with No. 30 oil. Kerosene generally contains components that evaporate much more quickly than those used in lubricating oils. Some automobile makers recommend adding kerosene to lubricating oils for use at extremely low temperatures. In such a case, the manufacturers' directions should be followed.

GOOD AS NEW

Mrs. H. G. Miller of Tripoli has a 100-year old German clock, brought to this country some thirty years ago. A jeweler who recently put the clock in running order reports that there has been "no wear" on the clock's 15 jewels—and best of all the clock will run 400 days without re-winding.

FAMILY AFFAIR

When Mrs. Mario Minnel posed for her bridal picture recently, eight of the ten people in the bridal party were her brothers and sisters. Only one member of the family was the bridegroom and of course, the ceremony took care of that.

DIGGER

When a tractor overturned on Kathryn Pewitt, young farm woman from Wapello, the former Wave just got busy and dug her way out from under, using a piece of steel found on the tractor. Her leg was fractured.

FEMALE PEACE ORGANIZATION WOULD . . .

Why Not Let the Ladies Take Over UN's Job?

. . . SOLVE THE GROMYKO PROBLEM PRONTO

By H. I. PHILLIPS

LET THE GALS TAKE OVER!

Sen. Margaret Chase of Maine proposes that the women of the world form their own United Nations or other peace organization. Why not? Even if they didn't get peace the fighting would be easier on the eye. An international debate never loses anything through being photogenic.

The men have had their chance at bringing world peace and have sliced every shot, Senator Chase declares. We agree. This harassed world would feel better if it knew that its future was in the hands of somebody who could at least bake a cake.

No matter how deep the planet's faith in those men delegates ever got there was always the realization that they really didn't know how to replace a lost shirt button.

It seems to us that the men might well be called off the peace job and the women sent in. In four years the men haven't even made anybody turn around and look at them. Not a delegate has had a song written to him. There hasn't been a heartthrob in a carload.

U N. has no glamour. For one person who can name the head of the organization 1,000 can name the young woman who was Miss Somebody's Beer for 1948.

If the women formed a peace organization, took over U.N. and sent the men home to look after the kids, put out the cat and do other things not subject to the veto, the peace movement would immediately acquire immense affection and devotion.

Maybe what the world needs is a League that can be whistled at!

We can see swift results. A female U.N. would get a bigger play in all the newspapers and magazines. It would probably make the cover of Life. It would even make television, which is the ultimate goal these days Whenever interest in the organization tailed off the delegates could be photographed in beach attire or endorsing a girdle.

A woman's United Nations would solve the Gromyko problem pronto. There has never been a time when one woman could veto 1,000 other women and live.

What can men do when the world is ornery? Nothing. But in a showdown the women could get what they want merely by flashing a two-word message to all women everywhere: "Stop cooking!" And they could follow that up with an order to the girls to refuse to answer the universal question, "Where did you put the aspirin, Nellie?"

— o —

To cap it all they could say, "Not a bed will be made or a sock washed until the armies of the earth disband."

Gangway for the ladies! They will know the right perfumery. And if, by any chance, they muddled things up even more, the muddle would at least have that certain something

CUFF STUFF

President Truman threw out the first ball at the opening of the baseball season in Washington. It was a Blair House twister with alternating altitude and depth, and everybody can now understand why he feels control is so mandatory to the American system.

Can you remember away back when the flags in a college student's room did not include picket banners?

The Blair House, now occupied by the president as a temporary White House, has been piped for music from a corporation rendering this service to hotels and restaurants. Does this mean Mrs. Truman and Margaret are in an all-out move to discourage Harry at the piano?

Elm trees a half century old have been carted in from the country and planted along Fifth ave We feel sorry for them. It's a little late in life to start afresh in New York. We saw one of the trees on a truck preparatory to planting and distinctly heard it moan, "New York is all right for a visit, but I'd hate to live there"

NIGHT

THANK God for night, with its great gift of sleep,
More wonderful than all His gifts to men!
For stars that walk the dreamways, and that keep
Their wide-eyed watch until dawn breaks again.
Thank God for blessed silence down the land,
More soothing than the drip of summer rain;
For darkness, soft and cool as some dear hand
Laid on a forehead feverish with pain.

Oh, only those who carry sleepless scars
Can know how sweet sleep is that comes at last;
And only the eyes that have looked long at stars
Have learned night's secret as it marches past,
Have learned to know how quiet God must keep
To guide an earth through stars that men may sleep.

STAGE—SCREEN—RADIO

By INEZ GERHARD

JIM AND MARIAN Jordan had been in and out of small-time show business for several years when a $10 bet landed them on the radio. They were visiting Jim's brother in Chicago when Jim remarked that he and Marian could do a better job of singing than any one on the radio program they were listening to; Jim's brother bet him $10 they couldn't. That was a lot of money to the Jordans then; they showed up at Station WIBO, and landed on the air. Five months later the radio job ended, and they went back to vaudeville. It was not until later that they became "Fibber McGee and Molly" in one of radio's top ranking radio series.

Dr. Henry Darlington, Rector of New York's Church of the Heavenly Rest, recently appeared as family counselor on "The Second Mrs. Burton." Listening to the singing commercials, he remarked, "If churches used a device as catchy as this, I could guarantee standing room only." No doubt he went home and asked the cook to try those seven delicious flavors.

Burt Lancaster is back in the circus; he finished "Rope of Sand" and headed for Louisville, Ky., and the Cole Brother's circus, to do an acrobatic act with his former partner, Nick Cravat; will appear with it in 26 cities.

Howard "Sam Spade" Duff relived a scary experience when he and other members of the "Partners in Crime" cast were flying to Universal-International's location in Tucson. The plane shook violently, and one engine went dead. Finally landed on the remaining three. When he was in the South Pacific during the war, Duff was in a plane that encountered severe headwinds, threatened to run out of gas. He admits that he was as scared as anybody else, but he took out some cards and started a poker game.

The Fiction Corner

POACHERS OUTWITTED

By Richard H. Wilkinson

IT HAPPENED that young Glen Lloyd was the only warden on duty when Chief Fred Mather received word that poachers were doing a wholesale business in moose meat up in Birchill county. Glen was a rookie on the job. As yet he'd had no contact with either the hardships or the dangers of a north woods game warden. Chief Mather decided to use discretion

"You go up there and do some reconnoitering," he told the youth "You'll find a base camp under a cliff near the headwaters of the Beaver. Make this your headquarters until Warden Loomis arrives. He'll tell you how to proceed." Chief Mather drummed with his pencil. "Don't take any chances, son. I've an idea that Moe Stanford's behind this ring. He's a bad actor."

3-Minute Fiction

Glen reached the base cabin two days later. The ground was covered with a six-inch fall of snow

Glen waited two days more and then decided to take matters into his own hands. Armed with his service pistol and a flashlight he concealed himself near the tote road on top of a ridge where the progress of the truck would have to be slow. It was bitterly cold and a brisk wind was blowing. Also there was the promise of snow in the air.

Midnight came and went and Glen's spirits ebbed low. Cursing himself for delaying action, Glen was about to quit his hiding place when he heard distantly the roar of an automobile motor.

He waited until the driver was shifting gears for the final pull, then stepped out into the glare of the lights. He held his gun in one hand. The badge on his sheepskin coat was plainly visible.

Instead of stopping, the driver bore down on the accelerator. The truck roared straight at the warden. Glen stepped to one side, barely avoiding being hit, and as the heavy machine lumbered by he swung himself onto the running board. He clung there perilously for a moment, then something hit him on the head, he heard an angry curse, and went spinning of into space.

Fifteen minutes later he emerged on to the same tote road where it doubled back on itself. The lights from the truck were already sweeping up the incline.

GLEN CROUCHED behind a boulder, glad that the darkness was so intense He waited until the truck had crawled by, then ran after it. He caught the tailboard and hoisted himself up. Two men were standing up front, leaning over the cab. The noise of the motor had drowned out sounds of his approach.

Reversing his service gun, Glen crept up behind the men, felled one of them and grappled with the other. The scuffle was short-lived Taken completely by surprise the poacher was at a disadvantage. Stunned by the blow which he tried to dodge, he fell against the cab and slumped to his knees when Glen struck out a second time.

The warden handcuffed the two men to an upright in the truck, then approached the cab. There was a small window in its rear. Through this Glen thrust his gun, splintering the glass. The two men inside turned to find themselves staring into the gun's muzzle.

Warden Loomis, trekking northward to join young Glen Lloyd, was astonished to find a truck on the old tote road. The truck stopped and a friendly, boyish voice greeted him.

"Hi, Joe," Glen yelled "Put some bracelets on these birds in front, will you? My hand's so stiff from holding this gun I can't move it—let alone pull the trigger."

When Chief Mather heard the story he wrote a personal letter to Supervisor Herrick, complimenting the supervisor on his choice of men.

Will a schizophrenic get well without treatment?

Answer: It is not uncommon for a mentally sick person to have "lucid intervals" in which for some unknown reason the conflicts that cause his illness have subsided for the moment, but where the change has involved no "insight" into the source of his difficulties, the improvement is apt to be temporary and uncertain. Although there's no certainty that even this will cure him permanently, every schizophrenic should have psychiatric treatment, and the earlier in his illness he is hospitalized, the better his chances of recovery.

The New York City committee on mental hygiene recently interviewed 314 men rejected and 309 men discharged for mental and emotional disabilities in World War II. They found that the great majority of these cases were made up of those who had a neurosis (thinking an ailment is present where no ailment exists) and those who had an "odd" personality.

An important point discovered was that many of the men who were shown that they needed help from the mental and emotional standpoint refused treatment "because of the fear and scorn popularly associated with these disorders."

Psychiatrists were able to help some cases by assuring them that they were not crazy, "slap happy," "loco" or "wacky." Even after everything was explained to them and that, if necessary, care and treatment would be free, only 26 per cent accepted treatment.

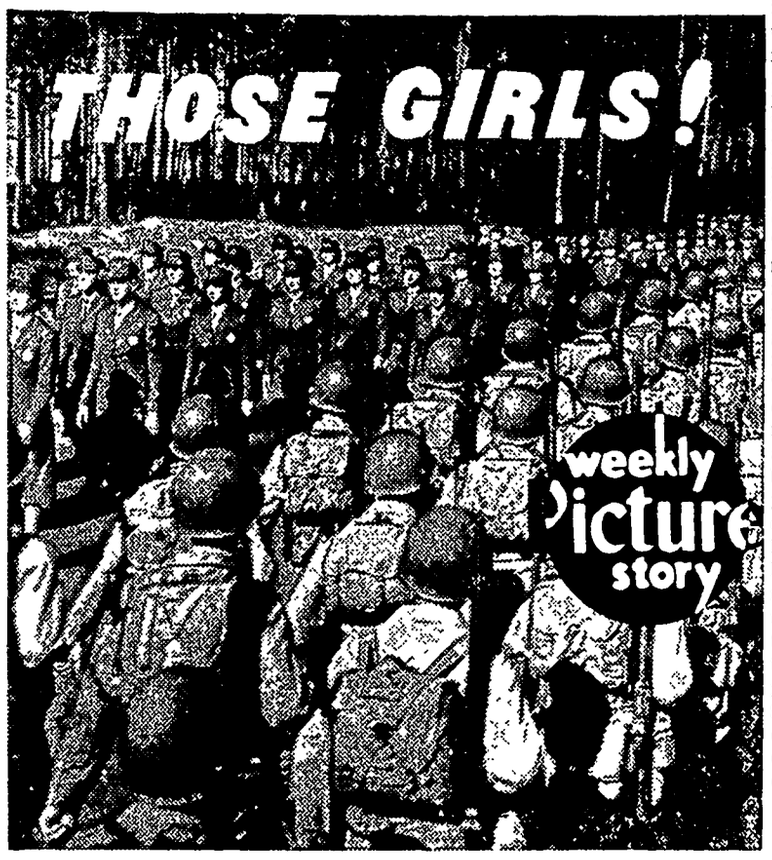
One of the phenomena of the late war was the superb manner in which women served in all branches of the armed forces. And not the least of these were the Women Marines, who distinguished themselves so as to be honored with a place in the regular Marine corps. Above photo shows General C. B. Cates, commandant of the corps, administering the oath of enlistment to the first eight women to be enlisted in the regular Marine corps.



"Free a Marine to fight" was the watchword. Marines with full battle packs marched off to war, and Women Marines, trained to take their non-combatant jobs, marched in to Camp Lejeune, N. C. That picture (above) was repeated many times a month at Marine posts and stations throughout the country during the war.

At left, Col. Katherine Towle is congratulated by General Cates upon her appointment as director of women, U. S. Marine corps.

More than half of the entire Women's Reserve was assigned to the Marine air arm. The women took over virtually every type of ground job in aviation and performed with expert resourcefulness. Some of them were assigned the most exacting of tasks, like the Women Marines who learned how to pack parachutes at the Paramarine school during World War II (below.)

THE HOME TOWN REPORTER IN WASHINGTON

WALTER SHEAD, WNU Correspondent

Farm Plan Cited

SLOWLY but surely, day-by-day, the all-encompassing agricultural program of Secretary Charles F. Brannan is winning friends and influencing people.

This piece of legislation which the secretary declares involves no new concept, is the most refreshing the most challenging and the most dramatic idea which has been advanced for the benefit of agriculture in a decade.

It retains price supports as the farmers' equivalent of the laboring man's minimum wage, social security and collective bargaining; it makes farm income the base on which price supports are determined; it makes the parity base a 10-year period between 1939 and 1948 instead of that old out-moded base of 1909-1914; it recognizes the law of supply and demand, but also recognizes historically that it does not always work out on the agricultural industry; it recognizes "free enterprise," but also recognizes that the "free-er" it is, the more protection the individual farmer needs. It is a realistic program, and not a theoretic program; it recognizes, not only a duty to the farmer, but also a duty to the consumer to provide cheaper and more abundant foods; it recognizes a policy of abundant production, but points to the fact that we have just produced the largest corn crop on the second smallest acreage in history—we have just produced the largest potato crop on the smallest number of acres in 70 years. It recognizes that despite the over-all tremendous jump of farm income, the average net farm income last year was only $909 as compared to $1569 for the non-farm average, and despite the fact that the farmer received 160 percent of that theoretical parity.

Not only does the Brannan program seek to make agriculture stronger and sounder, it vizualizes the entire picture of agricultural life. Said Secretary Brannan:

"It would do little good to have a power line to the farmstead or a hospital in the community if the crop produced will not return enough money to enable the farmer to use the available services."

Leadership in the top farm organizations has been slow to endorse the Brannan program. Like most pieces of advanced thinking which moves forward off dead center, the program, among other things, has been called socialistic. It seems that most all liberal legislation these days is called socialistic, but insofar as this reporter is concerned, so long as no farmer sacrifices a freedom, so far as he does not lose any freedom he now has, and it is within the framework of the constitution, call it what you will.

"Oh, but the farmer is regimented under this program" is the charge. And the answer is there is no regimentation that is not now already on the statute books in the form of production adjustments, marketing quotas or agreements and the carrying out of reasonable conservation practices — practices upon which the farmers vote directly.

Gist of Proposal

The Brannan program contemplates (1) effective help and higher, steadier income for the farmer and his family; (2) fairness to consumers, processors, shippers, wholesalers and all others in the distribution system; (3) efficiency of operation at a cost commensurate with benefits to the nation; (4) It must serve to aid national security, high level employment, cooperation with other nations, encouragement of free-flowing world trade. And as a political stratagem, the program is powerful. It helps everybody—makes no one mad.

One thing is certain, the Brannan program caught the top farm leaders off base. None of them had contemplated the secretary would recommend any such program. Most believed his farm program would be a compromise somewhere between the high and low of the various price support plans. And the peculiar thing is the Brannan plan is so simple these farm leaders are figuratively kicking themselves for not thinking about it first.

At one meeting of 19 well-known agricultural leaders, all took potshots at the Brannan plan. Too costly, too idealistic, too socialistic, too this and too that. But the upshot was that 17 of the 19 said they intended to support it.

Hoey Sartorialist

The sartorical elegance of Sen. Clyde Hoey, of North Carolina, with his inevitable lapel flower, his high winged collar and swallow-tail coat, has held undisputed sway on Capitol Hill for the past five years. Now, however, a second-term congressman, W. Kingsland Macy, of New York, has won attention, if not for elegance of attire, at least for wearing a high stiff collar, the only one in the house And while he's a banker-broker, he's not the least stiff-necked.

Linoleum Over Sub-Floor

Question: Can rubber tiling or linoleum be laid over just a sub-flooring and must it be perfectly solid?

Answer: Sub-flooring is usually very rough, and frequently it is put down with open spaces between the boards. A floor of this type is not suitable as a base for rubber tile, linoleum or any other type of floor covering. For best results a sheet of plywood or a hard fibreboard should be put down over the rough flooring to provide a smooth, rigid base for the floor covering.

Worn-Off Chromium Plating

Question: The rungs of my chromium kitchen chairs have become rusted. Is there any way I can clean them?

Answer: The best thing to do with worn-off chromium plating is to have it re-plated. If you can get the chairs to a neighborhood plating shop, you could have this work done. It would improve the appearance of the chairs very much. Cleaning off the rust can be done, but it will not restore the original appearance of the chairs. You can soften the rust with a rust-removing preparation, on sale in many auto accessories stores.

OBITUARY OF TITUS DAVIS

Titus Davis, age 91 years, 9 months and 29 days, died Wednesday afternoon at the Krestwood Convalescent Home in Kansas City, Mo., Mr Davis had, until a few weeks ago, made his home with his daughter, Mrs. Hugh H. Chapman where he had resided for the past 19 years in Merriam.

Titus Davis was the son of Mary and David Davis and was born in Aberdare, Wales, on July 19, 1857. The family came to the United States in July, 1859, and settled on a farm in Sauk County, Wisconsin. Mr Davis, the father, fought in the Civil War and died in the Libby prison The family then moved to Pawnee City, Nebraska. Titus, the son, then taught school for a few years and later entered a large merchantile business with a Mr. J. R. Ervin as a bookeeper. On June 10, 1880 Titus Davis purchased a half interest in the business.

On January 23, 1884 he was united in marriage to Miss Ada Belle Nesbitt, and the couple lived on a farm near Pawnee City, Nebraska. To this union eight children were born: (one child having died in infancy); Mrs. Nona Chapman, Merriam, Kansas; David N. Davis and John C. Davis of Los Angeles, California; Mrs. Mary Jane Jorgenson, of Klemme, Iowa; Mrs. Erma Liebendorfer of Mason City, Iowa; T. E Davis of Omaha, Nebraska; and Mrs. Ruth Mendell of Long Beach, Cal. He also leaves five grand sons, and six great grand children. He is the last member of his immediate family.

Mr. Davis was always greatly interested in Church work and for many years he was Superintendent of the Sunday School at Pawnee City. When Mr. and Mrs. Titus Davis retired from the farm, they moved to Lincoln, Nebraska, where he was employed as city circulation manager of the Lincoln Journal. Mrs. Davis died at Lincoln, Nebraska and soon Mr. Davis went to Merriam to reside with his daughter, Mrs. Chapman. He was a Life Elder in the Westport Presbyterian Church and was a regular attendant until recently when his health began to fail.

During his early days, as a pioneer in Nebraska, Mr. Davis did his part in building up Pawnee County and was held in high esteem by the people in that community. He had a wide acquaintence in Merriam and made many friends during the past 19 years.

Funeral services for Mr. Davis were held at the Griffith Funeral Home on Friday afternoon at 4:00 o'clock with Dr. Baity of the Westport Presbyterian Church giving the funeral sermon.

Graveside services were held at the Pawnee City, Nebraska, cemetery on Saturday afternoon at 1:00 o'clock, and Mr. Davis was laid to rest beside his beloved wife, Ada Belle, and their small daughter in the family lot.

Little Cattle Feeders Met

The Little Cattle Feeders met at the home of Cleon and Phil Presthalt May 19th at 8 o'clock. Fifteen members answered roll call by naming an insect.

Mr. Olson gave us a very interesting talk on soil and the different kinds of fertilizer to use on different kinds of soil.

We also discussed our club tour which will be June 21st. Plans were made to have a weiner roast and ball game at Goodell on May 31st. Caroll made a motion the meeting adjourned and Lenard second the motion. A delicious lunch was then served.

MR. AND MRS. LESTER BUSEMAN CELEBRATE 9TH ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Buseman celebrated their ninth wedding anniversary Sunday but did not look for their relatives to stage a surprise party for them. The following came to their home with baskets of food for a nice meal:

Melvin Buseman and family; Wayne Buseman and family; Erwin Buseman and family; Mr. and Mrs. George Buseman; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Roths; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Buseman and Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Hrubes and son. All enjoyed a fine time and Mr. and Mrs. Lester Buseman were remembered with gifts.

WANT FARMERS TO KEEP PART OF LAST YEAR'S CORN CROP

Washington— The agriculture department hopes to get farmers to hold onto several hundred million bushels of last year's price-supported corn crop instead of delivering it to the government this fall.

Farmers who put 1948-crop corn under price support will be offered a storage payment, probably 10 cents a bushel, to hold the corn another year, department officails said Monday

The plan is the same system used to handle prewar surpluses It is designed to:

1. Provide farm-stored reserves to meet future meat production needs, in event of a short corn crop in the future.

2. Relieve the headache the government would have in finding a place to put all the corn that otherwise might be dumped into its lap.

Corn stocks now are at an all-time high for this time of year, as a result of last year's record-smashing crop. Agriculture officials aren't concerned about surplus, yet. They say it's in the national interest to have a sizable reserve. They cite the short crop of 1947 as a major cause for the record high meat prices that came later.

An estimated 700,000,000 bushels of last year's 3,650,000,000 bushel crop is expected to be on hand when the new crop comes in next October. As of March 31, there were 295,000,000 bushels under price support protection. By the June 30 deadline, officials believe the total under price support will hit 500,000,000 bushels.

This is corn pledged to the government as collateral for price support loans, or corn which the government has agreed to buy at the support price. The loans always are made at the support price. The farmer doesn't have to pay off the loan. He can let the government have the corn.

Twin Lake Girls To 4-H District Camp

Betty Dempsy and Barbara Boller were selected by the members of the Twin Lake Go-Getters club to attend the District 4-H camp at Clear Lake June 14-16 at their regular meeting Wednesday evening, May 18th. The meeting was held at Faye Janssen's home.

Virginia Veldhouse and Barbara Boller are to sing in the County Chorus Rally Day, June 7th. Betty Johnson was chosen to attend the State 4-H Convention at Iowa State College at Ames June 21-24 with Barbara Ostendorf as alternate.

Mrs. Kenneth Johnson, 4-H leader, demonstrated the making of white cake with the electric mixer. Faye Janssen gave a talk on Selection of Fruits and Vegetables for salads.

Miss Van Wert, County Extension Home Economist, and Mrs. Carl Wille, District 4-H Committee woman, were guests at the meeting.

SYLVIA EGELAND SELECTED TO ATTEND GIRLS STATE

The Klemme American Legion Auxiliary has selected Sylvia Egeland to attend the Fourth Annual Hawkeye Girls State to be held at Grinnell College, Grinnell, June 19 through June 25th.

To be eligible to attend a girl must be ready to enter her senior year in school, be in the upper half of her class and meet other qulifications.

Before coming to Klemme Sylvia was active at Calumet in music, newspaper work, forensic contests and literature. She is a member of the Klemme band. Sylvia is the daughter of Rev. E. M. Egeland, pastor of the Klemme Methodist Church.

WEDDING ANNOUNCED—

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss LaVonne Katter, daugther of Mrs. Ruth Katter of Garner, and Merle Etchen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Etchen of Klemme, performed at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, May 15 by the Rev. G. J. Kupke, who read the double ring ceremoney.

Nuptial music was played by Mrs. Mildred Potter who also accompanied the soloist, Donna Hoes. Dale Meyer and Ronald Swanson, cousins of the couple, were candlelighters. Miss Rachel Katter, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, Miss Luella Katter, sister of the bride, and Miss Norma Hellesland, bridesmaids, Kay Getchel, flower girl and Marvin Hrubes, ringbearer. The bridegroom was attended by his brothers, Winton and Carroll Etchen.

A reception for 175 guests was held in the church parlors following the ceremony.

After a short wedding trip, the couple is at home in Garner. The bride was graduated from the Garner high school and is employed by the Northwestern Bell Telephone Company. Bridegroom was graduated from Klemme high school and, after serving in the armed forces for about 2 years, is engaged in farming.

Transportation Arranged For The Auxiliary Ladies

Transportation has been arranged for the Auxiliary Ladies attending Memorial Day Services at the Park. Cars will be ready to take them from the Park to the Cemetery where the services will be continued.

POPPY DAY FLOWERS ARRIVE FROM HOSPITAL

"The poppies are here!"

This is the word which flashed through the ranks of the Klemme Unit of the American Legion Auxiliary today, when a shipment of memorial poppies to be worn here on Poppy Day, May 28th, arrived from Des Moines Veterans Hospital, where they were made by disabled war veterans.

Members of the Auxiliary's Poppy Committee, headed by Mrs Ernest E. Lewis, Chairman, quickly assembled at the Legion Hall The box of poppies was opened and the work of counting and arranging begun, to make them ready for the Klemme Girl Scouts who will distribute them throughout Kemme on Poppy Day.

The poppies, made of crepe paper with wire stems, are exact replicas of the wild poppies which grew "between the crosses row on row" in the battle cemeteries in France and Belgium during World War I, Mrs Lewis explained.

"They were nature's floral tribute to those who died," she said, "and as soon as The American Legion and Auxiliary were organized after the war, we made them our memorial flower. When more young Americans gave their lives in Europe's poppy-studded fields in World War II, the poppy became their memorial flower, too, and now signifies remembrance for America's war dead, no matter in what part of the world they gave their lives."

The poppies received here are the work of disabled veterans in the Des Moines hospital. The veterans not only earn badly needed money making the little red flowers, but the employment is considered valuable as occupational therapy.

"SMOKIE" JONES INJURED IN FALL FROM TELEPHONE POLE TUESDAY

While working at the top of a rural telephone pole near the Meints farm just west of Klemme Tuesday afternoon, "Smokie," son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Jones was injured, when the pole snapped off near the bottom. Jones was unable to release his safety belt and fell with the pole, and onto the cross-arm as the pole struck the ground.

He was given first aid by a local doctor and then taken to a Mason City hospital for x-ray to determine if he suffered from any fractured bones or internal injury. His condition this morning was reported good and his injuries were minor and no bones were broken.

On Vacation To Texas

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Jorgenson, Jr. and children left Saturday evening on a two or three weeks vacation trip. They stopped at Kansas City for a day's visit at the Hugh Chapman home and then drove to Atlas, Oklahoma where they will spend a few days visiting Mrs. Jorgenson's sister and family and then will go on to Amherst, Texas for a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Vaughter. They also expect to visit another sister and family at Carlsbad, New Mexico.

Tragedy of Self-Pity

ONCE, when I was first married, I went with my husband to dine with some friends of his, a married couple unknown to me until then.

He had told me that the wife was a brillant woman, but unlucky. She had many gifts but she didn't seem able to succeed with any venture, even in the great city where everyone we knew was either painting, or singing, acting, dancing, or writing—writing anything; essays, stories, poems, advertisements, scenarios. Not everyone was successful then, but everyone confidently expected to be, sooner or later, and almost everyone was.

But not Olive I knew her for 25 years after that first bridal dinner and she never did anything except talk about her bad luck. She played the piano delightfully; she was one of the wittiest women I ever knew, but somehow she got small pleasure out of either gift, and even socially she was always left behind.

Thought Only of Self

Her trouble was that she could think of nothing but herself, and of what everyone else was thinking of her. That everyone else might possibly have something better to think of never crossed her mind. Olive was self-centered. Like all self-centered women she was abnormally sensitive and managed to make anything and everything that was said in her hearing immediately applicable to herself.

So at the first dinner, when we were both young women, poor, ambitious, adventurous, determined that New York should give us the opportunity it had given so many others, Olive was obsessed with trifles. She apologized for the dinner napkins; she fluttered about the shortage of forks, she interrupted the conversation, just as it got under way, with nervous asides to her husband and to the bewildered amateur waitress who had been hired for the occasion. If a guest hesitated one second in attacking his food, Olive's eager apologies were there.

"You don't like mint sauce? Oh, dear, dear. The lamb is cold. Arthur—sorry to interrupt you, dear, but this meat is stone cold. I did want things to be nice. Everything in Mother's house was so perfect. You'll think me quite uncivilized; I know there should be candles for dinner, but this room is so deplorably dark. Dreadful apartment, but all we could get."

Apologies Spoiled It

And so on and on. All through the years Olive flustered herself and everyone near her with her fluttered pretentiousness. If one met her downtown all the pleasure of an unexpected encounter was spoiled by apologies.

"This dreadful old hat. But what can poor folk like us do? My dear, I know it's my turn for a party, but poor Arthur missed his commission, you know. I took my poor little play to Brady—he was very kind, but he looked at my hands. I told him dishwashing and playwriting didn't go very well together, and—poor me, I began to cry. Well, of course that made him impatient—"

Olive not only never did anything worth-while, but she somehow held Arthur back, too He was a clever writer, had a near-success or two. But then Olive would want to invite all sorts of notables to a celebration dinner, and the dinner would be a dreary, pretentious failure, and the Scotts would be right back where they started.

Meanwhile, simpler folk, much less gifted men and women indeed, were finding their feet professionally, quite unashamed of shabby rooms and hospitality that involved the services of all the guests, and sometimes their contributions of butter or salad oil or red apples from the stand at the corner. Automatically they were migrating to the picturesque old barns and farmhouses of Long Island and New England, automatically they were drawing to themselves the fame, —modest or great,—the financial comfort, the friends for which poor Olive hungered all through her days.

Only a year or two ago I saw Arthur again, and all the time he chattered the joyous nonsense that had been bottled up in him 40 years ago. His first book was a success—he was 64 when it was published—and he is busy with another, and everything about his life, clothes, food, friendships, hospitality, talk, has taken on the wonderful quality we call ease.

Poor Olive had robbed him of all that, and robbed herself, too, because of that sense of personal importance, or pride, or false values.

Wood Window Valance Adds Charm to Room

ADD CHARM to your living or dining room by making the window valance illustrated above. No carpentry skill or special tools are required. The full size patterns now available really simplify making.

User merely traces the pattern on the wood, saws and assembles exactly as pattern indicates. A list of materials supplied with the pattern tells you exactly what to buy. All materials can be purchased at your local lumber yard. You'll save over one-half making the valance yourself and have loads of fun doing it.

DOUBLE IN PRICE

A young chap whose sweetie had just made him the happiest man alive, went into a jewelry store to buy the engagement ring. He picked up a sparkling diamond and asked its price.

"That one is $100,000.00," replied the jeweler gently.

The young man looked startled, then whistled. He pointed to another ring. "And this one?"

"That, sir," said the jeweler more gently, "is two whistles."

*Chocolate Cake
*Recipe Given

2 cups cold pineapple juice
¾ cup coffee cream
¼ cup sugar
1½ teaspoons lemon juice
Pinch of salt
12 drops peppermint extract

Combine all ingredients in a shaker or beat with a rotary beater until foamy. Pour into tall glasses; garnish with a sprig of mint and serve immediately.

Just the sight of these glasses of fruit ice cream float are enough to make youngsters cheer. The recipe suggests cherries but other kinds of fruit such as strawberries, raspberries or blackberries may be used in place of cherries.

Sandwich Loaf
(Serves 8-10)

1 1-pound loaf unsliced bread
Butter
1½ cups ham salad
1½ cups egg salad
1 cup red jelly such as currant
8 ounces cream cheese

Trim all crust from bread. Cut loaf of bread into four lengthwise slices. Butter each side which filling will touch. On the first bottom slice place egg salad, top with bread slice; cover top of that slice with ham salad. Top with another slice and cover that with jelly. Top with slice of bread; wrap loaf in waxed paper and place a weight such as a bread board on it. Chill in refrigerator for several hours. Then unwrap and cover whole loaf with cream cheese which has been softened with cream and tinted pale green. Save a bit of the cream cheese and tint this pink or yellow and force through pastry tube to make rosettes to decorate loaf.

Chocolate Cake
(Makes 2 9-inch layers)

3 ounces unsweetened chocolate
½ cup hot water
½ cup shortening
1⅔ cup sugar
3 eggs
2 cups sifted flour
¼ teaspoon soda
¼ teaspoon salt
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 cup buttermilk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Cut chocolate in pieces. Add hot water, cook and stir over a low flame until a thick smooth paste is formed. Cool. Cream together sugar and shortening. Beat eggs until creamy and add to sugar-fat mixture. Blend in chocolate. Sift together the dry ingredients, then add to the first mixture alternately with buttermilk. Fold in vanilla. Bake in two nine-inch greased pans in a moderate (350°) oven for 25 minutes.

Frost with chocolate icing between, on top and sides. Sprinkle with chopped nuts, if desired.

This chocolate cake may also be frosted with Seven-Minute icing and sprinkled with crushed peppermint stick candy.

To make a very festive cake, frost with sweetened, whipped cream and sprinkle the top with shaved, unsweetened chocolate.

Tried Cole slaw sandwiches? Mince the cabbage fine, and have sufficient salad dressing in it to moisten it for spreading. Add some chopped bacon for flavor and spread on whole wheat bread.

Mix ground leftover meat with finely shredded carrots and chopped hard-cooked eggs. Add enough mayonnaise for easy spreading and serve on rye bread.

Another filling that calls for seconds uses crushed peanut brittle with enough softened butter to make a nice spread for sandwiches.

MIRROR Of Your MIND — Fits of Temper Can Be Curbed

By Lawrence Gould

Can you help losing your temper?

Answer: You can't possibly help getting angry any time that you are frightened or hurt, and telling yourself you are "above such feelings" only leads you to repress your anger out of consciousness and perhaps "take it out on yourself." But whether you'll give way to a fit of temper depends upon your emotional maturity—your ability to stop and think whether the consequences will be "worth it" in the long run, as they rather seldom will be The old rule of "counting ten before you speak" is both good psychology and good sense.

Will feeling superior to others make you "democratic"?

Answer: It will usually make you more considerate and friendly than feeling inferior to them, since what we call snobbishness is mainly an attempt to compensate for feelings of inferiority by making helpless people "bow and scrape" before us. Only someone who feels inwardly secure can behave naturally. But the best inward security is not based on feeling superior to others: it grows out of an awareness of your worth that is independent of "comparisons," and lets you ignore the foolish question of superiority entirely.

Will "blank" remedies cure skin ailments?

Answer: Yes, when the condition is "psychosomatic," says Dr. E. William Abramowitz of New York. There are inflammations of the skin for which the best cure is to make the patient think he's going to get well, and the way to implant this "suggestion" may be to give him a medicine or salve of which the chemical effects are only temporary. Whether this "placebo" contains any actual medication or not should depend upon the doctor's estimate of whether the patient is receptive to suggestion or is skeptical about the success of the treatment.

Tuberculosis Is Still Common

By Dr. James W. Barton

BEFORE THE X-ray was in general use for examination of the chest for tuberculosis, the physician had to strike the chest wall with his fingers, listen to sounds of the chest by aid of the stethoscope, and then look through a microscope to try to find the tubercle bacillus in the patient's sputum

While these methods of examination, together with the temperature taken three times daily, discovered most cases of tuberculosis, it was not until X-ray examination of the chest was used that tuberculosis and its location and extent were really made known.

Just before the X-ray examination of the chest for tuberculosis came into use, it was believed that practically all of us had tuberculosis at some time in our lives, but that most of us outgrew it or else it was in a "quiet" stage and so was causing no symptoms. Today, lung specialists state that tuberculosis is present in an active or in a "quiet" state in about 25 per cent of the population.

While it would take much time and money to obtain an X-ray of the chests of everybody, it is certainly worth it as it would save many useful lives To save time and money, and thus get individuals and whole communities to have their chests examined, it has been suggested that the fluroscope be used in mass surveys.

The advantages of the fluoroscope where the examining physician, by means of the X-ray machine, can look directly into the chest is that it shows the extent of the movement of the lungs, and the size, rhythm and position of the heart. The entire chest can be examined, by moving the fluoroscope and the patient. The disadvantage of the fluoroscope is that no permanent study record is made for the physician or X-ray specialist. While X-ray of the chest is considered the best single detection method, the physical examination and tuberculin test also are used.

It is generally admitted that X-ray of the chest is the best single method of finding if tuberculosis of the lungs is present. The great surveys of whole communities by X-ray of chests not only have been the means of finding cases in which tuberculosis was suspected, but also in finding many cases in which tuberculosis was not suspected.

HEALTH NOTES

Even though there may be no apparent symptom of indigestion, the fact that the aging individual is not getting full value from the food eaten may cause tiredness early in the day. In such cases, foods rich in minerals and vitamins should be eaten in increased amounts and a smaller quantity of foods used.

FIRST AID to the AILING HOUSE

by Roger C. Whitman

Care of Floors

Question: A few months ago I had all the floors sanded, filled and varnished. I would like to wash them but have been advised not to use water, as it discolors floors. Please advise.

Answer: The manufacturers of hardwood flooring do not, as a rule, approve of using water on such flooring. As your floors have been so recently varnished, it should be fairly easy to clean them with some of the special cleaning preparations intended for this purpose. Or you can clean them by wiping with cloths damp with turpentine. Consult your hardware dealer. First take up the loose dust in the usual way.

HANCOCK COUNTY BOARD FORMS NEW DITCH DISTRICT

Hancock County Supervisors have established Hancock county drainage district No. 151, a new district to be located in Erin and Amsterdam townships. The board increased damages $35 an acre on land used for ditch right-of-way and allowed several additional bridges in the hearing on damages. A letting on the construction will be held June 20 at the courthouse in Garner.

The engineer estimates that the main ditch will require a total of 162,634 cubic yards of earth excavation and the laterals will require the removal of about 122,853 yards.

William Henschen is the engineer on the project. Hancock County Supervisors hope to get construction work under way early after the letting.

Kitchen Shower Held Monday Evening For Bride-To-Be

Miss Gertrude Grosshuesch entertained a number of young ladies from Garner at her home Monday evening, in honor of Miss Doris Johnson, bride-to-be.

A corsage made of kitchen utensils was presented to Miss Johnson. The evening was spent informally and a nice lunch was served.

Return Home From Ten Day Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Becker have returned home from a ten day trip. They visited with Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Johnson at Lansing, Mich., and with other relatives at Freeport, Ill. They also enjoyed seeing the many tulips at Holland, Michigan. Mrs. Hazel Johnson who had been visiting in Michigan, returned with them.

Family Dinner Held Sunday At Fred Bell Home

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bell entertained at dinner Sunday all of Mrs. Bell's brothers and sisters and their families in honor of their brother, Louis Etchen, who was here on a visit from Kansas City. This was the first time the Etchen brothers and sisters had been together since their mother died.

JOLLY WORKER CLUB MET

The Jolly Worker Club met at the home of Wemkie Cavitt on May 11th with 18 members present. Each told of a happy surprise they have had. Irene Marshall had the cards and showed them so in June she will take orders for cards and stationery. She also showed a very nice book that can be used for keeping cards or a scrap book.

Ruth Trampel had charge of the entertainment and a very enjoyable time was spent playing the games. A lovely lunch was served by Wemkie with Nettie Roths and Nellie Ausborn as co-hostessses.

The June meeting will be at the home of Maude Bachman with Norma Albers as her assistant.

MADE IT

A bus driver and a passenger ran circles around one another while going through Algona recently. The bus stopped; the passenger got out and the bus went on without him, so he caught a taxi to catch the bus. Meanwhile, the bus driver had counted noses, found he had left a man behind so looped his bus around the block to pick up the absentee. They finally made connections some miles down the line at Wesley.

GOODELL STATION SOLD

A deal has been closed in which William Gifford sold his business on highway 69 at Goodell to Mr. and Mrs. Bert Groen of Meservey. This is the south D-X service station with modern apartment. Mr. Groen has been employed in the Raeker garage at Meservey the past 24 years and they plan to take possession about June 1st. He is a brother of Marvin Groen. The Giffords have been in this business the past 2 years. Their plans for the future are indefinite.

SHOULD SELL COCKERELS AT 10 TO 13 WEEKS OLD

Cockerels make expensive pets if they're kept around the farm when they should be on their way to market, says L. Z. Eggleton, extension poultryman at Iowa State College.

He says that in any farm feeding enterprise, the time of sale should be set by the ratio of the meat produced to the feed consumed—and that applies to the poultry as well as other farm animals.

This means that cockerals should be sold when they are from 10 to 13 weeks old. For biggest profits, Eggleton recommends that about half of the cockerels in a flock be sold at 10 weeks and the rest shut in the brooder house on full feed for another 2 weeks.

Optimum weight for market birds is from 2 to 3½ pounds, depending on the breed. For Leghorns, the quality of dressed carcass is at its best when the live bird weighs from 2 to 2½ pounds. The maximum live weight for the general purpose breeds should be between 3 and 3½ pounds.

Iowa poultry raisers have a poor market reputation for the quality of meat produced, Eggleton says. He thinks that generally the percentage of rough, stringy cockerels marketed is too great. The birds reach the processing plant after they have passed the age of prime eating value.

Eggleton suggests that Iowa poultry raisers apply a time schedule to their cockerels just as they do to their pullets. He believes that when as much emphasis is placed on selling cockerels at 11 to 12 weeks as is now placed on pullets laying at 4½ to 5 months, Iowa will come into its own as a poultry meat-producing state.

PRAYER FOR U.N. CHAPEL

("The United Nations is to provide a non-denominational chapel in its new home where men of all nations may pray."—News Item)

In this small room will be the cathedral, the mosque, the synagogue, the temple and the parish chapel.

Within these four walls will be the prayer-room of the world.

To this place let the white man and the black man, the Christian and the Jew, the yellow man and the brown man, the Hindu, the Moslem and the Buddhist—men of all races and creeds—gather to hear the still, small voice of whatever God they worship.

Here the representatives of all peoples shall come humbly and devoutly in their separate faiths and reach understandings that will save a stricken world.

Here let them kneel separately and at a time of their own choosing and ask their God or gods that their words and actions may never make a mockery of the precepts of whatever religion they observe and cherish.

Guide them as they invoke You. Keep their minds clear and make their decisions just; rid them of suspicions, fears and hatreds.

Let them never lose sight of the belief that the Supreme Being of their own faith and of all faiths loathes war and holds peace and the brotherhood of man foremost.

Seldom have the representatives of peoples from the four corners of the earth been in a more difficult spot; rarely have human beings faced tasks more colossal; never have their decisions meant life or death, joy or misery, laughter or tears to so many millions.

Grant that they may not quibble over the details of this room, its appointments or its mood.

Help them realize that if men can fight and die as allies, they can worship and live as allies; that men who serve together in the same armies and navies and in the same cause can worship in the same cloister and in the same hope!

Here let all men find that if there is to be one world there must be one brotherhood, one depth of devotion, one abiding confidence in a Supreme Being.

Make them understand that if a man is not contaminated in the use of another man's council chambers, routines and customs in daily considerations, he can never be contaminated by the use of a common meeting place for meditation and prayer.

Here may no man forget that in every faith a man of any other faith may find the essence of his own faith: The belief in divine guidance. Prayer is universal. How strange that until now those who have come together from all parts of the earth to face the most complicated problems of recorded time have failed to provide a common meeting place in which to seek guidance!

Of all moments in history when men of every race, color and creed needed divine council, this is the most desperate. How barren and hopeless have been these edifices of world peace without recognition of a God above! How futile these proceedings in council chambers of 100 rooms without one room for a Creator!

May this quiet room be hallowed! Here there is no publicity; here no photographers, no newsreels, no microphones, tensions.

Here he may sit not as an important statesman, harassed diplomat or instructed agent, worried over the reactions at home, but rather as a child reaching for the hand in which he has confidence, pleading for the light, believing that nothing matters more than a cause be just.

—*—

This room shall be no device of architects, blueprinters and construction crews, its value to be measured in dollars; this shall be a room dedicated in the spirit of all faiths . . . a hushed chamber where every man may find the mood of his own temple.

Within these walls may the United Nations see the universal altar and find that guidance, inspiration and wisdom without which there can be no lasting peace and no brotherhood of man.

Here at last there is "room in the inn!"

THE MIRACLE

THE pain has ceased! O heart, somewhere
We met the Master on the way.
It may be that we marked Him not
Amid the multitude today;
But it was Jesus, for behold
The old, old pain is gone, and, lo!
A miracle, no less than that
Upon the road to Jericho!
No less, my heart, we leapt to meet
The joy His healing fingers hold,
Than he who caught the glad sweet light
Across Judea's hills of old.

Ah, Master, Thou whose love still keeps
Thee pitiful, I bow to Thee.
My wistful, tired heart is filled
With this strange, wondrous ecstasy.
I thank Thee that we still can find
Thee close along the old earth-way;
That risen, yet somehow, somewhere,
We met Thee on the road today.

Minorities Gave "Mandate"

THE DECISION in the last national election was the result of minority groups, of radically-different interests, voting with the normal Democratic following. On disputed questions a minority group supported the President because of his stand on the question in which the members of a group were interested, and despite his position on other questions with which they did not agree.

The President attracted an unusual number of farm votes because of his promise to continue farm subsidies in the form of government price supports for farm products. The farmer was in no way interested in the promise to repeal the Taft-Hartley law. The portion of the labor vote that followed the urge of labor leaders did so because of the President's promise to repeal Taft-Hartley, but were not in sympathy with his farm policy that would maintain high food prices, against which they were clamoring.

Because of such conditions the election could not be considered as a mandate for all of the President's policies, as some members of his party have claimed it to be.

Richard Nixon, a Republican, represents the 12th California district in congress. That district is probably as near representative of America, as a whole, as is any other congressional district. Politically, it is almost equally divided between the two major parties, the Democratic registration showing a few more than the Republican. The district boundaries include a portion of Los Angeles, and a considerable rural farm section outside of the city. Its population contains all classes, ranging from workers, both organized and unorganized, industrial managers, bankers, professional people and a considerable number of truck, grain and dairy farmers.

To ascertain the wishes of his constituents, Representative Nixon mailed to each voter in his district, Republican and Democratic, a letter asking their answers to nine fairly-stated questions. Those nine questions covered the propositions, up to then introduced into the congress, on which some members of the President's party claimed he had a mandate from the people in the November election

To those letters Nixon received a total of more than 26,000 replies, and to no one of the nine questions did the President's program receive a majority of the replies. Question No. 1, for example, was: "Do you favor the repeal of the Taft-Hartley labor law?" on that question 24 per cent voted for repeal, and 71 per cent voted against repeal. Six per cent had no opinion. Evidently from that district the President did not have a mandate to repeal Taft-Hartley.

On the question of increasing taxes to the extent of $4,000,000,000 by an increase in the income tax rates, better than 81 per cent voted against an increase. The only one of the nine questions on which the vote was reasonably close was that covering proposed changes in the Social Security law. On that 48.38 per cent voted against the proposed changes, and 44.2 voted for them, and 6.7 per cent had no opinion.

Up to the time the letters containing the nine questions had been mailed, the administration's farm price support bill had not been introduced in congress, and it was not included in the list of questions. What the response might have been can only be guessed at.

In the election last November President Truman received a larger number of votes than any of the other candidates. A majority favored him for the job, but in no single instance did a majority in that 12th California district endorse any of his policies as represented in those nine questions. It was a majority supporting a candidate, but not a majority supporting any one of the candidate's policies.

A mandate covers policies, rather than a candidate. Whether they be good or bad, in no single instance, unless it be the farm program, do the President's policies represent the wishes of a majority of the voters in Representative Nixon's district. It is evident the minorities do not agree on policies.

I watch the youth of today, and wonder about the future. Many of them evade the small tasks assigned to youth. They will not work. They will play when provided with the place and tools of play. They are drinking of the waters of something for nothing, as are many of their elders. Are we producing a generation of mendicants who will expect the government to provide for them through all of their days? Are we inviting disaster by encouraging idleness with too much paternalism?

By GRANTLAND RICE

AS 16 MAJOR league clubs move off under full steam, there will be more than one or two high spots to watch as the campaign rolls along.

It is only natural that most of these elevated notches will take in the stars of 1948, such as Stan Musial, Lou Boudreau, Ted Williams, Joe DiMaggio, Harry Brecheen, Gene Bearden, the home-run duel between Ralph Kiner and Johnny Mize, plus such oddities as Larry "Yogi" Berra's catching improvement.

Grantland Rice

With Joe DiMaggio's wounded heel in such a precarious state, the three holdover leaders from 1948 will be Musial, Williams and Boudreau.

Boudreau is the mystery man. His batting average for 10 seasons is now .299. It was well below this mark at this date last season. Yet the Cleveland pilot lifted his batting count to .355, a phenomenal upward leap. Lou is now 32 years old. The question is: Will the Cleveland star keep in the general neighborhood of 355 this season, or drop back to his lifetime average, around .299? Boudreau's 1949 career will write an important chapter in the new American league race.

What about the duel between Williams and Musial? Last year Musial struck for .376, Williams for .369. Musial hit 39 home runs, Williams 25. Musial drove home 131 runs, Williams 127.

The Cardinal slugger had a fair edge in every department of hitting, but it will be interesting to see whether he can repeat this triumph against one of the greatest hitters of all time.

On the other side of the question, it might be noted that Stan Musial can also handle the old ash rather deftly His lifetime big league average is .348, Williams' being 354. These are the two top men today, with no one else close time. They have just completed a Paramount picture, "My Friend Irma"; Martin is Jane's romantic interest in the movie version of the radio show, and Jerry, an orange-juice salesman is his side-kick. Give them another two years and there's no telling what they'll be doing!

What about the big league pitching duel between Harry Brecheen and Gene Bearden? Last year each won 20 and dropped 7 for a mark of .741. Brecheen allowed 2.24 earned runs per game, Bearden 2.43. This is about as close as the count can be.

Kirk Douglas is back in Hollywood after a New York visit that was strictly business; he covered the swing cafes, getting background material for his first starring role, in Warner Bros.' "Young Man With a Horn."

The famous coach in which King George V made his ceremonial drive at the Royal Ascot race meeting will be used in a sequence in Alfred Hitchcock's "Under Capricorn." Ingrid Bergman, Joseph Cotton and Michael Wilding star.

Lucille Ball, of the movies and CBS' "My Favorite Husband," may be a glamorous star to other people, but to her bandleader husband, Desi Arnaz, she's "Johnny." He gave her the nickname because, around their ranch, she looks like a tomboy. Her favorite "at home" togs are dungarees and an old sweater and straw hat.

Barbara Stanwyck, whose auburn hair is now mostly a beautiful gray, refuses to dye it for films. She feels that would be dishonest! Anyway, she thinks dyed hair looks artificial and gray hair is usually becoming.

CORDIALLY DISLIKED

By Richard H. Wilkinson

3-Minute Fiction

I HAVE NEVER known a man to be more wholeheartedly disliked than Henry Spafford. The reason for it is his braggartly qualities, his oversearing sense of importance.

We tolerate him because we like his wife, Madge, but even so our toleration is a chore. The other night I was over to the Spafford's and sat through an hour of Henry's bragging. It seems that the big boss in New York—Henry is employed by the Jason Reid Steamship Company—called up the Philadelphia office where Henry works and Henry answered the phone.

"Jay's a great guy," Henry told me, referring to the incident. "He's asked me to run up to New York to see him a couple of times. I must remember to do that."

"Who's Jay?" I asked.

"Jay?" Why, Jason Reid, who owns the line, of course."

"Oh," I said.

"The way to get along in any business," Henry went on, "is to let the boss know right off he can depend on you. That's the way I am with Jay."

I left the Spafford home an hour later, furious that I had stayed so long, pitying Madge and disliking Henry with a renewed sense of disgust. "Something," I told Betty, my wife, "ought to be done about that punk. Now he's calling Old Man Reid, Jay."

"The thing to do," Betty smiled, "is to be amused at his ravings, not annoyed. He doesn't hurt any one, and there's always Madge to think of."

"Even Madge," I replied, "won't keep me from hitting that guy one of these days. Something," I repeated, "ought to be done about him."

Whether or not my thinking about it had anything to do with what happened a couple of days later I will never know. Henry was fired. Without warning or explanation he was given a couple of weeks' pay and was bounced out on his ear.

My first reaction when Betty told me about it was one of exuberance, a fiendish desire to rush over there and gloat, to sneer: "I told you so! Why don't you call up your friend, Jay, wise guy?" But this feeling passed immediately. Curiously it was followed by one of pity The more I thought about it the deeper became my sympathy What greater humiliation, I thought, could a man endure than this that confronted Henry Spafford?

NEXT DAY I called Hal Wheaton and asked him to have lunch with me.

"Have you heard about Henry?" I asked when we were seated.

Hal nodded, avoiding my eyes. "I met the poor devil on the street this morning. I don't mind saying that it was an ordeal."

I thoughtfully lighted a cigaret. "Hal," I said, "think of Madge. Isn't there something we can do?"

"Well," said Hal, "I've been wondering, too. Poor Madge." He coughed. "I called Bob Taylor of the Taylor Lines this morning. Bob says that he might be able to do something for Henry on our recommendation."

"I guess," I grinned, "that's the answer."

And it was. Henry and Madge were over three days later. "I understand you've got a new job?" I remarked to Henry.

"Yes," he said with a bored look on his face. "Bob Taylor called up as soon as he heard that I was free, and asked if I'd consider a position with him. Well, you know when a man offers you more money—"

I glanced at Betty. There was a faint smile on her face. I suppose she was amused. I hope so. Because an hour later, with Henry still blowing, I was mad enough to choke him, and almost did.

SCRIPTURE: Mark 14:32-52; Luke 22:39-54.
DEVOTIONAL READING: Matthew 6:1-8.

Prayer in Pain

Lesson for May 29, 1949

THE SHADOW over Gethsemane is deep. We can scarcely see the tortured figure under the moonlit olive trees. If Jesus' closest friends, in that hour, were strangers to his soul, we cannot dare to penetrate all the secrets of that fateful hour. Yet while we cannot know all, we can know enough; enough to support us in our own time of darkness and of pain.

Dr. Foreman

Mark uses very strong language to describe the state of Jesus' mind in Gethsemane. The two Greek words he uses, translated in the King James version "sore amazed" and "very heavy," are translated by the Revised Stanard Version "greatly distressed and troubled;" by Goodspeed, "distress and dread;" by Moffatt, "appalled and agitated." As our hymn says,

"We know not how, we cannot tell
What pains He had to bear."

Still, we do know of some of the burdens which weighed so terribly on Jesus' mind and heart that night.

Power of Darkness

ONE THING that must have troubled our Lord was lack of sympathy. Peter, James and John were comfortably asleep, evidently without the slightest notion of what he was suffering. But there was worse than lack of sympathy, somewhere in the dark city one of Jesus' supposed friends, the man called Judas, was even then slinking through the alleys with murder in his heart.

Jesus well knew what was in store for him. He knew the Sanhedrin would call him a blasphemer, he knew what the Romans would do with him, once they got their hands on him. Worse than this must have been the tragic sense of failure.

"I would, but ye would not," he had said in tears to this very city: a city full of enemies who should have been his friends, of unbelievers who should have believed, a city he loved, but which had nothing for him but thorns and a cross.

All this was on Jesus' heart that night—and as many Christians believe, far more. One of the most profound Christian thinkers has suggested that the heaviest, most painful shadow on Jesus' white soul was the sense of guilt, not his own but for the sins of the world.

Blood and the Angel

SO JESUS PRAYED. Even in the cool spring night his forehead was covered with sweat, falling to the rocky ground like drippling blood. Never rose prayer from a more tortured heart. And what came of it? In one sense, the prayer was not answered. The cup did not pass from him, he must drink it to the last bitter dregs. The prayer did not remove the pain. Yet in a deeper sense, the prayer of Christ was fully answered. "Not as I will, but as Thou wilt," he breathed. The prayer that sets one's own will in line with the will of God, whatever His will may be, is the prayer that always finds answer. At the end, there was not release, but power. "An angel came and strengthened him."

What Prayer Can Do

JESUS "LEARNED obedience by the things which he suffered." (Heb. 5:8.) We can share his lesson. The hour of pain is not the hour to begin praying; those who have not learned prayer before, will scarcely know how to pray in a time of agony. Yet the time of pain is not the time to give up praying. When the dark hour comes, Jesus did not throw aside his faith, he prayed more intensely than ever before. Prayer does not explain pain, much less explain it away.

Prayer does not always get rid of pain, even though in many cases the prayer of faith works cures where doctors fail. What true prayer does always is to set the one who prays in tune with the will of God even when that will is not as our own.

Prayer does not bring us all the answers to the riddles of existence. It does bring power to bear what God sends us. For God's answer to those he loves is not always escape, but it is always endurance.

Visiting around Iowa

by Joe Marsh

Iowans Live Longer

An insurance man told me the other day that farmers live longer than the people in big cities.

It's partly the pace, of course. Partly a person's attitude toward things in general.

We Iowans are fortunate that way. Most of us believe in moderation, a temperate way of life.

Whether we enjoy an evening at the movies, a temperate glass of beer or ale, an ice cream soda on a hot afternoon, or just a good visit with the neighbors . . . our tastes are moderate. That's good for us.

Notice another thing about Iowa people. Their attitude of moderation makes them more tolerant toward the other fellow, too. I may not agree with Cousin Harry on what he thinks, or likes, or where he spends his money. But I respect his rights to HIS OWN point of view. We don't try to push each other around. And all of us lead happier lives.

Yes, Iowa is a grand place to live . . . and to live a LONG TIME.

HENDERSON OFFERS INFORMATION ABOUT CORN BORER CONTROL

Many Hancock County farmers will soon be applying insecticides to control the European corn borer if conditions continue favorable to corn borer populations, Paul Henderson, county extension director said this week.

Not many borers were winterkilled and so far this year the weather has been favorable to borers he said. Weather that is good for corn is good for borers. This year corn is further ahead than last year and borers are behind in their development Reason for this Henderson said, is that weather in April was cooler than last year, yet the last part of the month was dry enough so that farmers got a lot of corn planted. Corn is growing rapidly and there will be plenty of corn 35 inches tall on which moths can lay borer eggs. Last year corn didn't come up so rapidly and moths had difficulty in finding tall enough corn on which to lay eggs by the time they reached that stage.

Henderson said that with this in mind, farmers should be finding out all the information they can on insecticides.

A minimum of one pound of actual DDT per acre is recommended in either spray or dust form. One and one-fourth to one and one-half pounds are preferable in spray and one and one-half to one and three-fourths pounds in dusts, however. Benzene Hexachloride, chordane, chloridated camphene, methoxychlor and DDD will not give satisfactory control at comparable dosages and are not recommended for corn borer control. Ryania may be used according to manufacturers' directions and parathion may be used on an experimental basis.

DDT sprays should be diluted so that a minimum of 2 gallons per acre is applied with air equipment, and not less than 5 gallons per acre with low-pressure ground equipment. Where higher pressure ground equipment can be used, higher gallonages—30 to 50 gallons—are then recommended. Henderson said that these recommendations hold true for emulsions and wettable powder.

He recommends using emulsions where less than 10 gallons of spray per acre is applied. Where 10 gallons or more per acre can be applied, DDT powder or DDT colloidal suspension is recommended. With wettable powder use one-third pound of wetting agent per 100 gallons of spray.

Five percent DDT dusts are recommended at 30 to 50 pounds per acre with either ground or air equipment.

PAVING CREW HERE IN FULL FORCE TO LAY CONCRETE

The Carlson Construction Co. made good progress the past week as the weather was very favorable and they were able to excavate and move a lot of dirt preparing the road bed for the pavement.

Tuesday they were setting up the steel tracks and forms getting ready to run concrete. The storm sewer catch basins were also installed the past week and there is a lot of activity along the main drag these days.

Dairy Commission Marks 10th Year In 39 States

CAN USE 2,4-D ON SMALL GRAIN CROP

Will Clean Out Weeds Without Hurting Crops If Job Is Done Right

Iowa's small grain fields can be wiped clean of weeds if the farmers use 2,4-D at the right time and follow dosage recommendations, E. P. Sylwester, weed control specialist at Iowa State College, said this week.

He pointed out that more than 500,000 acres of small grain were sprayed with 2,4-D last year. Indications are that even more spraying will be done this year. The fact that the 1948 small grains were the cleanest on record from the standpoint of dockage shows that wide use of 2,4-D is cutting down losses caused by weeds, Sylwested said.

Spray when small grain crops are 6 to 10 inches high and well stooled out, but before heads appear, according to Sylwester. The idea is to get the weeds while they are young. They are then easiest to kill and are destroyed before they crowd out and steal moisture and nutrients from crop plants.

Rate To Use

Apply salts or amines at the rate of ½ pound per acre and the esters at the rate of ¼ pound per acre. Theres dosages will kill such weeds as march elder, smartweed, wild sunflowers, ragweed, marsh cress and mustard. These weeds cause the most trouble in small grains. Sylwester says the crops won't be hurt with these dosages, but he warned against overdosing.

If harder-to-kill weeds such as creeping jenny, Canada thistle, sow thistle or wild lettuce threaten a crop, a farmer may want to apply a heavier dose of 2,4-D even at the expense of some of the crop. If this is the case, Sylwester recommends applying up to three quarters pound of the amine or salt form per acre or ½ pound of the ester form per acre at the late tiller stage. Reduction in crop yield may be expected at this dosage, however.

Will Hurt Legumes

Sylwester cautioned against spraying small grain fields where legumes have been sown. Alfalfa and sweetclover are very sensitive to 2,4-D. Red Clover is more resistant but should be sprayed with care. He advises using low pressure and as low a concentration of 2,4-D as it takes to control the weeds. Spray when the crop is 6 to 10 inches high so it will offer some protection to the under seeding. Best returns are obtained if the weed cover is extremely heavy.

Read directions on the package and remember that the dosage recommendations mean actual 2,4-D, Sylwester said. Most powders carry 60-85 percent actual 2,4-D per pound. Amine salts in solution usually carry 4 pounds actual 2,4-D per gallon, while esters carry from 2.64 to 4 pounds actual 2,4 D per gallon.

NATIONWIDE PROMOTIONAL ACTIVITIES THIS MONTH

June, 1949, marks the tenth consecutive year that June has been celebrated as Dairy Month by the Iowa Dairy Industry Commission. In February, 1939, legislation was passed authorizing the collection of a one cent per pound excise tax on all butter fat sold in the form of milk or cream; and providing for the appointment of the Iowa Dairy Industry Commission. The tax was to be collected annually on butter fat marketed in the first two weeks in June.

Each of Iowa's nine congressional districts is represented on the commission by a farm resident who derives the major share of his income from dairy products. The Commission also includes representatives from Iowa State College and the office of the Secretary of Agriculture.

Consumption Rises

This state commission is charged with the responsibility of nutrition educational activities, and promoting the sale of Iowa dairy products. Through the years, because of this promotion, the consumption of Iowa dairy products has steadily increased, both within the state and across the country. The Iowa Commission cooperates with 39 other important dairy states in the nation-wide promotion of dairy foods.

Dedication of June as Dairy Month to recognize the importance of the dairy cow and the dairy farmer has been one of the prominent features of the Commission's activities. Iowa today ranks among the leaders in the success of this coordinated national promotion . . . due, in large measure, to the support of the newspapers throughout the state.

Members

Members of the present commission include: Folmer C. Hansen, Cedar Falls, Chairman; Marvin McLain, Brooklyn, first vice chairman; George C. Ruth, Onawa, second vice chairman; Wm. J. Baker, Mt. Pleasant; Arnold M. Pancratz, Dubuque; Willard Torgrim, Decorah; Clyde Core, Pleasantville; L. R. Beath, Corning; Clyde Munson, Gowrie; Prof. C. A. Iverson, head of the Dairy Industry Department, and Dr. C. Y. Cannon, head of the Dairy Husbandry Department, both of Iowa State College; and Roy J. Sours, chief of dairy and food division, Department of Agricultural, Des Moines. Frank Barker, Des Moines, is the secretary-manager of the Commission.

Two Klemme Young Ladies In State Teachers College Grad Class

The Misses Marcille Charlotte Josten and Patricia Ann Kudje of Klemme were among the 384 students who received degrees and diplomas at the 72nd annual spring commencement at the Iowa State Teachers college at Cedar Falls, Monday morning, May 23rd.

Marcille Josten received an elementary diploma and Patricia Kudje received a kindergarten-primary diploma.

OTHER of the season's choice ruits is combined with straw- berries to make a delectable pie. Rhubarb and straw b e r r i e s are a happily wedded combi- nation b o t h flavor and color standpoint.

Strawberry-Rhubarb Pie
(Makes 1 9-inch pie)

cups sugar
cup flour cup fresh strawberries cups diced rhubarb recipe pastry
tablespoons butter

t sugar and flour together and bine ¾ of it with the fruit. pie pan with pastry, then kle the remaining flour-sugar ture over the bottom and add filling. Dot with butter and ar- e pastry strips over the top lattice design. Bake in a hot °) oven for 10 minutes. Reduce to moderate (350°) and bake 30 minutes longer or until fruit nder.

ere's a different type of straw- y pie, with sweetened con- ed milk and cream cheese:

Strawberry Cheese Pie
(Makes 1 9-inch pie)

3 cups sweetened, con- densed milk
¾ cup lemon juice
2 egg yolks, beaten
3 ounces cream cheese

*Recipe Given

2 egg whites, beaten stiff
¼ cup sugar

Blend together milk and lemon juice. Add egg yolks, cheese and strawberries. Pour into pastry shell. Beat egg whites and slowly add the ¼ cup sugar, beating constantly. Pile over the pie Bake in a slow (325°) oven for 15 minutes. Chill pie before serving.

To make a crust for a single pie crust shell (9-inch), as called for in the above recipes, use one cup sifted flour with ½ teaspoon salt. Crumble in 1/3 cup of lard or shortening, and use pastry blendor until mixture resembles coarse meal. Add two to three tablespoons ice water, just enough to hold mixture together. Roll lightly and spread into pastry tin. Bake in a hot (450°) oven for 15 to 18 minutes.

Strawberry Cream Tarts
(Makes 6 tarts)

6 baked tart shells
½ cup milk
¼ cup sugar
1 tablespoon flour
1 egg, well beaten
¼ teaspoon vanilla
¼ cup cream, whipped
1½ cups strawberries
½ cup currant jelly

Scald the milk, then mix in sugar, flour and beaten egg. Stir constantly, then cook over hot water until thick. Add vanilla; cool. Fold in whipped cream. Fill tart shells half full of this mixture. Arrange a layer of strawberries on top. Heat the currant jelly, until it melts, then spoon one tablespoon of it on top of the strawberries. Let jelly settle.

THERE'S NOTHING like short- cake, many strawberry fans, will say, so here's the recipe for an excellent one:

Strawberry Shortcake
(Serves 6)

2 cups sifted flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
1/3 cup butter
1 egg, beaten

Sift together dry ingredients. Work in butter with a fork. Add milk, mixed with egg and blend together with flour mixture to make a soft dough. Turn out on floured board and divide dough into two parts. Pat each part, roll out and shape into a buttered round tin. Or, cut with biscuit cutter to make individual cakes. Bake 12 minutes in a hot (450°) oven. To serve, split while hot, butter and spread one quart of cleaned and sweetened strawberries. Top with whipped cream or serve plain or with thick cream from a pitcher.

Here's a frozen strawberry dessert which makes a good dessert for warm evenings:

Behold The Man!

Lesson for June 5, 1949

LAST JANUARY a man in Holland wrote to the high court of the new nation of Israel, petitioning for a review, now nearly 2,000 years afterwards, of the trial of Jesus by the court at Jerusalem in the year 30 A. D. That court may never review the case, and perhaps has no legal right to do so. But history has reviewed it, and reversed it. Jesus was tried by at least four tribunals on the early morning of the first Good Friday. But the verdict of history is that the courts were guilty, one and all, while the prisoner was innocent.

Sentence first,
Verdict afterwards

BESIDES the informal hearing before the ex-high priest Annas, there was the formal trial before the High Priest Caiaphas. He presided over the Sanhedrin, the supreme court of the Jews at that time. It was a learned tribunal, venerated all over the Jewish world. As the lawyers might say, its writ ran everywhere; its decisions were quoted as precedent in Alexandria, Babylon, Spain. You might have expected it to be dignified, honorable. But not on that night, with that vicim.

You might as well expect a pack of wolves, starved in mid-winter, to be dignified and honorable with a sheep in their circle. These men, and their intimate friends, had been described by the Prisoner, not long before, in words that stuck in their brains like arrowheads. "Whited sepulchres . . . full of all uncleanness . . . ye say, and do not . . . yet devour widows' houses . . . blind guides . . . offspring of vipers. . . "

If there had been any hope that they might change, Jesus would not have used such words. So they had made up their minds He must die Now was their hour, while the city slept. Leader of the pack was this Caiaphas As the farce of a trial went on and the high priest by grace of Rome faced Jesus, High Priest by the grace of God, what did he see in Jesus' eyes?

That Fox

IF CAIAPHAS was a wolf, Herod was a fox. It was Jesus' nickname for him. On that April morning this fox had the surprise of his lifetime. Before he could collect his wits, he was facing the very man whom his private police force had been vainly trying to arrest — Jesus of Nazareth. Two kings faced each other in Herod's hall that morning. The one wearing a robe and crown, seated on some kind of throne, was one of the most un-kingly men who ever bore the royal title The other, in plainest citizens' clothes, and no crown, no throne to be seen, was the one real king who has lived among men.

"Suffered Under Pontius Pilate"

PONTIUS PILATE, procurator of Judea, deputy plenipotentiary of his Imperial Majesty, sat on his judgment seat and looked at Jesus. Six times he had looked at him; six times he had made certain that this young prisoner was an innocent man, and six times he had said so, even in the face of the mob.

The noises in the street confused him. He could not hear, down through the centuries, the voices of millions of men, women and children, rising up week after week and repeating the words, almost like a curse: "—and in Jesus Christ, His only Son, our Lord, who . . . suffered under Pontius Pilate." The voices in the street drowned the voices of the centuries.

But if, as Pontius Pilate turned Jesus over to the will of those who hated him, he had dared to look into Jesus' eyes, and what would he have seen?

To this very day, and to the end of time, in all places and among all men, this Christ whom the world holds in chains is yet the Judge of every man. Men may say of Jesus what they wish, and he will be silent still. But in his eyes is the verdict. A man is judged by his own judgment of Jesus Christ. And you, too. Facing you, he looks straight through you. What do you see in Jesus' eyes?

MIRROR Of Your MIND

Bad Moods Will Hurt Digestion

By Lawrence Gould

Do your moods affect your digestion?

Answer: Yes, writes Dr. R. Bilz in a German medical journal. "A mood always occurs simultaneously on the physical and psychological level." Even the expression on your face may be "mimicked internally" by what a doctor discovers with a stomach-pump and X-rays, so that when your mood is tense and anxious, your "ulcers" reveal the facts as clearly as your eyes do. If you want to have a good digestion, you'd better at least avoid the far too common practice of airing your grievances and worries at the dinner table.

Is recklessness based on fear?

Answer: Yes. Most frequently the urge to "flirt with danger" represents an effort to avoid the shame of being thought a coward, and still more of being forced to recognize how frightened you'd be if you "stopped to think about it." But again, you may be bolstering your belief in your "luck"—which at bottom means your childish confidence in your parents' power to protect you from the consequences of your folly. A truly brave person never incurs needless risks because he does not have to prove he can face danger if he has to.

Is having been "tight" an excuse for rudeness?

Answer: Only in the degree that the person you are asking to excuse your bad behavior will accept the fact that you have rude impulses which you are able to control when you are sober For what you said or did was not "foreign to your nature"—it was an expression of a part of yourself which you did not wish to reveal or acknowledge under ordinary circumstances Indeed, it was probably a wish to give this side of yourself an airing that unconsciously induced you to anesthetize your inhibitions by drinking unwisely.

KEEPING HEALTHY

The Liver, Most Vital to Health

By Dr. James W. Barton

BECAUSE the liver has so many different jobs to do and the liver means so much to our general health, we should all try to remember that it is the largest organ in the body and contains about 25 per cent of all the blood.

One of the jobs of the liver is manufacturing bile which breaks up fats for digestion. It is an antiseptic destroying harmful organisms and a natural purgative preventing constipation. It is, therefore, a true saying that "life depends upon the liver."

Another important job is the manufacture by the liver of a substance needed by the blood.

Aside from the bile killing harmful organisms, the liver cells themselves filter out poisons from the blood, which, if not removed, would cause tiredness and weakness. In order to find whether or not the liver is doing this important job of filtering wastes and poisons from the blood, various tests are made, one of which is giving a dye by mouth or injections and seeing how long it takes the liver to remove all the dye from the blood.

Recently research workers, investigating two common ailments—gallstones and ulcer of the stomach and the first part of the small intestine (peptic ulcer)— took a tiny piece of the liver from these patients for examination under the microscope and found that in only 6 to 7 per cent was the liver in a normal, healthy condition.

As the liver is really the "chief" or most important organ in the body from the health standpoint, we should all try to keep it active and healthy by two simple methods: First, cutting down on fat and rich foods; and, second, keeping the liver in an "active" condition by bending exercises, keeping the knees straight.

At McGill university, Montreal, some years ago, research workers showed that squeezing the liver by bending exercises or deep breathing caused the liver to do its various jobs completely and in less time.

HEALTH NOTES

The economic cost of heart disease is staggering in terms of loss of life, absenteeism, disability, loss of gainful employment, and care and treatment programs.

It has been found that insulin—which reduces the sugar in the blood, brings on sleep and increases the appetite—is more effective in restoring the alcoholic patient to normal than any other method.

While the passing of blood is but one symptom of cancer of the generative and urinary parts, it is one of the early signs and gives the patient a chance for successful treatment. Formerly, patients and, sometimes, physicians were lulled into false security by thinking that when the bleeding stopped, the progress of the underlying cause also stopped. But such is not the case.

Good Play Equipment—

RECIPE FOR SUMMER FUN

One of the most fascinating pieces of play equipment for any child is a homemade drawing or painting easel. Indoors or out, it can give hours of pleasure to a child who loves to use his imagination, is learning about color, and just naturally likes to play with water.

Summertime, and the children have transferred their schooltime activities and energies to the back yard.

Chances are the noise is going to seem a little overpowering at first. Sudden release from school always brings out an extra burst of exuberance. But long vacation hours stretch ahead, and that's where parents can play a guiding part, sys Alma H. Jones, extension family specialist, Iowa State College.

„When the weather is warm outside and the neighborhood looks as if it would afford many opportunities for play, it's pretty easy just to tell the youngsters "now run along and play." Most children have imagination to find things to do for awhile, but constructive play equipment can help a lot to keep them happy and learning new things, Mrs Jones says.

Learn While Playing

Good toys or play equipment do much more than just occupy a child's time. The big rubber ball, the sand box with its assortment of shovels, pails and sifters, and the back-yard jungle gym or swing are basically good because they aid a child both in developing his muscles and in learning control of his arms, legs and fingers. Pushable toys, or those which can be pedaled, belong in the same class. Gardening equipment for a small child is especially appropriate for summer fun.

Then there are a multitude of games—ones the whole family will enjoy—croquet, ring-toss, rubber horseshoe, for example. All children love games—the more so if Dad and Mom join in as often as possible. Such games train the youngsters in the difficult tasks of coordinating their muscles and eyes and using their brains. Furthermore, says Mrs. Jones, it's an ideal way to teach taking torns and fair play.

Just a caution to parents, though—and that is not to be "too good" in playing the games. It's not much fun for the youngsters, she adds, to have the grown folks hand them a dose of inferiority. The fun lasts if they feel they have a chance. However, they need to learn that you can't always play to win but must take success and failure in your stride.

Aside from aiding the physical and social development of the child, good play equipment can challenge his mental ability. Playing store is a backyard pastime which is "learning" as well as fun.

They like to solve problems, even those of their own making, and they like their own ideas—all a part of growing up, Mrs. Jones points out.

Loss Of Imagination

Imaginative play is very real to children as they try to project themselves into an adult world. Thus the playhouse—big or little, improvised or the real thing—becomes an ideal setting for miniature housekeeping.

Easel painting is another form of imaginative play. It helps the child satisfy his interest in color and in creating his own ideas, as well as a natural desire to dabble in water. The easel should have an attached tray to hold the paints and to catch the drip if painting is done indoors.

CORN

At Pleasanton, Marrion Mc Williams finished shucking corn on April 26. He started the job in 1948, found he had too much work to complete the job so finished it out at odd times during the winter. The corn is nice and dry and he thinks it cured better in the field than it would have in the crib.

SKATER

"Pop" Carter of Texas stopped in Harlan recently to do a little fancy figureskating. He is 93. "Pop" travels from town to town on a motor scooter, puts on an exhibition wherever they have a roller skating rink, passes the hat and moves on.

"HAM"

Mrs. Robert Forman of Bellevue received a collect call from Minneapolis, which she accepted, and as a result had a pleasant chat with her husband, now on duty in Germany. The contact was made through an obliging "ham" radio operator of Minneapolis, who picked up a call from Col. Forman in Germany, asking to put in contact with his home phone at Bellevue.

TREASURE

Gene Barber, 12, and Bud Watson, 9, were playing in an old abandoned house near Cleopatra, Mo., recently and thought it would be nice if they could find some buried treasure. Kicking around in the rubbish, they unearthed a wallet containing $550, belonging to a former tenent in the house. At least, the boys will get a reward even though they can't keep the money. Gene is a former Allerton youth.

MISSING

Mrs. Don Weaver was driving to Algona from Plum Creek and wondered why her small son was so quiet in the back seat. When she turned around to find out, three year old Brian was missing. She drove over the route in panic, found Billie brushing the dust from his clothes and wondering what had happended. Best guess was that he leaned too far out of the window and fell out.

REMEMBER THIS - - -

1. Be sure to check the actual pounds of 2,4-D acid in each gallon of liquid you buy.
2. Caution: Percentages or equivalents do not tell the actual 2,4-D content.
3. The three general types of 2,4-D available are:
   a. the Alkanolamine salt — b. the Emulsifiable Ester
   c. the Sodium Salt Powder.
4. The right selection and proper application of forms of 2,4-D will prove very economical as well as inexpensive.

SUGGESTIONS FOR EFFECTIVE APPLICATION OF 2,4-D

1. Avoid application as fine mist.—2. Don't spray on windy day.—3. Avoid excessive amount of spray falling onto the soil.—4. Don't leave any weeds untreated.—5. Don't burn poison ivy or similar plants.—6. There is extreme danger in using same equipment for both 2.4-D and DDT insecticide spray.

HIGHEST PROTEIN IN EARLY CUT HAY

Also True Of Hay Crops That Are Made Into Sileage, Specialist Says

Cut forage crops early to boost their feed value whether you put them in the silo or make them into hay, says Ralph Krenzin, extension agronomist at Iowa State College.

Suck crops as alfalfa, clover and sudan grass cut before they mature contain a much higher percentage of protein and carotene and have less crude fiber than if cut after they mature Krenzin says that too much of the food value of Iowa forage crops is lost every year by delaying cutting too long.

When To Cut

Tests conducted at Iowa State College have shown that grasses and small grain hay or silage have the highest feeding value when the heads emerge but before they bloom. The best time to cut sudan grass is just before the heads emerge. Alfalfa is at its best stage when it is from one-tenth to one-fourth in bloom. Red clover and alsike should be cut at the half-bloom stage.

Soybeans and lespedeza are at their best cutting stage when the seed pods are filled, Krenzin says.

He points out that if the first crop is put up for silage instead of for hay, the weather is not such an important factor. Cutting for silage need not be delayed because of unfavorable weather when the forage crop is ready to be put up. Krenzin says that another factor in favor of grass and legume sileage is that more of the leaves are saved for feed.

The potential water power of Africa is nearly equal to that of any other three continents combined.

OVER 40 SCHOOLS HAD 100 PERCENT DENTAL CARDS PAST YEAR

The Hancock County Health Day and Parade festivities were described in last week's issue of this paper. We all had a good time and its important to realize that results are seen from this program.

Parents comment that their children "want to go to the dentists." The rural and town teachers include health discussion in their classroom work and encourage dental care throughout the year. Dental trains are developed, and health houses with the children's picture in the windows as they return signed dental cards are seen in rural schools. Children encourage each other to complete work so that the entire school may be 100 percent. Many older chidren have had dental supervision for the first time in their lives. One dentist reports less six year molars being lost in children than during the war years. Parents are surprised to see that their children need less dental care when seen regularly by the family dentist. We are recognizing that healthy teeth play a large part in health of the entire body.

In 1946-47 we had three rural schools with 100 percent response was similar to last year's; 48, forty rural schools and four town rooms reached this level of achievement. This year's response was similar to last years; all reports are not in as yet.

We can see the results when community groups support an activity—and what is of more value than our children's heath? They are tomorrow's leaders in this great country of our.

Listed below are the schools in Hancock County with 100 per cent dental card response this year: Put down in the order in which they achieved this rating.

Liberty No. 3, Bingham No. 7, Bingham No. 3, Ell No. 6, Ell No. 4, Ell No. 5, Garfield No. 5, Liberty No. 9, Liberty No. 8, Avery No. 5, Orthel No. 3, Liberty No. 4, Erin No. 2, Garfield No. 6, Erin No. 3, Bingham No. 4, Orthel No. 1, Britt No. 2, Amsterdam No. 3, Britt No. 4, Amsterdam, No. 4, Avery No. 2, Room I Orthel No. 7, Britt No. 6, Garfield No. 1, Erin No. 9, Crystal No. 8, Orthel No. 5, Bingham No. 9, Erin No. 1, Garfield No. 7, Britt No. 7, Erin No. 5, Garfield No. 8, Liberty No. 7, Orthel No. 2, Room II Orthel No. 7, and the grades 2, 4, and 7 were 100 percent at Woden School as were grades 6, 7, and 8 at the Klemme School.

HITCH-HIKE

Donald Gesgaard of Holsten hitch-hiked home from his army base in Texas in Texas in one day recently. He ate breakfast in Texas, lunch in California and supper in Omaha—traveling by plane, of course—and thumbed his way home from Omaha to Holstein by bed-time.

BALL

Ten year old Billie Trussdell of Hayfield is the proud owner of a genuine New York Giant baseball, autographed by many of the players including manager Leo Durocher. Mrs. W. L. Tindall of Woden caught the ball, a pop fly, while watching the Giants in spring training at Phoenix and gave it to Billie.

AVERY SUNBEAMS MET

Rainy though it be the Avery Sunbeams and their mothers' met at the home of Lois Helps. Twenty members answered roll call by giving their favorite soup.

Mary Ann Blumer was elected to go to the 4-H camp at Ames. Lois Lowenberg and Pauline Kramer were chosen to go to Clear Lake 4-H camp. The club decided to pay half of the expenses. Mary Blumer was chosen to be the candidate for county officer. Harriet Ostendorf is campaign speaker.

The meeting was turned over to the program chairman Lois Lowenberg. The first thing was a demonstration by Betty and Pauline Kramer, "Custards and Variations." Then a talk by Marlene B. "Nutritive Value of Meat." Miss Harriett Oxley, County Nurse gave an interesting talk "H For Health."

Lillian W. gave a talk on the price cuts of meat. The next meeting is to be held at the home of Lois Lowenberg.

Expect To See Spread In Cattle Grade Prices

Prices of different grades of cattle are usually close together this spring, but price spreads are almost certain to widen as fall approaches, according to Francis Kutish, agricultural economist at Iowa State College.

He points out that much of that widening is likely to come in the form of lower prices for bottom grades of cattle this fall. This also means lower prices for feeder cattle.

FACTS WE HAVE FOUND ABOUT
Weed Spray Chemical
1. Some 2,4-D preparations will clog nozzle screens. The brands we sell won't do it.
2. Some 2,4-D preparations have a low weight per gallon content, but the price per gallon is even with the rest of them. This will mean something if you want a rebate from the AAA. Our brands are as high or higher in weight per gallon of 2,4-D content as the best competing brands.
3. We have studied this subject carefully and we know that if you use our chemicals in the recommended manner you will get results.

YACHT RACE STARTS . . . Yachts entered in the opening race of the 1949 Amorita cup series for international-one designs in Great Sound, Bermuda, get off to a fast, close start. Eight yachts were slated to compete in the series, four representing the United States, and the other four from Bermuda. The Wisp, one of the U. S. entries, whisked to victory in the first test.

EX-NAZI PILOT . . . A former pilot in the German luftwaffe and machine-gunner in World War II, Karl H. Gebert now is in the U.S. army. He was taken from Abilene, Tex., to Germany by his parents when he was 12. War came and he went into the German air force. He was captured by the Russians.

QUEEN . . . Doris Zhart, 15, is shown after she had been installed as queen of the annual Brooklyn botanical gardens cherry blossom exhibit. The cherry blossom setting was emblematical of the occasion.

INGRID BERGMAN "STARRED" IN ROMANCE TRIANGLE . . . Screen actress Ingrid Bergman, pictured here with her husband, Dr. Peter Lindstrom (right) and Italian director Roberto Rosellini before they became co-starred in a dramatic love triangle, has announced that she will return to her husband after she finishes a picture in Italy which Rosellini is directing. Stories from the film's location and pictures showing her and Rosellini in romantic poses sent her husband speeding to the scene. The two men met in a yacht off Messina and it is believed the understanding was reached then.

"URGE" TO KILL . . . Diane Allen, 13, confessed to Will county, Illinois, police authorities that she drowned a young boy playmate in a shallow stream in Joliet. Diane told police she simply "had an urge" to drown the boy—an urge which struck her while they were picking flowers.

CUTS BIRTHDAY CAKE . . . In New York, with his wife assisting, Israel's President Chaim Weizmann cuts slice from 450-pound, seven-foot-high birthday cake at celebration of Israel's first anniversary. Honoring Dr. Weizmann, 160 leaders from communities throughout the country presented checks totalling more than 15.5 million dollars to the United Jewish Appeal Organization's program of immigration and resettlement in Israel.

PRIZEWINNER . . . Arthur Miller, 33, playwright, was awarded the coveted Pulitzer prize for distinguished efforts in the field of the theater. His new famous play, "Death of a Salesman," won him recognition.

GLORIA SWANSON RESUMES MOVIE CAREER . . . In Hollywood, glamorous Gloria Swanson, one-time great star of the silent screen, was before the cameras again for the first time in the past eight years. Seen with Paramount director Billy Wilder, she will appear in "Sunset Boulevard," with Erich von Stroheim, another oldtimer favorite.

SUCCESSOR? . . . With news of retirement of Gen. Lucius D. Clay as military governor of the American zone in Germany, a likely successor was John J. McCloy, shown here. McCloy was reported reluctant, to leave his present job.

Magic in Sarazen's Method

By GRANTLAND RICE

THERE IS ONE badly-needed lesson in golf that the present generation can take from Gene Sarazen. This is the vital matter of time and speed.

It takes most of the modern golfing generation just an hour longer to play a round of tournament golf than the stocky champion from 1922 employs. Sarazen moves along and wastes no time at all.

Most of today's leading players wear out the stop watch. They take entirely too long to play every shot, especially the shots around the green. They turn a chip shot into an engineering ceremony. They turn a long-approach putt into a double engineering job as they survey every dip and roll of the green.

Grantland Rice

I have followed more than a few 18-hole matches that required over four hours of play. It is Sarazen's idea that a two-ball or three-ball match should be completed in two hours and 45 minutes.

Here is Sarazen's idea of playing his strokes After the drive, he walks briskly to his ball. He sizes up the right line and the proper distance as he moves up. He takes about three or four seconds to make the proper club selection. Then he takes his swing

On reaching the green, stocky Gene takes out his putter and walks up back of the ball, not around it. He picks out the correct line as he comes to the ball. He is then ready to make his putt. There is no waste motion—no extra pressure on the nerves—no form of convulsion—and a most pleasant afternoon for the cross-country runners who follow the matches

Gene figures that with a two-ball match the pair should get around in about two hours and 20 minutes.

"I'd be goofy, a nervous wreck, if I wasted as much time playing each shot as so many do," Sarazen says. "Imagine walking at a snail's pace from your drive to the green, over 200 yards away, as I've seen several golfers do. Imagine taking seven or eight minutes to use up two putts. I would think that, after a few holes, many of these players woulu be hearing funny noises under their caps. I know my nerves would be in knots.

"One of the main reasons why I've been able to hang around for 27 years is the fact that I've saved my nerves by playing rather quickly. The longer you take to play a shot, the greater the pressure you put on your swing.

"Make your decisions quickly and definitely. Never have any doubt once you've reached for what you think should be the right club. And don't half-hit or overswing. But above all, walk briskly and don't take up too much time playing your shots. Especially around the greens."

Getting the Jump

Quite recently, a pair of young men by the names of Billy Southworth and Leo Durocher were discussing the National league pennant race Both agreed on one point.

"This is a good year," both said, "to reach July Fourth a few games in front. For the team in front after July Fourth will have a better chance to hold a lead

"Why? Simple enough. The National league clubs are so well-matched that it will be harder than ever to close up any gap. The others won't let you. The eight clubs have never been as well-matched as they are this year.

"For example, if the Reds had Blackwell they would be just about as good as any team in the league. There isn't much to spare from top to bottom."

This was the expressed opinion of two of the league's veteran managers—two of the best in the game today. Eddie Dyer told me, before starting North, that the league might be less than 10 games apart at the finish. That means from top to bottom. Eddie didn't say it would be—he said it might be.

I honestly believe that if the Reds had the Ewell Blackwell of 1947, they would be about even money against any of the other seven teams. But baseball is full of breaks—injuries, accidents, mistakes, and team spirit.

Some teams quit quicker than others do. They let the psychological burden knock them over. They quit before they are beaten. This can be a battle of the gamest teams—the game teams against the quitters.

"I was rather astonished," Billy Southworth said, "to see how strong the Phillies were. They have a fine outfield, and good infield."

This department has come into possession of the fact that there are numerous such cases. Elmer Twitchell, for instance, has a nephew, Pastrami Twitchell, who has not only been in a closet for 10 years, but has resisted all efforts to entice him out. "He went in during Hitler's oratorical tirades over the mike. We nearly got him out this season, but he heard Vishinsky," Elmer explained. "Then he nailed up the door from the inside."

I came out, read the newspaper headlines and leaped back in again. I'm no fool."

Asa Z. Boogle, who has been living on a shelf in a basement pantry ever since 1943: "I climbed onto this shelf when the prices of everything began rising, with government controls helping very little. From time to time I peeked out and found things getting more unbearable. I am a fugitive from 75-cent cocktails, beer at 17-cents a glass, $4.50 steak dinners, 28-cent gasoline, shrimp cocktails at $1.10 a throw, 90 cents for watered soup, the $1.25 raw lambchop delivered on the butcher's block and people who call up to know what radio program I am listening to. Come out again? Why?"

H. K. G. Stuffinbox, who has been residing in a filing cabinet for ever so long: "If you wish to talk to me, climb in. I refuse to come out for anybody. I consider that I am a sane, wise and highly judicious fellow. You and all others who prefer the outside world in its present shape are nuts.

"The location of my home and my place of employment was such that I had to use the subways for north and south travel and buses for east and west. Once in a while when I went to a theater I had to get a taxi. I lived in an apartment where everybody kept the radio on all night. A room across the hall was occupied by an opera star who vocalized all day. Every few weeks there was an eleveator strike in the building. And in order to get to my job I had to cross nine picket lines. So I got into this filing cabinet and, mister, it seems paradise."

Jarvis P. X. Waffle, who has been living in a abandoned cello case ever since 1919: "I got in right after Woodrow Wilson announced America would make the world safe for democracy. I knew what that would mean. Now and then I get a pretty good line on what life is like outside this cello case and, boy, am I happy to be where I am! No flying saucer mysteries! No video comedians! No bop music! No radio jingles! No jackpots! They can't even get me interested in "Stop The Music."

The New House

HERE Christ shall come, and here He shall abide.
Our table shall be set for our great Guest;
Our lamp be lit, our hearth be warm and wide;
And here He shall find shelter, food, and rest.

And He will talk with us beside our fire,
And He will walk with us through every task.
We can confide each hope and each desire,
No question be too great or small to ask.

Because He lives with us, is one of us,
We shall take care no evil thing be heard;
Because His ways are kind and courteous,
We shall watch our ways, our every spoken word.

This is our new house, Lord, be Thou its Head;
We gladly share its simple fare with Thee.
Sit at our table, break and bless our bread,
And make us worthy of Thy company.

Brief Lexicology Of 'Bossy'

The first person to call a cow 'bossy' may have had a sense of humor, a knowledge of Latin, or a smattering of both.

On the other hand, the term may have just evolved—like Topsy 'grew': the Latin word for ox is bos; in the Teutonic languages the root word is spelled variously bos, bosse, or busse—meaning barn, stall, or crib; such an evolutionary explanation supposes that a boss calf was kept in a barn or stall as distinguished from a calf grazing at large and that 'bossy' as applied to a cow was derived from the same source.

MURDER BY TWO

By Richard H. Wilkinson

IT SEEMS to be universally presupposed," said Inspector Ben Odell, "that people who aren't in their own element are at a disadvantage.

"I'm thinking of the time Detective Sergeant Rod Upshur went up to Round Pond for his summer vacation. Rod was city bred and city raised. He worked on the police force of one of the country's largest cities. He didn't know a great deal about the country and country ways. But he knew human nature, and he was smart.

3-Minute Fiction

"Rod was staying at one of those summer camps and was having a pretty dull time, when Henry Graves, the owner, came to him with a request.

" 'There's been a drowning up the river a ways,' he explained. 'Jed Thomas, the local officer, isn't so sure but what there's foul play. I know it's out of your jurisdiction, but we'd appreciate having you lend us a hand.' He smiled flatteringly. 'You see, your fame as a detective of crime is far reaching.'

"Jed Thomas, a farmer by trade, was congenial and willing to let Rod assume the entire burden.

" 'Fact is, Mr. Upshur, there's been a feud hereabouts. Between the Hallams and the Spencers.

" 'Well, sir, couple days back Herm and Punk Hallam come to me an' says they was bait diggin' in their lower pasture and suddenly they sees a boat with Pat Spencer in it come sweepin' around the bend. He was clear across the river, which is about 200 yards wide there, an' they claim he hit a submerged log and stuck. They claim he tried to push hisself off with an oar an' the oar slipped an' it an' him fell overboard. Well, sir, Pat can't swim an' he just naturally drowned.

"Jed Thomas drove Rod out to the Hallam farm and introduced him to Herm and Punk. They were big strapping fellows, smug, amused.

" 'I see,' Rod remarked to Jed, 'that you recovered the oar Pat Spencer lost overboard.'

" 'Yep,' replied Jed, and not too happily, 'I found it caught in some weeds along the bank about 15 yards downstream. I guess he musta lost it, just like Punk and Herm said.'

"Punk and Herm laughed.

" 'Wait a minute,' Rod said easily. 'Not so fast, boys. You two are smart all right. Too smart. So smart you made one awful blunder. Officer Thomas, I think you'll be safe in arresting these men and charging them with murder.'

PAT'S AND HERM'S mouths fell open. In fact, so did Jed's. Jed said: 'Yuh mean, you know Pat didn't drown hisself?'

" 'O course he did!' Punk Hallam said darkly. 'Listen, city jigger, you ain't comin' up here an' gettin' away with accusin' us o' murder. You ain't scarin' us, none. We got each other for witnesses.'

" 'Fine,' said Rod. 'That makes the lie all the worse, because you both declare you saw Spence fall out of the boat, first dropping his oar. No, I must confess I am a city man and the ways of the country are strange to me. However, any dumbbell would know after looking at that river and seeing that bend above here and knowing that there's a fast current, that an oar dropped overboard near the opposite bank, could never lodge in underbrush along the bank on this side 15 feet from where we're standing. It would be two or three miles down stream by now.'

"For a minute, there was silence. The three men stared at Rod blankly. It took quite awhile for the announcement to penetrate. Officer Thomas fortunately, recovered first. He had a gun in his pocket and he got it out, just as Punk Hallam jumped at him. He had to shoot Punk through the shoulder, and would have done the same to Herm, apparently, had one more ounce of grey matter than his brother. He quit."

DDT EFFECTIVE CONTROL MEASURE FOR DOG TICK

An Iowa State Colloge entomologist this week warned the people of Iowa that the tick season brings with it the danger of Rocky Mountain spotted fever.

Harold Gunderson said that the disease is transmitted to humans by the American dog tick, which is also known as the wood tick. Serious illness and deaths from the disease are reported each summer. It is particularly serious among children.

To carry the infection, ticks may attach to human beings directly from a plant or shrub or move from dog to a person. Dogs that range through tick-infested fields are likely to bring home ticks that will transfer to humans.

Gunderson said that DDT will control ticks effectively. He recommends thorough dusting of grass, weeds and shrubs in back yards, vacant lots and recreation grounds where children play. One dusting early in the season is usually all that is needed, but a second dusting may be applied if ticks are discovered. Dust at the rate of 10 ounces of 10 percent DDT dust to 1,000 square feet. The U. S. Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine says that the dust is not a health hazard to children, dogs and pets when applied at this rate.

Gunderson also says to inspect for ticks following outings where children and adults may pick up ticks. If ticks are removed before bedtime, they are not likely to cause the disease. Remove ticks with tweezers and not with your fingers. Burn the removed ticks.

He recommends that dogs either be dusted with a 10 percent DDT powder or be bathed in a dip made by mixing two ounces of derris or rotenone powder with 1 ounce of neutral soap in 1 gallon of warm water.

Funeral Services Held For Rev. Harvey At Waterloo

FORMER KLEMME MINISTER DIED SUDDENLY AT WATERLOO SUNDAY

Herschel E. Harvey, 51, former Klemme-Liberty Methodist minister, died suddenly Sunday morning of a heart attack at his home at Waterloo.

Mr. Harvey, his wife and daughter LaNelle were getting ready to go to church when he was ill. He died before medical aid could reach him.

Rev. Harvey was pastor of the Klemme-Liberty Methodist churches for about seven years. Because of ill health he obtained a leave of absence from the ministery about a year ago and became a member of the Vocational Rehabilitation Department of the State Board of Education and was employed by the department at the time of his death.

Rev. Harvey and family came to Iowa from Maryland and he served congregations at Swea City, Rowan, Ledyard, Clarion and Klemme. He leaves his wife, one son, Elwood who is with the U. S. Army Intelligence in Europe, and one daughter, LaNelle, a student in Waterloo. Funeral services were held on Wednesday at the Methodist Church at Waterloo with burial in the Waterloo Memorial Park Cemetery. A great many Klemme and Liberty people attended the services.

Women's Fishing Licenses

During the past several weeks the Conservation Commission has received numerous cards and letters, asking whether or not women are required to have licenses to fish in Iowa. Female residents of the state under 16 years of age are not required to purchase fishing licenses. Female residents over 16 are required to have licenses to fish in state-owned lakes. They may fish in all other waters of the state without paying a license fee.

67 YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Shaffer observed their 67th wedding anniversary recently, at the ages of 87 and 85 respectively. Now residents of California, the Shaffers lived at Altoona for many years.

FISHING SEASON NOW IN FULL SWING FOR IOWANS

Des Moines—The fishing season was underway in earnest for Iowa anglers last Wednesday.

All waters of the state were opened for the taking of bass, sunfish, blue gills and other late spawning varieties

The season extends from June 1 to Nov. 30 on these species. Fishermen have been taking catfish since April 15. The season on other early spawners such as walleyes, perch, silver and yellow bass and northern pike, opened May 15. The closing date on all species will be November 30th.

James R. Harlan, assistant director of the state conservation commission, says that Iowa waters are in fine shape for this time of year.

Large and small mouth bass have been grabbing lures and bait well ahead of season and fishermen have had to throw them back.

Sales of fishing licenses are expected to pick up after Wednesday. Normally the commission issues about 300,000 licenses annually.

IOWA DAIRY PRODUCTION CONTINUES HIGH IN '49

Heavy feeding and the mild weather in Iowa have enabled Iowa's dairymen to hold up high rates of milk production in 1949, says Francis A. Kutish, farm economist at Iowa State College

During the first 4 months of this year Iowa milk production was on the same level as that of 1948 This same high rate of production probably will hold through the rest of 1949, Kutish believes

Although production in Iowa has been maintained at the same level, it has increased in other parts of the country. People are drinking about the same amount of fluid milk and cream as last year. The result: milk is going into the making of butter and the price of butterfat has weakened.

By April, wholesale milk prices in Iowa were 19 percent below the prices received during the safe period last year. Wholesale butterfat prices paid to farmers in the state were down 28 percent. The current government price support program will hold prices of cream sold for butterfat at about present levels.

Dairy prices are usually sensitive to changes in the general business picture. So dairy farmers will want to keep an eye on how business is going for a cue to their prospects. Prices of milk cows, however, follow beef prices more closely than prices of dairy products.

HELEN HARDING-WORTHIE USHER ARE MARRIED

Helen Harding, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Harding, and Worthie Usher, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Usher, of Rowan, were married at seven o'clock Sunday evening, May 29th in a candlelight service in the Estherville First Methodist Church Church at a double ring ceremony. The Rev. J. Heber Miller of Graettinger officiated.

The bride was attired in a white satin gown with fitted bodice and full gathered skirt with long train. Her veil was of illusion net, finger-tip length, and fastened to a crown of gardenias. She carried a bouquet of gardenias. Her rhinestone necklace, earrings and braclet were gifts of the groom.

Mrs. Glen Lundgren of Graettinger, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor and wore a gown of yellow. The bridesmaids, Mrs. Maurice Drew, of Swea City and Mrs. Dean Moore of Minneapolis, wore white and green respectively. They carried matching colonial bouquets.

Judy Miller of Graettinger, wearing a white dotted Swiss dress with yellow satin sash and hair ribbon, acted as flower girl. She wore a wrist corsage of feather carnations.

Robert Ahrenkiel of Goodell, cousin of the groom, was ring bearer. He wore a white satin suit.

The groom wore a steel blue gabardine suit and a gardenia boutonniere and was attended by his brother, Carroll Usher. Ushers were Kenneth Quickel of Sioux Center and Glen Lundgren of Graettinger. Best man and ushers wore carnation boutonnieres.

The bride's mother wore a blue print two-piece dress with navy accessories. The groom's mother was gowned in black with gold trim. Both wore an orchid corsage.

Baskets of spring flowers flanked the seven branch candelabra decorated the chancel

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Mrs. C M. Gronstal played the nuptial music Preceding the ceremony Miss LaVonne Gardner, cousin of the bride sang, "Because" and "Ah Sweet Mystery of Life" and Charles Wallace of Morningside College, Sioux City, sang, "O Promise Me," I Love Thee" and "Through the Years." As the bride and groom met at the altar they sang "I Love You Truly" and the organist played this melody throughout the ceremony. Miss Gardner sang "The Lord's Prayer" after the vows had been exchanged. She wore a yellow gown and white carnation corsage.

Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held in the church parlors. A three-tiered, rectangular shape wedding cake decorated with yellow roses served as center piece on the reception table. After the bride and groom cut the traditional first piece of wedding cake, Mrs. J. Heber Miller finished the cutting. Miss Garner sang "Bless This House" as as the cake was being cut.

Mrs. Couyler Peterson poured the coffee and Miss Marie Blank of Klemme, aunt of the groom, served the punch. Virginia and Iris Litner and Sophie Van Dries, all of Ocheyedan, were waitresses. Mrs. O. R. Gardner, grandmother of the bride, presided at the guest book table and Miss Mildred Gardner, the bride's aunt assisted at the gift table.

Mrs. Elmer Jackson, Mrs. La Rue Wiseman, Mrs. Russell Dominy and Mrs. Wesley Anderson assisted with serving.

Charles Wallace played some favorite tunes of the bride and groom throughout the reception.

The bride's going away suit was of gray sharkskin with which she wore green accessories and a gardenia corsage.

Mrs. Usher in a graduate of the conservatory of music, of Morningside college, and for the past year has been teaching in the Ocheyedan schools.

The groom is attending Morningside and will graduate in August. Mr. and Mrs. Usher plan to teach at Oceyedan the coming year and after that Mr. Usher plans to enter Garett theological seminary at Evanston, Illinois.

IOWA'S CORN PROSPECTS NOW ARE EXCELLENT

Des Moines—Iowa's corn stands are excellent and crop prospects "very much resemble the outlook as it existed a year ago at this time." Government agricultural experts reported Wednesday.

The Iowa weekly weather and crop bulletin also said the state's "feed and grain prospects are potentially excellent."

The report, covering the week ended May 27, made these points:

The stand of corn is 96 per cent of normal and about 4 per cent of corn acreage must be replanted, largely because of cutworm damage in south central Iowa.

Meadows and pastures are in average condition and could use a little more rain and warm weather. Soybean seeding is slightly delayed.

Farm work generally is in good shape and the labor supply is reported ample.

Weather for the week ended May 27 averaged 5 degrees below seasonal normals and light forsts were reported May 24 in extreme northwest Iowa.

Although northwestern counties got heavy rains and there were locally good rains in the southwestern and east central districts "the need for rain is urgent" in central and northeastern Iowa.

Approximately 95 per cent of Iowa's corn has been planted and 63 per cent of the beans are in.

Obituaries Of Mrs. Della Christie and Henry Keeper

DELLA ANN CHRISTIE was born March 17th 1862, at Owatonna, Minnesota, the fourth of a family of six children born to her parents, Harry and Lucinda (Crawford) Carpenter.

Her childhood days were spent near Bangor, Michigan. At the age of eight she moved with her family to Avery Township, Hancock County, Iowa, where she completed her education and became a member of the U. B. Church and grew to womanhood.

In April, 1883, at the age of 21, Della Ann Carpenter and Archibald Christie were married. They commenced housekeeping on the farm which was later known as the Ben Swalve farm (Twin Lake, Section 12.)

After six years they moved to the Christie Farm, 1½ miles north of Goodell, and this was their family home for more than 40 years.

Eight children were born to this union, six of whom survive, Ray and Frank having preceded their mother in death.

The husband Archibald Christie, died in 1916, after which Mrs. Christie and the children continued to live on this farm for a number of years. Then Mrs. Christie retired and spent the last few years at the homes of one or another of her daughters.

Mrs. Christie was a bright and capable individual, and very devoted to her family.

For the last several months Mrs. Christie had been ill and bedfast at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Sumner Trumbell. Her other daughters came to assist with her care.

The end came quietly late in the evening of Memorial Day, May 30, 1949. She reached the age of 87 years, 2 months, and 13 days.

She leaves of her immediate family six children:

Winifred Conklin, Goodell, Iowa
Cora Carey, Waterloo, Iowa
Iva Tracy, Roland, Iowa
Frances Trumbell, Klemme, Iowa
George Christie, Garner, Iowa
Verner Christie, Klemme, Iowa.

Also 12 grand children and 11 great grand children.

HENRY KEEPER, son of Klaus and Johanna Keeper, was born the 19th of June, 1879 at Geberdorf, Hannover, Germany His childhood days were spent in the home of his parents. He attended the public and Church School and was confirmed in the Lutheran Church. In 1905 he was married to Miss Gretchen Beckman. One year later the young couple came to America with their infant daughter Anna. This child was taken from them in death at the age of 17.

Mr. and Mrs. Keeper found a home in Klemme, Iowa where Mr. Keeper found employment tiling, and for many years he worked for the railroad as a section hand. For a short time he was section foreman at Goodell.

Four children were born to them in this country, Albert and Alvin of Albion, Michigan; Hilda, Mrs. E. W. Lucas of Grants Pass, Oregon and Raymond of Mason City, Iowa.

Since coming to America Mr. and Mrs. Keeper lived in Klemme with the exception of two years, 1945-1947, that were spent in California Mr Keeper earned his living in the sweat of his brow, doing an honest days work for his wages. His friends will remember him as a friendly companion who was inclined to deal kindly with his fellowman. On May 31st he went to work as usual, feeling ready for a good days tiling. At about ten o'clock he became ill and was brought home by one of his fellow workmen. He received medical care but his hour of departure was at hand. He died at 11 o'clock at the age of 69 years, 11 months and 12 days.

Of four sisters three are still living in Germany, namely Johanna, Marie and Gretchen. Surviving him and mourning his sudden departure are his wife Gretchen, four children, Albert, Alvin, Hilda and Raymond and seven grandchildren.

Mighty Casey Hasn't Struck Out

By GRANTLAND RICE

WHEN Casey Stengel came back to New York from St. Petersburg just a month ago, he was almost in a complete daze. He was listening to funny noises in his block.

He knew Joe DiMaggio was out indefinitely. He knew that Frank Shea's arm was out of kilter again. And then, in quick succession, Charlie Keller ripped a new muscle loose in his back. Johnny Lindell sprained an ankle. Snuffy Stirnweiss was ailing Bob Porterfield snapped a ligament in his pitching arm.

Grantland Rice

By this point, Casey had reached the spot where nothing else could happen. Some experts were beginning to look for some place lower than eighth where the team could finish. The lowly Browns had a new rival.

But the Casey of early April and the Casey of today are two entirely different men. The staggering Casey of early April is the mighty Casey of late May.

"There is ease in Casey's manner and a sneer on Casey's lips.
There is scorn in Casey's bearing as he moves his swinging hips.
And when he looks around the field to call his rival's bluff
Not a rooter in the place can doubt that Casey knows his stuff."

In any event young Jerry Coleman, at second, suddenly turned into a star. So did young Dick Kryhoski at first. His pitching staff became the best in either league, and his batsmen started ripping the cover off the ball. Above all, when something was needed, Tommy Henrich would hit a home run or a triple or make a killing play in the outfield. Bobby Brown and Billy Johnson began driving in runs

Who would have said on the 17th of April that the Yankees would be something like six games ahead of the Red Sox on May 10?

As one Yankee veteran explained it, "When our batters fall down our pitchers step in. When our pitchers blow, our batters come to life. But most of the time, both our pitchers and our batters are on the job, delivering together."

This latter seems to be most of the answer. The Yankees always had good pitching But it is even better than it looked to be. A staff that carries Vic Raschi, Bob Porterfield, Tommy Byrne, Allie Reynolds, Joe Page, etc., is a standout.

This doesn't mean the Yankees are due to break up the American league. But it does mean they are a far stronger ball club than any one thought they would be. They can hit and field and they have able pitching And they have, in manager Stengel, a leader who no longer fears to look fate in the face.

Casey would have received his share of razzing if the team had blown up. Why not slip him the loud huzzas for his place in the standings today?

Early Checkup

May is still too early in the campaign to start any checking.

The big surprise in the National league has been Giant pitching, especially Hartung's pitching. Durocher's staff has more than held its own. The team has also been hitting.

So far, no club has settled down to any consistent play. The pitching has been spotty. The Dodgers have held their own more through speed and youth than through expected good pitching. The team is also hitting better than it figured to hit.

The Giants have been up around the front even with Larry Jansen, their star pitcher, off to a ragged start. He is due to be much better from now on.

The National league race has proved to be as even as it figured from the start At the end of the third week of the season, a gap of only four games separate the eight clubs. The Pirates and Cardinals are due to move up with long home visits ahead. Especially the Pirates.

The slump of Johnny Sain has cut heavily into the Braves' shot at a good early lead. Like Jansen, he got away badly, but you can't rate him that far down.

Washington, after a ragged start, has bounded back in the American League with a spectacular rush: Chicago's White Sox have been a big improvement over expected doom You will see the Red Sox and Athletics start moving soon.

HOW TO FIX IT

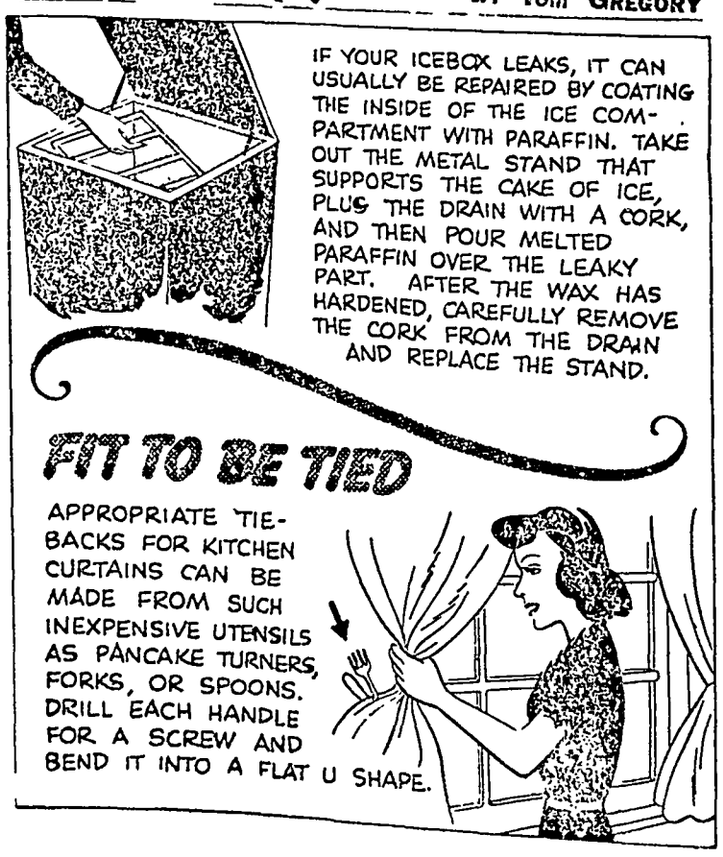
By Tom Gregory



IF YOUR ICEBOX LEAKS, IT CAN USUALLY BE REPAIRED BY COATING THE INSIDE OF THE ICE COMPARTMENT WITH PARAFFIN. TAKE OUT THE METAL STAND THAT SUPPORTS THE CAKE OF ICE, PLUG THE DRAIN WITH A CORK, AND THEN POUR MELTED PARAFFIN OVER THE LEAKY PART. AFTER THE WAX HAS HARDENED, CAREFULLY REMOVE THE CORK FROM THE DRAIN AND REPLACE THE STAND.

Bridal Finery

Here's a stunning capelet-sleeved princesse white satin bridal dress from the spring and summer collection of a New York designer. The bodice is yoked with a marquisette and richly embroidered with seed pearls and iridescent paillettes, and buttons in back. Satin gauntlets are embroidered at the top.

Yokes, frequently defined with ruffling of lace or eyeleted organdie, give a demure touch to many of the new bridal dresses. The yoke in some cases is done in pale blue or flesh-colored nylon or net rather than the traditional white.

Full Skirts Featured In Bridesmaid's Dress

Simple designing marks the bridesmaid's dress this year. This does not mean, however, that it's in any way an ugly duckling. With full, charming skirts, scooped or wide-open necklines and sash waistlines, these gowns are very romantic looking. One in light blue combines plain and eyeleted organdie and has a small ruffled apron over its skirt.

Perfect for a garden wedding is a hoop-skirted, floor length dress in green and lavender plaided cotton with a matching cartwheel.

Can look lovelier than ever.

Snug bodices, very wide skirts with wide sashes, appliqued flowers, all are features on the new bridesmaid's dresses.

Brides Should Plan Beauty Routine

Since the girl who is a bride should look her loveliest at the wedding, it's the wise bride who goes on a beauty ritual before the wedding. She may be perfectly lovely, but a few beauty routines followed faithfully for a week or 10 days before the wedding when her days are hectic, will give her good grooming as well as confidence.

Properly chosen food, rest and cleanliness will assure her of a healthy, wholesome look for her wedding day. These will be beneficial for all-over beauty, especially for preventing the skin from breaking out all of a sudden from too much rich food during bridal showers!

No matter how busy her program, the bride-to-be should plan to get her full quota of eight hours sleep. If she can't manage this every night, she should take an hour or two for a nap during the day. No bride should appear at her own wedding with dark circles under shining eyes!

A daily tubbing will take care of cleanliness, but special attention should be directed to the face, arms and legs, especially if the skin is dry. Use a cleansing or lubricating cream if the skin is dry, and do this treatment faithfully.

Be Smart!

Lovely wash fabrics such as the many fine cottons are taking novel turns in the current skirt blouse styles, and nearly all of them are designed with variety in mind. In the model sketched, stunning appliqued flowers of the same white as the blouse become even more flattering with quilting. The skirt is worn with or without the pretty weskit, according to your mood. Another idea that is extremely popular is the skirt with a wide, matching sash which can double as a stole or a cleverly draped halter, according to need.

Youthful Errors Leave Scars

TWENTY YEARS ago a certain girl went off on a motor trip with a college friend; she was 19, the boy-friend was 22. Both were living on money sent by self-denying and hardworking parents, month after month, so that the girl and boy might acquire a real education, culture and the benefits of social contacts in a wider world.

The motor trip lasted five days. For those five days, and they weren't by any means days of unclouded happiness, the girl threw away her honor. It seemed fun to register as Mr and Mrs.; it seemed fun to spend his last $19 of allowance and the $10 she had borrowed from a sorority sister on the delights of little wayside meals and overnights at the picturesque motels of Southern California A "motel" is an informal one-story hostelry, and at many of them guests are not too closely questioned as to age or relationship

This girl was a sensitive, well-bred, proud young thing, who came to me a few months after this brief interval ended, half-mad with self-contempt and shame No, she was not going to have a baby; the escapade hadn't left that scar.

Tortured with Remorse

But she was writhing under the burning misery of knowledge far too old for her 19 years. Knowledge that the boy hadn't taken the affair seriously at all. Knowledge that what she had thought a generous surender had only been a cheap yielding to his casual importunity. Knowledge that many of her college associates suspected what had occurred, and the nicest of them couldn't help showing that they didn't like it—or her.

When a telegram came from a

sick mother this girl returned gladly to her Iowa home. The boy had long since shown his complete indifference and was taking another girl about. Our girl—call her Anne—felt a deepened shame when she realized that he was the sort of boy who might under certain circumstances boast of his conquests

Well, she went home and became a domestic angel She saw her mother through a long illness, kept house for an adoring father and two small brothers, filled to the brim her obligations as daughter, sister, friend, and eventually wife and mother. She married with dignity, with position and modest wealth, and with true love. Her husband never has had a suspicion of her early mistake.

Can't Escape Selves

So what? What's the moral? The moral lies in Anne's own heart. Every cheap, dishonest, vulgar careless thing we do in youth is stored away in our consciousness and in our characters. We can't escape ourselves, even though we escape everyone else. Probably the arrogant boy who made love to her 20 years ago hasn't suffered; he was made of coarser clay. All colleges have scores of boys of this type; unscrupulous, attractive, sure of themselves and neither knowing or caring what results from their love affairs.

But Anne is finely constructed; she is sensitive to her fingertips. Her daughters are 16 and 9 now, and there is a son in between, and all their lives their mother has been building their characters with talk of self-control and purity and goodness. And in all these years, back in her own consciousness, has been the knowledge that somewhere in the world there lives a man who knows just how weak and gullible she was when she was a girl.

No man, in the honorable and consciencious beginnings of his business life, likes to remember that when he was in high school, he used to slip his hand into the pockets of coats hanging up in the schoolhouse hall, and take what he found. No man likes to remember the time he lied flatly—and successfully!—about cheating in the finals in his Freshman year

The chance that got him out of a disgraceful night-club raid, while the other fellows had to face the publicity and scandal of it, isn't anything to be proud of, in later life These ghosts of past follies and young sins rise to haunt us and to jar our self-respect and sense of security in later years.

This is so of all schoolday mistakes. Untruths that got someone else into trouble. Small thefts and forgeries. The abandoning of friends when one might make a safe escape from trouble and leave them behind Cruelty to a devoted mother.

And more than all these—these little foxes that gnaw and gnaw through our memories is the knowledge in a girl's heart that in her unthinking girlhood, she threw away something that meant nothing to her casual lover, but so much more to herself than she ever dreamed.

For that particular relationship, to a girl, is the very key to her whole life. It is the key to honor, dignity, wifehood, position, home, children. It means these things to her, whether she quite knows it or not at 18.

Koreans Run Thieves Mart

Seoul Natives Sell Variety 'Hot' Items

SEOUL, KOREA.—Any modest-sized American department store would be envious of the thieves' market in this capital city with its variety of goods ranging from surgeon's scalpels to G I. uniforms. With a sly grin the native calls it "our Korean P X"

The market, which is stuffed with goods obtained mainly through questionable channels, is made up of hundreds of wooden stalls on a muddy, twisting side alley almost a mile long

The American influence on this little community of "hot" goods is plainly evident. The three years of American military government combined with the large civilian personnel still here has been the market's best source of supply.

The market, whose merchants operate on the basis of "you name it; we have it," or "if not, we can get it," is glutted with medicines, shoes, toilet articles, civilian and GI clothes, plaster pin-up girls, and almost anything else you can think of.

The market has grown into quite a little industry with its own dyeing and tailoring concerns. It is only a matter of hours until a "hot" man's suit can be tailored over into a woman's garment and dyed a different color.

Another favorite pastime of the local slippery finger men is the lifting of automoblie headlights, provided they can't make off with the vehicle. But those thieves specializing in the automobile trade apparently are imbued with a certain amount of community consciousness and need for safety on the roads at night. They invariably remove only one headlight.

Why Jesus Died

Lesson for June 12, 1949

THE FACTS of Jesus' death were simple. They are told in the four Gospels without dramatics and without tears. Yet the drama is there, stark and terrible; and only the hard of heart can read it without tears.

There is a deeper question than what happened. Why did it happen? The first Chirstians were forced to think about the crucifixion. They all knew it was no legend. It was so. But they were haunted, as we are, with the question, Why? Here was a person whose teaching was truth, whose touch was health, whose life was love. You would have thought the world would welcome such a man, and give him the highest honors in its power. But instead, all it had for him were nails and thorns and a cross. Why? If God, who sees all things, knew that even his Son would come to no better end than a death of shame, why did God allow Jesus to be born, much less send him into the world, the world where the cross was waiting?

No Other End

THERE WAS, of course, "historical reasons" why Jesus was killed. If we used the words "murdered" or "lynched" it would be nearer the truth. Jesus' death, from one point of view, was both a tragedy and a crime, and the Gospel stories show this. Jesus died because Pilate was a spineless man.

Jesus died because the priests of Jerusalem saw that if this man won, they would lose, and they would commit murder rather than be defeated. Jesus died because the Pharisees had closed minds and would not listen to truth if they did not think of it first.

He died because Judas was a traitor, because his friends were cowards and even the best of them dared to show their faces only after he was dead. He died because the Jewish people had their minds set on one sort of Messiah, and when Jesus turned out to be quite another sort, they would have none of him. Being altogether the sort of person he was, in that kind of world, at that particular time and place, you could say, as Jesus himself did, that the Son of Man "had to" die (Luke 24:26.) No other end was possible. There was no help for it . . . except to turn coward and hide; and if he had been capable of that, he would not have been the Christ we know at all.

The Plan of God

THEN was Jesus simply a victim of circumstances? Was he no better than a fly caught in fate's dark web? Far from it. The Christian church has always believed, even before these stories of the crucifixion were ever written, that the death of Christ was in the plan of God. In fact, it is at the heart of God's plan for mankind.

It is by the death of Christ that God reconciles man and brings men back to himself. The Christian church believes and teaches that Christ died for us, that is, for you and for me. We believe that this was not simply Jesus' own idea, something God had not thought of till Jesus suggested it.

We believe that this was the intention of God "from before the foundation of the world." The God who is over all, works through all things, even very evil things, to make his love known.

"That The World . . . Might Be Saved"

MEN had long thought of God as living in far-off heaven, seated on a throne, high and lifted up. A just and mighty God, one who cannot be touched with any human weakness, a holy and infinite Lord of the universe,—such a God men knew. But on earth there walks and suffers a race of men who are slaves of sin, slaves to evil. How can such a God help such men? Not by staying on his throne and hurling down more curses. Only by doing what men would never have guessed God would dare to do—come into this world, himself as a man, translating himself into the life of man; putting his shoulder under the human load, even bearing "our sins in his own body on the tree" (I Peter 2:24).

MIRROR Of Your MIND

Mother Can't Replace Father

By Lawrence Gould

Can mother take father's place?

Answer: No, however hard she may try, and however relieved father may be by the thought of dumping his responsibilities onto her shoulders, says Dr. Edward A. Strecker, author of "Their Mothers' Sons." For the fact remains that mother is a female, and a child must learn to grow up in a world that's male AND female. "Your son needs a man around whom he can imitate. You want him to glory in physical strength, learn to be aggressively fearless, resourceful, protective—in short, masculine. He will not learn that from his mother."

Are nicknames bad for children?

Answer: There is no essential difference between a nickname and a "real" one if it is the name which the child comes to recognize as meaning himself. I know two or three men who would scarcely know whom you were speaking to if you addressed them by the names that are recorded on their birth certificates, and I cannot see it has made any difference to them. But to give a child a nickname that seems "cute" while he's a baby but will sound ridiculous as he grows older may make his developing a normal self-esteem needlessly hard.

Do longer hours mean getting more work done?

Answer No, say statisticians of the U. S. Bureau of Labor, reporting a survey of 2445 male and 1060 female workers in 34 different industrial plants in this country. "Generally speaking, the study indicates that, everything else being equal, the 8-hour day and 40-hour week are best in terms of efficiency and absenteeism, and that higher levels of hours are less satisfactory." Longer hours not only mean more time lost through absence from the job, but bring about a marked rise in both the number and frequency of accidental injuries.

Is a Beekeeper Responsible If His Bees Attack a Mule?

A farmer set up a beehive alongside his back fence, right close to the favorite grazing spot of his neighbor's mule. One hot day the bees lit out after the mule and stung him so badly that he died. When the neighbor sued for the value of the beast, the farmer protested that he was not to blame for what his bees had done. However, when he admitted that the same bees had once attacked his own mule too, the court decided to hold him responsible. The judge said that, since the farmer knew his bees were vicious, he should not have stationed them so close to the neighbor's animal.

KEEPING HEALTHY

Causes and Treatment of Hives

By Dr. James W. Barton

WHEN HIVES (urticaria) occurs, the first thought naturally is to relieve the itching and burning, but there are so many substances that can cause hives that we must try to find the cause as soon as possible.

Thus, as certain foods are often to blame, the first method of treatment is to give an emetic to induce vomiting, such as a teaspoon of mustard in half a glass of water. If the food has been in the body for some time, then a dose of castor oil or Epsom salts should be taken. The drug most commonly used to relieve symptoms is the injection of 10 to 15 minims (drops) of adrenalin under the skin.

While cleansing out the stomach and intestine and the injection of adrenalin (epinephrine) give almost immediate relief from the itching and burning, it should be remembered that the system has received a shock and needs rest in bed, with liquid food for a day or two.

When hives are over the entire body, baking soda, which is always soothing to the inflamed skin, is effective—a cupful in the regular bath or half a cup in the wash tub. After drying, touching the hives with baking soda talcum or flour prolongs the relief.

While the above treatment gives considerable relief in all cases, the cause of the hives should be sought so that chronic hives or frequent attacks of hives can be prevented by avoiding the foods, drugs and other substances found to be the cause or causes.

In addition to these causes, it is now known that just as emotions disturbances can increase the heart rate, raise the blood pressure, cause stomach upsets and diarrhoea, so can they cause hives and other eruptions of the skin.

One of the substances manufactured by the body tissues is histamine, a factor associated with allergic symptoms including hives. For this reason what are known as antihistamine drugs, such as benadryl, are used to treat hives.

7TH ADJOURNED APRIL MEETING

Garner, Iowa
May 23, 1949

The Hancock County, Iowa Board of Supervisors met in session on above captioned date pursuant to adjournment with F. J. Schoun, Clint Daniels and George Th. Gerdes present.

The minutes of te last meeting were read and approved as read.

Borrow Dirt Agreement: This agreement made and entered into by and between Hancock County, Iowa, party of the first part and Paul Stromer of Rapid City, S. D., party of the second part.

WITNESSETH: That the party of the first part agrees to purchase and the party of the second part agrees to sell borrow dirt for use on the public highway from the following tract of land at the rate of $147.00 per acre.

A strip of land 500 feet east and west by 30 feet north and south along the highway on the south side of the SW¼ of section 26-95-24 approximately 800 feet east of the southwest corner of said Section 26. This is on the hill west of the evergreen hill. Area approximately 0.34 acres.

The black dirt on the area used to be bladed to the north edge of the tract and spread back over the ground when the grading is completed.

The description of the land is approximate and payment will be made for the land actually taken.

The depth of which the dirt is taken shall not exceed one foot at the edge of the borrow pit away from the road and the slope toward the road shall not be steeper than eight feet horizontal to one foot verticle. All borrow pits will be bladed by the party of the first part and left smooth enough for farming.

Payment for the acreage taken will be made at the time the grading is completed and borrow pits measured.

Signed this 3rd day of May A. D., 1949.

WEED NOTICE

TO ALL LAND OWNERS, OCCUPANTS, AND PERSONS IN POSSESSION OR CONTROL, INCLUDING RAILROAD LANDS AND LOTS WITHIN HANCOCK COUNTY, IOWA:—

The Board of Supervisors of Hancock County, Iowa, in an adjourned April meeting on June 2, A. D., 1949 passed the following resolution to-wit·

BE IT RESOLVED by the Board of Supervisors of Hancock County, Iowa:—

That pursuant to the provisions of Chapter No. 317 Code of Iowa 1946 it is hereby ordered

1. That each owner and each person in the possession or control of any land or lots in Hancock County, Iowa, shall cut, burn, or otherwise destroy all noxious weeds thereon, as defined in this chapter at such times in each year and in such manner as shall prevent said weeds from blooming or coming to maturity and shall keep said lands free from such growth of any other weeds as shall render the street or highway adjoining said land unsafe for public travel Noxious weeds shall be cut or otherwise destroyed on or before the following dates and as often thereafter as is necessary to prevent seed production

Group 1

June 15, 1949, for leafy spurge, perennial peppergrass, sour dock, smooth dock, sheep sorrell.

Group 2

June 30, 1949, for Canada thistle, Russian knapweed, quack grass, buckhorn, wild mustard.

Group 3

July 15, 1949, for field bindweed, wild carrot.

Group 4

July 30, 1949, for horse nettle, perennial sow thistle, butter print, puncture vine and cocklebur.

2 That each person and owner in the possession or control of any lands in Hancock County infested with any primary noxious weeds including quack grass, perennial sow thistle, Canada Thistle, field bindweed, horse nettle, leafy spurge, perennial peppergrass, Russian knapweed, shall adopt a program of weed destruction prescribed by the Weed Commissioner, which in five years may be expected to destroy and will immediately keep under control such infestations of said primary noxious weeds.

3. That all weeds other than primary noxious weeds on all County Trunk primary highways and local County roads, and between the fence lines thereof shall be mowed by the adjoining property owner to prevent seed production on or before July 15, 1949.

4. That if the owner or persons in possession or control of any land in Hancock County, Iowa, fail to comply with the foregoing orders, the Weed Commissioner shall cause this to be done and the expense of said work including cost of serving notice and other costs, if any, to be assessed against the land and the owners thereof.

5. That the County Auditor be and he is hereby directed to cause notice of the making and entering of the foregoing order by publication in each of the official newspapers of Hancock County, Iowa.

The foregoing resolution was offered and read by Supervisor Gerdes, who moved its adoption, was seconded by Supervisor Daniels, whereupon the Chairman, F. J. Schoun, placed the motion of its adoption and upon roll call the vote thereon is George Th. Gerdes, Clint Daniels, and F. J. Schoun, aye. Nays, none.

Whereupon the Chairman declared the resolution duly adopted.

Please take notice and govern yourselves accordingly.

NEW TECHNIQUE

A skunk in the Frankville vicinity tried a new tactic recently when he bit little Larry Letchford by the seat of his trousers and caused a good bit of commotion before his father succeeded in killing the animal. In addition to his new method of attack, the skunk also used the OLD method, greatly to the regret of all parties present.

WISE TO INSPECT CORN FIELDS FOR CUTWORMS

Cutworms are working and causing some damage to early-planted corn and sweet potatoes in southern Iowa, according to several reports received by Harold Gunderson, extension entomologist at Iowa State College.

"We don't know whether similar damage will occur farther north in the near future, but it may," Gunderson said this week. For that reason, he thinks it a good idea if farmers inspect their cornfields for cutworms. They can be controlled.

These cutworms are all working above ground and can be killed by applications of DDT, chlordane or toxaphene dusts or sprays. Apply 1½ to 2 pounds of the actual material per acre as soon as damage is first seen, Gunderson said. The insecticides give best control when used on young cutworms. They may fail to give effective control on older worms.

GOOD OR BAD, TELEVISION . . .

Video—the Great, Irresistible Force

. . . HAS FASCINATION FOR MILLIONS

By H. I. PHILLIPS

LIVING-ROOM SQUAT

Television is developing a race of sitters—a vast, immovable population of living-room squatters, as it were. In all areas of the country where video has come into play, great masses of people are "settin'" glued around the set, absorbed and silent, neglecting small talks, books, papers and even the racing results.

—*—

The decline in conversation at house parties in television belts has become alarming. Guests hardly speak to one another or to the hostess. Whole evenings are spent in which "come in" and "good night" sum up the total exchange of words.

—*—

The old man doesn't go down to the store for the papers or a cigar. Mom cuts the cinema. It isn't because television is all sheer entertainment. In fact, it has been rather trying, often downright annoying. Video is still in the baby stage. It doesn't look like an extra smart kid. But there is such a diversity of attractions on so many programs over so many channels that there is a fascination for millions in it, good or bad.

—*—

So many more thrillers, playlets, vaudeville sketches, hockey games, fights, wrestling bouts, debates, concerts, newsreels, soap operas, comedians, tragedians, actors, dancers, scientists, clowns and puppets come zooming into the old homestead that the audience at least gets action. The reactions are curious. We know one addict who says, "It's so bad that it's absorbing." Another demands, with more enthusiasm, "Show me another medium through which I can get a hockey game, a ski tournament, a forum, a circus, a Broadway show, a couple of westerns, a book review and a carload of miscellaneous entertainers and celebrities without getting out of my chair!"

—*—

We have even discovered a fellow who finds some commercials attractive on television. He hated commercials on the radio, but a close-up photograph of a mince pie, a layer cake, a stack of wheaties, a bubbling glass of beer or a gal whipping up a dinner on a cooking program intrigues him. He gets sore if a plate of frankfurters and beans doesn't screen well or if a display of gelatins is out of focus. His chief interest in all products seems to be their degree of screen clarity.

—*—

Men and women who could take their regular radio or let it alone have been known to go nuts over television. The business of operating the various dials to bring in the entertainment gives them the feeling of being producers, stage directors, dramatic coaches, vaudeville kibitzers and movie promoters. They are never satisfied. They are always monkeying with the dials, trying to achieve the perfect show.

—*—

The American public is getting more and more amusement-mad and it looks as if books, magazines and newspapers may have to go all out for showmanship. Man's house used to be his castle; it is now his fight arena, his ball park, his theater, his concert hall, his information bureau and his personal clambake.

—*—

The answer to "Shall we go out somewhere tonight" is "Why?" People used to leave the apartment to kill boredom and seek some diversion. They now accomplish the same objectives with an "aerial stack" and a "booster."

—*—

Hurry up with the dinner, mom! There's a prize fight, a wrestling show, six musical revues, a tour of the nighteries, four westerns, a travelogue, a newsreel, four mystery dramas, 18 newscasts, a rodeo, a mardi gras and a sailfish tournament on the video tonight!

This 'n' That

Armour and Co. omitted its preferred dividend, saying meat prices have fallen 20 to 30 per cent . . . Steaks and chops are now worth little more, in fact, than their weight in gold.

PRAYER POWER

YOUR prayers have comforted me, friend,
Through many a day;
When strength has failed me, then I know
That you will pray;
When any hurt becomes too great
For me to bear,
I feel it ease, remembering
Your power in prayer.

"I shall pray for you each day," you said,
"My voice shall lift
In your behalf. . . . " O friend of mine,
There is no gift
Though you should search the wide world through
That can compare
With the precious, shining, white weight
Of your prayer!

"Pray one for another," we are told.
I, too, shall pray
For you, and for each troubled heart
In need today.

Wedding Plans

IF YOU'RE PLANNING to entertain after the wedding and make all the refreshments yourself, with just a little help, do consider a simple menu as the most effective means of doing it.

You'll probably have to cook in large quantity since many guests will be there. Time will have to be spent on the decorations. All in all, if you want everything to be perfect, it's best to have a simple menu which can be carried out more perfectly than a larger, elaborate menu.

FOR A LARGE wedding reception, a simple but effective menu goes like this:

Assorted Tiny Sandwiches
Potato Chips Stuffed Olives
Salted Nuts
Fruit Punch Coffee
Wedding Cake
Ice Cream or Ice Cream Mold

The cake may be made in several layers of different sizes If you desire a smaller cake, use three or four layers of the same size In either case, make the cake and decorate it at least 24 hours ahead of serving time so that it can be sliced easily

Here's a good recipe for a large cake The filling and icing recipes follow:

Six Layer Wedding Cake
(Serves 16-18)

- 6 cups sifted cake flour
- 6 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1½ cups shortening
- 4 cups sugar
- 2 teaspoons vanilla
- 1 teaspoon almond extract
- 2 cups milk
- 10 egg whites

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Cream shortening with vanilla and almond extract until fluffy Fold in sugar and blend until thoroughly mixed. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with milk, in small amounts, beating after each addition until smooth. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry and fold in gently. Pour into greased, waxed-paper lined pans and bake in a moderate (350°) oven for 30 minutes. This recipe makes six nine-inch layers.

Lemon Filling
(For 6 nine-inch layers)

- 2¼ cups sugar
- ⅓ cup cornstarch
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 3 tablespoons grated lemon rind
- 1 cup lemon juice
- 1½ cups water
- 3 eggs, beaten
- 3 tablespoons butter

Mix sugar, cornstarch and salt thoroughly. Add remaining ingredients in order given and blend thoroughly. Cook over boiling water, stirring constantly until thickened. Cool.

Ornamental Icing

- 2 cups sugar
- 1 cup water
- 3 egg whites
- ¼ tablespoon cream of tartar
- ½ teaspoon vanilla
- ½ teaspoon almond extract

Boil together sugar and water, without stirring, to 242° or until a small amount dropped from a spoon spins a thread. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry and pour on hot syrup in a thin stream while beating constantly. Add cream of tartar, vanilla and almond extract and beat until thick enough to spread. Cover cake smoothly with a part of the icing and beat remaining icing until cool and stiff enough to hold shape when forced through pastry tube. When coating on cake has hardened, decorate as desired with remaining icing forced through pastry tube If icing becomes too thick, add a few drops of hot water.

YOU MAY TINT some of the icing forced through the pastry tube a delicate yellow or pink if you want tiny roses for decoration. Also tint part of the icing a pale green if you want leaf decorations for the roses.

For the top of the cake, you may purchase a bride and groom decoration or a pair of lovebirds.

When setting cake on a platter, place fresh flowers all around the base of the cake, for decoration.

Strawberry Punch
(Makes 8 quarts)

- 2 quarts water
- 1 cup granulated sugar
- 1 cup corn syrup
- 4 quarts strawberries
- 1½ quarts chilled orange juice
- 1 pint chilled lemon juice
- 2 quarts ginger ale
- 2 thinly sliced limes or
- 2 quarts lemon sherbet

Combine sugar, water and corn syrup. Bring to a boil. Add the washed, hulled strawberries and boil, covered, for four minutes. Remove, strain through a sieve, without pressing, and chill. Just before serving, combine with other ingredients. If using sherbet, place in scoops on top of punch in punch bowl.

Coffee
(Serves 25)

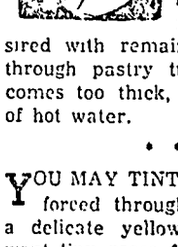
- ½ pound drip grind coffee
- 4¼ quarts boiling water

Tie the coffee loosely in a fine cheesecloth or muslin type bag. If desired, mix coffee with one egg, including the shell, to which has been added a small amount of cold water. This will make coffee clear.



Drop the bag in the water which is boiling in a large kettle. Cover the kettle and turn heat very low. Let coffee steep for 12-15 minutes. Remove bag and serve coffee as needed. This will give 25 people an average coffee cup serving.

LYNN CHAMBERS' MENU

Smoked Tongue
Raisin Sauce
New Potatoes, Boiled
Creamed Spinach
Hearts of Lettuce Salad
Lemon Meringue Pie
Beverage

LYNN SAYS:
Serve Salads to Sharpen Summer-Wilted Appetites

Tomatoes may be stuffed with seafood salad, mixed vegetables or egg salad for a salad meal that's complete.

Use this combination for fruit salad: melon balls, marinated in lime juice, white grapes, peach slices and pineapple spears.

Want a light fruit salad that's colorful to serve as dessert? Try fresh, diced pears, sliced bananas and red raspberries.

Lock into your garden for salad inspiration. Lettuce, spinach, radishes, carrot sticks and a bit of watercress, if you have it, make a delectable green salad.

Start a meal off with a salad to pep appetites; watermelon, honeydew and cantaloupe balls, pineapple cubes, red cherries and a topping of sherbet.

Lima beans left over from supper? Mix them with chopped sweet pickle, celery, sliced, stuffed olives and mayonnaise and serve for lunch.

STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO

BY INEZ GERHARD

VANESSA BROWN typifies everything that a young actress ought to be. Very pretty, with chestnut hair and blue eyes, she has managed, at 20, to complete her college course and make pictures at the same time. Asked how it happened that she was chosen for the maid of the all-star cast of Paramount's "The Heiress," she laughed and said she'd been teaching William Wyler's daughter to swim; after testing older actresses he realized that Vanessa was right for the role, her ninth. You've heard her on the air—she toured Alaska with "Vox Pop," has appeared on the Screen Guild and other important shows. She writes, too; has sold three stories to a newspaper syndicate.

Joan Fontaine in "Bed of Roses" will be back at RKO for the first time since she starred in "From This Day Forward" in 1945. A modern drama, it stars her as an iron-willed girl with an insatiable desire to have her own way. Friends who knew her and Olivia de Haviland in their school-girl days say the beautiful Joan herself always had a way of getting what she wanted.

John Miljan deserted films two years ago to devote his time to his avocado ranch at Vista, Calif., but could not resist the role of "Mr. Howard" in "Mrs. Mike," the Dick Powell-Evelyn Keyes starrer being produced for United Artists.

Five of filmland's glamour girls recognize a voice that has made love to them when they tune in Mutual's "Scattergood Baines." Wendell Holmes, who plays "Scattergood," has played the romantic lead opposite Joan Fontaine, Dorothy McGuire, Veronica Lake, Claire Trevor and Madeleine Carroll. He's also tops at impersonating Winston Churchill on the air.

The Fiction Corner

NO REGRETS

By Richard H. Wilkinson

3-Minute Fiction

VALERIA'S AFFAIR with Eliot Harvey had proved extremely gratifying. After all, Eliot was the most handsome and the most glamorous man at Newfane Lake, and the confession of his love had rather flattered her vanity. But the duration had been brief. Two months, to be exact. She had smiled a little wistfully the night she handed back his ring.

"It's been swell fun, Eliot, but it can't last. The feeling's all on the surface. It isn't real."

"Not real?" He stared at her, unbelieving. "Good Lord, Val—" But she interrupted him with a gesture of finality. "It's no use, Eliot. You're far too glamorous and handsome to fall in love. I tried hard, but it didn't work." She patted his hand maternally. "Summer romances are fun, and this has been the best ever. No regrets."

A hurt look came into his eyes, to be replaced an instant later by exaggerated indifference. He tossed the ring, caught it, pocketed it. "O. K., sister. I guess I can stand it." His eyes held that smug, "it's-your-funeral" look that so fitted his role. She felt released, free again. When Doug Metcalf asked her to attend the Country Club ball with him she accepted without qualms of conscience. Doug was big and homely.

"Thought there was no harm in asking," he grinned. "You won't find me as spectacular as Eliot."

He looked at her curiously, seemed on the point of asking a question and thought better of it. She knew that he, like everyone else, was wondering if her heart was broken. Well, let them find out for themselves. Their pity annoyed her. Who was this Eliot Harvey, a god or something?

The night of the ball, dancing with Doug Metcalf, she saw Eliot floating by with Sheelah Jackson. He was looking down into her upturned face, oblivious to everything else. Valeria felt a little pang, and, impatient at herself, gave her attention to Doug. Doug was watching her and there was worship in his eyes.

SHE WAS DANCING a dreamy waltz with Doug when Eliot cut in. Surprised, she found herself in his arms scarcely before his familiar features became recognizable.

"Well, well, well. Look who's here! How's the Don Juan of Newfane?"

"Val, let's go out and get a punch." His tone was almost harsh.

Valeria hesitated. "All right," she said. "I could use something like that. It's been a destructive evening. I'm worn out."

They moved into the alcove where the drinks were being served. He led her beyond and through French doors that opened onto the terrace. The place was crowded, but they found a vacant bench behind some shrubbery, and Valeria sat down. It was good to sit. Eliot bent over her.

"Listen, Val, I can't stand it! I've been crazy ever since you gave me back the ring. I'm going mad! You've got to come back to me!"

Amazed, she stared up at him. His eyes were burning coals. He stood there stripped of his pride and dignity, no longer the confident Don Juan, the breaker of women's hearts.

"Eliot, you're drunk!"

"I'm not! Val, don't you see I'm not! Don't you see how much I love you!" He dropped down beside her, and suddenly his head was against her breast. He wept.

Val was frightened and bewildered. So all his indifference, his casual acceptance of her decision to break their engagement, his interest in Sheelah Jackson—it had all been pretense! A sham! A mask! An attempt to maintain his Don Juan standing, to nourish his pride and vanity and conceit.

She stood up, suddenly contemptous, ashamed of her own doubts, disgusted with his weakness. She looked down at him, without pity or compassion or regret, turned away and went eagerly back to find dependable Doug.

Discovery of Iron

Iron—according to legend—was discovered by primitive man in campfire embers or in meteorites Iron tools were used in constructing the Pyramids about 3000 B. C The ancients produced iron in fires built on the windward side of banks, or in pits or rock furnaces, using bellows.

THE HOME TOWN REPORTER IN WASHINGTON

WALTER SHEAD, WNU Correspondent

People Ran Congress

AS A USUAL THING folks out in the home towns and rural communities of our country are ahead of congress and the politicians here in Washington in their thinking on what is good for, or what is best for our country in the matter of national legislation.

As a rule the measures before congress are merely translations of the thought and action of the people themselves. And Washington is simply the mirror which reflects the will of a majority of the people.

There is a definite trend here in Washington however, which your Home Town Reporter is not attempting to interpret. I am going to ask for an interpretation from the grassroots on this trend which leads to the question—"Are we moving toward a socialistic national government in this country?" So if you will, please write me a letter giving me your thoughts on the question.

Perhaps I am too close to the forest to see the trees, but my mail is flooded every day with publicity, brochures, pamphlets and just plain propaganda seeking to brand every liberal piece of legislation before congress as "socialistic."

All Are Branded

The housing and slum clearance bill, federal aid to education bill, the bill for compulsory health insurance, expansion of social security laws, the various proposals to create river valley authorities, any bill which would provide for a federal grant-in-aid to the states, the Brannan agricultural program and numerous other measures . . . all have been branded as definitely socialistic in nature by one or more of the large organizations which maintain lobbies here to influence legislation.

Even our farm cooperatives have been branded with the socialistic label. It has come to the point that every so-called liberal piece of legislation which comes before congress is being measured by the socialist yardstick. Of course there are as many definitions for the word "liberal" as there are writers, but as this reporter views it, liberal legislation is any measure which has for its objective the elimination of any inequalities or tribulations of any great mass of the people through federal help in money or regulatory control.

Socialism Defined

The dictionary says socialism is a reconstruction of society on the basis of cooperation of labor and community of property; or government control of economic activities so that competition will give way to cooperation and the rewards of labor be equally apportioned. That is the orthodox Marx brand of socialism, but the modern or garden variety of socialism appears to be content with a more adequate distribution of wealth through social reforms by political agencies. They want nationalization of such resources as railroads, mines and other properities, but do not advocate abolition of the profit system nor the right to own private property.

Although anyway you view it socialism does not fit into the American system of free competition and individual freedoms, the question arises-does any reform advocated by the Socialist party become socialistic in fact? For instance as far back as 1908 the Socialist party platform advocated conservation and development of natural resources; scientific reforestation; storage of flood waters and utilization of water power; establishment of minimum wage scales; five and one-half-day week; old age pensions and survivors insurance; a graduated income tax; equal suffrage; direct primary; vocational education; a separate labor department and conservation of public health and establishment of an independent health bureau. These reforms are in the law today. Are they socialistic?

Address Given

This reporter believes, however, that a measuring stick should be whether or not, you as a citizen have lost or may lose your individual freedoms guaranteed you by the constitution and the bill of rights; whether controls by the government to keep employment on the farms and factories up and prices down are socialistic; whether taxation plays such a role in your economy as to become unbearably oppressive.

So let's hear what the folks in the home town think on this subject: Is the government moving towards socialism? Write me, if you will—address, Walter A. Shead, care Western Newspaper Union, 1057 National Press Bldg., Washington 4, D. C.

As late as 1936 the Socialist party platform advocated a public health program for adequate medical aid financed by taxation; a 30-hour week; creation of a federal marketing agency for purchase and marketing of agricultural goods.

Dairy Calves Need Shelter From Sun, Rain In Summer

Young dairy calves need shelter in the summer as well as in the winter, says Arthur R. Porter, dairy specialist at Iowa State College.

Shade from the sun in hot weather and a place to get in out of the rain are necessary for the dairy calf that is to do well in summer. Porter also recommends that the calf barn or shed be given the same fly-control treatment as the dairy barn.

Neva Kropp Bride Of Bob Hartzell At Liberty Church Ceremony

YOUNG COUPLE WILL BE AT HOME ON LESTER STILLE FARM WEST OF TOWN

The Liberty Methodist Church was the scene of a wedding on Sunday afternoon, June 12th at 3:00 o'clock when Miss Neva Kropp, daughter of Mrs. August Kropp, and Robert Hartzell, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Hartzell of Dows were united in marriage by the Rev. E. Morris Egeland in a double ring ceremony.

The altar was decorated with peonies and orange blossoms. Mrs. Lew Abele played nuptial music preceding the ceremony and also played the wedding marches. She accompanied Le-Roy Bredlow who sang "I Love You Truly," and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride and groom both wore gray suits and the bride wore a corsage of orchids. Miss Ruth Stille, the bridesmaid, wore a brown suit with a corsage of red and white roses Lyndon Kilgore, the best man, wore a brown suit.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother. Mrs. Kropp, the bride's mother wore a brown dress and the bridegroom's mother wore a blue dress. Both mothers had corsages of pink and white carnations.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the basement of the church which was decorated in blue and white. The bride's table was centered with a four-tier decorated wedding cake which had been baked by Mrs. Mildred Day. The waitresses were the Misses Lois Stille, Lorraine Bredlow and Elaine Goll.

The bride is a graduate of the Garner High School and Mr. Hartzell, who is a graduate of the Britt High School, served 4½ years in the U. S. Army and was a Lieutenant in the infantry. After a short wedding trip to Chicago, the couple will be at home on the Lester Stille farm west of Klemme, which the couple will operate.

A wedding dance and reception will be held Friday evening of this week at the Community Hall honoring the newlyweds.

TREASURE

A court order was signed in Adel recently, awarding $3,640 to five Dexter youth, who found the money buried in a fruit jar while digging a grave for the family cat. One claimant, Arthur Koch, who contended the money was part of his father's estate, had contested the claim of the five boys in court.

OPEN NIGHTS

KLEMME STORES TO BE OPEN TWO NIGHTS A WEEK

Beginning with this week, most of the Klemme business places and stores will be open on two nights each week: Wednesday and Saturdays.

Movies On Wednesday

Movies will be held each Wednesday night and arrangements are being made to hold the movies out of doors when the weather permits.

Band Concerts

For entertainment on Saturday nights, the Klemme Band, directed by Stanley Bulka will give a fine concert. The band concerts are proving popular and large crowds come to hear the band. Klemme has one of the best bands in North Iowa this year.

LAKERS TO PLAY HERE THIS THURSDAY NIGHT

Crystal Lake comes here this Thursday night for a soft ball game with the Klemme team.

Sunday the Moose Lodge of Mason City will meet the locals here.

Klemme stepped into the win column the past week by winning two games: winning over Hayfield 7 to 4, and downing Forest City 13 to 9.

MISS ALICE RIDDER BRIDE AT WATERLOO CEREMONY

Miss Alice Ridder, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Will Ridder of Waterloo, and Mr. Norman Crosley were united in marriage at the Calvery Evangelical Church in Waterloo on Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Those from Klemme who attended were Mr. and Mrs. Ben Ridder; Mr. and Mrs. Loren Gast and Kathy and Mr. and Mrs. Emil Beier.

Emil Beier's Car Damaged In Accident Tuesday

When returning from the south on Highway 69 last week Tuesday E. G. Beier's car was damaged on the north side of Priebe's hill when it collided with a car coming from the north.

As Mr. Beier reported the accident, he saw the oncoming car swerving toward the left, so Emil drove his car off from the pavement onto the shoulder, but was unable to get out of the way. The driver of the car from the north was thought to have momentarily fallen asleep and drove off the road. Both cars were badly damaged but the drivers escaped with minor injuries.

HANCOCK COUNTY HEALTH HIGHLIGHTS

Dental

Final reports are in for this year's dental program. Forty of the 67 rural schools had one-hundred percent dental card response. Six town school rooms in Woden and Klemme were likewise one-hundred percent. We recognize that this signed card means the three point dental program has been carried out—education about dental care on the part of the classroom teacher, —prevention through good mouth hygiene habits and correction through regular visits to the dentist.

Preschool

Mothers of preschool children are seeing to it that children starting school in the fall have check-ups with the family doctor. At this time they are also immunized and vaccinated for diptheria and smallpox. Having physical examinations now gives time before school to make corrections. Only well children do the best school work.

4-H

4-H girls are having physicals before July 1st. And then they have until August 15th to make corrections for any remediable health defects.

Film

Film of the 1949 Hancock County Dental Parade was well received at a State Public Health Meeting last week. Any groups desiring to borrow it, (16 mm silent) simply address "County Nurse, Garner, Iowa."

Radio

Tune in KGLO, June 29th, 11:45 a. m. to hear several rural teachers interviewed regarding the dental program.

ASSESSOR POST GOES TO FRED C. MISSAL

A conference of mayors, members of the Hancock County board of education and Hancock County board of supervisors, was held at the courthouse in Garner at which Fred C. Missal was reappointed county assessor for Hancock County. The appointment is for a four year term commencing January 1, 1950.

C. H. Chissel, Garner retired merchant, was renamed as a member of the county board of review for a four year term beginning January 1, 1950, and George Oxley, Corwith, realtor and farm manager, was appointed to fill the term of W. C. Keraus of Klemme, who was unable to serve.

The conference also approved the budget for 1950. The conference was called by Hancock County auditor, Maynard Schoneman, and Hancock County Supervisor Frank Schoun served as chairman.

FOUR DAMAGE SUITS ARE WITHDRAWN

Four separate suits were withdrawn in Hancock County district court at Garner all of which arose from an automobile collision on a rural highway south of Duncan on the afternoon of November 4, 1948, in which LeRoy Bachman was fatally injured when a car driven by George L. Brcka collided with the car in which Bachman was riding. The suits were filed by Tillie Bachman, administratrix for LeRoy Bachman, deceased, Raymond M. Bachman, and Albert Kraus, guardian for Martin Bachman, a minor, vs. George L. Brcka. The damages claimed were approximately $31,000.

SENATE OKAYS KLEMME POSTMASTER

The Senate has approved the nomination of Franklin Kluckhohn of Klemme for the postmastership at Klemme. Others approved near here were Joseph C. Brady of Belmond and Ronald V. Clark of Corwith.

COUNTY ASSESSOR TELLS ABOUT PROPERTY TAX EQUALIZATION

CORN OATS, HAY SHOW PROGRESS

The corn crop made rapid progress the past week under warm sunny skies. Some fields of corn will average knee high by June 25th if the favorable weather continues. Most fields are clean and have an average stand.

Oats is beginning to head and is shorter than a year ago due to lack of rainfall. It has a good appearance.

Hancock County farmers experienced the best haying weather the past week they have had in years and the crop was put in the mow or bale in an excellent condition. Dry weather has also curtailed the yield a little.

Local showers fell in the county Sunday afternoon and evening but more rain is needed.

ENTERTAIN FOR PAT SMEAD, BRIDE-TO-BE

Clear Lake—Mrs. T. A. Hein, assisted by Mrs. L. V. Brown, entertained a group of friends and relatives at the Hein cottage on the south shore Friday evening at a miscellaneous shower for Miss Patricia Smead, whose marriage to Henry Smid, Klemme, will take place June 19th at the Evangelical and Reformed Church in Klemme.

The evening was spent in games and looking at the many gifts received by the honoree. Refreshments were served. Summer flowers decorated the home.

Celebrated Second Birthday

William Dean Arnold was 2 years old on Friday the 10th of June. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Arnold and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Arnold and family, celebrated the big event by having a picnic dinner in the Arnold park. The birthday cake with the numerals 2 decorated by his mother was beautiful as well as delicious. Little Billy enjoyed his gifts very much. One gift coming from Sacramento, Calif., from his little cousin Cathy Sue Chambers.

Eastern Star Had Work In The Initiatory Degree

Relief Chapter, O. E. S., Garner, had work in the initiatory degree at the Chapter Room Tuesday evening. Mrs. Mildred Day of Klemme was in the class of candidates received into the Order. Lunch was served at the close of the meeting.

GROUP PLANNING SQUARE DANCING PROGRAM

The Delta Upsilon Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi, in Garner, is sponsoring a square dancing program for Wednesday evening, June 29th. It will be held at the Garner athletic field. Everyone is welcome; no admission charge. Further details as to orchestra, caller, and time will be announced in the next week's issue. Watch for it.

Hummel Children Celebrate Birthdays

Wednesday afternoon twelve friends of Lois and Ronald Hummel, children of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Hummel, came and surprised them and to help them celebrate their birthdays.

They were Winola and Eugene Zwald, Billie Velau, Terry Koerner, Bobby, Ronald, Gordan, Jimmy, Joann and Janis Beier, Joyce Hummel, and Ginger Kudje all of Klemme. Lunch of home-made ice cream and birthday cake was enjoyed by all. Lois ard Ronald received many lovely gifts from their friends.

HANCOCK BOARD OF REVIEW COMPLETED ASSESSMENT ADJUSTMENTS

The Hancock County Board of Review has completed the task of property assessment review in the county. Some adjustments have been made, some have been lowered, some have been raised.

The fact that the board saw fit to meet taxpayers in each taxing district rather than hold all meetings at the county seat, has brought much favorable comment and a better understanding of the taxing problem. Most of the taxpayers who appeared came for information relative to methods applied.

Each person who met with the board was granted the privilege of comparing his property with similar property of his neighbor, and many inequalities were ironed out by this process.

Farm land is assessed from $60 to $108 per acre, 100 percent value, as a general average on high and low . The taxable valuation will be 60 percent of this value. According to information received from the State Tax Commission this is in line with the general average in this North Central area.

Town lots are assessed on a front foot value basis and values are based chiefly on population and business activity of the town. Equalization of town lots has been completed but equalization with other town in nearby counties has been somewhat indefinite due to lack of information at State Tax Commission Headquarters in Des Moines.

The Tax Commission has granted the Hancock County Board of Review an extension of time for final adjournment to July 1 to make a further study of lot values submitted. There is a good probability that lot values will be somewhat reduced across the board from information now at hand.

Valuation in the county will probably increase about 25 to 30 per cent and this should result in a corresponding reduction in millage rates. Where maximum rates are allowed taxpayers should check the budget filed by each taxing body to make certain such rate is needed.

Government costs are up and in some cases more money may be needed but the time to determine this is at budget filing time and not when the tax is paid next January. It is then too late to register a protest.

With approximately twenty million dollars for Homestead tax credit, two million in military service refunds and approximately six million state aid grant to schools all on a valuation basis, it is imperative that valuations be equalized throughout the State as well as local taxing areas. The State levy for soldiers bonus also is a factor which requires equalization value.

The task of bringing about complete equalization of values is a herculean task and cannot be entirely completed in one assessment season but it is the earnest desire of the County Assessor and the County Board of Review to work at the job until it has been completed All assessments will be rechecked by the Assessor's office and in some cases additional inspection of property will be made

Farmer's Son Injured In Tractor Accident

Roger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Beier of Liberty township was injured in an accident last week when he was caught between the tractor and a fence, resulting in a fracture of one leg.

Palestinian, Ponder or Capot?

By GRANTLAND RICE

What About the Belmont?

AFTER THE RACE at Pimlico and on the way home we heard no one discussing either the Kentucky Derby or the Preakness.

The flow of racing conversation turned in the general direction of the Belmont, to be run June 11 over the mile-and-a-half test, the real test for the three-year-old.

Grantland Rice

There were three names that led most of the comment — Ponder, Capot -and Palestinian. The triple crown for 1949 is now dust and dreams, or such things as dust and dreams are made of.

With Ponder in charge of the Derby and Capot on top in the Preakness, it would be no unfair turn of fortune's wheel to see Palestinian win the Belmont, which he might do. The Bieber-Jacobs horse was finishing close up and strongly in both the Derby and the Preakness and no one can say that Belmont's longer race will hurt him a bit.

Before the Preakness I happened to run across Warren Wright, the Baron of Calumet.

"The Preakness distance may have been too short for Ponder," he said. "But I honestly think Ponder should win the Belmont. The longer the distance, the better Ponder likes it. He comes from far back, 20 lengths or more, and he needs running distance to make up this ground."

Parnell Ben Jones offered no prediction but he admitted that the longer the race the better Ponder would like it—even up to two miles

No one can question the fact that Ponder can handle the route. What about Capot? John Gaver turned in a fine job of having Capot in perfect shape for both the Derby and the Preakness. When a horse breaks a track record, running against the time set by such horses as Whirlaway, Count Fleet and Citation, he must be moving in a hurry.

Capot was leading at the mile and three-sixteenths in both the Derby and the Preakness. He had the continued speed of the field. But what about a mile and a half? This is something else again. That extra quarter can be a heavy test unless the race is slowly run.

Palestinian has shown both speed and stamina in his last three races —the Wood, the Derby and the Preakness. His record is 2-3-2, being extremely close to winning on two occasions Ponder's most recent marks are 1-5. Capot's last three are 3-2-1.

Palestinian, like Capot and Ponder, is also an improving horse. Palestinian has had enough speed to run with anybody. He has been coming on, cutting away ground, in his last three big races. Capot had to fight bravely and desperately to keep his head lead at Pimlico and I don't think an extra 16th of a mile would have bothered Palestinian in the slightest. He is both fast and strong.

The Belmont will have all this—plus Sun Bahram, Noble Impulse and others. Old Rockport? Rocky seems to be slipping instead of getting better. He hasn't had it since he left California, although as able a trainer as Ben Jones still believes he hasn't run his race.

More Games Than One

A day or two ago we ran into Ralph Kercheval, now in charge of Alfred Vanderbilt's racing farm.

How many remember that more than 10 years ago Kercheval was one of the greatest kickers college football ever knew? Many well-known pro coaches have tangled in arguments as to whether Kercheval or Ken Strong was the greater all-around kicker. Shipwreck Kelly, another Kentuckian, was always a Kercheval booster.

Ralph had full early faith in Vanderbilt's Loser Weeper, winner recently of the Metropolitan. "Loser Weeper has improved as much as any horse I know," Kercheval said before that race.

As far as racing goes, Sammy Renick has gone out for the versatility record. Sammy started as a rider—one of the best. Then he began as a racing owner and now is involved in the television section, where he is one of the season's video hits. "No," Sam said recently, "I've never tried training. I may take a shot at that later."

The one who has tried the toughest combination is Ellsworth Vines, who is battling earnestly to make as good a living out of golf as he did out of tennis. Vines has played a lot of fine golf, but he has never been the champion he used to be at tennis.

New Kitchen Cabinet

This modern version of the old-fashioned kitchen cabinet is designed with an eye toward kitchen beauty as well as high utility value. It holds supplies both on the shelves as well as pots and pans in the cabinets below the large, pull-out table top which can be used as a preparation center.

Designed as a complete unit with shelf space, vertical and below-counter storage space as well as table-top working area, the modernized version of the kitchen cabinet can be made into a supply and food preparation center for any phase of kitchen operations.

The cabinet is ideally suited, for example, as a center for all pre-oven operations. Equipped with overhanging and base cupboards and a large pull-out table top working area, the cabinet keeps all necessary baking materials, including pots and pans, within arm's reach

In the overhanging shelf area of this type of cabinet, you may store spices, dried fruits, confectioners' sugar, vanilla and other ingredients. Frequently, a built-in flour container and sifter is included as part of the cabinet itself.

For efficiency and beauty.

Ample below-counter space accommodates mixing bowls, double boilers, measuring cups, pie and cake pans. Baking ingredients and utensils can be brought together on the table-top working area with plenty of space left over for the electric mixer and even a colorful cannister set.

The porcelain enamel surface of the cabinet can be used for kneading and rolling dough without pastry board or cloth. The surface will be easy to clean and sanitary, too. Lemons, grapefruit and dried fruits can be diced directly on the porcelain enamel without danger of acid staining or scratching.

Use Efficient Storage Plan in Wall Cupboards

As every woman knows, you can't put things behind a closed door and just expect to get them out in apple-pie order. Why waste time hunting for utensils and supplies when you can plan an efficient storage system?

Use the higher shelves on wall cabinets for dishes and supplies which are not used too frequently. Keep those things, in constant use, on the lower shelves on wall cupboards.

If you have limited cupboard space, why not get one of the new racks that can be attached to the inside door of the cupboard? Use it for spices, flavorings and food color.

Be Smart!

Small and very youthful hats of pique, easily highlighted further with bow scarves and handbags of the same lovely white, will be highly favored. They will be as fresh and crisp with midsummer chambrays and prints as they are with suits and coats. The teen-age seamstress can turn out any of a half dozen charming styles with the aid of almost any pattern, out of pique or the new, embossed type pique cotton that is even newer looking.

Real Advantages Lie in Home

BETSEY WILSON of Portland, Ore., is one of those mothers who struggle and strain, sacrifice and suffer to give their children costly advantages and overlook the much greater advantages that lie close at hand, with no cost at all

"David, my husband, and I are miserable over a serious disagreement about the children's education," writes Betsey. "He considers me extravagant because my one prayer and hope for them is that they may have more education and more culture than I ever had. We have a good income and we also have almost $100,000 in the Victory bonds his mother left us.

"Let me tell you what some of these so-called extravagances are," the letter goes on. "My three younger children, two boys and a girl, are in nursery schools that include luncheon and naps. The older girls are in a less expensive private school, they have as extras music, a play club and ballroom dancing. Both go to a Saturday skating club and of course all this includes incidental expenses of trips and clothing.

"My plan is to borrow the necessary five or six thousand a year from our savings, restoring it as the children grow older We were both underprivileged in youth, David and I; he, consequently has been a passionate student all his life, and I take out my old hunger for advantages in hopes for my children Do you think I am justified in this plan?

Culture for Children

"I want my children to know cultured people, and have nice friends. I want them to be familiar with music and languages, sports and social usage, and I will sacrifice anything and everything to this end. To what better use could David and

". . . want them to know culture . . ."

I possibly put our money?"

Well I'll tell you, Betsey, to what better use you could put that handsome nest-egg. Leave it where it is, in Uncle Sam's hands; it couldn't be safer. And begin to add to it.

Before you know it, David's income won't be so large or so steady. The girls and boys will be scattered, and whether or not you bought them dancing lessons, tennis rackets or a dozen changes of pretty clothes will not matter and will not be remembered.

That's the time when you and David will want a small house, a garden, a cocker spaniel, a car,—and independence, independence, independence! You don't want then to be living with the impatient young wife of David junior, or to have to murmur to Margery, "Daddy must have a hundred dollars for his teeth, dear."

Demands Will Grow

You'll never add anything to the vanishing bank account, if once you begin to gnaw at it. Don't deceive yourself. In 10 years the children will want far more than they do now, not less.

So during this long vacation begin the Great Upheaval. Most lives would be much better for an overhauling and a great upheaval now and then. Put the children into public schools, and if the public schools are not fine enough, help to make them finer. Gather a few friends around them and find a friend of your own who will give them all dancing lessons in your house, at the cost of a few sandwiches and bottles of pop, every week.

Children dance naturally, and they have so much fun learning together and teaching each other that it is a shame to send them to lifeless and completely uninterested teachers at $6 an hour. Put them on a dress allowance, and buy them much less expensive clothes.

And don't forget that school of all schools, the family dinner table; and that power of all social power, good manners. Good manners are only gentleness and consideration; your children will learn them in no better place than at the home table.

Perhaps you haven't been bringing Dad into the conversation enough. How much do the children know of his boyhood, the mistakes he made, the lessons he learned, the things he had to do for his mother, the big fish he caught on that camping week that cost him just $2.13?

How much do they know of you, and the reason you have for wanting them to have more than you had as a girl? How interesting can you and Dad make local school and sport politics during the dinner table conversation.

In other words, what priceless privileges of companionship and sharing, mental stimulus and happy family amusement are you losing, while you run madly after dancing teachers and gym teachers and psychiatrists and fashions?

You give them everything they need for happy, successful lives when you give them the priceless possession of sound character. Gentle manners, intelligent interest in what is going on, trained help in handling household work and home finances, hospitality that they can afford—can handle themselves.

Living Cost Remains Up

Many Factors Count In Principal Causes

NEW YORK.—What is holding the cost of living up, when the price of basic raw materials has fallen so far since last fall?

Commodity prices, at wholesale, have retreated since then about half-way back to their O.P.A. levels, on the average, but the cost of living has dropped back only about one-eight of the way. However, the average weekly wage in factories is about one-twelfth of the way back.

The recession so far adds up to this:

Producers are getting considerably less for many raw materials—but not all. It costs almost as much to live as it did last year and the workers' average pay has been only slightly touched.

Roughly, the same factors that retarded the cost of living's pace upward in the months when wholesale commodities were soaring are now acting as a drag as it slips slightly lower.

Between June, 1946, and January, 1948, wholesale commodities went up at a dizzy pace. The cost of living climbed steadily, but more slowly. Between January and September of last year, commodities as a whole were on the downgrade, but the cost of living still edged upward. Since then the cost of living has receded, but much more slowly than prices have fallen.

Rent controls and price absorption by processors and retailers acted as a drag on the cost of living on the upgrade. Braking the decline of the cost of living now are: rents, as high and apparently going higher, the normal time lag between retail and wholesale price changes; continued high labor costs; continued high taxes; and, of course, substantial profits.

On June 15, 1946, the index, in which 1926 prices are 100, stood at 120.65. By January 15, 1948, it had reached 207.61. It was back to 186.41 by September 15, 1948.

Does a City Dweller Have a Right To Keep a Cow in His Yard?

A town council passed a "cow ordinance" forbidding residents of certain neighborhoods to keep cows on their premises. The first person arrested under this law was a man who had kept two cows in his back yard for 14 years In his defense, the man insisted that the law was unconstitutional. The court did not dispute the virtues of cow's milk, but held the law valid anyhow. The judge in the case found the man guilty.

May a Man be Required to Wear A Jacket in a Dining Room?

A railroad passenger was refused admission to the depot dining room, one hot summer day, because he was in shirt-sleeves. He was directed, instead, to the lunch counter. The man was so angry that he took the matter to court, claiming that the "shirt-sleeve rule" was unreasonable—especially in hot weather. However, the court overruled the passenger's complaint. Some items of clothing, said the judge, "are worn as an adornment to satisfy the conventions of society, rather than for bodily comfort. To permit the coatless to enter would soon bring those with sleeveless shirts—and even the shirtless!" Thoughtfully, the judge added: "Besides, a man's coat is usually the cleanest of his garments!"

Conquest of Death

Lesson for June 19, 1949

DOCTORS TALK about conquering death, but they never do. All they can manage is to put it off a little. In all the long sad story of mankind there is only one absolute conquest of death. It happened on the first Easter morning, and it was a turning point in the history of the world. The few lines about the Resurrection, in our New Testament, would not cover the front page of this newspaper. We do not know all we want to know. But those few lines tell us enough to set us singing, they are a solid foundation for a soaring faith.

The Mighty Act of God

WE shall be disappointed if we expect the Gospels to "explain" the Resurrection. If there is anything the stories show clearly, it is that the first persons who knew of the Resurrection were confused and shaken by it. The disciples had not expected anything like this, and they may not fully have understood what was going on.

What they were sure of, what they could not deny, was first of all that Christ rose from the dead, and also that it was God who raised him from the dead. God had beaten the one unbeatable power — death. Death, the universal conqueror, turned out for once to be the conquered.

It is only those who can believe in an all-powerful God who can fully believe in the Resurrection.

It Is The Lord

WHAT MANNER of person was Jesus, after that first Easter morning? There were some differences hard to describe, and in fact not described, only hinted at. You notice that at times it was not easy to recognize him at first. Paul refers to Christ's "glorious body" and surely there must be a glory in a person who has actually proved too strong for death to hold—a glory such as even Christ, before Calvary, had not shown. And yet—and yet, it was the same Jesus they had always known.

No Ghost

BY NIGHT, in many a "seance," mediums profess to get in touch with the spirits of the dead. If you could believe the spiritists, Shakespeare and Queen Victoria and innumerable other famous people, have come back and talked from beyond the grave. But the thing that makes the Christian church more than doubtful about such performances, is that somehow the dead-and-come-back genius is never a genius any more Neither Shakespeare nor any other famous person has said anything worth saying through a "medium." And even these feeble ghosts cannot endure the daylight. They have to come at night.

How different were the comings of Jesus! There was nothing weird or uncanny about him. Around the supper table, or on an afternoon walk, or out on the lake shore under the morning sun . . . never the poor mumbling ghost of a seance, never any stupid trifles from his lips, but words of truth and comfort which the church cherishes as among the best from our Lord's mind. Jesus' resurrection is not the story of the survival of a ghost, still less the mere return of a revived and walking corpse.

It is the story of a Divine Person who conquered death, and who came back from that conquest in power and majesty, yet with all the tenderness, love and brilliance he had ever shown.

Our Hope in Him

PAUL (in I Cor. 15) makes it clear that our hope of life-beyond-death grows right out of Christ's resurrection. The enemies of Christ would have given their right eyes to stop the mouths of the men who told that story, and to prove it a lie.

But they could never do it. You cannot well stop people from believing what they have seen with their own eyes. So our hope of eternal life is not just a hope.

As Paul says, if that were all, we should be miserable men.

Start Making Your Stocks Of Jams, Jelly Goodies Early as Supply Fades

MOST JAM and jelly cupboards are a sad sight to behold about this time of year because long months of use have depleted them pretty thoroughly. Most homemakers will find it a joy to start stocking them now with bright, jewel-like glasses of delectable jellies.

Even for those of us who like a good store of jam and jelly, the job need not seem an unsurmountable task. Make small batches and you'll have better results in both flavor and color retention. Neither will you get tired that you never want to see another jelly glass again.

Organize your work properly by getting out jars or replacing them. Wash them in sudsy water; rinse carefully and they will be all ready to place in cold water and started to sterilizing before you get ready for the fruit and berries. Many women like to get the glass washing chore out of the way the day before, and this is an excellent idea.

Utensils for working as well as the paraffin and sugar may also be laid out the evening before jelly making day. Plan to make your batch first thing in the morning before the sun warms things up too much and makes you weary.

HERE'S AN EASY guide for a favorite rhubarb and strawberry jam:

Rhubarb-Strawberry Jam
(Makes 10 6-ounce glasses)
4 cups prepared fruit
7 cups sugar
½ bottle fruit pectin

To prepare fruit: slice thin or chop, but do not peel, about one pound of rhubarb. Crush thoroughly about one quart fully ripe strawberries. Combine fruits and measure four cups into a large saucepan.

To make the jam: add sugar to fruit in saucepan and mix well. Place over high heat, bring to a full, rolling boil and boil hard one minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and at once stir in bottled fruit pectin. Then stir and skim by turns for five minutes to cool slightly, and to prevent floating fruit. Ladle quickly into glasses. Paraffin at once.

Currants are rich in their own pectin and may be combined with other fruits not as rich in the substance to make fine jelly.

Cherries in Currant Jelly
2 quarts currant juice
8 pounds sugar
2 quarts pitted cherries

Wash, mash and cook slowly enough currants, with stems, to make two quarts of strained juice. Let currant juice come to a boil, then add sugar. Skim. Add cherries and cook slowly and steadily for 10 to 15 minutes. Pour into jelly glasses, paraffin at once and set in a cool, dry place.

Strawberries and early rhubarb make one of the most delightful and colorful jam combinations known in modern cookery. Young fry who like to work in the kitchen can be a great help to mother in preparing ingredients during jam making time.

LYNN SAYS:
Jelly-Making Tips Will Help You

Assemble your equipment for jelly and jam making ahead of time. You will need a large mixing bowl, colander, a 6-quart saucepan, a small saucepan for paraffin, standard measuring cups, jelly glasses with covers and a utility tray.

When melting paraffin for sealing jellies and jams, use a low flame or the wax will start to smoke.

Raspberries, either by themselves or in combination with other fruits make delightful jams or jellies. Prepare the jelly glasses by sterilization before starting the jam or jelly so they will be ready when the juice or fruit is to be poured.

LYNN CHAMBERS' MENU
Grilled Steak
Potato Salad Fried Onions
Sliced Tomatoes and Cucumbers
Biscuits *Red Raspberry Jam
Sliced Cantaloupe Beverage
Recipe Given

Black Raspberry-Currant Jelly
2 quarts black raspberries
2 cups water
1 quart currants
Sugar

Cook raspberries, currants and water for 20 minutes. Strain the juice and measure. Add an equal amount of sugar Cook until a small amount of the juice dropped on a saucer jells. Ladle into jelly glasses and cover with paraffin at once.

Raspberries do not have much pectin and for this reason they need pectin added to make them into acceptable jam. Use them alone or combined with strawberries.

Raspberry Jam
(Makes 10 6-ounce glasses)
4½ cups prepared fruit
6 cups sugar
1 box powdered fruit pectin

To prepare fruit: crush thoroughly about two quarts fully ripe, red raspberries. If desired, sieve half of pulp to remove some of the seeds. Measure 4½ cups into a large saucepan.

To make jam: measure sugar and set aside. Place saucepan holding the fruit over high heat. Add powdered fruit pectin and stir until mixture reaches a hard boil. Bring to a full, rolling boil and boil hard one minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Skim, ladle quickly into glasses. Paraffin at once.

Cherry Preserves
5 pounds Cherries
5 pounds sugar

Wash, pick and stone cherries. Place in a preserving kettle, alternating layers of fruit and sugar. Let stand overnight. Bring slowly to a boil and then boil rapidly until thick and clear. Pour into sterilized glasses and seal at once with paraffin.

Gooseberry Conserve
3 pounds gooseberries
3 pounds sugar
1 pound seeded raisins
3 large oranges

Grate the rind of the oranges and extract the juice. Mix together the orange rind and juice, gooseberries raisins and sugar. Cook slowly until thick. Pour into sterile jars and seal at once.

Pineapple-Pear Preserves
1 pound pears
1 No. 2 can sliced pineapple
1½ cups sugar
¾ cup boiling water

Dissolve sugar in water and let come to a boil. Cut pears in halves lengthwise, removing skin and cores. Cut pineapple into pieces and add both fruits to hot syrup. Cook until tender and clear. Seal in sterilized jars.

To prevent excessive "weeping" on jellies and jams, leave a half inch of space at the top when filling the glass. Paraffin, cover tightly and store in a cool, dry place.

Fruits and berries used for jams, jellies, preserves and conserves should not be allowed to stand in water as they become water-logged and will have to be cooked longer, to get rid of water. This results in flavor and color loss.

Use a lipped saucepan for pouring paraffin to make this job easier.

ANTIFREEZE MAY CAUSE TRACTOR TO OVERHEAT

Alcohol and permanent type anti-freeze still in radiators may cause tractor to overheat on warm days, says Dale Hull, agricultural engineer at Iowa State College.

Antifreeze liquids lack the heatcarrying qualities of water and do not cool an engine as efficiently, Hull explains.

He suggests flushing out the radiator and checking all hose connections when the antifreeze has been removed. Special nuetralizer available at auto supply stores should be added to permanent type antifreeze before it is used next fall. Permanent-type antifreeze becomes acid and more corrosive with age unless a neutralizer is added.

Hull recommends flushing out the dirt and chaff from around the cooling tubes and fins in the radiator before the hot weather comes along. He says to direct a stream of water from a garden hose in on the engine side of the radiator and flush the foreign material to the outside.

Thermostats should be checked to make sure they are opening and closing properly, and any repairs needed to put the radiator temperature gauge in proper working order should be made before warm weather comes, Hull says.

DDT STILL IMPORTANT IN FARM FLY CONTROL

DDT still plays a major role in a good farm fly control program, Harold Gunderson, extension entomologist at Iowa State College, said this week.

Although DDT should not be used in dairy barns or on dairy cattle, it is the most effective chemical to use on other livestock and around other farm buildings, he said. It is particularly effective when sprayed inside buildings, on the outside surfaces where flies sit, and on fences around hog lots, chicken yards and cattle pens.

However, Gunderson said that DDT and other insecticides are supplements to sanitation. The chemicals won't do the job alone. Keep manure hauled out to fields or treat with borax or DDT. Outdoor toilets also should be treated regularly.

SEALED CORN LOANS CAN BE EXTENDED

Clarence A. Bird, Vice Chairman of the Hancock County Agricultural Conservation Association, said today that a corn resealing program has been announced by the U. S. D. A. under which producers can, not later than October 31, 1949, (1) extend their loans on 1948 crop corn to mature July 31, 1950, and (2) put purchase agreement corn under loan to mature on July 31, 1950.

Farmers who extend their loans or put their purchase agreement corn under loan will be entitled to a storage payment of 10 cents per bushel if the corn is delivered to CCC at maturity of loans. This action is designed to slow down the excessive movement of corn to market.

Through March 1949, 243 million bushels of 1948 crop corn were under Government loan and 52 million bushels under purchase agreements. Farmers still have until June 30, 1949, to put corn under loan or purchase agreement. It may total 500 million bushels by that date.

Original loans made come due on September 1, 1949. This program gives farmers the option to pay off loans at that time or of extending the loans to mature July 31, 1950. This action must be taken by farmers not later than October 31, 1949.

Farmers interested in this program that will act as a price stabilization influence should see their county AAA committee and obtain full details.

NEED PRESERVATIVE IN HIGH-MOISTURE SILAGE

Preservatives are the answer to spoilage problems in grass and legume silage that is put in when the moisture content is too high, says Ralph Krenzin, extension agronomist at Iowa State College.

When first-cutting silage is put up in wet weather and the moisture content is around or above 65 percent, Krazin advises adding preservatives. Partial drying in the field is needed to get below that moisture point, he says.

Ground ear corn is the most widely used preservative in Iowa, because it's usually the most plentiful. Ground cereal grains, molasses, dried whey and certain acids also prevent spoilage.

Ground grains such as corn, oats and wheat should be used at the rate of 200 pounds per ton of green forage, unless the forage is wilted. Krenzin suggests adding the grain preservatives when the forage is being blown into the silo.

Molasses also can be used for a preservative in making grass and legume silage. When used in liquid form, molasses can be poured over the silage as it goes into the blower or cutter. For a ton of grass silage the minimum amount of molasses is 40 pounds; for grass and legume mixture, 60 pounds; for alfalfa and clovers, 80 pounds, and for soybeans, 100 pounds.

The weight of lipuid molasses is about 12 pounds per gallon Dried molasses is more expensive, but it can be used in amounts that are half those for the liquid form, Krenzin points out. He says that dried whey when used as a preservative may be applied at the same rate as liquid molasses.

Phosphoric acid may be used as a preservative for grass silage when enough is added to make the silage strongly acid. The amounts Krenzin recommends for grasses are 10 pounds per ton; for grass and legume mixtures, 15 pounds; for alfalfa and clovers, 20 pounds; and for soybeans, 30 pounds per ton.

AS BABY-SITTERS, FOOTBALL PLAYERS . . .

Gridders, Says Lou Little, Make Good Sitters

. . . WOULD MAKE JUNIOR STAY IN LINE

By H. I. PHILLIPS

GRIDDERS ARE SITTERS

Lou Little, famous Columbia football coach, has appealed for jobs for football players as baby sitters.

"It is no gag," he says. "I will personally guarantee that any of my players will prove 100 per cent dependable."

So there, Junior! Behave yourself while momsy and popsy are at the theater tonight or else develop some fast off-tackle plays.

Reactions to football players as baby sitters have been varied. At first thought, many parents had difficulty associating "Rock-a-bye Baby" and "Sleep, Pretty One, Sleep" with "Block that kick!" and "Hit that line hard!" They found it hard to think of a husky fullback as the best person to handle kids who made up their own rules as the evening went along.

It did not seem to mother that when she asked, "Do you think the baby is all right?" she would find comfort in father's answer, "Yes, my dear. Remember that our baby sitter for tonight booted the longest punt in the 1948 season!"

But on more sober reflection most people decided that, children being the problems they are when mom and pop are out, it might be reassuring to know that they are in the hands of a baby sitter coached in a rugged school and with a good record for victory, on fields wet or dry.

Kids are quick to recognize authority. They know when they are up against heavy odds. In the manner and actions of a university grid star, they sense power, speed, determination and the old "do or die" spirit.

Few children will try to sit up until midnight listening to the radio if the baby sitter is all-American material.

Baby is not going to whip out the airgun around 9:30 and take some pot shots at the old woman across the courtyard, knowing that a great broken field runner is on watch.

No kid is going to howl for a cooky if it can see in the eyes of the baby sitter the never-yield-an-inch spirit of a football man around whose end no opponent made any progress in two seasons.

All in all, parents should feel easy with a football star as a baby sitter. Even in a home where the kiddies are sure to get rambunctious a crack gridiron man can detect the signals, sense the trick plays and stop the formations. Unless, of course, he is in one of those homes where there are so many children they use the double platoon system.

Why Fans Go Mad

These days in the video belts where baseball games and horse races are broadcast the same afternoon are proving pretty hectic to sports fans Trying to follow both is doing the American nervous system no good. We found ourself shouting, "Slide ya big bum!" at a horse the other day and yelling, "Stop pullin' his head off," at a ballplayer.

It is all quite confusing. To see both sports, a video addict has to be pretty fast on the switches. In a stirring ball game it is quite a trick tuning out at the proper moment to catch the horses all set in the starting gate. And in an especially important horse race split-second judgment is necessary in deciding when to tune out of the horse oval and into the ball park.

He liked a horse on which Arcaro was announced as the jockey "Arcaro!" he exclaimed "That's poor judgment. They pitched him yesterday."

Then while the race track announcer was chatting on generalities, Elmer dove back into the baseball channel. The home team had a man on second, one out and a big hitter up. It added to his pulse beat and general confusion "Come on!" he yelled, "Don't go wide on the turns. Ya can't lose at the weights!"

Back to the ponies he switched, just in time. The horses broke as one. Elmer liked something called Mike's Pride. "Atta baby," he cried, "You got your stuff today!"

SHUT-IN

Grace Noll Crowell

I WAKED to a day of darkness and cold rain,
I said, "Would that the hours were past and the day gone."
The wet boughs in the wild wind lashed the pane,
The flowers were sodden splotches upon the lawn.
"Would that the night were here and the hours through!"
Restless, my heart cried out, and then there came
A sudden shaft of sun and a stain of blue,
Catching the curtained darkness like a flame.

And there was firelight dancing upon the hearth;
There was a small book weighted with golden lore;
A song rode in on the wind-waves of the earth;
A neighbor breasted the storm to reach my door.
A beloved voice came to me over the wire,
And there was a letter from many a mile away.
Shut-in? My heart was ashamed of its desire;
It would have missed so much had it missed today.

MIRROR Of Your MIND

Guilt Causes Renunciation

By Lawrence Gould

Will a man "renounce" a girl he really loves?

Answer: Yes, if he has an exaggerated sense of guilt which drives him to deprive himself of happiness Under such conditions, the surer he will be to find some plausible excuse for giving her up, since what he fears most of all is what he thinks will make him happy. But the average man who tells his sweetheart that he cannot marry her because he is "unworthy of her" is more often trying to deceive her —or himself. He really is afraid she represents a standard which he is unwilling to try to live up to.

Could children grow up without homes?

Answer: No, writes Kate Friedlander, British welfare worker, in the Journal of Mental Science. For a child's conscience develops out of his relations with his mother, and he must have constant contact with her during the first six years of his life if he is to learn to transform his primitive instincts into useful and effective patterns of behavior. "The development of an ethical code that will be strong enough to govern the individual's future actions is dependent on the existence of family life," and nothing else can replace it.

Does seeking "perfection" prove high standards?

Answer: No. It shows that you are morbidly afraid of being criticized, either by others or by yourself. What makes your standards so high—and so rigid—is that you don't dare to leave the tinest loophole in your defense against largely imaginary accusations. The woman who cannot bear to see a speck of dust in her house does not really love cleanliness; she's afraid of being called a "bad housekeeper." And the man who cannot finish a job because he "can never get it done to satisfy him" is the victim of a similar fear.

FIRST AID to AILING HOUSE

by Roger C. Wh...

Making Curved Rafters

Question: Where can I get information on how to make curved rafters? How is this done?

Answer: The National Lumber Manufacturers association, Washington, D.C., has several publications on the subject; some are free and others are available at a price.

Protecting Silver from Tarnish

Question: Is there any way to prevent silverware from tarnishing? Isn't there a preparation to apply on the silverware as a coating to prevent tarnish?

Answer: Dealers in jewelry supplies usually sell a lacquer for this purpose, but firms handling this kind are only found in large cities. If you cannot get it, a clear lacquer, sold at a well-stocked paint store, can be used instead. After polishing the silver, clean it with benzine and then apply the lacquer.

Star Dust

STAGE—SCREEN—RADIO

BY INEZ GERHARD

CY HOWARD, at 31, is at the top in his second career. Four years ago he was a successful actor; he played the lead in "Storm Operation" on Broadway. Now a writer and producer of radio shows —"My Friend Irma," "Life with Luigi," and a new one, "The Private Lives of Eddie and Anne"—he is also an associate director, producer and writer of motion pictures. "My Friend Irma" is his first one. "Marie Wilson steals the show," he assured me; but a moment later, "John Lund is wonderful; steals the show." He said the same of Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis—but didn't mention that he plays the voice of "Joe," heard only on the phone. CBS and Paramount are lucky to have him under contract.

CY HOWARD

With M-G-M shooting sequences for "Adam's Rib" all around New York pretty girls wearing dark glasses learned to avoid crowds; the interested spectators suspected them of being movie actresses. Judy Holliday, one of the principals, kept right on in her play. "Born Yesterday," during the shooting. Tom Ewell, just through with a play, is now back in Hollywood.

Another Metro picture, the musical "On the Town," has been shooting in New York. All six principals—Gene Kelly, Frank Sinatra, Jules Munshin, Ann Miller, Vera-Ellen and Betty Garrett, worked two days at the Brooklyn navy yard.

Cast in a minor role in "Riding High," Dorothy Barrett sang a song for members of the cast during a break; Director Frank Capra heard her and chose her to sing with Bing. She has appeared in several Broadway productions and was vocalist for Vaughn Monroe's band for six months before entering films. Her next step up is a featured role in "Copper Canyon," Technicolor western.

The Fiction Corner

NO REGRETS

By Richard H. Wilkinson

3-Minute Fiction

KIRBY FOUND the girl seated on an upturned box behind the stables crying He hesitated, feeling awkward, then said:

"Hello. Anything wrong?"

She looked up quickly, appraisingly. "No, please go away."

Instead, Kirby squatted on his heels. "You must have lost some money on that last race. Black Fox fooled every one by not coming in. I lost too."

"I suppose I'm a baby to cry, but I couldn't help it. I—we—father and I staked everything on Black Fox. Then that terrible I'm-a-Runnin', who nobody thought had a chance, had to win."

She hesitated, dabbing at her eyes. He seemed like a nice young man. And she did so want company and to talk . . .

He discovered her name was Polly Hayden. The next day he called at her house and met her father, a jolly faced old gentleman with white walrus moustaches.

"We really shouldn't feel so badly," Polly told her father after the introductions were over. "Kirby lost a lot more than we and he isn't complaining at all."

That night Polly and Kirby had dinner at a little inn out on the Tamiami trail.

He knew she was wondering when and how he was going to pay his racing debts, and where he was going to get the money to establish himself in the law business. You just can't hang out a shingle in Miami and expect business at once.

But he didn't offer the information. The next day he hired an office on Flagler street, then called up Col. Stratton and asked that racing enthusiast to meet him at Hialeah.

"Colonel," he said over a sandwich and coffee an hour later, "I'm going to take you up on the offer you made me for I'm-a-Runnin'. He's yours for $50,000."

The colonel stared, "Now wait a minute, Kirby. Has the horse died or broken a leg or something?"

"Nothing of the sort," Kirby laughed. "I'm quitting racing for good. It's no business for an energetic young lawyer to be wasting his time at. I hired an office this morning."

They went out to the stables and looked at I'm-a-Runnin'. The colonel couldn't understand it, but he wrote his check for $50,000 and the papers were passed. Conscious of a queer sensation in the pit of his stomach, Kirby headed back for the stables for a last farewell. Outside I'm-a-Runnin's stall he stopped dead still at sight of Polly Hayden talking with his stable boy.

HER EYES blazed at him. "So! The good loser. The man who can lose everything, who will have to spend the rest of his life paying his racing debts and still smile! Oh, what a fool I've been!"

"Wait a minute! Listen!" He caught at her arm but she jerked away. He followed her out to her car. "You've got to listen," he said desperately, getting in beside her. "I only did it because I thought it would make you feel better. And it worked. I meant it when I said I was through with racing. I've sold I'm-a-Runnin' to Colonel Stratton. Look!" He held out the bill of sale and the check.

She stared at him round-eyed, frightened. "Oh, you shouldn't have! Kirby, you shouldn't! You'll never be able—I mean, you love horses. Any one can see that. You loved I'm-a-Runnin'."

"Not half as much as I love you," he told her soberly. He put his arm around her "You believe that, don't you? You must believe it."

"Darling, of course I do And—I am glad that you're going to be a respectable lawyer, only—only—"

"Only what?"

"Well, sometime, after we've been respectable for a good long while, we'll buy another horse, won't we? A horse as great as I'm-a-Runnin'? Because — we both love horses, don't we?"

"We do," Kirby agreed joyfully

KEEPING HEALTHY

Today's Most Amazing Medicine

By Dr. James W. Barton

AS YOUR PHYSICIAN thinks over the past 10 years, you would naturally believe he would have in mind the wonderful work of saving lives now being done by penicillin and the sulfa drugs. Diseases that were practically all fatal and others in which but a small percentage recovered, are now successfully battled by these antibiotics, as they are called, because they kill the organisms which formerly caused death. Two other antibiotics, streptomycin and aureomycin, have been recently added to man's defenses.

It may come as a surprise to many to learn that your physician is thinking more about the blood coursing through your blood vessels as he realizes—as he did not realize just 10 years ago — that blood is today's most amazing medicine "It has become more of a miracle worker than penicillin."

In a pamphlet, Blood's Magic For All, issued by the Public Affairs Committee Inc., a non-profit, educational organization in New York City, Alton L. Blakeslee states that blood already does more lifesaving jobs than any one of our wonderful drugs. If, on a single day, you looked in upon the hospitals in one large city, you might see the following:

A surgeon, in a brain operation, packs a soft, white spongy mass into a wound. It quickly stops the bleeding and he leaves it there. The body will gradually absorb this sponge—fibrin foam—because it is made from human blood. He covers the exposed brain with transparent plastic film. This film, made from blood, stays safely till the body manufactures a new covering.

In the accident ward, a quick injection of a clear liquid, human serum albumin, made from blood, saves a dying man from shock.

In the delivery room, a new-born baby is being given a complete new blood supply to halt a possibly fatal battle caused by Rh antibodies in his veins.

A boy who is a "bleeder" is given an injection of a blood product that enables him to have diseased teeth removed.

HEALTH NOTES

From April to November of 1947 a total of 72 patients with tuberculous meningitis were treated at the University of Athens All nine patients who didn't receive streptomycin died, whereas of the 63 who receives injections of the drug, 29 survived. The earlier the treatment the greater were the chances of recovery. "Early," in this case, means within the first 10 days following the onset of the attack.

No one is born a neurotic. It is more our surrounding "culture," our personal environment, which drive us to neuroses. A neurosis begins in disturbances in close human relationships.

Notwithstanding all that has been learned about the rheumative disturbance, it still causes more disability than any other ailment except perhaps the common cold

Watch Your Kidneys

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Wastes

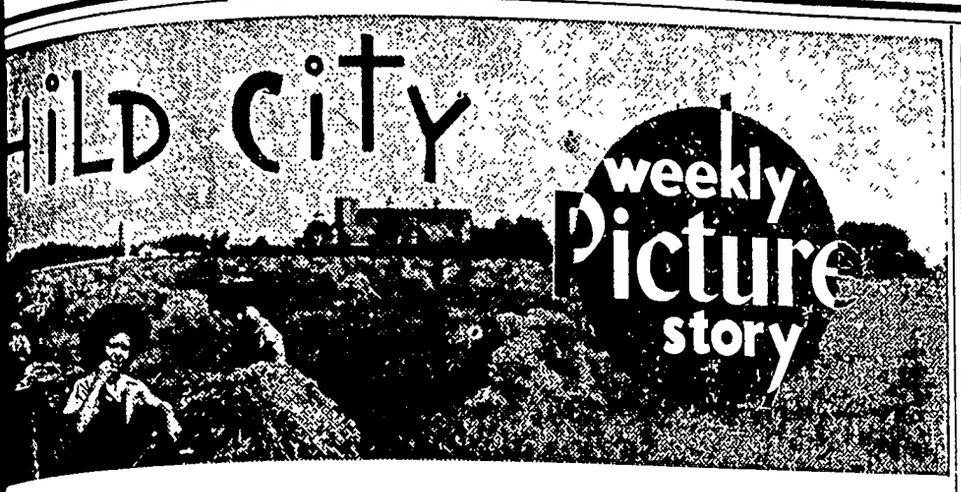
Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. If kidneys sometimes lag in their work and do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset many parts of body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and energy.

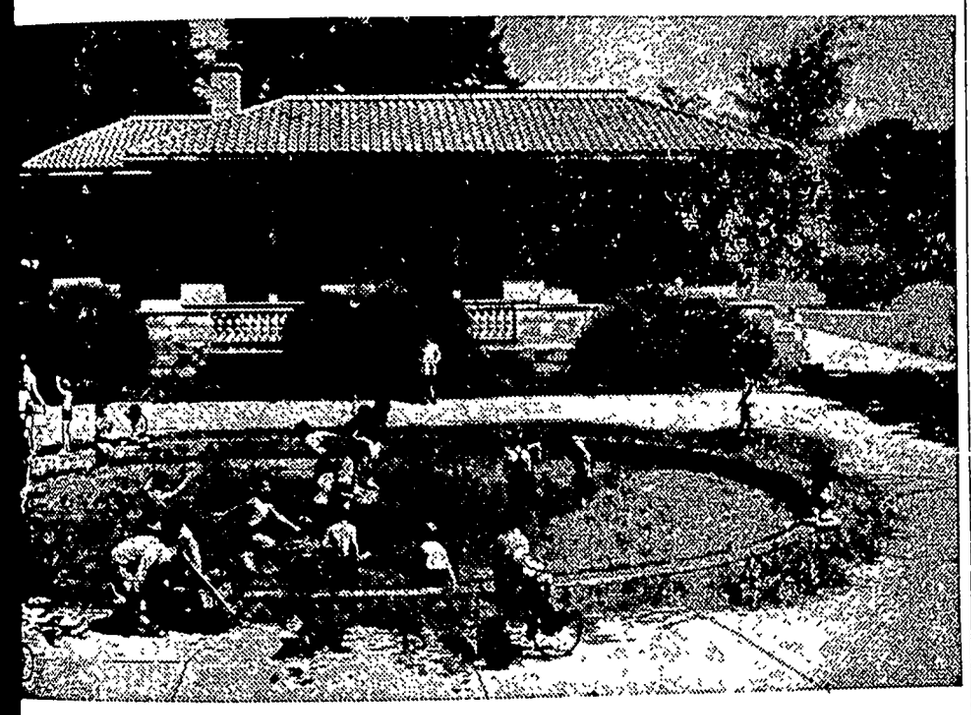
Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt but that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful users the country over. Ask your neighbor!

DOAN'S PILLS



● Mooseheart, Ill., a "child city" for sons and daughters of departed members of the Loyal Order of Moose, "is run by people who do not like institutions." Malcolm R. Giles, executive director of the organization, says: "We do everything that devotion and ingenuity can suggest to make Mooseheart as little like an institution and as much like a home as possible." As a city, Mooseheart is largely self-sufficient. Its 800-acre farm (above) supplies 60 per cent of the food. The student bank (left) welcomes checks for as little as one cent. And for those of the younger set who have not yet reached a state of financial solvency, there are plenty of playthings, as evidenced by view of the toy and game-filled nursery (below).



ngsters at Mooseheart, located about 40 miles west of Chicago, frolic in wading pool especially for their summertime enjoyment. All children are given a high school educaught a vocational trade.

dent in Mooseheart's pped printing shop job press for service. e in printing is one vocational guidance he school offers. To 5,000 boys and girls n graduated from rt. There are no dormitories or mess ead, there are many llings, each of which asant living room, a m in which boys and e same relative ages normal families, and which have space for belongings.

Mooseheart girls select new attire to be "purchased" with requisition slips at their own department store (left). In an effort to function as good parents should, Mooseheart is eager to develop each child's every faculty. There are religious services and instructions for all denominations, and a boy or girl can learn to play any musical instrument he desires. There are several bands and orchestras, as well as theatrical activities throughout the year.

mmunity without voters, taxes, morticians, jails or strikes, Mooseheart is the only large town children only. It is spectacularly successful as a social experiment and world-famed as a portant child research.

THE HOME TOWN REPORTER IN WASHINGTON

WALTER SHEAD, WNU Correspondent

Defends Farm Plan

YOUR Home Town Reporter cannot help but feel that at least some farm leaders are not being realistic in their opposition to the proposed new agricultural program of Secretary of Agriculture Brannan.

That is, they are not being realistic from the standpoint of their announced reasons for opposition, namely it regiments the farmers, it pays a subsidy to the farmers and it will be too costly.

To be realistic about the whole thing farmers must admit that they are being regimented today under the present law and will be more regimented under the Hope-Aiken law which goes into effect January 1 unless congress changes it.

They are receiving a subsidy today under price support and will not only get price support but direct subsidies in incentive payments under the Hope-Aiken law. Insofar as costs are concerned, nobody knows exactly what the present law has cost, nobody knows or can guess what the Hope-Aiken law will cost and Secretary Brannan says he doesn't know what his plan would cost, but believes it will cost no more than the Aiken plan.

The department of agriculture does know, however, that prior to 1926 insofar as the commodity credit corporation is concerned, it had made a little money on its operations, but for an overall period from October 17, 1933, through March 31, 1949, the CCC showed a net loss on all its price support operations of $322,574,785, of which $298,024,316 was lost on Irish potatoes in the past three years.

Farmer Needs Aid

We like to picture our farmer as the lord of all he surveys, a rugged individualist beholden to no one, accepting no favors, taking his chances with the elements, the pests, the drouths, the floods and the economic vagaries of the nation. As a matter of fact, however, those days are gone forever.

In our modern complex economy it is historically true that the farmer, "on his own" eventually will lose his shirt. He always has and always will.

It is just as essential that he have government protection and government help, and a guaranteed floor under his prices, as it is for labor to have bargaining power and a floor under his wages, or that business be protected with export subsidies, with tariffs or other various governmental aids. And to get this aid he must agree to certain things—which is regimentation. And he accepts subsidies, directly or indirectly, sometimes both.—And whatever he accepts costs the taxpayers. The Brannan plan may not be the best plan for agriculture, but to oppose it on these grounds is, in this reporter's opinion, at least unrealistic.

One thing is certain, unless the administration can in some way, not now apparent, get a moderate labor law through this congress, Taft-Hartley repeal will again be an issue in the 1950 bye-elections. Activity now is transferred to the senate where Republicans have the ball on the labor bill, mainly Senators Taft, Ives and Morse.

Tough Selling Job

This reporter learned many years ago that you cannot sell politics like you sell soap. So Big Business, which employs big advertising agencies to sell soap and other commodities, employs big agencies to sell our democratic political system to the general public—and fails. This was brought out at the recent convention of the U.S. chamber of commerce. We have the finest political system in the world, the free enterprise system, but we have a tough time selling our own people on it. Yet we expect the Voice of America to sell it to the rest of the world.

With only 15 opposing votes, the federal aid to education bill has swept through the senate and is now up for hearing before a house committee.

It authorizes an annual expenditure of 300 million dollars a year to states to equalize educational opportunities, the payments to range from $5 to $29 per child, depending on the state income. Opposition was led by Senator Wherry of Nebraska with help from Byrd of Virginia and Bricker of Ohio.

Five freshmen senators voted for the bill. Their predecessors in the 80th congress were against it; they included Frear (D-Del.), Johnson (D-Tex.), Hendrickson (R-N.J.), Long (D-La.) and Mundt, (R-S.D.).

There likely will be no tax increase at this session. Instead congress may vote more money to the treasury so they can put on more workers to collect more taxes under the present law. Millions of taxes annually are evaded because of lack of personnel to check returns, Treasury says.

No Iowa Iron Curtains

Next time you're over toward Sioux City, drive up to that big bluff, where you can look at THREE STATES at one time.

Ed and I stopped there the other day.

"What's it make you think of?" Ed asked.

"What?"

"Europe," he said. "The Iron Curtain. Many states in Europe, setting up walls against their neighbors . . . and here we drive across state lines without a thought."

Ed's right, of course. How fortunate we are to have our American neighborliness and tolerance.

No one trying to force the fellow to do this or that, rig up laws or barriers that hamstring our democracy.

Even in our personal like American tolerance plays every day. Ed may like of coffee, and I may like perate bottle of beer or ale respects the other's taste that's the way it should Look across from that City bluff some day, and how lucky we are to live country of no "Iron Curtain

COUNTY NURSE WILL SEEK OUT TUBERCULOSIS CASES

It may be like hunting for a needle in a haystack, but Harriet Oxley, public health nurse, June 17th began to renew the search for cases of tuberculosis in Hancock County. Working on the theory that for every known case there is an unknown case, she will direct her attention on persons known to have been exposed to this infectious disease.

Harriet Oxley will visit these persons, taking case histories and inviting those exposed to tuberculosis to have skin tests. Chest x-rays also will be taken if their skin reacts to the test, an indication that tuberculosis germs have at some time entered the body.

Family physicians will make the skin tests, stated Dr. C. O. Brewster, County Medical Society president, who with Dr. L. H. Flancher. Tuberculosis Control Director for the State Department of Health and Iowa Tuberculosis and Health Ass'n., announced this 9th annual contact case-finding program.

The x-rays will be taken at a general conference to be conducted by the State Health Department on all cases recommended by family physicians, date and place to be announced later.

The survey will be financed by the Hancock County Tuberculosis Association and the State Health Department. It also is sponsored by the County Medical Society and the Iowa Tuberculosis and Health Ass'n. Christmas Seal funds help pay the program costs.

Commenting on the survey, Dr. Flancher said: "It is impossible to over-emphasize the importance of this contact program when dealing with a communicable disease which has no outward symtoms in its early stage, but can be discovered by tuberculin tests, x-rays and physical examination before the grave danger is done and thus be more easily cured."

CRYSTAL LAKE WINS 10-5 OVER KLEMME

Klemme got off to a bad start here Thursday night as Crystal Lake racked up 5 scores in the first inning, and 4 more in the second, while the Klemme team managed to push over only 2 runs in the two innings. Crystal Lake cashed in on their lead on 7 Klemme errors to score that many runs.

Bud Nieman did a good job of pitching the first two frames but the fielding was bad. John Eenhuis took over the throwing job in the 3rd inning and held the visitors to one run while he racked up 9 strike-outs and allowed them only a few easily fielded pop-ups.

Big Game This Week

The game everybody has been waiting for is the R. C.-Klemme game here on Thursday night. When these two teams get together they always put on some mightly fine, close games. Don't lay any bets on this one.

The Mason City Moose game scheduled for Sunday night was called off because of rain.

HARTZELL REUNION HELD SUNDAY AT THE LESTER STILLE HOME

The annual Hartzell re-union was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Stille on Sunday afternoon, June 19th. The occasion is held each year in honor of Mrs. Lydia Hartzell, who was 87 years old on June 13th. She is the mother of 8 children, all of whom are living and all were present at the gathering this year.

The following relatives were present. Mr. and Mrs. B F. Hartzell and Ted of Dows; Mr and Mrs. C. L. Hartzell, Elaine and Marge of Britt, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Bailey of Cedar Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Hartzell of Clive, Iowa, Mr and Mrs. H. J. Hartzell, Chicago, Ill.; Mr and Mrs. R. C. Ludeke, Stanley and Marilyn, Clear Lake; Mr. and Mrs. Lester Stille and Lois of Klemme; Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Van Zanten, Shelby, Michigan, Mr. and Mrs. Art Jass and family of Garner, Mr and Mrs Bob Hartzell, Klemme; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Hartzell and son of Britt; Grace Hartzell of Britt.

Mr and Mrs. Frank Phy, Mr. and Mrs Andy Christenson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hartzell Jr. and family, Mr and Mrs. Robert Gjeistad all of Britt; Mr. and Mrs. Morris Bailey and family, Dike, Iowa; Mr and Mrs. Vaughn Hartzell of Sigourney, Iowa, Mr. and Mrs Daniel Collins and family and Mr and Mrs. Jack Dominic and family of Clear Lake, and Ruth Stille of Des Moines

The afternoon was spent visiting and lunch was served to all present.

Evening visitors were Mrs. Mildred Weisbrod, Mabel Lassahn, Mrs. Wm Ax and Irvin and Mr and Mrs. Henry Ludeke.

The home was beautifully decorated with flowers furnished for the occasion by Mrs. D. P. Anderson.

Arnold Family Reunion Held At Charles City June 15th

The annual Arnold reunion was held in Wildwood Park in Charles City on Wednesday, June 15th. Because of the busy time, the crowd was small "get well" cards were signed and sent to two members.

Officers elected for another year were as follows: President, J. E. Hartwick of Girad; Vice President, E. J. Arnold of Klemme; and Secretary and Treasurer, Mrs. Laurena Soderberg of Britt.

Those who attended from this vicinity were Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Arnold and Roy; Mrs. Emilie Arnold; Mrs. Ella Schneider; Mr and Mrs. Lew Griffen; Mrs. Ben Greiman; Mrs. Floyd Greiman and David and Mr and Mrs. Ralph Upmeyer and Ruth.

Next year the reunion will be held on the 3rd Wednesday in June at the Elmer Arnold home.

ANNUAL WARD FAMILY RE-UNION AT PILOT KNOB STATE PARK

The annual Ward family reunion was held Sunday at the Pilot Knob State park with a fried chicken dinner served at noon.

The event also was in celebration of the wedding anniversaries of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ward's anniversary on Saturday and Mr. and Mrs. John Ward's anniversary on Sunday, as well as a number of birthday in June. A 3-tier decorated angel food cake had been baked for this occasion.

Those present were Walter Ward and family of Corwith; Mr and Mrs. Earl Reed and Kenneth of Elmore, Minn.; Mr. and Mrs Geo. Eden of Swea City, Mr. and Mrs. John Ward and son Elliott; Mr. and Mrs. Bert Heggen and children, and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Oswald of Kensett, Mr and Mrs. Eugene Black of Mason City, and Mr. and Mrs Frank Ward of Klemme.

PAVING COMPLETED IN KLEMME, CREW MOVED TO NEWTON MONDAY

The Carlson Construction Co. finished their paving here Saturday and on Monday began moving their equipment to Newton where they have another small job of paving to work on.

The last of the heavy equipment, their drag line and sand dump were loaded onto heavy trailers and left Monday forenoon. Other lighter equipment moved later. Some of their other heavy equipment was also moved out last week.

The extension of paving to the highway leading into Klemme, and the paving through the business section of Klemme, now makes Main street very attractive and adds greatly to the appearance of the town.

There are a number of side streets in Klemme in real need of improvement. These streets should be put into good condition as soon as possible.

TOO MANY DOGS HAVE BEEN POISONED IN KLEMME

There has been a siege of dog poisoning going on in Klemme for the past couple of months. There has been no report of dogs lost the past week, but a couple of weeks ago there were six dogs found dead or dying from poison Previous to that there have been two or three dogs poisoned at intervals.

It begins to appear that some of the dogs were deliberately poisoned. Others may have picked up poison rat bait and were unintentionally poisoned. However, if the practice continues we are told that an investigation will be made to track down the guilty party.

COUNT THE CORN BORER MASS ON YOUR OWN FIELDS

Being able to recognize, and count and interpret corn borer egg masses on early planted corn is the most important step a farmer can take to effectively stop severe damage to the crop. Paul Henderson, county extension director said this week.

If a farmer can do those things, he can time applications of DDT so that he will get the maximum kill, he pointed out. Corn borer control takes quick action because there is only a short time—7 days—when you can effectively kill them.

Henderson outlines the procedure for the counting of the egg masses. Go into a field 10 to 12 rows and pick out 5 plants at random. Count egg masses on these five plants. Then move over another 10 to 12 rows and pick out another 5 plants t random and count the egg masses on these. Do this until you have counted egg masses on 25 plants. Add up the total egg masses and multiply by 4 to get the count per 100 plants.

Henderson says to inspect the earliest planted corn now. He also emphasizes to inspect them thoroughly. Most of the egg masses will be on the under sides of the leaves but some may be on tops of the leaves and stalks. Too get the average count per 100 individual plants, not hills.

Egg masses are waxy-like masses in between dull and shiny in appearance. They are never bigger than a shingle n il head and often are very small. Freshly laid egg masses are white. After they are laid for awhile they become weathered and just before hatching a black spot appears in the center of each egg. When they are in the blackhead stage, you haven't time to loose. They hatch fast and once worms have bored into the corn plants spraying will not kill them. Henderson says to treat when you have 50 or more egg masses per 100 plants in corn 35 inches or more in heights, measured from the ground to the tip of the leaves extended.

Apply 1¼ to 1½ pounds of actual DDT as a spray or 1½ to 1 and three-quarters pounds actual DDT as dust. Either ground or air equipment may be used effectively.

NEW KLEMME PAVING WILL BE PATROLLED, SAYS THE MAYOR

Klemme's Main Street paving is now a farm-to-market road and will be patrolled, says Mayor Keraus.

The Mayor also stated that traffic signs will be put up, stalls marked off for parking. Traffic rules will be enforced and violators will be prosecuted.

After the new street has been opened and traffic signs posted there will be no "U" turns allowed at the Wellemeyer Store and Bank intersections.

Wiring Damaged By Lightning At Lawhorn Home

A bolt of lightning which struck about 7:45 Monday evening followed in electric wires to the Geo. Lawhorn home. The fire department was called, but was immediately cancelled as there were no flames resulting from the bolt. Damage was done to the house wiring.

Bill Lemke Has Completed His Theological Course At St. Paul

Bill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lemke of Garner, has completed his theological course at the St. Paul, Minn. Bible Institute and is now working on his degree at Kletzing College at University Park, Iowa, in the southeast part of the state near Oskaloosa.

His sister, Helen, is keeping house for him and caring for his two small sons, Billie and Bryant. Helen also intends to take some extra schooling at the same college this fall.

ANNUAL GREIMAN REUNION HELD SUNDAY AT COMMUNITY HALL

MARVIN "MIKE" LEMKE APPOINTED MANAGER OF ELEVATOR HERE

Has Been Employed By Local Concern Since 1940

At a meeting of the officers and directors of the Klemme Cooperative Grain Company, Marvin "Mike" Lemke was named as manager to succeed Glen Bridges, who resigned a couple of weeks ago.

"Mike" began working for the local grain company as bookkeeper, after graduation from the Klemme High School in 1940. When the war came along "Mike" enlisted and upon receiving his discharge again returned to the company and since has been in charge of the bookkeeping.

"Mike" is well qualified for the position. He has had several opportunities to accept managerships elsewhere, but the board was successful in keeping him here.

Mr. Bridges, who has been on a vacation, has not decided definitely what his future work will be.

BARZ FAMILY DINNER HELD SUNDAY

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barz had all their children and their families home Sunday for dinner. The following attended: Mr. and Mrs. Walter Rosendahl and family; Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Barz and family; Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Barz and Darlene; Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Barz and daughters; Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Greiman and family came in the afternoon as they attended the Greiman reunion which was held at the Commuity Hall Sunday.

FAMILY GATHERING HELD AT KLEMME PARK

Members of the Neuberger and Ludeke clans held a family gathering and picnic dinner at the Klemme Park Sunday in honor of Mr. and Mrs. John Neuberger, of Brownsville, Texas, who are here on an extended visit. There was a large crowd present for the occasion. A picnic dinner was enjoyed and the afternoon was spent in visiting.

Hancock County Bond Sales Reach Over Half Of Quota

Herbert L. Ollenburg, Garner, Hancock County chairman, announced that this county has reached 67.73 per cent of its $365,251 Opportunity drive quota. These figures were taken from the sixth report.

Iowa has attained 81.71 percent of its $50-million quota with E, F and G sales amounting to $40,856,847. Series E purchases are $28,952,530 of the state total.

Auxiliary Elected Officers For The Coming Year

At their last regular meeting the Klemme Auxiliary Unit of the American Legion elected the following officers for the coming year:

President ------- Nellie Arnold
Vice Pres. - Carrie Schwichtenberg
Historian ------ Fern Linahahn
Chaplain ------- Ella Polsdofer
Sgt. At Arms -- Neva Anderson
Executive Board: Lois Chambers, Nettie Roths and Esther Hess.

Will Help Joe Burgess On Farm During Summer

"Pete" Kilgore, who has been working as a printer at Guthrie Center and Ames, began work Monday with his brother-in-law, Joe Burgess on the farm southeast of Klemme.

"Pete" will work farming during the summer and early fall and expects to return to his trade again next winter.

OVER THREE HUNDRED PRESENT FOR ANNUAL CLAN GATHERING

Mrs. Dora Greiman, 88, Only Member Of The Original Family Present

The annual Greiman family reunion was held in Klemme at the Commuity Hall Sunday, on June 19th with some over three hundred members, descendants of the orginal Greiman family present. These represented 7 groups: the Oelkers family of Sheffield; the William and Fred Greiman families of this community; the Harnack family of Remsen; the Henry Greiman family of Blue Earth, Minn.; the William Katter family of Garner, and the August Obermoller family of Garnavilla, Iowa.

Each year one of the family group is responsible for arrangements, notifying the clan, looking after the program and other details. This year the Wm Katter family group was in charge and Vern Stromer acted as master of ceremonies for the after dinner program.

The program was especially interesting, as each family group was called onto the stage and each group had their part in the program. The large stage was almost too small to take care of some of the groups.

An interesting part of the program was the; orchestra which Herman Stromer got up, consisting of piano, cornet, saxophone,bass horn and trombone. They played a number of catchy tunes.

Only One Of Original Family Was Present

Mrs. Dora Greiman, 88, but still very alert and spry for her age, was the only member of the original Greiman family present. She was especially pleased with the big turn-out and enjoyed visiting with her many relatives and decendants.

Out-Of-Towners Praised The Meeting Place In Klemme

The Community Hall was an ideal place to hold the re-union and the out-of-town members of the Clan were especially pleased with the fine accomodations here. The gathering might not have been such a success if held out of doors, as the group would have been caught in several hard showers. There was ample room for all in the dining room and the auditorium.

The Greiman group will be in charge of arrangements next year and the Klemme Community Hall will again be the meeting place in 1950.

IT'S AGAINST THE LAW TO SHOOT FIRECRACKERS

There has been more or less shooting of firecrackers in Klemme the past two weeks.

It might again be well to call your attention to the fact that it is illegal to shoot, or have in possession in Iowa any firecrackers, fireworks or caps for pistols containing power.

Anyone violating this law is subject to fine.

WELLEMEYER PURCHASED BORN GARAGE BUILDING TUESDAY

Art Wellemeyer, Tuesday purchased from the George Born Estate the garage building at the west end of Main Street. He took immediate possession of his new property.

The building is at present being used by the Klemme Hardware Co. as a warehouse. Mr. Wellemeyer will continue to lease part of the building to the Hardware Co. and will use part of the building as a furniture warehouse and storage.

Mr. Wellemeyer contemplates to do some remodeling and improving of the building in the near future.

JUST RESTING

A man who had just bought a dog phoned his neighbor one evening.

"I think my dog has distemper," he said. "I understand your dog had the same ailment the other week. What did you give it?"

"I gave it turpentine."

"I see. Well, I'll try it."

The following day the first man again called his neighbor.

"Say, my dog died after I gave it some turpentine."

"Uh-huh. So did mine."

Dredge the chops in flour which has been mixed with salt and pepper. Saute onions in two tablespoons of fat until brown Place chops on top of onions, and add tomatoes, water and bay leaf. Cover and simmer on top of range for 45 to 60 minutes until tender. Remove chops to a hot platter Makes a smooth paste of cornstarch and cold water and add to liquid in skillet. Stir and cook until thickened, then pour over chops.

Veal in Sour Cream
(Serves 4)

- 2 pounds boned veal shoulder, cut in 1" cubes
- 2 ounces salt pork, cut fine
- ½ cup minced onion
- ½ clove garlic, minced fine, if desired
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 1 tablespoon paprika
- 1½ cups boiling water
- ⅔ cup soured cream
- 2 tablespoons flour
- ¼ cup cold water

Saute salt pork, onion, garlic and veal until meat is browned well on all sides. Add seasonings and water Cook, covered over low heat until veal is tender, about one hour Remove veal to hot platter and keep warm. Add sour cream to pan drippings. Stir flour and water together until smooth and add to ingredients in saucepan.

Curried Lamb
(Serves 4)

- 1 cup uncooked rice
- ¾ cup sliced onions
- ¾ cup diced celery
- 2 tablespoons fat
- 1½ cups cubed, cooked lamb
- 1 teaspoon curry powder
- 2 cups lamb stock or gravy
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons flour
- ¼ cup cold water

Cook rice until tender and keep hot. In the meantime, saute onions, celery in fat in a skillet until lightly browned. Add lamb, curry powder, stock and salt. Cover and simmer 30 minutes. If desired, thicken liquid in pan with flour blended with cold water. Serve over rice.

Lamb Kidney Saute
(Serves 4)

- 8 lamb kidneys, split
- 2 tablespoons fat
- 1 tablespoon flour
- 1 tablespoon chopped parsley
- ½ cup beef stock
- ¼ cup canned tomato juice
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- 2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
- 4 slices toast

Saute cleaned kidneys in fat in a skillet for 15 to 20 minutes or until tender, turning frequently. Reduce heat and sprinkle flour over kidneys. Blend flour with fat while turning. Add parsley, stock, tomato juice, salt and sauce. Cook over low heat until sauce is thickened. Serve on toast.

Cooked, chopped spinach takes on glamor if you place it in a casserole, top with cheese sauce and mushroom caps. Place in oven long enough to heat through.

When creaming green beans, add a few dashes of onion juice to the white sauce while you make it. This adds zip to the mild tasting vegetable.

Have you some dabs of leftover vegetables? Combine them in cheese sauce and stuff hollowed-out cooked onions with the mixture. Bake until onions are tender.

Senate to Move

FOR THE FIRST TIME in 135 years the senate of the United States, according to present plans, will hold its sessions outside the Capitol building if and when it moves lock, stock and barrel, into the swanky, marble-walled, air-conditioned senate caucus chamber in the senate office building about June 30.

The occasion of this historic trek across the Capitol grounds is made necessary by the reconstruction of the roofs and the removal of the unsightly temporary steel girders and framework in both the house and senate chambers.

This temporary construction was placed there as a safety measure when the roofs of the two wings threatened to collapse back in 1939 and 1940.

During that construction period, the house did move out of the building and held its sessions in the ways and means chamber in the house office building, but the senate remained in the Capitol, holding its sessions in the old supreme court chamber which was vacated by that judicial body in 1935 upon the completion of the new supreme court building.

The present house chamber wing of the Capitol was completed and occupied by the lower body on December 16, 1857, while the senate chamber was completed two years later and occupied for the first time by the senate on January 4, 1859.

The only other occasion when the congress held its sessions outside the Capitol building was after the burning of the original Capitol by the British on August 24, 1814. From that time, until the new Capitol building was ready for occupancy in 1819, Congress met in what was then Blodgett's hotel at Seventh and E streets and later in a building erected to house them on a portion of the site now occupied by the new supreme court building.

In the meantime the beautiful grounds immediately adjacent to the Capitol on both the house and senate sides resemble a construction camp with high board walls surrounding temporary buildings and quarters for workers.

Tardy Budgets

During the 80th Republican-controlled congress, Democratic leaders belabored their Republican colleagues for failure to comply with the congressional reorganization act in setting up a legislative budget by February 15, required by the law And today Democratic leaders are smarting under Republican attacks for failure to do the same thing As a matter of fact, when the time set for agreeing on a legislative budget passed, the senate extended the time to May 1. That date has come and gone and as yet there has been no budget fixed, nor is there likely to be one set.

Ways of Debate

All sorts of extraneous matters creep into debates over appropriation bills. In the floor debate on the post office appropriation measure in the senate the two South Carolina senators, Maybank and Johnston, wanted to include some $170,000 worth of cotton twine, and the battle went on for some hours and many pages in the Congressional Record.

"Senator Maybank—Is it not a fact that the United States government took over the poor cotton farmer and sold it at a profit of $90,000,000?

"Senator Taft (Ohio)—Mr. President, if the senator will yield I will say that the government never got the $90,000,000. That was only the figure at which it was sold to foreign countries who never paid for it. That was the net result of lend lease.

"Mr. Maybank—But the senator will agree as to the figure; will he not?

"Mr. Taft—Yes; but we got no money for it. We merely got in return credits that we canceled. That is all we got for it.

"Mr. Baldwin (Connecticut)—It was a paper profit of the most paperish sort, was it not?

"Mr. Taft—That is correct."

So the department of agriculture claim of a 90-million-dollar profit by the CCC on price support for cotton is knocked into a cocked hat.

No School Curbs

In passage of the federal aid to schools legislation by the senate, that body decided two fundamental questions which have been moot ones for the past 30 years: (1) that illiteracy is a national problem and (2) that federal appropriations for schools does not necessarily mean federal control of schools.

It has been proved definitely that federal aid to education should not be regarded as a levy against the people, but as an investment that will yield large returns.

He Lives On

Lesson for June 26, 1949

WHAT IS JESUS, after all? A name in a book? A picture on the walls of churches? More than that! A historical character? Founder of a great religion? More than that! He is the one and only Person who can be everywhere. He would be important if he had only lived; he is far more so because he lives on. But where does he live, and how?

Dr. Foreman

Christians would often feel lonely and discouraged, if it were not for one thing. They know Jesus prays for them. In long-ago times the High Priest of Israel used to pass beyond his people's sight into the silent Holy of Holies, and when he did, the people knew that in that sacred place he was bearing on his heart the whole people, the people whom he served. So the writer to the Hebrews, in the New Testament, pictures Jesus as the perfect High Priest, who has passed beyond our sight, beyond the beautiful blue veil of heaven, into the very presence of God, where he lives, now to intercede for his people who are ever on his heart.

Jesus lives on today in the life of prayer which we believe is still his. No matter what comes to the Christian, he can remember that One is praying for him who is stronger than all the world of evil.

"Greater is he that is for us than he that is against us," said John the Apostle.

In His Book

LUKE tells us that Jesus had to show some of his friends his own picture in the Old Testament. His portrait is not very plain there, but in the New Testament it is very plain indeed. The Bible leads up to Christ, he is its crowning figure. The Bible is, so to speak, a frame for his picture Many a person, in remote regions of the world, has become Christian just by reading about Christ in some stray copy of the New Testament. The reader begins by reading about Jesus—then the pages come alive, and he meets Jesus, face to face Jesus lives on, wherever the Bible goes.

In His People

CHURCHES may argue among themselves about what Jesus meant by this or that. But there cannot be any argument about one thing. When Jesus left his friends behind, he gave them orders to go tell the world about him. "Make disciples of all nations . . . Ye shall be my witnesses." A shut-mouthed Christian isn't much of a Christian. A shut-mouthed church is a poor sort of church (Is it really a church at all?) We do not believe that Jesus expected his followers all to become preachers

Indeed, we should remember that all the first Christians were laymen. But they got results. One hundred twenty people grew to be three thousand, five thousand, in a few weeks.

What is the reason that 120 Christians today don't win 3,000 converts? One reason is that you would probably find those 120 Christians complaining that their church is "vacant," they don't have a pastor. The early Christians might have thought that very funny. How can a church be vacant with 120 people in it? Christ lives in his church.

Into All the World

CHRISTIANITY is the only religion that can stand transplanting into any climate. There is no other religion that can number its people from the Arctic to the equator, and from east to west around the world. But this is not an accident. It would not have happened by itself. Jesus himself in Galilee walked wherever he went, and in all his grown-up life he did not walk farther from his birthplace than you could drive in an afternoon.

But he walks on every shore. Where ship and camel and plane carry the missionary, there goes Christ; where the airwaves carry his message, there is he. Wherever Christians go, Christ goes in them and with them.

He lives everywhere today where Christians live, he walks on Christians' feet. Beside the four Gospels in print, there is the Gospel According to You. Does Jesus live in and through you?

Aid for the Women

A method designed to increase the attractiveness of woman's hair, by causing it to wave and also to curl and thus reflect light in greater degree is covered by a patent issued to a New York woman, according to National Patent council. An inexpensive wave curler of non-metallic materials is used in the process; the inventor suggests the pinna, or leaflets of the pinnated date-palm leaf. The patent reveals a method of treating and preserving the pinna and describes each step to be used in producing the proper waves and curls.

It may be caused by disorder of kidney function that permits poisonous waste to accumulate. For truly many people feel tired, weak and miserable when the kidneys fail to remove excess acids and other waste matter from the blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling. Sometimes frequent and scanty urination with smarting and burning is another sign that something is wrong with the kidneys or bladder.

Utopian U. S. Community

Although it is as much a part of the United States as Long Island, Puerto Rico is the only community under the American flag not subject to federal income tax laws. Insular legislation recently enacted gives complete exemption from income, property and municipal taxes for a period of 12 years to new industries in 41 stipulated categories, as well as to new hotels and guest houses Puerto Rico has its own insular income tax laws patterned after the federal legislation

Home Sewing, No. 1 Hobby

High prices of ready-to-wear clothes and the desire to be original in dress have prompted women and 'teen agers to make their own clothes Some have acquired the knack of sewing easily while others have been, and are being, instructed at the many sewing centers and schools throughout the land. All in all, these sewing enthusiasts number 23 million, one-fourth of them teen-agers, according to the National Needlecraft bureau The bureau also reports that 20 million sewing machines are owned by the young and old sewing folks and more than two billion yards of cloth were sold in 1947 to be sewn into garments and accessories.

1947 Farm Income

Returns for the first 11 months indicate that farmers in the United States during the full year of 1947 received thirty billion dollars from marketings and 340 million from government benefit payments, or a total cash income of $30,340,000,000. This was the highest income in history, and exceeded by 19.8 per cent the previous high record of $25,318,000,000 in 1946. The increase from 1946 to 1947 in farm income from marketings was primarily the result of a sharp increase in the prices of agricultural products, although an increase in the quantity marketed was also a factor. Prices in 1947, reaching the highest level ever recorded, were 19.3 per cent above the 1946 level. The quantity of farm products marketed was also the highest on record, but showed an increase of only 2.5 per cent over the 1946 volume.

Discovery of Guncotton

In 1846 while American troops under Zachary Taylor were storming Mexican strongholds and California followed Texas in declaring itself an independent state, Alfred Du Pont took some cotton and treated it with nitric and sulphuric acids, after a formula discovered by a European scientist. The result was one of the first samples of guncotton, or nitrocotton, to be produced in America. In 1869 John Wesley Hyatt produced an ivory-like product by treating with camphor the same syrupy nitrocellulose solution that had interested Du Pont a generation before. This product, called celluloid, became the forerunner of the modern plastics industry.

Radio Replaces Congo Drums

When future travelers in Belgian Congo hear the throb of a distant drum, more than likely they will find it accompanied by the wail of saxophones playing at some London or New York dance. For the "white man's tom-tom" has moved into the African jungle. A new radio service to Belgian Congo natives has been inaugurated in six local dialects, under the direction largely of native announcers and technicians. It puts the old tribal drums in the horse-and-buggy class. Drum communication has a language all its own, with each blow representing a spoken syllable.

A Desert That Blooms

Namib desert stretches its desolate length 850 miles along the Atlantic coast of southwest Africa. Away from a few tree-bordered streams, this desert is mostly a barren waste of rocky, sandy flats and hills, with sand dunes near the shore that are blown by high winds to heights of 60 feet and more. When the infrequent rains come, however, the desert blooms with green vegetation, attracting considerable small game, including the graceful springbok, or African gazelle.

Uncle Sam Says

Everyone will have a part in the U. S. Savings Bonds great "Opportunity Drive May 16-June 30. The armed forces are responding to the call for volunteer assistance by offering to fly a number of covered wagons to Independence, Mo., for a big ceremony marking opening of the drive. They will then transport the wagons to various States. The covered wagons typify the difference between the terrible hardships the original 49'ers went through in their search for riches and security and how easy it is for the modern 49'er to build for a secure future. Today you are given the opportunity to invest in U. S. Savings Bonds—the easy way to pile up riches. In ten short years you will receive $100 for every $75 invested.

Mathematical Ace Can Tally Figures In Blinking of Eye

NEW YORK.—Pai Sung Jin can add a column of numbers taller and wider than himself faster than the average commuter can tally a bridge score.

Pai is a Korean mental wizard, just arrived in this country, who astounded American adding machine experts in Korea last year by adding and subtracting any given combination of figures two and one-half times faster than an adding machine or an abacus, all in his head.

Pai says his system is really quite simple. All he does is translate mentally a number into a Korean phonetic "word," add up the words in his head, retranslate the answer back into a number and write it down. It took him 13 years to work out his formula, but the little Korean claims he can teach it to anyone in two hours.

For example, Pai can add a column of figures 11 across and 10 deep in 15 seconds. He looks at the column intently, blinks once or twice, then scribbles the entire correct answer from left to right, in contrast to the average dullard who has to sweat over a row one digit at a time.

The occasion in Korea a year ago which brought Pai's uncanny ability to light took place at a contest between two American adding machine experts, seven Korean abacus champions and Pai. The Americans and the seven Koreans ended up in a draw, but at the final count Pai had accurately performed his arithmetic two and one-half times faster than all the rest. The contest was sponsored by the 24th American army corps.

New Telephone Instrument Controls Volume of Bell

NEW YORK.—A new telephone instrument, with better reception, an improved dial, and a volume control for the bell, is in the final stages of development at the Bell Telephone laboratories.

Several thousands of the new sets will be installed on a trial basis this year.

An important new feature is an "equalizer" which automatically adjusts the sound level of conversation to compensate in part for the distance between the telephone and the central office. The phone will have a control which permits its ringing tone to be made louder or softer.

Truman Singing Voice Unknown to Intimates

WASHINGTON.—Is Harry Truman a baritone or a tenor?

A reporter spent a whole day trying to find out. Of course, he doesn't answer the phone himself when a little guy calls.

When the reporter called, neither did Charley Ross, his press secretary, answer. Charley and Harry were graduated from high school in the same class. Sometime or another they must have harmonized on "Sweet Adeline" a few times in the washroom of the old school.

Charley was out of town. His assistant, Eben Ayers, said he was sorry.

"The president never sings in my presence," he said. "As a matter of fact, I have never even heard him play the piano."

Ed Place, publicity man for the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America, Inc., said he didn't know, either.

But he thinks the chief would come somewhere between a tenor and a baritone.

That would put the president in the lead in a quartet—where any president belongs.

Anyhow, according to Ed, Mr Truman is a paid-up member of the SPEBSQSA—Kansas City (Mo.) chapter. Being president of the United States, he can stand up there and be a monotone if he feels like it and nobody will care. After all, he can sit down and lick the next one at a game of playing the "Missouri Waltz" on the piano, can't he?

British Peers Checking Up on 'Help Wanted' Ads

LONDON.—British peers are checking the "help wanted" ads these days.

Modern times and socialism in Britain have caught up with feudal nobility. Many an earl or lord has switched from dinner clothes to overalls to earn pocket money and to meet his overhead expenses.

Some simply are broke and need the money to live.

Others are burdened by the cost of keeping their mansions and estates. By the time they have paid their taxes, they find they can't run their cars, pay their club dues, keep up their social engagements or act the way noblemen generally are supposed to do. Some have taken to selling parcels of their land in order to save the rest.

Still others have turned to commoners' chores because they want to make themselves useful in Britain's great battle for production—its struggle to survive.

They have dropped the life of a man-about-town, therefore, and turned to earning a living.

Any Day and Every Day— CHEESE IS A SUMMERTIME FOOD

No more "I'm not hungry" summer complaints from the family when they are offered a lunch like this. Mother will find the grilled cheese sandwich easy and quick to prepare, too. All she needs to do is toast the bread lightly on one side, turn it over and put a slice of cheese on it,then pop it under the broiler until the cheese is just melting and the toast is crispy.

High food value at low cost may be that much harder to work into your family's meals in the summer time. Of course appetites lag in hot weather, and you can't bear the thought of spending very much time in the kitchen. It's not hopeless, though, for Mildred Nelson, Iowa State College extension nutritionist, says cheese is ready to come to your assistance.

Production of dairy producers reaches a peak in June. According to Miss Nelson, cheese is an inexpensive and plentiful food this month. Judged by the time it takes to prepare, it's also a labor-saving and nutritious food now and all through the summer.

Cheese is all ready to serve and is completely edible—no bones, no peelings, no cooking necessary. There are so many flavors, textures and colors of cheese available that you could serve a different kind or the same kind fixed a different way every day all through the summer and never duplicate a menu

A Minor Miracle

The age of miracles is not past, for cheese ranks as one of the most concentrated, nutritious foods available besides being so low in cost and easy to serve Cheese is rich in the nutrients necessary for building and repairing muscles, blood and bones.

As a good source of protein, it may be used in place of meat. Cheese is a regular mineral mine, too, for it contains large amounts of calcium and phosphorus needed for strong bones and teeth If it's vitamins you're looking for (and who isn't?) you can find A and the B complex — riboflavin, thiamin and niacin — in cheese, Miss Nelson declares.

Research studies show that children need a quart of milk a day, and adults need 1½ pints for optimum nutrition Cheese offers a good way to get more milk products into the daily diet Miss Nelson points out.

Alone or Combined

When it comes to serving cheese Miss Nelson emphasizes that it can stand alone or team up with other delicious foods for hearty main dishes refreshing salads tasty-tempting sandwiches and delicious desserts. Cheese has a zesty flavor that adds appeal to dishes such as creamed vegetables, eggs and leftovers Served with bread, crackers or fruit as a real snack treat, too. A menu including cheese should have other foods high in bulk and carbohydrate to be well balanced.

If you're going to serve the cheese in a cooked dish, remember that it is classed as a protein food and therefore needs low temperatures. Cheese is cooked when it is just melted If longer heating or higher temperatures are used, Miss Nelson cautions, the cheese will become leathery and tough.

Cheese fondue, souffles and rabbits are good summertime menu fare. Cheese sauces with eggs, cereals and vegetables are quickly prepared. Miss Nelson stresses the almost limitless varieties of sandwiches and salads using cheese alone or combined to make your job of feeding the family well a much easier one.

More than a pint of water per day is exhaled in the breath.

Smallpox Certificates

All American tourists crossing the borders of continental United States for any destination, including Mexico, Cuba, Bermuda and Nassau must now have smallpox vaccination certificates for inoculation within the preceding three years before they can re-enter this country, Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club, warns. Removing exemptions of returning United States travelers from smallpox vaccination certificates, the new regulation was formulated by the International World Health organization. Concurred in by the United States and a majority of countries, the regulation means that a United States citizen must obtain a vaccination certificate even though the country to which he is traveling does not have such a requirement.

Allergic Animals

Animals, like people, suffer from allergies of various types. Some dogs are unable to tolerate salmon, horse meat, or wheat products, and nearly all species of domestic animals are susceptible to allergic skin diseases. Occasionally, animals get an allergic reaction from drugs, such as penicillin. Most cases of allergy in the large farm animals are traceable to grazing on certain kinds of pastures, including sweet clover, buckwheat, and sudan grass, followed by exposure to bright sunlight. This condition usually is called photosensitization.

Study Vibrations of Jets

An instrument which can measure as many as 300 vibrations per second is enabling engineers to study vibrations of jet engines in flight. The vibration meter, developed in the G-E general engineering and consulting laboratory at Schenectady, registers the amplitude, velocity, and acceleration of the vibrations. The detector itself is a cylinder three inches high and two inches in diameter, which converts vibrations of the engine into electrical impulses.

Cricket fighting is a favorite sport in China.

Sharp Knives Are Needed To Do Good Kitchen Job

Chief among kitchen tools are sharp knives. You may use them 100 times a day or more though you don't realize it.

One well-made paring knife is worth a dozen specialized gadgets when you count up the jobs it does for you. The balance of the knife and the way it fits your hand affect its usefulness. And the three parts of the knife—handle, blade and shank or tang—are all important in making it easy to use.

Blade shapes vary from a rounded sharp edge to a straight edge. Generally a slightly curved blade works best for the greatest number of jobs. Look for a good point; it is helpful for digging out potato eyes and for similar jobs.

Metal in blades is usually some form of steel. Your best guide for buying a good blade is to choose a reliable brand name. Stainless steel blades usually have a sharp edge. Look for words "stainless steel" on a knife to be sure that's what it is. If the blade is plated, the plating generally will sharpen off.

1949 Hillebrand Prize

Dr. Edgar Reynolds Smith, chief of the physical chemistry section of the national bureau of standards has been awarded the 1949 Hillebrand prize of the Washington section of the American Chemical society. Dr. Smith, who prepared the first samples of heavy water, now used by other countries in their atomic piles, was cited for his "original work in physical chemistry, more especially contributions to electrochemistry and ebulliometry." Ebulliometry is the precise measurement of the boiling point of liquids. Although previous recipients of the Hillebrand prize have been selected on the basis of one or two outstanding achievements, the 1949 award committee declined to single out any of Dr Smith's research accomplishments for special honor, because of the general excellence of his work.

ICE CREAM—YEAR 'ROUND FAVORITE

Ice cream is a year'round favorite all over the nation, but its popularity always rises as the temperature soars during the summer months. No one can resist the smooth cool goodness of ice cream —it's refreshing, delicious and a nutritious food, too.

We've known for a long time that ice cream is a nutritious food since it is made with milk and cream. Only recently, however, research has indicated that we've been underestimating its nutritive content, especially riboflavin and vitamin A. That's one more reason for using ice cream generously in your meals.

Neither ingenuity or a lot of time is necessary to prepare ice cream for serving. It is tops just as it comes from the package in a multitude of delicious flavors.

Ice cream is the feature attraction in any number of simply prepared desserts, too. Here's an easy way to make an appealing ice cream delicacy you'll be proud to serve at your best dinner or bridge club luncheon. You'll find these Ice Cream Chocolate Cups are so good to make that the family will ask for a treat, too. Try this recipe:

Ice Cream Chocolate Cups

6 squares semi-sweet chocolate
10 marshmallows, cut in quarter cubes
2¼ cups corn flakes
1 cup shredded coconut
⅛ teaspoon salt
¼ cup nuts (optional)
1 quart vanilla ice cream

Melt chocolate over boiling water. Add marshmallows, corn flakes, coconut, salt and nuts, stirring lightly with fork to blend. Quickly press into sides and bottom of 6 well-buttered muffin cups using a buttered spoon. Chill. To serve filled with ice cream. Top with chocolate sauce if desired. Serves 6.

than the confusion we have about this business of field spraying? Now that materials are getting short it is even worse than before. However, we think that we still have our part of the business well in hand. Our sprayers are doing a good job and our chemicals are giving no trouble. We are still able to furnish some things on short notice: If you need any sprayers or chemical, we would appreciate an opportunity to serve you.

WESTERN LAMB FEEDING PROFITABLE TO 4-H'ERS

Most of the 4-H Western lamb project members in Iowa were able to show a net profit in 1948, even in the face of high cost of feeder lambs and narrow margins between purchase and selling price.

This statement was made by Richard McWilliams, extension animal husbandman, following a recent summary of 4-H club members' records.

McWilliams said that the 4-H'ers who made a profit did it by doing a skillful job of feeding rather than selling the finished lambs at a price considerably higher than the purchase cost of lambs.

Profits were made in 1948 by combining high rates of daily gain with low death loss, McWilliams said. This combination kept feed cost low enough so that these members could come out ahead with only a narrow margin between buying and selling price per hundred.

He contrasted the high 25 percent with the low 25 percent to illustrate his point. The high-profit members fed their lambs so they gained an average of 43 pounds daily with a death loss of slightly over 1 percent. The lambs in the low 25 percent, on the other hand, gained only .14 pound daily on the average and their death loss was 2.63 percent.

The average net profit in the high group was $17.15 per lot, while the low group lost an average of $33.78 on each lot of 16 lambs.

McWilliams explained that these figures show the importance of the feeder's skill. Lambs that can be kept on feed and kept gaining all the time are the ones that make the large gains and, therefore, give the feeder at least an even chance to come out ahead, he said. Lambs that are thrown off feed or given a setback will need more grain and cost more to finish for market.

WILDLIFE AIDS IN CONTROL OF PESTS

Good Conservation Practices Will Double Its Value To The Farmer

The help that wildlife gives the farmer in controlling pests can be more than doubled by good conservation practices and specific provisions for wildlife, says Robert Moorman, extension specialist at Iowa State College

Moorman figures that wild animals and birds are worth around $117.12 per year on a 160-acre farm, both as pest controllers and as sources of meat and fur.

He says he isn't taking into account the sport and recreation they afford nor the satisfaction that seeing and hearing wild animals and birds adds to farm living.

Top Ten Songbirds

The songbirds the wildlife specialist list as the top 10 in pest control are the song sparrow, house wren, downy woodpecker, hairy woodpecker, nuthatch, bluebird, brown thrasher, catbird, oriole and flicker.

Songbirds aid in the protection of farm and garden crops and are helpful in preventing insects from making inroads on Iowa's fruit and shade trees. Small birds are hearty eaters of scale insects that destroy leaves and stems of plants, and the downy woodpecker consumes an enormous number of corn borers during the fall and winter months, Moorman points out. While song birds' appetites for insects may be of little consequence in years when the chinch bug and grasshopper infestations are heavy, the birds do keep down insect populations and prevent bug invasions from occurring in years when damage might otherwise be great.

Hawks and Owls

Hawks and owls also are important pest controllers during summer months as well as in the winter.

One of the best ways to encourage wildlife populations is to leave the fence rows in bushes and shrubs. Such a fence row supports beneficial small animals as well as songbirds. Moorman recommends honeysuckle, plum thicket or other harmless shrubs with small root systems.

To encourage songbirds around the farmstead, the wildlife specialist suggests both trees and birdhouses. A watering place may be needed during the hot summer months. Some birds, such as the martin and the nighthawk, are also effective in mosquito control, Moorman has pointed out.

GOOD STUDENT

At Ludlow No. 5 school near Waukon, Robert Hansmeier, an eighth grade student, has completed eight years of schooling with only two days of absence The break in Robert's long perfect attendance streak came in the second grade and was due to illness.

MUSHROOMS

Some folks have to hunt for mushrooms but not Johnny Perkins of Waverly. While showing a prospective buyer a piece of farm property recently, Mr. Perkins crawled through a fence right into a patch of the largest mushrooms seen in Bremer county for a long time.

DOUBLE TROUBLE

Monday the 23rd of May was a bad day for Irvin Kallestad of Thompson. First he received a broken leg when a piece of machinery fell on it. Enroute to the hospital for treatment, the car tipped over and a piece of flying glass cut a gash in his right eye.

SHMOO EGG

Ahen belonging to Mrs. Grant Smith of Osceola recently laid an egg shaped exactly like the "shmoos" made famous recently in the Lil Abner comic strip.

STORAGE OF CORN INDIVIDUAL'S JOB

Farmers Should Start Plans Now For Taking Care Of Crop In Fall

Prospects for the largest carry-over of corn on record coupled with the possibility of another good crop make it good business for Iowa farmers to start thinking about their corn storage facilities, C. H. Van Vlack, extension agricultural engineer at Iowa State College, said this week.

On April 1, 1,833,000,000 bushels of corn was in the stock pile. Even with exports and home consumption, it is expected that carry-over this Sept. will exceed the record figure of 688 million bushels in September, 1940.

Van Vlack said that it looks now as if it will be up to the individual farmer to provide crib room. The government, through its production and marketing program, has not indicated that it will furnish storage space.

Order Materials Early

As far as materials are concerned, Van Vlack said that it appears now as if there will be enough to go around if farmers watch crop prospects, determine their needs early and order early. On the other hand, the fellow who waits until his corn is about ready to crib before he orders building materials, may be out of luck.

Adequate corn storage facilities will pay for themselves, Van Vlack believes. If the farmer can feed up corn piled on the ground before spring comes, he will get by, but when improperly stored corn is carried into the warm weather months, spoilage is likely. Also, a farmer must provide adequate storage facilities if he wants to take advantage of government loans and purchase agreement programs.

Low-Cost Structures

There are several low-cost types of structures that will provide adequate storage space for corn. Semipermanent or temporary cribs are the answer when a bumper crop taxes the storage capacity of permanent cribs Semi-permanent type of cribs are also the answer for the fellow who needs cribs but isn't ready to build permanent ones. Plans and information about semipermanent, temporary, or permanent cribs may be obtained from the Agricultural Extension Service, Iowa State College, Ames, Iowa.

JOLLY WORKERS CLUB MET JUNE 8TH

The Jolly Worker Club met at the home of Maude Bachman on Wednesday, June 8th with 17 members present. Mrs. Clifford Montgomery and Carole Ann and Marilyn Nedved were our visitors We answered roll call by giving a favorite salad recipe Irene Marshall showed the greeting cards and we all ordered as many boxes of cards as we wanted as well as the stationery and scrap book

It was decided for each member to bring two Swan Soap wrapers to the July meeting.

Jenny Nelson and Alvina Helps entertained us with a very interesting program Then we all sang America with Nellie Ausborn playing the piano.

A nice lunch was served by Maude Bachman with Norma Albers as co-hostess. Darlene Bachman and Marilyn Nedved helped with the serving. The July meeting will be at Verbelle Gilpin with Ruth Trample as co-hostess.

GUARDIAN of your well-being

This brown-eyed beauty, and her 1,286,000 sisters on Iowa farms, make an important contribution to your personal welfare.

Day after day, they produce the dairy foods so vital to the health of your family. And through that abundant production, they provide a major source of Iowa's cash income — over $3,000,000.00 every week — money that makes business for Iowa stores, and fills pay envelopes for Iowa wage-earners.

Yes, the dairy cow richly deserves the recognition accorded her during Dairy Month. And, throughout the year, your family deserves the privilege of enjoying, in generous measure, the fine healthful foods which the dairy cow provides in such abundance.

EVERYBODY Wants Milk

...and here in Iowa fortunately, EVERYBODY CAN HAVE IT

We're mighty proud of the dairy production of Iowa farmers—and we think Dairy Month is a good time to say so.

We know dairying brings "new dollars" into our community and our State —hundreds of thousands of them into Iowa each day! We know those dollars help to build Iowa business. Iowa schools, Iowa churches.

We know those dollars help to give Iowa "good business" and high living standards.

And we know that dairying makes men and women—builds character as it builds wealth—and as dairy foods build health!

So—more power to Iowa's Dairy Industry. Let's all observe Dairy Month by using plenty of Iowa's fine dairy foods.

RESEARCH DEVELOPS NEW MARKETS FOR IOWA MILK OUTPUT

All that the dairy industry is today and will be tomorrow would be impossible without research In the beginning, milk was the only dairy product . research has developed cheese, butter, ice cream, evaporated milk, powdered milks, and many casein products such as plastics, paint, glue and buttons. And from milk sugar, research has produced food for growing the miracle mold, penicillin

Projects

Two dairy research projects are now under way in Iowa's laboratories. At Iowa State College, Drs Pearl Swasnon and Gladys Everson are conducting experiments to determine the availability of riboflavin (vitamin G) and thiamin (vitamin B1) in dairy products in comparison with other foods. Milk is recognized as the greatest single source of riboflavin for the average family.

A group of six women graduate students, eating controlled diets in the laboratory room, participated in one phase of the project. Results showed that riboflavin in ice cream and whole milk is completely available for use by the human body, whereas this same vitamin in vegetables, such as green peas, is only 40 per cent available.

"Is cow's milk adequate in meeting the food needs of babies?" In one of the few infant observation wards in the world, at the University of Iowa, tests are being conducted to help answer that question. During the two-year project scientists are taking milk apart to see what makes it click as a top-ranking foods for babies and adults.

Nationwide Program

These are just two of the many dairy food research programs co-sponsored by American Dairy Association members being conducted in universities and hospitals across the nation today Others include the influence of dairy foods on the growth and development of children; use of milk proteins in the treatment of stomach ulcers; the effect soil fertility has on the nutritive value of milk; and many projects involving the five major dairy products—bilk, butter, ice cream, condensed milk and cheese and use and importance to the nation's health and economy.

ADOPTED

In Adair County, Lady a Shepherd dog belonging to Francis and Verna Lane has adopted two young lambs, nursing them along with her own two puppies.

PASTEURIZING MILK NOT SANITATION SUBSTITUTE

With greater number of home pasteurizers being used in Iowa, there is a tendency to overestimate what pasteurization can do, says A. W. Rudnick, extension dairyman at Iowa State College

Pasteurization is merely insurance against accidental contamination of milk by disease organisms from man or cow. In no way does it eliminate the need for sanitation and health measures, Rudnick cautions.

Maximum protection against brucellosis, or undulant fever, and other milk-borne diseases can be assured only with the sanitary production of milk plus pasteurization, he says,

As for home pasteurizers, Rudnick has a few pointers on their use. Home pasteurizers are usually equipped with automatic time and temperature controls. These controls can easily go out of proper adjustment. And since keeping milk at the proper temperature is absolutely necessary to pasteurization (145 degrees F. for 30 minutes), checking the temperature with a good mercury thermometer is the only safe way.

Another point is the most efficient use of pasteurizers. Many makes will pasteurize a gallon at a time. Rudnick advises pasteurizing enough milk to last 2 or 3 days. Pasteurized milk can be kept that long when stored in sterilized bottles and properly refrigerated. To sterilize the bottles, Rudnick says to put them in water, then bring the water to a boil. The bottles can be left in the water while they cool down.

HANCOCK COUNTY MAKING GOOD STRIDES IN SOIL CONSERVATION

Since the Hancock County soil conservation district was organized in 1946 some impressive strides have been made in adopting recommended farming practices, S. A. Barber, soil conservation district commissioner said this week.

A look at the records show the following totals for soil conservation practices in use at the present time. The farmers of Hancock County last year had 511 acres of corn and beans planted on the contour, 26,700 lineal feet of grass waterways, 5,360 rods of tile, and 34 farmers are practicing good crop rotations planned for their farms.

To show the pace at which Hancock County farmers are adopting better land use practices, Barber gave the following figures for practices put in use last year alone. During the year 15 farmers put corn and beans on the contour for the first time, started 24,660 lineal feet of grass waterways, laid 3,230 rods of tile, and a total of 24 farmers started recommended crop rotations.

Barber said another significant figure is the number of farmers having farm plans. A total of 55 farmers now have such plans, and of that number 24 adopted plans last year

One of the more important jobs done by the soil conservation service is the development of these farm plans. In developing a farm plan a group of farmers get together with the district farm planner. A soil inventory of the farm is made first by the SCS. Then using this inventory recommendations are made for crop rotations, soil treatments, conservation practices, tiling and other good land use practices.

A total of 19 farm conservation plans have been developed in the district so far this year. Planning activities at present are with group 7 located west of Kanawha. This group when completed, will bring the total of new plans for this year up to 24.

Corn Borer And Weed Control Bulletins

If you are going to spray to control corn borer or weeds, get your copy of the Iowa State College bulletins covering these important jobs. These are now available at the County Farm Bureau office. The weed control leaflet is No. 140, and the Corn Borer leaflet is No. 139 After you have these leaflets, read them carefully and keep them for reference.

Farmers Alarmed By Corn Borer Eggs

Corn borer egg masses are beginning to show in Hancock County cornfields, according to reports from various parts of the county and farmers are concerned over the possibility of heavy infestation this year. Much spraying will be done.

TRAVELERS

A mother robin and her young brood of fledglings has been seeing the world recently. The robin built her nest under a trailer belonging to Arnie Steichen. Recently the trailer, robin family and all, made a trip to Sioux City and back.

TWINS

Leta and Lona Armstrong, twins, have been graduated from the Greenville - Rossie school as of this spring but the teachers will still have their identification problems. There are five sets of twins left in school.

EVERY DAY Is Not Too Often - - -

Remember when ice cream was a Sunday treat? It's a daily treat now—for many good reasons!

First reason of all is ice cream's goodness—rich, smooth, delicious! And so many fine flavors to choose from!

But just as it's good to eat ice cream is good for you. It's an ideal way of getting the nourishment of milk. Besides, on warm days, it's cooling and refreshing.

So, during Dairy Month and every month, eat Ice Cream regularly. It's a daily treat, that's good for you ,too!

RING SAVED FINGERS

A wedding ring possibly saved John Woods several fingers on his left hand recently, in an accident at Clarinda. While operating a band saw, he bumped his hand into the blade and lost his little finger but the saw next engaged his wedding ring, and by the time it had sawed through he was able to get his hand away.

MILK PRODUCTION CONTINUES TO TOP 15-YEAR AVERAGE

The tremendous strides taken in the development of greater milk production per cow in Iowa's industry during the last 15 years is dramatically illustrated by the 27 per cent increase in the output of milk per cow. Since 1946, the average production per cow has exceeded 5200 pounds. In 1934, when the first consistant production records were tabulated, production per cow was 4100 pounds.

Numerous factors influence the establishing of these outstanding production records. Principal credit, however, must go to the activities of the Dairy Herd Improvement associations throughout the state. These associations cooperate with the dairy farmers in keeping production on individual cows and assist in culling out the low producers.

Experiments

The Dairy Husbandry Department at Iowa State College has conducted a series of experiments to determine the most productive feeding program for dairy cattle. This experimental program has covered the use of grains, grain by-products, supplements, and various types of silage. On the basis of these experiments it has been posible to establish arbitrary measures as to the amount of milk a cow should produce for a given amount of feed. In this way, dairy farmers are able to locate the unprofitable animals in their herds.

Introduction of high-producing blood lines in hundreds of dairy herds in the state has been made possible by the expansion of artificial breeding associations. The quality of dairy herds all over the state has been greatly improved as a result of their work. Two of the larger units are located in Cedar Rapids and Des Moines.

Cows Highly Efficient

Soil conservation authorities have described the dairy cow as a highly efficient machine for converting grains and roughage into food products. Fertilizer, which is a by-product of this efficient machine, enables the dairy farmer to rebuild the fertility of his fields for maximum production.

Vast numbers of dairy cattle are no longer the only answer to maximum milk production. During the first three months of 1949, milk production per cow increased to the point where the average for the entire year will approximate 5400 pounds—nearly a 10 per cent increase over the 1948 average of slightly more than 5000 pounds per cow. Iowa cows have always topped the nation's average per cow production figure.

This higher rate per cow indicates the feeding of record quantities of concentrate, largest percentage of cows actually milked and the elimination of low-producers over the past 4½ years.

If all the milk produced in 1946 in the United States had been put into quart bottles side by side, the bottles would extend almost 140 times around the earth.

NOTICE FOR COAL BIDS

Lighten Summer Work— WITH EASIER LAUNDRY METHODS

There's something about the feel and smell of clean clothes dried in the summer sun that deserves a poet's praise. But if you are one of the homemakers who can't get exactly lyrical about doing the summer laundry, here are some practices recommended by experts to relieve your labor.

The tradition of washday on Monday has been upset by experts seeking to lighten the laundry part of your summer load

It's on Monday that the house is most apt to be disorderly, the family larder depleted as a result of Sunday guests and the whole family just getting back into the swing of the weekday. So plan the laundry day as a definite part of the week's work, says Fannie A. Gannon, home management specialist from the Iowa State College, but fit it in where it is most convenient.

Usually summer means dirtier clothes and more of then. Seven basic steps recommend by Miss Gannon make the job a lot easier. First, preparation. Arrange all work so it goes from right to left. Take advantage of every opportunity to work sitting down. Avoid stopping by arrangeing to jack the work up to your height. Use tables, benches, blocks, laundry carts, even old baby carriages and toy wagons.

Stain Removers

A box or shelf of stain removers and directions for using them kept near the sorting table will be a big aid, especially in summer A short prewashing and short washing are more effective on heavily soiled clothes than one long washing, Miss Gannon points out.

Next the time and temperature. Remember that the white clothes require water heated to 140 to 150 degrees. Colors are best washed in water between 100 and 120 degrees. Of course wools and rayons are weakened by heat.

Soft water is vital to good washing either with laundry soap or the newer synthetic detergents, though many of these are very successful with hard water. Detergents wash all fabrics bright and clean, according to Miss Gannon. Some form suds, others do not. Like soaps, some are manufactured for the washing of fine fabrics; others are for all-purpose washing and heavily soiled clothing. Become acquainted with these detergents by reading labels, and make your choice accordingly.

Timing

Knowing exactly how long to wash and keeping accurate track of the time will help, too. Fifteen minutes is recommended by Miss Gannon for the average wash Clean sudsy water is a must for every load, she says, and thorough rinsing to remove all traces of soap is vital.

Mildew may be a problem in summer Proper care of soiled and damp clothing is the preventative; salt and lemon juice are the standby remedies.

Take the bacg-break out of ironing as the final answer to lighting laundry tasks this summer. You can purchase more fabrics for household use which do not require ironing (seersucker, nylon, turkish toweling, etc.) You can hang things straight so they will have few er wrinkles. You can dampen or sprinkle everything to just the right stage for easy ironing. You can dry-iron everything possible, too. Be sure you have an ironing board of the right height wether you're sitting or standing

The name "Nebraska" comes from the Otoe Indian name for the Platte River, and means shallow water.

Aviation Industry Seeks Safe Fuels For Airplane Use

CLEVELAND, OHIO.—Prevention of fires and explosions has become a distinct possibility in most airplane crashes, some of the nation's leading aviation scientists believe.

The flight propulsion research laboratory of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics here, with the co-operation of the aviation industry, the air lines and the Civil Aeronautics administration, has undertaken an extensive program of fundamental research on the problem of aircraft fires

It is headed by the NACA's Lewis A. Rodert, winner of the 1946 Robert J Collier trophy, the outstanding aviation award in the country. Rodert was given the trophy for developing a heat method of protecting aircraft from ice

So-called "safety fuels," far less explosive than regular aviation gasoline, have already been developed and used to fly airplanes These fuels cannot be used in commercial air liners, however, until they have been thoroughly tested and until engine modifications have been made.

Matches Won't Ignite It

You can throw lighted matches into a pan of low volatility gasoline (the so-called safety fuel) and it won't burn. If the safety fuel is heated to a high enough temperature to set it afire, it will burn only one-twentieth as fast as the high volatility gasoline now in general use

If the fire reduction program is successful, passengers will have considerably greater chances of surviving plane crashes than they do at present According to air force authorities at Wright field, Dayton, Ohio, roughly half the people killed in airplanes during a typical year survive the shock of the crash only to be burned to death.

One of the problems to be overcome is that the safety fuel produces an explosive vapor in the gas tanks of airplanes. Although this vapor should not be particularly difficult to neutralize, the problem is typical of difficulties which must be overcome before use of safety fuels will become widespread If innovations such as the use of a new type fuel are introduced without thorough testing and study, entirely new problems might be created that are more serious than the one eliminated it is believed.

New Hydraulic Fluid

In addition to low volatility fuel, a hydraulic fluid far less inflammable than the highly explosive types now used in airplanes has been developed by the industry. It is not yet ready for commercial airplanes and is not regarded as ideal. This new fluid will not burn under most conditions but it will burn sometimes. Research in developing non-explosive fluids is continuing.

Hydraulic fluid is used in all commercial air liners to raise and lower landing gears and flaps.

The biggest problem facing the engineers now is the development of a non-inflammable lubricant to substitute for oil used in airplane engines Although oil seldom explodes, it burns even more easily than highly volatile aviation gasoline Much more research must be done on non-inflammable lubricants which have already been developed for non-aviation engines before their adaptability to aviation usages can be determined.

TYPEWRITER

When Fred Morse, retiring station agent, quit work in Denison after 43 years, he also parted company with the office typewriter which he bought shortly after he came to Denison in 1906. It's a bit different from the machines in use today but still in perfect working order.

An early type of American matches cost four cents each.

Electric 'Eye' Is Found Useful In Myriad Ways

NEW YORK.—Don't look now, but you're being watched by thousands of electronic eyes.

Automatic controls using photo-electric tubes have become big business and are in use in many ways that affect your every-day life.

This type of device is most familiar to the public, perhaps, in opening doors of railroad terminals and other public buildings—the door swinging wide when you walk across an invisible beam of light.

But that use is only one of hundreds. Others include safety controls that shut off machines when workers get near danger zones, street lights that turn themselves on when it gets dark and off when it's light again, burglar alarms, machines that automatically wrap candy and cigarettes, and devices that count 10,000 pills a minute.

Really Big Business

Frank Rudolph, president of the Ripley co., of Middletown, Conn., estimates the manufacture of electronic controls using the photo-electric tube will be a ten-million-dollar business this year. His own company is not the biggest in the business but is one of the pioneers. Its growth from $20,000 in business in 1937 to an expected $475,000 this year, he says, is an indication of how the industry as a whole has expanded.

At least three other companies devote their full facilites to electronic controls and some big manufacturing companies, such as General Electric and Westinghouse, make them in quantity.

Rudolph and others in the industry are constantly thinking up new uses. One of his pets right now is a little attachment for your floor lamp that, when set, will turn the light on at nightfall so you don't have to stumble into a dark house or apartment on your return from an evening out.

The electronic eyes are in such wide use already, however, that the industry is hard pressed to get enough of some critical materials to keep up with orders

Protect Workers

They are in increasing use to protect workers operating dangerous machines. A heavy press, for instance, has a curtain of "beams" around it so that if a worker stumbles and falls under the press or carelessly sticks his hands under it, a beam is broken and the press it halted.

Burglar alarms using photo-electric tubes have been improved by use of intermittent beams. That's so a burglar, even if he discovers the device, can't foil it by shining his flashlight on the electronic eye to keep it from setting off an alarm while he walks through the regular beam.

Electronic eyes installed in ducts of air-conditioning systems set off immediate warnings if they detect smoke. Experiments are being made toward installing them in airplane baggage compartments and inside the wings to give advance warnings of fire. They are used in smokestacks of industrial plants to warn when too much smoke is coming out—more than is permitted by local laws.

Photo-electric tubes are used by some soft drink manufacturers for sorting returned bottles—separating them by the colors of special markings imbedded in the necks of the bottles.

Girls Seeking Jobs Get Warning of Over-Dressing

NEW YORK.—If you're a girl looking for a job in retailing, don't go for your interview dressed in the height of fashion.

The reason: It's easier for the store that hires you to dress you up, if it feels that way, than to tone you down if you're overdressed.

This advice came out of a panel discussion in which executives of five leading New York stores and merchandising organizations participated. It was part of a "clinic on careers in retailing" held by the New York university school of retailing.

Good grooming, the members held, is important for applicants being interviewed—but the matter of over-dressing is the downfall of many an otherwise acceptable one. Especially if the interviewer is a man, they told the co-eds, simple dressing is preferred.

College Graduates May Step Into Better Jobs

ITHACA, N. Y.—The college graduates of June, 1949, are due to step into better paying jobs than ever, according to a Cornell university placement expert.

John L. Munschauer, Cornell service director, said one large company has raised its starting pay from last year's $285 to $305 a month. Another went up from $275 to $300, and a third was up $30 to $295.

Those startling salaries are chiefly for engineering graduates and other specialists, Munschauer said, but he expects the trend to be echoed through the whole job range.

There Was A Man

who heard some place that there might be a business recession on the way. Thinks he to himself, "I will be ready for such goings-on," Where-upon he cut his advertising to almost nothing, and saved himself some money. He cut his inventory in half, and saved himself some more. He bought cheaper merchandise to sell and saved still more. He then let his help go. They were not needed so much now anyway. He shortened his business hours and did not contribute to any civic organization or improvement. It cost too much.

Finally, one day the whole day went by without even one customer coming to the store. "Dad-gum," says our friend," there is sure one depression on. I am glad I was ready for it." (With apologies to Billy Rose)

DECISION AGAINST FREE SPEECH CURBS . . .

Twitchell Takes Supreme Court to Task

. . . GIVES ELMER REASON TO GRIPE

By H. I. PHILLIPS

TWITCHELL VS. DOUGLAS

"About the only fellow who can get into trouble easily today in America is the one who believes in law and order, pauses for second wind now and then and believes there are limits to breach of the peace," declares Elmer Twitchell. He has been going over the recent supreme court decision by a 5 to 4 vote against curbs on hatred, violence and rabble rousing tactics even when they bring on riots.

—*—

"It is the voice-thrower yelling for mob rule who gets an Oscar, a pat on the back, the green light and the embossed permit," added Elmer.

—*—

"It was another one of those photo finishes due to a strong stretch run by Justice Douglas," declares Elmer. "Bill, speaking for the majority opinion, said the authorities have no right to curb speeches no matter how violent or full of hatred. He says that if America is to be vital it has got to have the rabble rousers shoot the works. In other words, we have got to preserve our vitality even if we use our last ounce of strength.

—*—

"We are leaning over backwards so far for free speech that those who stop at nothing to scuttle our freedoms are getting the right of way at all times. The demagogue, the earsplitter, the gasbag and the microphone bellyacher are getting a pat on the back, a license to operate with the throttle wide open and a kiss from the high courts. You would think they are the backbone of the country and that the enemy was the quiet, thoughtful, tolerant little guy who always kept his voice down, respected the police and wanted no tear bombs tossed at anybody.

"The five justices held that no speeches should be curbed until it was clearly shown that they might cause trouble 'far above the public inconvenience, annoyance or unrest.' "

—*—

And since the case in question was one which involved street riots, rock hurling, personal assaults and stench bombs, it would seem that these jurists classified such violence as merely an inconvenience and an annoyance.

—*—

"The other four justices took the view that it is more than an inconvenience and a nuisance to find yourself flat on your puss with the mob trampling over your prostrate body. Justice Jackson pulled the rug from under the five justices by saying that if the highest court doesn't temper its doctrinaire baloney with a little horse sense it will convert the bill of rights into a national suicide pact. He added that the majority opinion kicked the police in the teeth and fulfilled the most extravagent hopes of those groups which want to paralyze and discredit authority. He spoke my language. I don't like the idea of rabble rousing being played deuces wild, with all rules of fair play suspended and hatefulness the biggest pipe in the organ," Elmer concluded.

The $20,000 bail put up for Gerhart Eisler has been forfeited. It was put up by friends of the alleged No. 1 Communist agent in America in good faith for his appearance, but to Mr. Eisler it is unimportant, as all money is capitalistic and all bail systems decadent.

These Brave Ones

I MARK the men and women every day
Who pass my door, or whom I hourly meet,
And there are few who, journeying on the way,
Fail to do their best. Although their feet
May falter with the burdens that they bear,
There are so few who break beneath despair.

They face their days with confidence and cheer,
Grateful for work, if there be work to do,
And if that work be lost they fight their fear
With courage, and with hope which they renew
At the clear source from which all comfort springs:
God's promises, and the old rememberings

That hitherto the Lord has blessed, and now
Surely there will be found a way again
To usefulness and service, that somehow
The paths will clear among the ways of men,
And the crooked places once more will be straight.
God, keep these brave ones as they hope and wait.

MIRROR Of Your MIND

Argument Won't Alter Beliefs

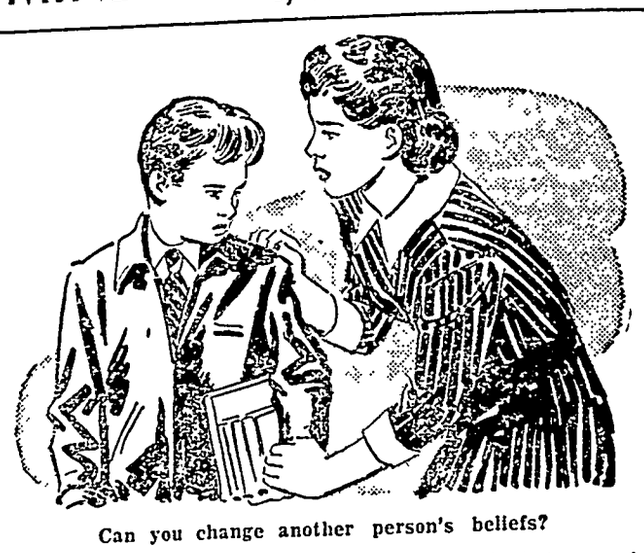
By Lawrence Gould



Can you change another person's beliefs?

Answer: Not by argument or "moral pressure." All that you can do is give him a chance to change them himself by bringing new facts or evidence to his attention, and even then he won't really change unless he wants to. Threats or promises may drive certain people, especially children, to repress their real convictions and persaude themselves they think as they are told to, but their true beliefs will ultimately be shown by their actions. You can't make a man, who is convinced that he's unworthy to be loved, believe you love him.

Will it hurt twins to be separated?

Answer: That depends on their age and on how much attached they are to each other, but in any case it need do them no lasting damage. It has fairly often happened, for example, that one twin has died and the other has grown up a normal man or woman, while the idea that there is some "supernatural bond between twins—even though they are "identicals"—has no basis in fact. The one separation that may ruin a child's life is to lose his mother and find no one to take her place; he can endure losing anyone else if he has to.

Did living in tree houses help man develop speech?

Answer: Yes, think a group of psychologists, after attempting vainly to "condition" rats to squeak when in a dangerous situation. A rat, they say, will make no sound unless he is actually hurt because inherited "instinct" tells him that noise will reveal his presence to enemies. It may not have been until men found an environment in which they were comparatively safe—perhaps by living in tree houses—that they dared learn to communicate with one another through the vocal sounds out of which language developed.

The Fiction Corner

A PRINCE CAN LAUGH

By Richard H. Wilkinson

3-Minute Fiction

A WEEK after I established residence in Seabrook, Ray Quimper, my next door neighbor took time off to drive me around the town and show me the points of interest. Toward evening he stopped his car before a driveway that led up to a huge brick house on top of Drybridge Hill. It was the only brick building in town and could be seen for miles around. I had wondered about it since the day of my arrival.

"The home of Prince Alexander Moisevich Deborin," he explained.

I looked at him curiously, sensing that this was a proud moment for Ray. He had saved the brick house until last, like a child relishing the last morsel.

"Of course," Ray explained further "he has a city home too. But the fact is he spends the greater part of his time out here. He craves solitude."

"Are you sure? I mean, wouldn't it be fitting to let the man know you're glad to have him as a citizen?"

"We've tended to that," Ray said importantly. "Three days after his arrival a committee made up of leading citizens waited on the prince and extended him a formal welcome." He regarded me sagely. "We're smart enough not to antagonize the man by pestering him to death."

On the day of which I write I was removing the storm windows from my house, for spring was near and the day was bright and warm. The prince came strolling along my street and stopped, oddly enough, at the end of my drive to watch. I perceived him from the corner of my eye, though gave no indication that I had seen. After a moment or two, much to my satisfaction, he turned in at the drive and came slowly toward me. At this precise moment the stepladder on which I was standing tilted precariously and the window I was removing threatened to tumble to the ground.

I uttered a cry of alarm, turned, perceived the prince as if for the first time, and shouted to him for aid. Involuntarily, he leaped forward and steadied the ladder until I had descended.

"Phew!" I grinned. "That was a close call."

"It was indeed," he replied.

"Would you mind holding the ladder for me on this window over here?" He seemed a little surprised, but agreed to lend his assistance. He proved as good a helper as I could have asked for. Three windows I removed while he steadied the ladder and helped me lower them to the ground. We chatted amiably about the weather.

PRESENTLY the task was done and I turned to him, grinning. "Thanks a lot. I don't know how I would have managed without you."

"Really?" He seemed to appreciate my compliment. "Frankly, I've enjoyed it, not only the work, but our little visit." He hesitated. "You are new in town, aren't you?"

"Comparatively," I said. "It's a mightly nice town. Folks are all like yourself. Ready and willing to lend a hand when help is needed."

I smiled happily. "The fact that I know your name, Prince Alexander, proves a little theory of my own."

He stared in astonishment. "You know who I am? You knew when you asked me to help remove the windows?"

I nodded. "Your philosophy and mine have a good deal in common, Prince. And that is, that you're no different from the rest of us. I'd even venture to say that you are quite unhappy living up there in your castle so far removed from everybody. To prove that I am right, I'm going to ask you a question. Tomorrow I'm going fishing. How would you like to come along?"

"I'd like to very much," he said. "But we must keep it a secret from the rest of the people. It would be a pity to destroy their illusion."

I agreed, winking at him knowingly, and the prince and I then and there shared a hearty laugh.

LOOKING AT RELIGION

By DON MOORE

Onward, Christian Soldiers!
Leonardo DaVinci -- spent many years painting the "Last Supper", yet he never had the courage to finish the face of Christ.
This famous hymn was written in 1865 by the Rev Baring-Gould of Yorkshire, England . . . It was written just for something the children could sing while they marched from school to a festival being held some distance away!
The first book ever to be printed in America was religious! - "The Spiritual Ladder" was printed in A D 1535 in Mexico.

KEEPING HEALTHY

Alcoholics Need Medical Treatment

By Dr. James W. Barton

FOR A NUMBER of years what is known as a summer school to study alcohol and alcoholism has been conducted at Yale university. Leaders in welfare work, ministers, physicians and those philanthrophists who have at heart the good of their fellow men meet for several weeks to learn more about the effects of alcohol and how to prevent and cure alcoholism.

The thought behind the lectures given by outstanding physicians and welfare workers is to get alcoholics re-established in home and business life.

While alcoholism is not strictly a disease in the sense that it is caused by an organism, alcoholism is a sickness caused in most cases by emotional disturbances or conflicts which the alcoholic has not been able to fight or to which he cannot adjust himself.

Naturally, the alcoholic is now considered a sick man and these students of alcohol and alcoholism believe that because he is sick, he should be treated by a physician in a hospital or his home, not by a police officer in a jail or in a reformatory.

In a hospital the alcoholic, realizing that his symptoms are due to illness, is more willing to cooperate with physicians and nurses than with police officers.

When alcoholic addicts are admitted to hospitals they either are intoxicated or show the effects of intoxication—involving emotional, nervous and nutritional disorders. Patients may show a clouding of the mind up to the point of delirium with delusions (believing something that he knows is false), hallucinations (thinking he sees objects which are not really present), nervousness, irregular movements of the muscles such as staggering, restlessness and disturbances of nutrition due to faulty eating and sleeping habits.

Treatment of an alcoholic showing these mental or emotional symptoms is rest, sleep, and proper feeding.

HEALTH NOTES

Despite all the new theories as to the causes of rheumatism, physicians are agreed that the commonest cause is infection—teeth, tonsils, gums, gall bladder and large intestine. Other contributing factors are cold, damp weather, too much starch food and poor circulation of the blood. Rheumatism is one of the most crippling diseases known to man.

Angina pectoris (breast pang) may be caused by hardened blood vessels — a dangerous condition — and by emotional disturbances which partly close or tighten the blood vessels and so do not allow enough blood carrying oxygen to reach the muscular walls of the heart, thus allowing them to atrophy and become inelastic.

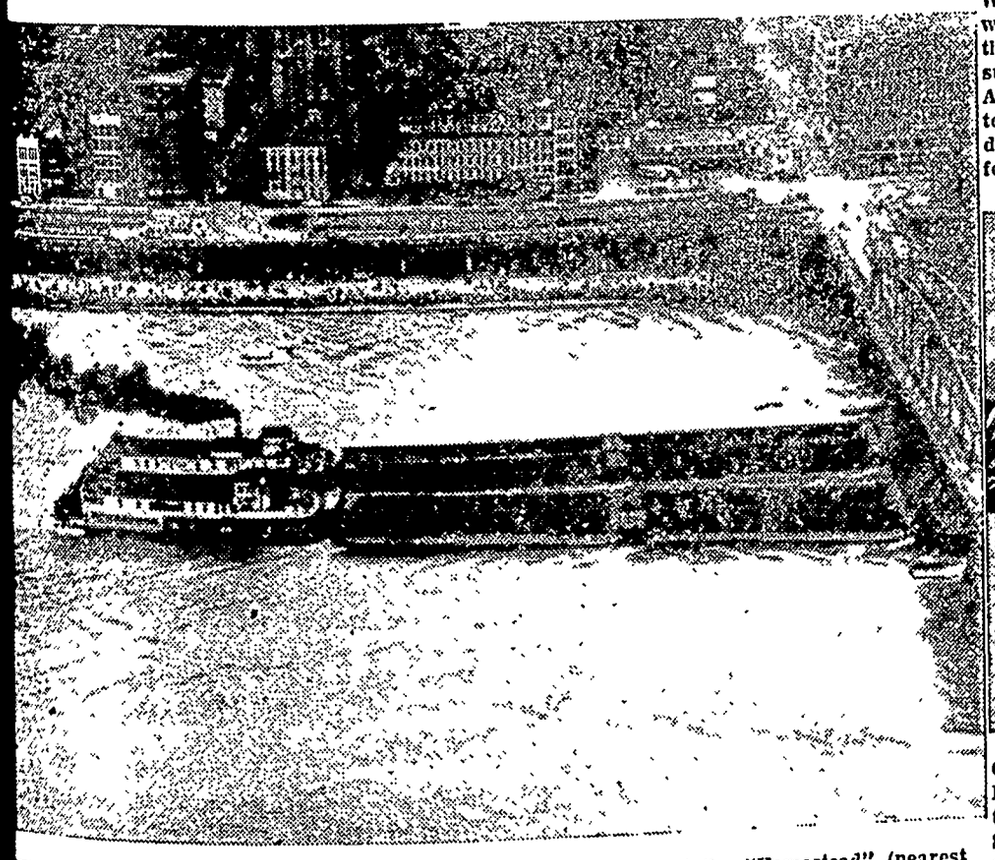
TIME IN HOLLAND (MICHIGAN) . . . Wearing the traditional costumes of Holland, right down to en shoes, Newman Williams, left, governor of Michigan, and Jan Vandemortel, Netherlands consul of the Midwest section, are joined by unidentified members of the governor's family in the cere- scrubbing the streets, part of the festivities created around the 19th annual tulip time festival. ebration, which lasted several days, attracted thousands of visitors to this little spot of Holland in .

SAW FORRESTAL LAST . . . U.S. navy Corpsman Robert W. Harrison, Springfield, Ill., is reported to have been the last person to see former Defense Secretary James V. Forrestal alive before the latter plunged to his death from a 16-story window.

MEET THE WINNER . . . Chuck, a one-month old pet robin, perched here on the head of his owner, Mario Gordo, 11, of New York, annexed the "best of birds" honors at the annual pet show.

NT TRUMAN RECEIVES FIRST SALMON CAUGHT IN MAINE . . . President Truman is usly pleased recipient of the first salmon caught in Maine waters this season. The 10-pound, three- on was presented by a delegation of members of congress from Maine who called at the White present the fish to the President. They are: (left to right) Rep. Robert Hale, the President, and nk Fellows and Charles Nelson. Incidentally, all are Republicans, except President Truman. Re- ces such as this help lighten from time to time the awesome task of running the United States rious personages who have held that job.

WITNESS . . . Joseph Weinberg, wartime atomic scientist now with the University of Minnesota, was summoned before the house un-American activities committee to tell what he knew of the alleged delivery of a top-secret atomic formula to the Communists.



INISH ON BEAUTIFUL OHIO . . . It looks like a dead heat, but the "Homestead" (nearest was the winner in the "steamboat race of the century" staged on Pittsburgh's Ohio river as a the city's welcome week celebration. The "Homestead" owned by Big Steel beat the "William " owned by the Jones and McLaughlin steel corporation. At the finish, no smoke was coming stacks of the "Homestead." Her mechanical stoker went dead in the last minutes of the race.

GIRL SCOUT CHAMP . . . Valmai Duffield, 19, Echunga, South Australia, won an American Girl Scout's award under which she'll represent Australia at the 1949 Juliette Low encampment at the guide chalet, Adelboden, Switzerland, this year.

ENVOY TO MOSCOW SWORN IN . . . Admiral Alan G. ## Who'll Fill Baseball's Gaps?

By GRANTLAND RICE

ONE CAN RECALL, looking back many years, how people began to wonder who were going to fill the gaps when Hans Wagner, Christy Mathewson and Nap Lajoie had finished. Then there was Ty Cobb—followed by Babe Ruth. Ruth and Gehrig. No one could take Matty's and Cy Young's place. But Walter Johnson did. And after Johnson there was Bob Feller.

It may be that no ballplayer can fill the gaps left by Ty Cobb and Babe Ruth. Or perhaps Walter Johnson. No one has quite filled Hans Wagner's place at short.

Grantland Rice

But with the DiMaggios, Ted Williams, Bill Dickey, Bob Feller, Hal Newhouser, Lou Boudreau, Stan Musial and a few others, most of the gaps are plugged. Ruth, Cobb and Wagner's remain unfilled. But we have now come to a spot in the game that either Gen. Abner Doubleday or someone else invented where we have to look around for other gap-fillers.

Bill Dickey is through as a player. So is Mickey Cochrane, another catching brilliant. Williams and Musial should have a few years more. They are two of the tops—maybe the best. But Joe DiMaggio, Bob Feller, Ewell Blackwell, Charley Keller, Whitey Kurowski, Marty Marion, and many more are nearing the borderline where the sign reads—"Game Called."

It must be admitted there are not too many headliners left from the old guard Ted Williams is the top man now. Musial is struggling in the grip of an early season slump. Newhouser is still pitching well, but he isn't winning as he used to win. Blackwell, a great pitcher, has been struck down. He may or may not come along later on. Charlie Keller is now out in No-Man's Land. No one knows when he will be back. Feller is a bull-pen pitcher. "Where are the gods of yesterday?"

So they are asking today who will take the places of Dimaggio, Williams, Feller, Musial, Marion, Newhouser, Boudreau and other headliners who will soon be over the hill. This makes one of the greatest guesses in sporting history.

Who will be the coming stars to fill these gaps? For there will soon be many that will need plugging.

Here are a few guesses—Al Dark and Earl Torgeson of the Braves; Ralph Kiner of the Pirates; Zernman, Al Raschi and Bob Porterfield of the Yankees; Perhaps Larry Yogi Berra and Larry Doby of Cleveland; Ralph Branca and Sid Gordon of the Giants; Eddie Kazak of the Cardinals; Richie Ashburn of the Phillies; Cari Furillo, Dodgers; Bob Chesnes, Pittsburgh; Johnny Groth, Detroit, and Roy Campanella, Dodgers.

Tommy Henrich is one of the star ballplayers of the year. But Tommy is 32 years old and he has been a pro ball player for 15 years. So Tommy can't be included with the stars of tomorrow. Then you can watch Lloyd Merriman of the Reds, a possible gap filler.

Dick Kryhoski of the Yankees and George Kell of the Tigers are other possibilities—don't overlook either. Enos Slaughter and Pee Wee Reese have come along too late for any future build-up—maybe Ferris Fain and Eddie Waitkus of the Philadelphia teams may prove the answer around first base, which has taken a heavy dip. Then we might take a look at all those $50,000, $60,000 and $70,000 bonus players—Johnny Antonelli of the Braves—Curtis Simmons and Robin Roberts of the Phillies—and a few others who have yet to prove how good they are.

It might be mentioned here that Bill Dickey ranks Yogi Berra as potentially the best catcher in either league. "Considering Berra in every detail," Dickey said, "I'd take Berra over any catcher in baseball today. He is young, strong and ambitious. He has a fine arm and he can hit."

Dickey is extremely keen about the future possibilities of Raschi and Porterfield. He isn't suggesting they can fill the gaps that will be left by Feller and Newhouser.

But he is sure they are much better than merely good pitchers.

Gus Zernial of the White Sox, a giant Texan, has shown exceptional promise. He may move up to challenge Ralph Kiner as the home-run star of 1954 or 1955. Zernial has shown enough promise to be rated high in any future book.

Don't overlook Dark of the Braves. He is one of baseball's fastest men who can field and hit. He may move in back of Hans Wagner before he is through with the game.

REV. E. M. EGELAND RETURNED TO KLEMME LIBERTY CHARGES

New Conference Takes In Strip Across North Iowa Counties

Rev. E. M. Egeland has returned home from the North Iowa Conference held at Cedar Rapids the past week. This new conference combines the old Northwest and Northeast Iowa Methodist Conference and embraces a strip of counties across North Iowa.

Rev. Egeland was returned to the Klemme-Liberty charge for his second year. Dr. F. Earl Burgess, who was district superintendent of the Algona district is being sent to the Storm Lake charge. F. W. Ortmeyer, who was at Estherville is now the new District Superintendent.

Changes made in the Algona District, and the ministers who will serve are as follows:

Alexander-Latimer - E. E. Cochhell
Belmond ---------- J. H. Miller
Britt ---------- Wm. E. Butler
Clarion -------- V. V. Schuldt
Goldfield ----- R. R. Kessinger
Graettinger - Arthur Rasmussen
Lake Mills ---- C. H. Petterson

Of interest to local Methodists: H. E. Whyte returned to Rockwell City for 6th year; J. L. Ralston goes to Dickens-Langdon; L. H. Pruel from Clarion to Spencer; H. A. Nelson returned to Whitfield; C. H. Petterson returned to Forest City for 10th year and in addition will serve Lake Mills.

The new North Iowa Conference is now composed of the following Districts: Algona, Cedar Rapids, Davenport, Dubuque, Fort Dodge, Sheldon, Sioux City and Waterloo.

Evangelical And Reformed Church Scene Of Double Ring Ceremony

MISS IRENE SCHMIDT BRIDE OF MERVIN BARKEMA WEDNESDAY, JUNE 22

Double Ring Ceremony Was Performed By Rev. C. Grosshuesch

The Evangelical and Reformed Church was the scene of a double ring ceremony performed by the Rev. Calvin Grosshuesch at 2:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon when Miss Irene Schmidt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schmidt became the Bride of Mervin Barkema, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hauko Barkema.

The church was decorated with bouquets of garden flowers.

Miss Iris Rosendahl played nuptial music preceding and during the ceremony. She accompanied Miss Jean Kurtz, who sang, "Oh, Promise Me," "I Love You Truly," and "The Lord's Prayer."

Ushers were Luverene Schmidt and Dale Barkema, cousins of the Bride and groom.

Miss Eleanor Faabog, cousin of the groom, acted as bridesmaid. She wore a navy blue street length dress with a navy blue picture hat and white accessories. Her corsage was of yellow carnations and roses.

The bride entered the church on her father's arm. She wore a gray street length dress with a white picture hat and navy blue accessories. Her necklace and earrings was a gift from the groom. Her corsage was of yellow roses.

The bride wore her grandmother Schmit's wedding ring.

The groom's attendant was the bride's brother, Marvin Schmidt. He wore a blue suit and had a white carnation boutonnier.

The groom wore a gray suit and his boutonnier was also a white carnation.

The bride's mother wore a navy blue figured dress and her corsage was of white carnations. The groom's stepmother wore a gray figured dress and her corsage was of white carnations.

Miss Beulah Goll, cousin of the bride, had charge of the guest book.

Following the ceremony the reception was held in the church dining room, which was decorated in yellow and white. Burning tapers lighted the table, with yellow roses as the flowers. The 3-tier wedding cake served as the center piece. Miss Marie Blank poured at the serving table. Miss Eleanor Faabog cut and served the wedding cake.

Mr. and Mrs. Barkema are at home in Klemme. A reception dance was held on Tuesday evening in honor of the couple.

The bride graduated from the Klemme High School in 1943, and attended Thompson Beauty School at Des Moines, and is employed at Marie's Beauty Shop.

Mr. Barkema received his schooling in Wright County, and served in the Air Corps of World War II At present he is employed at the Klemme Cooperative Creamery Co.

FAMILY PICNIC HELD AT THE JOHN WADDINGHAM HOME SUNDAY

A waddingham family gathering and picnic dinner was held at the John Waddingham home southeast of Klemme Sunday when the clan gathered for a fried chicken picnic dinner.

Those present were Mr and Mrs. J. W. Waddingham; Mr and Mrs. Tony Tebbins and family of Corwith; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Waddingham and family of Forest City; Mr and Mrs. Harm Dirks and family of Garner; Mr. and Mrs. Martin Karsjens and family of Klemme; Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Waddingham and family of Meservey; and Mr. and Mrs. James Simpson and family of Thornton.

This was the annual family picnic of the Waddingham family.

R. S. WON CLOSE GAME FROM KLEMME HERE

One of the best soft ball games here this season was played under the lights Thursday night when the R. C.s defeated Klemme 4 to 0. The game was tight from start to finish and there were few errors.

There is always a good game when these two teams get together.

EXPECT TEN IOWANS TO DIE IN TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS

Safety Commissioner Alfred Kahl Advises Iowans To Help Curb Accidents

The most dangerous traffic conditions in the history of Iowa may develop this July 4th weekend bring death to 10 persons, the state safety department warned today.

With good weather, virtually all of Iowa's three-quarters of a million passenger cars — a record — are expected to move in the three-day traffic.

This probably means that over half the population of the state will be on the highways as drivers or passengers before the holiday ends, according to state safety commissioner Alfred Kahl.

At least 145 of these persons will be injured in some 300 accidents if the traffic toll this week end equals that of last year, department records show.

The fact that there were only two fatal accidents (five killed) last year does not indicate the increased dangers of the holiday, Kahl said. July 4th traffic in the past three years has caused 630 accidents, 318 injuries and 17 fatalities.

"The dangers of a four or five fatality 'family' accident are always great on such a week-end, "Frank Ulish, safety director said. "One speeding driver could cause our last year's death toll to be equaled in one accident."

This week, the highway safety partol began distributing the July 4th warning cards to all motorists contacted. All members of the patrol will be on duty during the three-day week end, according to chief S. N. Jespersen.

The state safety department has issued the following five special safety tips for all drivers planning a holiday trip:

1. Start early; regulate your speed to traffic conditions and still arrive on time. The faster you drive, the less chance you will have to correct mistakes.

2. Don't lose your patience in heat and traffic. That's when mistakes are bound to occur. If you get mad or drowsy, pull well off the highway and rest for a few minutes. After all—its a holiday.

3. Look for trains at all crossings. Train-car fatalities have more than doubled this year over last. Drive with special caution on unfamiliar roads. You don't know where the bad spots are.

4. Don't divide your attention between watching the road and visiting with others in the car. Traffic will be closing in on you all the time this weekend. Make your holiday driving a full time job.

5. Watch out for dangerous intersections where thick, high foliage blocks your vision to the right or left. Last July, 15 lives were lost in intersection accidents because of the heavy summer foliage. Approach these crossroads with extreme caution. The heavy holiday traffic means there is a greater chance than usual that a car may be approaching from the right or left. The odds on missing it aren't big enough for you to gamble.

SEND IN YOUR NEWS EARLY FOR NEXT WEEK

Please send in as much of your news this week end as you can, as Monday is a holiday and The Times will be crowded for time in getting the paper out next week. It will also help a lot if advertisers will get their copy into the office this week end.

Along with the other business places, the Times will be closed on Monday, July 4th so our help can have the week end off duty.

It was the Atomic Theory class, and the instructor of the physics class wrote down an equation on the blackboard and stated that a certain number of electrons were involved. From this he developed an entire board of equations, winding up at the bottom with, "So you see we have five less electrons than at the start. What became of them?"

Not a sound from the class Imperatively the instructor asked again, "Gentlemen, where are those electrons?"

It was time for action and from a rear seat came a gruff command: "Don't nobody leave this room."

Private Enterprise

When the wife of a harsh, puritanic New England minister was going to have her first baby, her husband appeared to be unaware of the fact. Modestly she tried to convey the information to him by indirection, such as sewing on tiny clothes That had no effect. Then she tried the direct approach.

"Jonathan," she said, "I am going to have a baby"

"How dare you mention such a subject to me?" he thundered.

After that she treated childbearing as her private business—and had 12 children the garden to the can in a mini- mum amount of time will give the most satisfactory results.

Clean Vegetables Before Preparation

CLEANING the vegetables is the step after bringing them into the kitchen. This should be done be- fore the skin is broken, or some of the valuable juices may escape.

Dirt is not only objectionable in itself, but it may frequently con- tain certain or- ganisms which hold spoilage. Wash the vege- tables under run- ning water, or place them in a large vessel of water and lift them out gently onto a colander. Do not pour dirty water off the vegetables, as dirt may re- main in the pan and then mix with the vegetable.

IN THE CHART given above, pre- cooking is recommended for the green vegetables such as peas, green beans and similar vegetables. This means immersing in boiling water for the designated amount of time to shrink or wilt them in order to pack them easily and com- pactly.

Pressure Cooker Is Recommended

TO PROCESS VEGETABLES properly, a pressure cooker is an invaluable aid. For vegetables, have the gauge read 10 pounds be- fore you start counting processing time.

The pressure should not be al- lowed to fluctuate since this may drain liquid from the jar and give a poor looking jar. It will also over- cook the vegetables, or undercook them, as the case may be.

Vegetables are a non-acid food, and this means they require a high temperature to kill the bacteria which lurk in them. This is why pressure cooker processing is rec- ommended for them. Fruits, which are acid, need much less proces- sing time, and much lower tem- perature in which to have the bac- teria killed.

Always follow the directions for your particular type of pressure cooker. One thing is generally true of all types, and that is to leave the petcock open for at least seven minutes during which time steam escapes from the cooker. Unless this is followed closely, the pressure may not be accurate, for all air must be exhausted before allowing the cooker to come to pressure.

Another safe rule to follow is to allow the vegetables to boil 10 min- utes in an open vessel before tast- ing or eating after they are taken from the can.

After filling the jar with vege- tables and water, you may find some air bubbles anchored against the sides of the jar. Remove these by running a spatula between the glass and the vegetable.

Jars which have been sealed with a self-sealing lid, should not be tested for sound until 24 hours after processing. It will take this length of time to cool the contents of the jar.

Six pounds of greens, such as spinach, are required to make one quart of the canned product.

Songs for All Hearts

Lesson for July 3, 1949

THE greatest hymn-book in the world is to be our study for three months. Not the oldest; that honor belongs to the Vedic Hymns of ancient India.

Dr. Foreman

Not the largest; the hymnal of your own church may easily be twice as large. But the greatest hymn- book in the world is the book of poems was used as the hymn-book of Psalms. This col- lection of religious the temple which was built when the Jewish exiles returned to Babylon. It was the hymn-book of Herod's temple, and we know our Lord used and loved it. It is in- deed the song-book of the Bible. It was the only hymnal which the first Christians used, for some time. Indeed the book of Psalms is probably the only hymn-book hon- ored and used by three separate religions—Judaism, Mohammedan- ism and Christianity.

How It Grew

LIKE all hymnals, this book of Psalms grew by degrees. It was not written all at one time or by one person. David wrote some of the Psalms, how many we do not know. The "titles" of the Psalms were added by later He- brew editors, are no part of the original Psalms, and are often in- accurate.

It is very likely that as much as a thousand years went by between the first of the Psalms to be written, and the last. Every modern hymnal that is any good is in part a collection of the best of the old hymnals.

So our book of Psalms, as it finally took shape, came from old- er collections. A glance through it in the American standard version will show that in its present form it is made up of five smaller books, ending with Psalms 41, 72, 89, 106 and 150. Each book ends with a dox- ology and book V ends with a mag- nificent series of them Sometimes the editors left in duplicates. Read- ing Psalm 14 side by side with Psalm 53 will show that these two are exactly the same, only using different names for God. At least one of the Psalms is made up of "clippings" from earlier Psalms: thus Psalm 108 is made up from Psalm 57:7-11 and Psalm 60 5-12. The Psalms were cherished and preserved generation after genera- tion because of their heart-appeal. Our Psalm book has gone through centuries of sifting, many were dropped out and forgotten, but the best were saved and sung; and what we have is the cream of the best of the singers of Israel.

Mirror of Man

JOHN CALVIN called the Psalms the "mirror of the soul." All the varied moods of man—hope, des- pair, triumph, envy, doubt aspira- tion, loneliness, hatred, fear, ir- ritation, patriotism, joy, bitterness, weariness, amazement, anguish, rapture—almost every emotion that can be felt toward God or man breathes somewhere or other in these Psalms.

Since not one of the authors of the Psalms was a Christian, of course, we should not be surprised to find, here and there, expressions (for exam- ple) of hatred which are out of harmony with the spirit and teaching of Jesus. The won- der is that there is so little of that kind of thing.

For every Psalm in which the poet says something cruel or hate- ful (e. g. Psalm 137.9 or 109.6-14), there are scores that breathe a spirit of gentleness and grace For every note of despair (Psalm 88 is the only completely gloomy one in the whole collection), there are many hallelujahs of hope and glad- ness.

Message of God

IF the Psalms are so human, how can they be also God's Word? Yet they are also, truly, a message of God. For they not only cast a divine light on the state of man's heart, but they show what the life of man is when God becomes real. For God was real to each poet who contributed to this great book. In latter weeks this summer we shall be looking at the Psalms from var- ious special angles. This week it will be helpful to sit quietly with the three typical Psalms, 1, 67 and 100, and as you ponder over each one in turn, ask yourself: What does this show me about God? What does this show about life when it turns to God?

MIRROR Of Your MIND

Child Victims Of Jealousy

By Lawrence Gould

Can a boy be jealous of his mother?

Answer: Certainly. No one can help being jealous of a person who appears to come between him and someone else he loves, and a boy who gives all his devotion to his father may be very jealous of his mother's "claims" upon him. But many boys begin by being jealous of their fathers' relationship with their mothers (the "Oedipus com- plex") and the average small boy would be likely to develop an in- tense attachment to his father either to conceal repressed hos- tility toward him or because he felt "rejected" by his mother.

Is "advice by mail" effective?

Answer: Doubtless it is, but since most people find it so much easier to evade their actual prob- lems or give only one side of a story when writing a letter than when talking to a trained observer that I, for one, don't try to give advice that way In the Journal of Applied Psychology, Dr. C. Har- old Stone and Mr. Irving Simos report that a "follow-up" of cases in which they had given advice on job seeking and self-confidence showed personal interviews to have been more effective.

Are continuous high winds fatiguing?

Answer: I suppose this is an in- dividual matter, depending on the "associations" high winds happen to have for each person, but I think that living where strong gales blow most of the time would be "wearing" to most men and women. Moving about outdoors in a strong wind takes more muscu- lar exertion, and the noise might be hard to shut out of your mind when you're indoors. However, a normal human being can adjust— or as we say, "get used"—to many things which at first seem intol- erable, and wind may be no ex- ception.

By Dr. James W. Barton

IT IS A NATURAL feeling of sym- pathy that we have for the blind, for the victims of infantile paralysis and for those who are crippled— particularly crippled children. What many of us fail to realize, however, is that there is a dread foe of hu- manity that takes away the young and old, yet we do nothing about it, thinking of it perhaps as just an act of Nature. I have in mind that dead- ly human enemy, heart disease.

In a pamphlet, "The Challenge of Heart Disease," the American Heart association presents some startling facts that should make us all do our part in preventing the death of loved and valuable citizens.

"Heart disease has been increas- ing rapidly. Today it is the leading cause of death. One of every three deaths is due to diseases of the heart and blood vessels. Heart di- sease takes a greater toll than the next five leading causes of death combined."

The death rate from diseases of the heart and blood vessels is three times as high as tuberculosis.

The unfortunate fact about heart disease is that it takes the greatest number of lives between ages of 40 and 60, the age of most produc- tiveness and the age of greatest opportunity for helpfulness to fel- low men.

"The economic cost of heart di- sease is staggering in terms of loss of life, absenteeism, disability, loss of gainful employment, and care and treatment programs."

What can you and I do to help fight this terrible enemy of man- kind?

We can join our local branch of the American Heart association and help research physicians who are doing advanced work and in- vestigation of the causes and treat- ment of heart disease. We can help employ or place men and women with heart disease so that they can do gainful work and retain their morale.

HEALTH NOTES

It's a standing joke among med- ical students that some men be- come skin specialists because skin patients never die, never get well, the disease comes on from time to time and they never call the physi- cians during the night. As a mat- ter of fact, very few physicians become skin specialists as they prefer general medicine and sur- gery.

When angina pectoris (breast pang) occurs, the patient, should remember just what he is doing at the time, as this helps the physician determine whether or not true or organic heart disease is present. The fact that emotional upsets can bring on such pain helps to reas- sure the patient.

U.S. Agriculture Makes Fabulous Record in 1948

For United States agriculture, 1948 will go down in history as a fabulous year, according to the 1949 Britannica Book of the Year.

"It was a year without a crop scare, with numerous record and near record yields achieved; the corn crop was more than 10 per cent above the previous record and fully 50 per cent above the previous year; the wheat crop was the second largest on record and the fifth consecutive crop of more than a billion bushels, one of the five largest wheat crops the coun- try had ever produced; the cotton crop was one-fourth larger than in the previous year."

Prices, too, reached a record level in January, 1948, though they then broke sharply and continued to decline as 1948 crops were har- vested, the new Britannica year- book records.

"In spite of the break in prices, the volume of agricultural mark- etings was such as to provide a gross income to farmers of almost 35 billion dollars slightly exceed- ing the 1947 record," the publica- tion continues. "However, because of higher costs of production the realized net income had been de- clining since 1947."

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE AUXILIARY

June 25, 1949

To the President of the American Legion Auxiliary of Klemme, Iowa

Dear Mrs. Thomas,

I am very sorry that this letter of appreciation is so belated, but the first was lost somewhere in the whirl of activities at Girls State.

Such a wonderful week it was' I want to thank you and the Auxiliary for providing me with such an opportunity. I can't tell you how grateful I am for the privilege that was mine.

Thanks to you, I felt the thrill of being elected to a State office, that of a State Representative Learning how our government works, through experience, was fun as well as being educational. Taking part in the Legislative activities was very interesting, informative, and enjoyable. In fact, every moment at Hawkeye Girls State offered something helpful in the way of learning to be a better citizen, as you will hear in my complete report of that very pleasant week.

Thanking you and the Auxiliary again for the honor of being selected to attend Hawkeye Girls State I remain

Sincerely yours,
Sylvia Egeland

SADDLE CLUB WILL MEET SUNDAY FOR RIDE AND PICNIC

The Klemme-Goodell Saddle Club will meet at Dan Miller's Sunday morning at 11:00 o'clock. There will be a picnic dinner and trail ride on the program. Members and their families are invited and each family is asked to bring a covered dish, sandwiches and dishes.

Novella Bredbenner Attended Convention

Miss Novella Bredbenner returned home Sunday from Vermillion, South Dakota where she attended a Kappa Phi Kora meeting. Representatives from the University of Minnesota, University of South Dakota, Iowa State College, University of Iowa, Iowa State Teachers College, Southern Illinois University, and the University of Nebraska attended the meeting. Miss Bredbenner was elected as Kora Alumnae Secretary to succeed Mrs. Roy Arnold who has served in that office the past two years. Delegates at the meeting thought that is was quite a coincidence that both the old and the new officer happened to be from Klemme, Iowa. Mrs. Arnold was a Kappa Phi member at Ames and Miss Bredbenner at Cedar Falls.

Teaches At Summer Camp

Miss Novella Bredbenner left Monday for the Methodist Camp at Clear Lake where she will be teaching a class of Juniors this week at Family Camp. Family Camp is a camp sponsored by the Methodist Church for parents and children. Families from all over Iowa and some from adjoining states will be attending the camp.

FARM BOY HAD ACCIDENT SUNDAY EVENING

Val, 9-year old son of Mr. and Mrs Vern Stromer, met with an accident early Sunday evening that will keep him from the tractor for a week or more.

Val was playing with some companions and was barefooted. He accidently stepped on a broken pop bottle and the doctor had to put in 8 stitches to close the deep, long cut in Val's foot. That will put Val out of commission as far as farm work is concerned. Val is one of the main helpers on the Stromer farm. His dad purchased a small tractor and with it Val has been doing his share of cultivating the fields.

MR. AND MRS, JENNINGS ANDERSON CELEBRATED 25TH ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. W. J Anderson, Klemme, were married 25 years ago, June 26th by the Rev. Newell, Congregational minister at Garner. Mrs. Anderson was Miss Lela Nelson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chris Nelson of Garner.

Mrs. Anderson graduated from the Garner high school in 1919 and Mr. Anderson attended the rural schools. After living in Garner for a short time they moved to their present fine farm north of Klemme.

They are the parents of two children: Alice Mae and Allan, both graduates of the Klemme high school. Alice is attending Iowa University and this summer is attending the University of Colorado at Boulder. She came home for the anniversary.

Sunday evening relatives and friends staged a surprise on Mr. and Mrs. Anderson and brought refreshment and some nice gifts. Mrs. Elmer Anderson of Goodell had baked a 3-tiered cake for the occasion. The cake was decorated in silver and blue, topped with a tiny bride and groom.

The entertainment was a mock wedding with neice Darlene Nelson as the bride and Harvey Anderson as groom.

The evening was spent informally and all enjoyed a fine time.

BE TRAVELWISE — or otherwise Emergencies May Catch You Unprep

Whether it's for two weeks or 12, a vacationing family is likely to need some first-aid items. This holds true for trailer, tenting and tourist-court holidays as well as simple go-to-the-beach junkets.

Travelwise folks select a small cosmetic-type carrying case which is easy to stow, yet handy to reach. It will hold everything needed to take care of the usual emergencies and make the trip more comfortable.

For both car and camp, it's smart to stock the case with gauze bandages, gauze pads, a roll of adhesive, individual adhesive bandages, an antiseptic for cuts and wounds, sterile cotton balls for applying antiseptics, a remedy for burns, and individual phials of inhalants. ## EIGHT CORN BORER MEETINGS HELD IN HANCOCK COUNTY

Eight meetings were held throughout Hancock County on Thursday morning to help farmers identify and count corn egg masses. These meetings were set up by Paul Henderson, the County Extension Director. The meeting places and the person in charge were: on the Anno Abbas farm with Clarence Bird, PMA committeeman in charge; on the Earl Schultz farm with Herman Bode, Britt Veterans instructor in charge; on the Floyd Friedow farm with Clifford Schaeper, Britt Veterans instructor in charge; Alfred Jacobson farm with Paul Crockett, Britt Agricultural Instructor in charge; Harold Rockow farm with Paul Shurts, Co Farm Bureau Fieldman was in charge, on the Wiley Weaver farm with Lyle Hullinger, Garner Agricultural teacher in charge, Harold Hall farm with Merle Yanacek, Garner Veterans Instructor assisting; and on the Carl Wille farm with Co. Extension Director Paul Henderson assisting.

Paul Henderson met with the above group last monday afternoon at Herman Bode's to discuss the procedure of counting corn borer egg masses and give the men the data necessary for treating etc.

HANCOCK COUNTY PUBLIC HEALTH COUNCIL MET AT BRITT

The Hancock County Public Health Council held its regular meeting Wednesday, June 22nd in the Britt library Mrs. Erwin Buck, chairman, conducted the meeting. The program was very interesting Mrs. E. H Phillips. Garner, reported on the Wright Council meeting attened this month Miss Louise Beyer, of Garner, indicated progress of the cancer drive in the county Mr Roy McMillin told of a statewide polio meeting he attended recently

The group made plans to have a program on socialized medicine for the August meeting Anyone interested in health is welcome to attend any of these meetings.

The Council is composed of representatives of all organized groups in the county interested in health, as Red Cross, Tuberculosis Association, Cancer, the Women's Clubs, etc. The township health chairman are also members. The purpose of the group is to discuss the county's health needs and plan to meet them effectively. It is impossible to adequately serve Hancock County residents without an active group of this kind Representatives from all of the towns and rural areas are necessary Hayfield, Crystal Lake, Woden and Corwith have been notably lacking in representation. Council members unable to attend meetings--please send someone in your place.

A well organized health council helps to keep the people aware of better health practices, and how to improve health conditions. Following meetings, the group carries information back to the local community, and in that way educates all citizens regarding health needs. "Without health, what is life?"

HOLIDAY SPECIAL—

FRIED CHICKEN FOR THE 4TH

Fried chicken, and plenty of it, belongs in your holiday menu. It's easy to prepare, to pack in basket, and to serve. Here is how to make it golden brown and delicious.

Fried chicken on the fourth of July is almost as traditional as red, white and blue. So whether yours will be a family picnic or an extra special dinner, chicken can have the starring role, says Jewel Graham, Iowa State College extension nutritionist.

Good news, she says, is that fryers will be plentiful all through the month of July Chicken will team up well with the other fresh fruits and vegetables that will be coming in the market about that time, too. You'll enjoy your holiday to the fullest if you plan to serve such easy but appealing foods as sliced tomatoes and cucumbers, fresh corn-on-the cob or garden peas, chilled watermelon or raspberries.

Chicken makes a big hit either pan or deep-fat fried. If you're going to pan-fry it, Miss Graham emphasizes the need for using a heavy skillett for even heat distribution while the chicken is cooking. Enough fat to cover the skillet to a depth of about ¼ inch should be plenty. You'll have better luck if you start frying the thickest pieces first.

Prevent Spattering

The chicken should be as dry as possible when you put it in the pan so the fat won't spatter. You can flour it easily and quickly by shaking the pieces and flour in a paper sack Some people like to dip each piece of chicken in slightly beaten egg and roll in a combination of half cornmeal and half flour or in bread crumbs before frying

Moderate heat is best for cooking chicken The fat in the pan should never smoke Turn the chicken when it is brown on one side It will be completely cooked to the bone by the time the other side is browned. A 2-pound chicken will require 20 to 25 minutes cooking time if fried entirely on top of the stove. A 4-pound spring fryer will take about 30 minutes.

Deep fat frying is the favorite way with many people whether the chicken is dipped in batter or in slightly beaten egg and then bread crumbs If you're going to use the breaded method, Miss Graham recommends letting the pieces dry a little before placing them in the fat, to prevent spattering If you prefer the batter covering, she suggests this recipe for a thin batter 1 egg, 1 cup sifted flour, three-quarters cup milk and ½ teaspoon salt.

Thermometer Necessary

A thermometer is really necessary for frying chicken in deep fat, Miss Graham points out. The temperature should be 350 degrees F when the chicken goes in Cooking temperature should be between 300 and 325 degrees Make sure the fat is deep enough to cover the chicken. In deep fat the chicken will brown in about 15 minutes, just long enough to cook it thoroughly

Lard is an especially good fat for frying chicken, Miss Graham says. With the coating that is used on deep-fat fried chicken, the pieces will not become any more fat soaked than the pan-fried kind. A 3 to 4 pound chicken will provide generous servings for four people, Miss Graham says.

Most people like to eat chicken with their fingers once in awhile, and Fourth of July parties are usually informal enough so nobody casts disapproving glances. Chicken that's finger food shouldn't be greasy Miss Graham recommends putting each piece as it comes out of the fat on soft paper towels in a heavy heated pan. The fat will drain off and help to keep the chicken warm until it's served.

Fishin' Time in Iowa

Yes, it's fishin' time in Iowa . . . and how grand and glorious it is!

Why do some folks rush off to other states, when our own Iowa lakes and streams have some of the finest fishing there is? Walleyes and northern pike, brook, brown, and rainbow trout, pan fish, cat fish . . . just about everything!

Try our Iowa resorts this year. You'll have your eyes opened.

Fishing does something fine for a person. Seems to make him a better man. He gets along with his neighbors. He's tolerant, generous.

You'll hear fishermen discussing the merits of different flies, rods, etc. It's O.K. Each has the right to his own preference. Same with other things . . . one may like coffee, another may prefer a temperate glass of beer. Each has his right of choice; is respected for it.

In every-day life, as in fishing, let's respect the OTHER fellow's rights as much as our own. It makes us all better folks, and better neighbors.

Whereupon the Chairman declared the resolution duly adopted.

On motion and second Wm. Henschen is hereby appointed construction Engineer of D. D. No. 151 and his bond as such is fixed at $1,400.00.

This being the 20th day of June A. D., 1949, a date heretofore fixed for a letting on the construction of D. D. No. 151, Hancock County, Iowa, the hour for said letting having arrived, the proof of publication being on file and the Board being fully advised said letting was held as scheduled. The chairman of the Board preceeded to open all bids on file and after duly considering all bids on file, the following bids were found to be the lowest and best bids on file:

Nielsen Brothers of Onawa, Iowa, for open ditch labor, Iowa Concrete Products Company of Ames, Iowa, for concrete material; Armco Drainage and Metal Products Inc., of Mason City, Iowa, for steel material, and Leo L. Becker of Garner, Iowa for bridges.

BE AND IT IS THEREFORE RESOLVED by the Board of Supervisors acting for and in behalf of D D No. 151, that the bids of Nielsen Brothers for open ditch labor, Iowa Concrete Products Company for concrete material, Armco Drainage and Metal Products Company or steel material, and Leo L. Becker for bridges, are hereby accepted as the lowest and best bids for the construction of D. D No. 151, Hancock County Iowa. All other bids are hereby rejected.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that contracts are hereby awarded to the above named constractors and F. J. Schoun, Chairman, is hereby authorized to execute said contracts in behalf of Hancock County, Iowa.

The foregoing resolutions was offered and read by Supervisor Daniels, who moved its adoption, was seconded by Supervisor Gerdes, whereupon the Chairman, F J. Schoun placed the motion of its adoption and upon roll call the vote thereon is Clint Daniels, George Th Gerdes and F J Schoun, aye. Nays, none. Whereupon the Chairman declared the resolution duly adopted

On motion and second Wm Henschen, Engineer, Wm. Boehnke and T C. Nelson are appointed a commission to classify lands and assess benefits in D. D. No. 151, Hancock County, Iowa, as commanded in Section 455 45 Code of Iowa 1946 and laws amendatory thereto and said commission to file its report on or before the 5th day of September A. D., 1949.

WHEREAS C. F Merten, Engineer, has to report that Barker and Rose Construction Company of Marshalltown, Iowa, have completed their contract for the construction of wooden bridges in Hancock County to his entire satisfaction and there is due on said contract a final estimate in the sum of $326 40.

BE AND IT IS THEREFORE RESOLVED by the Board of Supervisors of Hancock County, Iowa, that the report of the Engineer be and the same is hereby approved and the County Auditor be and he is hereby authorized and ordered to draw a warrant on the Road Construction Fund of Hancock County, Iowa, in favor of Barker and Rose Construction Company in the sum of $326.40 as a final payment on said Contract all as by law directed.

On motion and second the Board adjourned to Monday, June 27, 1949, at 9 o'clock A M.

YOU Will Decide 1950

Property Tax Levies

During Next Sixty Days

There is a lot of talk going around about how much TAXES HAVE BEEN RAISED for next year. The simple facts are that NO PROPERTY TAX LEVIES FOR 1950 HAVE YET BEEN FIXED

Every dollar of property tax to be levied for collection in 1950 will be approved during July and August at the budget hearings of county, city, town, school and hospial governing bodies to which YOU WILL BE INVITED.

Notices will be published in the newspapers for the more important budgets and the smaller school districts and towns will post notices of hearings.

At these hearings all interetsed citizens will be heard before a decision is reached and if you are not satisfied you can take the budget entirely away from your local officials and have THE STATE APPEAL BOARD, after a hearing in your community, pass upon all items with full and final power to APPROVE, ELIMINATE OR REDUCE, but not to increase.

In order to establish the right of appeal at least three taxpayers must ask the clerk of the meeting to note their ogjection to adoption of the budget. Then, with not less than seven other taxpayers, they must file by the first Tuesday in September, a written protest with the county auditor. No expense or liability is incurred in such appeal.

This means that YOU have an EQUAL VOICE with each of your tax levying bodies in deciding HOW MUCH shall be spent and FOR WHAT.

This makes you EQUALLY RESPONSIBLE for the taxes to be levied. Watch for dates of all budget hearing that affect your taxes and attend. Your public officials will welcome the opportunity to discuss details with you in advance of hearings, if you so desire.

YOU CAN, IF YOU WILL DECIDE FOR YOURSELF JUST HOW MUCH YOUR 1950 TAXES WILL BE

STATE AID TO PUBLIC EDUCATION

The 53rd General Assembly has appropriated state funds to cover about 25 per cent of the annual general fund expenditures of the public schools in Iowa, based on the 1948-1949 school year. All public schools are eligible to receive but must apply for general state aid. Applications must be made no later than July 1st.

There are twenty-six school districts in Hancock County eligible to receive state aid. The applications for the township schools are being made out in the office of the County Superintendent of Schools The school officers of the Independent and Consolidated Schools will each make out and file their own.

The amount of state aid each school district will receive depends on its enrollment and the resident average daily attendance The state formula will allow 17 cents a day for pupils in the elementary grades for a school year of 180 days, or $30.60 per year for resident elementary pupils. The formula for high school students is 20 cents per day or $36.00 per year, if the state appropriation will permit 100 per cent payment of claims.

A school with 100 resident pupils average daily attendance in high school and 225 elementary resident pupils in average daily attendance, can make application for $3600 for the high school students and $6885.00 for the elementary pupils, or a total of $10,485.00 from the State. If a school is entitled to supplemental aid, that amount will be in addition to the $10,485.00 general aid reguest The enrollment and attendance for the school year 1948-1949 is used as a basis for determining the amount of general aid each school will receive.

The state did not provide enough money last year to pay general aid claims in full. Last year's claims for all of the schools of the county totaled $ 1,270.80. The State paid about 87 per cent for a total of $53,487.16. The 53rd General Assembly provided a more liberal appropriation and formula for general state aid and it is believed all claims will be paid in full this year.

CROP STORAGE SPACE IS GETTING TOP ATTENTION

Storage space for 1949 crops is getting top priority by agricultural engineers at Midwest land-grant colleges including Iowa State College.

Agricultural engineers at 14 colleges and in the U. S. Department of Agriculture have cooperated in drawing up and revising plans for 30 different grain storage structures at the request of the Production and Marketing Administration,

Specifications have been worked out for cribs, granaries, and combination cribs and granaries. Some buildings that can be used temporarily for grain storage and then later converted to other uses are included in the project.

The designs and details of construction have been studied and tested to make sure they are practical and durable, according to Henry Giese, agricultural engineer at Iowa State College and chairman of the Midwest Plan Service.

Detailed plans and working drawings of each building are being made available to farmers at cost. They will be released through the Midwest Plan Service, a non-profit organization. The organization is putting out a complete new set of farm building plans this year. Besides the grain storgae section, the catalog will include drawings and illustrations of farm houses, barns, swine and poultry houses, and miscelaneous buildings and equipment.

The catalog, which may be obtained from the Agricultural Experiment Service at Iowa State College for 25 cents per section, can be used in selecting the building wanted. Working drawings may be obtained from the Extension Service for 15 cents per sheet They include all the specifications and details necessary for the actual construction.

The section on grain storage is being made available first, Giese said.

LIVESTOCK IMPORTANT TO CONSERVATION

Lifestock are an important part of a soil conservation program because through livestock grass and hay crops can be marketed to the best advantage, says Paul Henderson, Co. Extension Director.

Further, the different kinds of livestock vary in the degree to which they can utilize pasture profitably, according to Henderson.

The best way to market grass is through livestock that will produce a finished product from pasture. The dairy cow does the best job of this because the milk or butterfat she produces needs no further processing.

The drawback with the dairy herd is that many farmers cannot carry a large enough herd of cows to market all their forage crops in this manner because of the labor and equipment required. Everyone could not go to dairying because if they did it would not be most profitable. Therefore, dairying is only one method of selling grass.

Next to the dairy herd, sheep offer the best method of marketing pasture. Suckling ewes can produce market-topping lambs without grain from pasture if the pasture is good and green. Sheep, too, have their limitations, they are well adapted to rough areas with large amounts of permanent pasture

Next in line is the beef-cow-and-calf program. On pasture, cows can produce feeder calves without grain. Cows can be wintered on hay and roughage. Much permanent pasture is suited to this type of livestock production.

Hogs make good use of limited amounts of pasture, but it takes a lot of them to utilize large acreages of permanent pasture. They are unsuited to roughland subject to erosion.

As for beef cattle, Henderson says if they are pastured without grain they will end up as feeders. The alternative is to supplement the pasture with grain. This reduces the acreage needed per head, and may increase the return from the pasture.

There being so many variables in the picture such as a farmers' experience with livestock and conditions peculiar to each farmer's set-up means that the proper balance in any livestock program is an individual problem. Farmers can soon discover with a little experimentation what kind of program will fit their feed and labor situation.

ELL TIP-TOPPERS MET

The Ell Tip Toppers had their last meeting June 17th.

They were taken to Mason City, and went thru the Decker Plant, which was very interesting. The Mother's were also invited Following the tour the meeting was called to order at the State Park. ## Hancock County Still Lags In Bond Sales

As promotional activities for the Opportunity drive draw to a close, Iowa stands at 87.51 per cent of its $50-million quota and there is every indication that the goal will be exceeded before final reports are available the latter part of July.

Herbert L. Ollenburg of Garner, county chairman of the savings bonds division, explained that the official dates of the drive were from May 16 through June 30, but the sales of E, F, and G bonds reported to the Federal Reserve bank by July 16th will be credited to state and county quotas.

Hancock County sales reached $269,213, 73.71 per cent of the drive quota, according to figures just received by the county chairman.

SET HEARING DATE ON DITCH BENEFITS

The commission appointed by Hancock County Supervisors to classify lands and assess benefits on the reconstruction of Hancock County drainage district No. 105 has filed its report and the board has fixed Aug. 22nd at 1:30 p. m. at the courthouse in Garner as a time and place of hearing on the report. Commissioners who filed the report are: Drainage Engineer William Henschen, William Boehnke and T. C. Nelson, all of Garner. The district is located on the west edge of Britt and reconstruction work is in progress.

Becker Bids Low

Leo L. Becker, bridge contractor, was the successful bidder at a bridge letting at the courthouse at Garner Monday afternoon. His bid for constructing 10 wooden bridges on drainage ditches in Hancock County was $2,650. Hancock County Supervisors awarded the contract.

For Friendly Hospitality—

IT'S ALWAYS COFFEE TIME

Any time of day is coffee time. Whether you serve doughnuts, coffee cake or cup cakes for accompaniments, or "just" coffee, it's always a sociable time of relaxation. Food uthorities give tips on planning for coffee parties.

There's little excuse needed for "coffees." They are as universal as a friendly "good morning," and certainly one of the easiest ways of entertaining. No one needs a second invitation for a cup of coffee, whether it is served at the kitchen table or in style in the living room.

Coffee parties can be as cozy as seating the family around the kitchen table for a coffee gab-fest. They can be as informal as your gay pottery and quickly made coffee cake would indicate Jewel Graham, extension nutritionist, Iowa State College, says that there are no hard-and-fast rules about "coffees." There are many ways of serving this favorite beverage. The main thing to remember is to keep your service convenient and to plan the occasion so it will reflect the gracious hospitality of your home.

Foods To Serve

For a coffee, the dishes can be less dainty than for tea. Substantial foods—coffee cake, doughnuts, cup cakes, cinnamon and fruit rolls, are always in order Or serve cinnamon rolls, hot rolls with butter and jam, cheese wedges or cream cheese spreads with warm breads.

Perhaps you'd like to add a plate of crisp relishes. Radishes, celery, carrot sticks, pickled onions, ripe or green olives or tiny sweet pickles are appropriate Prunes stuffed with nuts or creamed cheese, and filled dried apricot halvs or stuffed dates are good additions to the menu also.

Arrange your coffee tray or small table where it will be most convenient. Perhaps you would like to use the breakfast nook. Or you may prefer to have your party around the kitchen or dining room table, or in the living room.

Set your table with cups and saucers or plates, and spoons, as well as the coffee pot, cream and sugar, and foods you plan to serve.

For Larger Parties

There will be occasions when you will wish to entertain a larger group of friends at a coffee Make your plans much as you would for a tea. This does not necessarily mean that the party will have to be more formal in atmosphere. It does mean that the foods may be more festive, and your table will be arranged in keeping with the occasion.

Simple foods such as cookies and sandwiches are all you need to serve, or, if you wish, make a specialty of hot buttered rolls or hot biscuits and your own homemade jam. Iced coffee is welcome on hot summer days. Nuts and mints will make the occasion more festive.

Place your table where it will be the center of attraction. Bring out your best china and a pretty tea cloth, and arrange your table so you can serve your guests easily and have opportunity to visit with them.

How you serve coffee is a matter of your own choice. But here is a suggestion to make things go smoothly. As hostess, you sit at the table or tray and "pour." Add cream or sugar to the coffee according to each guest's request. Or you may decide to let your guests serve themselves to cream or sugar later. Put the spoon on the saucer, and place the cup and saucer and a napkin on the plate. Each guest takes a plate and then helps herself to food.

PSYCHOLOGY THAT BLAMES BAD DRIVING . . .

Twitchell Scores 'Accident-Prone' Theory

. . . ON CHILDHOOD BEHAVIOR IS DEBUNKED

By H. I. PHILLIPS

ON ROAD MENACES

A speaker at a convention of psychiatrists declares that accident-prone auto drivers are people who, at the wheel of a car, behave just as they have behaved from childhood. It is the folks who have been inconsiderate, intolerant of authority and generally anti-social from infancy up who drive carelessly, he says. "If a man s personal life is marked by caution and consideration, his driving will be marked by it If his life is marked by contrary characteristics his driving will be so marked," the speaker insisted.

Elmer Twitchell, the eminent student of human behavior, disagrees. And hotly. "The delicatessen dealers have a name for it," he said today. "Any theory that autoists behave the way they do because they threw their rattle at the nurse in infancy, resented the schoolteacher's authority and robbed birds' nests is the bunk. The plain inescapable fact is that the minute a human being finds himself at the wheel of an auto he becomes a different personality.

"A fellow who takes off his hat in elevators, helps old ladies across streets and writes books on politeness will chase his fellow man up an alley, yell at school children and cuss out pedestrians for getting in his way, once he is in a flivver. The kindliest gentleman in the community, known for his warm smile, takes on the instincts of a gorilla the minute he finds himself tooling the sedan down Main street.

"I will lay you 50 to 1 that the psychiatrist who made that speech at the convention is a refined, well-bred gent whose heart bleeds for his fellowman when afoot, but who leers at red lights, barks at fellow creatures and snaps at policemen when hurrying through town in the old boiler.

"It's one of the mysteries of life and it has nothing to do with childhood, generally speaking. I can stand on any street in America and point out college professors, lawyers, school principals, gardenia growers, lecturers on good manners and men of Chesterfieldian backgrounds roaring by and snarling at slow-gaited pedestrians with the ferocity displayed by gangsters, fugitives from chain gangs and all around heels.

"I'm no exception, more's the pity. On my feet I am sweet as they come. I am a model of good behavior in any company. I open doors for ladies, show the aged every consideration and try to be gracious on a broad scale. But it's a quick switch from Dr. Jekyll to Mr. Hyde when I take the wheel of the old jaloppy. And so do you, and you and you! There's something about an automobile that changes human character.

"Early childhood tendencies my eye!"

Here are some interesting case histories on "accident-prone" drivers, offered as subjects for psychiatric study:

CASE 1.—Jeptha Finchbutt, 32, truck driver. Mr. Finchbutt habitually drives a 15-ton trailer recklessly, ignoring all speed signs, takes turns at 60 per hour and has never been known to heed a stop light. Report: As a baby Jeptha was allowed to pound on highchair with bottle; mother had nine children and was too busy to restrain his early instinct to spear live goldfish with fork; early schooling was under teachers who failed to send all other pupils home and just concentrate on Jeptha

CASE 2.—Geoffrey Tuffit, 46, oil truck operator and chronic weaver through dense traffic. Geoffrey has a batting average of one bad accident per month, but always seems to get out of it through indifference of authorities. He particularly loves coasting downhill through school zones. Report: His inclinations are all due to a selfish mother who used to wheel Geoffrey around in a baby carriage unequipped with brakes and horn. The father never read Emily Post.

CASE 3.—Twiggsby Cropper, 19, college freshman. Twiggsby feels unnecessarily curbed if asked to do less than 55 per hour in city centers and 70 in suburbs, loves to drive "no-hands" across city playgrounds. Report: From age of six months to year and a half he was allowed to scream at nurse; from age of 3 to 5 instinct to pour hot porridge on the cat uncurbed. Father bought him a velocipede too early and failed to read him the laws on rules of road each night before putting him to bed.

CASE 4.—Mrs. Arabella Priggstone, 29 This woman backs up without signals, makes U-turns on impulse, never bothers to have brakes tightened and frequently forgets to put on lights at night.

PROMISES

THE year will keep its promises to me:
Unfailingly the days will come and go;
Rivers will take their sure course to the sea;
Seedtime and harvest, these will come, I know.
The stars will go their quiet silver way;
There will be sun and rain and wind and dew;
There will be breathless beauty in each day;
There will be old loved tasks for me to do.

And I have made my promise to the year
(God help me keep it through the hours ahead):
I shall be braver, I shall banish fear;
I shall not leave a kindly word unsaid;
I shall have faith that this, my ancient grief,
Will yield at last to laughter and to song;
I shall have hope that there will be relief
For the old hurts the world has borne so long.

The year will keep its promise. O my heart,
We must not, dare not fail to do our part.

Grace Noll Crowell

Equal Poverty for All?

THROUGHOUT ALL known history—ancient and modern—no nation, no people, have ever solved the problem of equal distribution of wealth, although many attempts have been made.

As a nation, we have come nearer to finding that solution than others. To each of us has been given equal opportunity to accumulate. Practically all have had a chance. The vast majority have improved that chance to a greater or lesser degree. Our efforts may have been rewarded by the possession of a home, a farm, a business, an established professional practice, by bank accounts or insurance policies or by investments in the large industrial or transportation institutions. The vast majority of the American people have something that represents wealth. We are opposed to a distribution of what we have with those who, through a lack of effort or thrift, have nothing.

The spending spree of congress, and the demands of the President, the expense of which must be paid for by that vast majority who "have," is but another effort to distribute the wealth equally, taking from the "haves" in the form of taxes to give to the have-nots in the form of hand-outs.

As taxes, a spending congress would take from Mike one of his two goats, and give it to Pat. Separated, the two goats fail to produce more of their kind, and there are no more goats to divide. It works the same way with jobs and production of commodities. Tax industry to death, and there are no jobs, no wealth to divide. There is nothing left but unproductive poverty, of which each automatically will have an equal share.

The wealth of America is owned today not by the few, but by the vast majority of all It is managed, in large part, by the selected representatives of the millions of owners, by those with the technological know-how to make the accumulated dollars work in the production of additional tools, of additional jobs and additional products. All of which means more wealth, with an ever-increasing number among whom the more wealth is divided

That, in a paragraph, is the American economic system the Socialists, the Communists, the Facists, the foreign "isms" generally, would break and establish instead an equal distribution of poverty Which would make mendicants of all, with none to fill our outstretched hands. It is a system the so-called "do-gooders" are whittling at. Such "do-gooders" in the American government can, if they continue their reckless spending and its attendant increased taxing stop that month-by-month, year-by-year increase in our national wealth; they can divide Mike's goats, but when they do there will be no additional goats to divide They can do it by radical government spending, and by the taxes that must be levied to pay for such spending

Every day congress feeds more and more millions, or billions, into that poverty-grinding mill. In time, and all too short a time, it will destroy the wealth of the nation, of the many millions who today share that wealth. It will destroy the plants, the tools, the jobs, the products of industry.

No action on the part of government can distribute evenly the wealth of the nation, but it can dissipate that wealth, and leave us a nation of poverty-stricken mendicants, each of us looking for a hand-out, but with none to provide the desired gratuities.

When that time comes, and it is on its way there will be nothing left to provide for the present providers. Poverty will be evenly-distributed without action on the part of government.

The formula of the late Harry Hopkins to "tax, and tax, and tax, and spend, and spend, and spend" in an effort "to elect, and elect, and elect," is a dangerous poison for the well-being of America.

Any political party that attempts to "be all things to all men," that sacrifices principles that its candidates may win, that so expresses its policies that they may be interpreted to fit each occasion or each class, that attempts to appeal to self-seeking minorities, cannot, for long, be a major influence for the best interests of the nation.

Matthew Quay, when senator from Pennsylvania, said that for every job he bestowed he made 99 enemies and one ingrate. Quay never overlooked an opportunity to make enemies and ingrates by the job-bestowing method.

Some represent management, some represent labor, but all of us are consumers—the third, and most essential, partner in production, whose interests must be considered first.

Inside Story

INSIDE STORY on the house slash of some 15 per cent from the appropriation for European recovery administration funds runs something like this: The administration has been told by the department of commerce and the committee on economic advisors to the President that the national income in 1950 will be definitely lower than now—some say 18 billion dollars lower than 1949. But some Democratic leaders declare that the budgets for domestic appropriations have been squeezed until there is little water left in them, so it will be impossible to slash domestic expenditures which, after all, amount to a very small percentage of the total overall federal budget. The story is that these leaders say that it will be politically more advantageous to pass the domestic appropriation measures as is than to cut them in the election year of 1950.

But, on the other hand, a realistic group in the house and senate, cognizant of the imminent drop in national income, declare that a cut in federal expenditures is absolutely essential if a tax increase is to be avoided, and it should be avoided.

So, although the administration is not going to consent publicly, the slashes in ECA funds will be permitted to go through on the theory that lower prices in the offing may make up for some of the cuts and that there will be less reverberations from the electorate than if domestic appropriations were pared.

With Senate Majority Leader Scott Lucas committed to keeping congress in session until the "major" points in President Truman's legislative program "are disposed of," the makings of a full-scaled row are shaping up.

Already the administration has shelved some of its "must" bills in order to get to the Taft-Hartley repeal measure, an admittedly red-hot subject. Congressional leaders agreed it would be three weeks before this issue came to a showdown That would mean the labor question might not be settled until around July 1. With a majority of legislators already on record as favoring adjournment early in August, Senator Lucas may find his hands full in keeping the lawmakers beyond that time, despite the status of the President's revised "must" program at that time.

An obvious indication of the powder-keg potentials in congress is the administration's willingness to put aside consideration of the North Atlantic pact in the senate, so the labor bill could have the right-of-way In law-making assemblages where the administration has the whip-hand, delays such as that on major questions are not necessary. If the votes are there, then the measures proposed can be passed. Where there is uncertainty and one side or the other must make the best of a bad deal, compromise is the only way.

My old friend Hassil E. Schenck, tall, raw-boned and virile, president of the Indiana Farm Bureau Federation and a member of the AFBF executive committee has said a truism In a luncheon speech here recently he told his audience: "Normalcy as this country knew it 10, 15, and 20 years ago is not only a present-day impossibility, but it would be catastrophic and we wouldn't want it if we could have it. America has no alternative but to go forward to a new normal."

Hassil Schenck has been boss of the Indiana Farm Bureau almost as far back as I can remember, back to the days of Bill Settle, who was Indiana Farm Bureau president and later became president of the national organization.

Adjournment Row?

The administration leaders still declare they will pass a Taft-Hartley labor law repeal. Labor's political problem for 1950 is two-fold, and it is determined to beat those who have opposed Taft-Hartley repeal.

First it must hold the spectacular gains it made in 1948 and second, it might win at least 15 additional seats in the house and seven more seats in the senate. Actually labor's program is non-partisan, but realistically it is one of electing more Democrats from the North and West and different Democrats from the South.

In the senate 34 will be elected in 1950.

Economy Talked

In the meantime congress continues to talk economy and to vote for increased appropriations, The biggest money fight was over the army civil functions bill. The Hoover commission had charged colossal waste of money by army engineers. When appropriations for army civil functions came up Senator Paul Douglas of Illinois asked for a 10 per cent cut. Republicans tried for a 5 or 10 per cent slash but they were defeated.

Star Dust
STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO

By INEZ GERHARD

SHIRLEY TEMPLE'S ability as a mimic did a lot toward making her a child star, and she is still using it as a help in learning the various dialects she's had to master. She has a southern drawl and a Scandinavian accent down pat, but had a bit of trouble with the Irish brogue needed for Warners' "Always Sweethearts."

SHIRLEY TEMPLE

More than once she has confused her mother-in-law by using one of the three when answering the phone; even her own mother can't tell sometimes whether a new southern maid, a Scandinavian one or an Irish colleen is on the other end of the wire when she calls her daughter.

John Dall and the King brothers are discussing rights to Jonathan Latimer's novels featuring detective Bill Crane. They would allow Dall to continue his screen life of crime, but on the side of law and order.

The picnic staged recently by the American Federation of Radio Artists was quite a shindig; raised $3,000 for its relief fund. Lum and Abner ran the bingo tables and organized square dances. Frank Nelson, of "Blondie," auctioned off supporting roles on such shows as "Sam Spade" and "Philip Marlowe" to ambitious newcomers who bid high for them.

Jane Wyman reports from London that she had her first comfortable voyage; usually gets seasick even when canoeing on a smooth lake. This time, on her way to star in "Stage Fright" for Alfred Hitchcock, she had some new anti-seasickness pills, developed by Canada's medical corps—evidently they were effective in her case at least.

The Fiction Corner

TERRY, THE FOX

By Richard H. Wilkinson

"YOU CAN'T FOOL an old fox like Terry Oakes," Anse Actell was saying. "Not even if you're the smartest bank robber and gangster in the country." He chuckled, reflecting on the story he was about to tell.

"Glenville was pretty well wrought up that summer. In June government agents came through, warning all the small town banks in the countryside to be on the lookout, and advising what to do. Duke Insabato and a couple of his henchmen, driven from their haunts in the large cities by a concentrated effort of local and federal agents who were dead set on bringing an end to the current wave of crime, were hiding out in the sticks and whiling the time away by staging spectacular daylight hold-ups of small town banks.

3-Minute Fiction

"The trouble was that no one knew where the varmints would strike next. Duke Insabato was smart. He understood small towns because he was brought up in one and, he chose as the object of his pilfering banks that were pretty well isolated and unprotected.

"June passed and part of July. Gradually the fear of Glenville citizens began to subside. Only one other small town bank had been held up, and that more than 150 miles away. The depositors who had withdrawn their accounts reestablished them.

"Terry Oakes, the trust company president, didn't gloat. He was an old-timer at the game and he understood human nature. Early in June he'd had some signs printed and hung around the lobby of the bank. Such things as 'Save for Your Old Age,' 'Deposit with Us and Your Money Will Be Safe.' The citizens smiled a little. Terry was trying to reassure them. One other sign was printed and inserted behind the glass in the front door. This, too, amused them, but it didn't annoy them any.

"On July 15 the quietude of Glenville's main street was abruptly and harshly interrupted. A high-powered black sedan suddenly appeared at the town's south entrance, roared down on the bank and came to an abrupt halt. Loungers in front of the General Store jerked erect. Three men had leaped from the car. Two of them, one carrying a machine gun, ran toward the bank. The third stayed on the curb, a second machine gun nestling in his arm.

"The loungers, pop-eyed and frightened, watched in stupid fascination. To their utter astonishment they saw the two bandits turn at the bank door without entering, rush back to the car, pile into it and drive away.

"IT ALL HAPPENED within seconds. For a moment or two the loungers sat transfixed. Then of one accord they leaped up, raced across the street and entered the bank. Terry Oakes was talking on the telephone. He hung up and smiled at them.

" 'Two to one,' he said calmly, 'Sheriff Irons picks up Duke and his gang at Jepson Corners. I just phoned him.' He looked from one pop-eyed citizen to another. 'No harm done, boys. They didn't even get in.'

" 'But why didn't they? What happened?'

"Terry grinned broadly. 'Duke Insabato knows small towns. He was a small-town boy himself. That's why he picked this hour to do his hold-upping. Right after lunch.

" 'That's where I fooled him.' Terry paused to chuckle and glance toward the front door. 'It's lucky Duke knows small towns. Otherwise he might not have taken any stock in my sign.'

"The bewildered citizens turned toward it and read. They were a little dazed, and not quick to understand.

"The sign read: 'Bank Closed. Out to Lunch. Return in One Hour.' "

Among the often frenetic and sometimes startling efforts in the development of regional tourist areas to satisfy the U.S. vacationist's yen to see new and strange places, the Midwest's Wisconsin Dells is refreshing as a spot where natural beauty has not yet been sacrificed to garish display. Located in the south-central section of the state, the Dells are formed as the Wisconsin river cuts deep into sandstone to form a seven-mile canyon between steep rock walls. A Civil war veteran, H. H. Bennett, started publicizing the region in 1870 with his "wet plate" camera studies. Now, when tourists swarm each summer, the Dells abound with somber, richly costumed Winnebago Indians who will pose for a man with a camera at the drop of a feather. ## Irish Stealing Scots' Thunder

By GRANTLAND RICE

WHEN YOU look back over past records in the British golf championships, it seems odd to see a brace of Irishmen acting as the last two defenders of the British amateur.

In past years Englishmen and Scots, from John Ball and Freddie Tait through Hilton on to the Tolleys and Wethereds have been the main hopes across the stormy water hazard.

Grantland Rice

But it was James Bruen of Ireland who led the pack in 1946 and now there's Sam McCready, also of Ireland, wearing the coronet of 1949

It is something for a first starter in a British amateur to roll back two such men as Frank Stranahan and Willie Turnesa down the stretch. Especially over what might be the toughest course in the world.

At least we know of no other course or links that is 7200 yards long, par 74 where the normal weather is driving rains and battering gales.

Yet McCready in his morning round against Turnesa shot himself a 70, just about the equal of a 62 on most other tests It would have been pleasant to have had McCready as a parlay against Stranahan and Turnesa. It should have been a nice 10 to 1 or 12 to 1 payoff. In the opening betting the final winner was around 40 to 1.

First starters rarely ever win one of these big tournaments where experience is almost as important as skill. To stand 4 up at the midway point, to become 1 down late in the stretch, and then recover again is tribute enough to McCready's competitive side.

It was a good thing for international golf that an Irishman won. It will steam up the Walker Cup matches at Winged Foot in August where interested galleries would like to get a look at the swing that decapitated our two best amateurs.

In the meanwhile, what has happened to Scottish golf? What has become of the descendants of that ancient shepherd who began knocking round stones into holes, thereby starting a game that in the U.S. alone has led to some 5,000 courses and some three million club swingers? It is time the land of the thistle and the bluebell came bounding back.

A Champ Moves Up

Some weeks ago, a few noncombatants were kidding Bill Dickey about Ted Williams. Bill always has contended that Ted Williams was as fine a hitter as he ever saw. Ted was under .300 at the time. The Prince Regent of Arkansas merely grinned. "I have an idea," Bill said, "that he will be back up there around the first of June. Nothing can keep back that eye and that pair of working wrists. Williams can wait until the ball is almost in the catcher's glove before he swings. And if it's a half inch wide of the plate he won't fool with it."

It seems that in the race for batting honors, Ted is back where he belongs. He has moved from .290 to around the .330 mark. He also has his full share of home runs and runs batted in. He is the best bet of the year to become a Triple Crowner in the department of the ash. At this spot we can't see any one leading Williams to the batting wire in September.

There is a big difference between hitting .400 now and hitting .400 some 20 or 30 years ago. Williams was the last big leaguer to hit over .400 some years ago. But back in an earlier decade we had Ty Cobb, Harry Heilmann, George Sisler, Rogers Hornsby, Bill Terry and others tapping the big mark from year to year. A .400 hitter caused no undue excitement in those lost decades.

There is another young hitter who has moved up from his 1948 form. His name is Ralph Kiner. The Pirate bomber stopped in the .260's last season. He has been nearly a 100 points better than that this spring.

The Kiner-Mize home-run race is still something to watch. Both hit 51 home runs in 1947. Both hit 40 home runs last season. After the Memorial day double-headers, Kiner had 11 and Mize 10.

"The kid worked hard all winter to be ready for this season," Bing Crosby said a few days ago. "He has a set of exercises to develop hands, wrists and forearms. He is a fine boy who wants to learn. I believe this will be his best year. I hope so for we certainly need more of the same."

"Any way," I said, "your Pirates have looked just as good as Bob Hope's Indians. Which is some help."

JUST RESTING

$1,530,942.52 was the figure that Mr. DeKwickrich estimated as his fortune. He had come by it through many years of industrious labor and now was enjoying the fruits of his uphill struggle. He and his wife traveled all over the world and stayed at the finest hotels. There was always one thing he insisted upon at those hotels and that was a swimming pool. His wife was an excellent swimmer and enjoyed her morning dip.

One morning a lackey rushed up to Mr. DeKwickrich to inform him that his wife had had an accident in the pool and had nearly drowned.

"They are applying artificial respiration now," the attendant assured him, "and the doctor thinks she will come around all right."

Mr. DeKwickrich seemed somewhat put out.

"You run back there," he said, "and tell them I can afford the real thing. Artificial respiration, indeed!"

NORTH IOWA CORN SHOULDER HIGH ON JULY FOURTH

Oats Is Ripening Rapidly And Some Fields Ready To Harvest This Week

North Iowa corn grew by leaps and bounds the past week due to the ideal hot weather and exceeded in heighth the usual "knee-high" stage by July 4th. Most corn was well up to shoulder heighth on the Fourth. Some of the corn was even showing the tassel. Corn is higher this year than at any previous year at the same date, according to old timers. They say they have never seen better corn for this time of the year.

The oats fields are right up there with the corn, too, and quite a few fields of oats will be harvested by the time this issue of the Times reaches you. The oats is "turning" rapidly and many fields will be in the shock by Saturday night.

The past week was also ideal for putting up hay, and a lot of the first cutting is in the bale or in the loft.

WILL TAXES BE HIGHER

Frequently we hear the remark "taxes surely are a lot higher for next year." This is an erroneous statement. The 1949 taxes payable in 1950 have not been determined and won't be until all levying bodies have certified their budgets showing the amounts necessary to be raised by taxation to the office of the county auditor.

Valuations will be substantially higher but it doesn't necessarily follow that taxes will be higher. Budgets are not increased, the levy will decrease in proportion to the valuation increase. Very few levies are mandatory and in cases where levies are mandatory no penalty applies if these are reduced.

Where property has been undervalued in the past there will be no doubt be some increase. Rural taxpayers may expect some increase due to an increase in tuition rates. The last session of legislature increased the rate of tuition that school may charge for tuition students. The High Schools have always lost money on rural tuition students.

But the important fact now facing the taxpayer is that budgets for the 1949 tax levy will soon be fixed by local taxing boards. They will be published and hearings held The men and women who comprise these boards are elected by us and are fair and conscientious in carrying out the mandate which we gave them. Most of them will welcome constructive suggestions. They are engaged in our business, the business of government, a business in which we should all be vitally interested if it is to operate efficiently and economically.

Make a study of the needs of your taxing area, the budgets as they are filed, compare them with previous expenditures. If the expenditures are necessary, good and well, if not, remember, under the Iowa Budget Appeal Law, you have an equal voice with your tax levying body in deciding the amount and character of expenditures, which fix taxes, and the budgets adopted are yours and so it is up to you.

Taxes levied in 1949, payable in 1950, are yet to be established. No increase in taxes has yet been made and none will be unless you help or permit higher spending which can only be authorized at budget hearings. You can do something about it, the fact remains, will you? The budget hearing are public, attend them.

Biologists Start Fish Count July 15th

A fisheries survey of more than 75 natural and artificial lakes will begin July 15th. Crews under the direction of commission biologists, equipped with fine mesh seines, pound nets and laboratory equipment for various tests, will obtain information on fish population, species composition, rate of growth, abundance of rough fish, available food and other items of fish management importance. The survey is a continuing inventory of fish population in the various lakes. The information furnished forms the basis on which seasons, stocking, rough fish removal and other fish producing management practices of the Conservation Commission are based.

WATCH LATE CORN FOR SECOND-BROOD BORERS

Corn borer eggs all have been laid and hatched except in rare cases, and control measures applied now will not be affective, according to Earle Raun, extension entomologist at Iowa State College.

He said that worms are in whorls and leaf sheafs, and are working into midribs of leaves and into stalks. Once in that stage of development, Raun said that young borers are well protected from all sprays or dusts.

However, he said that the farmer's concern for corn borers may not be over for the year Indications point to a possible heavy infestatian of second-brood borers. Second-brood borers usually don't hit the same fields as the first-brood, but moths produced in the early-planted fields lay the eggs in late-planted fields.

Whether or not there are lots of second-brood borers will depend a lot on what kind of weather comes between now and the middle of August, according to Raun. Good corn-growing weather, plenty of moisture coupled with warm weather, is good for borers. However, he said that if hot, dry winds prevail in August, populations of second-brood borers may be low. Under those conditions eggs are laid but dry up and fall off, and young borer mortality is high.

Raun recommends watching late-planted corn for second-brood borers. It is likely that they will infest early-planted corn.

GRAIN PRICES ARE IN WEAK POSITION

Nearly Billion Bushels More Corn On Hand In April Than Year Ago

America's bulging corncribs and granaries put grain prices in a weak position, according to Francis Kutish, Iowa State College farm economist.

He points out that the U. S. Department of Agriculture has found a total of 1,776,220,000 bushels of corn on farms April 1. Later in the month it reported 57,105,000 bushels of corn in commercial mills and elevators. This made a total of 1,833 million bushels of corn on supply for April, almost a billion bushels more than a year earlier.

14 Percent Sealed

About 14 percent of the corn was under government loan, the rest being "free corn." More than a fourth of the corn in Iowa and Nebraska was sealed on April 1.

The illustration shows what has happened to the corn on hand last fall. About 1.5 billion bushels were fed to livestock, slightly more than during the same period last year when corn supplies were lower. The amount that went into commercial uses was about the same as the period a year ago.

Exports Up

Exports for the first 6 months of this season totaled more than 63 million bushels. Exports were the largest on record.

Kutish says that corn prices are determined by the supply of corn per head of grain-consuming livestock, the price of hogs and the number of hogs in the country. Almost all the changes in corn prices from year to year can be explained by changes in these three factors.

During the next several months corn prices also will be influenced by weather conditions as the new crop progresses. However, Kutish says that the large supply of feed grains on hand in relation to livestock will put corn prices in a weak position.

NO U-TURN SIGNS ARE PROVING POPULAR WITH MOTORISTS

The newly errected No U-Turn traffic signs at the Wellemeyer Store and the Bank intersections were placed in position last week end. Motorists observed the new rules pretty well, and there were only four cars counted which failed to observe the signs on Klemme's Main Street Saturday evening. These were probably unintentional violations and the drivers did not notice the new signs.

Most drivers agreed that the new signs were a help, both to motorists and pedestrians. There was no traffic confusion at either intersection Saturday evening, although it was unusually heavy due to pre-July Fourth shopping.

Motorist should be reminded that 20-mile per hour is the maximum speed on Klemme streets. This should be slowed down to about 15 through the business section to make it safer for children.

Week End Marked With Picnics, Family Reunions

CLEAN BIN BEFORE STORING '49 CROP

The Sooner The Job Is Done The Safer Bin Will Be For New Grain

Any farmer who thinks his wife is a good housekeeper ought to have her inspect his grain bins when he has them ready to store this year's crop, says Harold Gunderson, extension entomologist at Iowa State College.

A clean bin is the first and most important requirement for safe grain storage and is the best insurance against spoilage and insect damage, Gunderson says. Clean bin insurance involves two steps—cleaning and spraying.

Scrape If Needed

An empty bin should be the signal for cleaning. The earlier a bin is cleaned and sprayed, the safer it will be for storing new grain, according to the entomologist. The walls and the floors, and ecpecially the corners, should be swept, and where needed, scraped.

Steel bins can be caulked to make them more weatherproof, and wooden bins should be made as tight as possible, especially if fumigation is to be needed later.

Spray After Cleaning

After cleaning, the floor, walls and ceiling of the bin should be sprayed with a 5 percent DDT emulsion applied at the rate of 1 gallon per 1,000 square feet. Another spray treatment that will do the job is 2 pounds of 50 percent wettable DDT powder in 5 gallons of water applied at the rate of 2 gallons per 1,000 square feet.

Gundersons cautions against storing grain that has a moisture content higher than 13 percent. Heat damage, mold and other spoilage may occur in damp grain.

REASONS, NOT THREATS TRAIN CHILDREN BEST

Give your child a reason and you'll do a better job of teaching him to take care of his playthings. That's the advice of Mrs. Alma H. Jones, extension family relationships specialist, Iowa State College.

She explains that such commands as "Pick up your toys this instant!" or "I'm going to punish you if you don't bring those toys inside," aren't usually effective in the long run.

Several parents who used the "threat" command during a testing period found out the effects of it just won't last. "Billie's" memory is usually too short and although such commands may work at the moment, they probably won't levae any lasting impression.

A reason behind a command such as, "Some of the blocks may get lost if you don't put them away," results in a positive attitude rather than a negative one on the part of the child. It increases his knowledge. The next time he may be able to reason it out for himself, Mrs. Jones explains.

In addition, she emphasizes that the reason method helps him to learn to discipline himself—the most important goal in child training.

HELLO, FOLKS

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Swalve of Clear Lake, are the parents of a baby son born last week Wednesday at the Mercy hospital at Mason City.

FAMILY PICNIC HELD AT KOERNER HOME SUNDAY

Forty relatives gathered at the A. G. Koerner home Sunday noon for a picnic dinner. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. A. G Koerner and Kermit; Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Ridder, Maralee and Dennis; Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Koerner, Terry and Kathleen; Mr. and Mrs. Glen Bridges and family; Mr. and Mrs. Orville Stokesbary and family; Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Nine brothers and sisters of the Henry Lau family were present, only Mrs. Steve Day of Hubbard, Oregon was absent.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Arnold, Bill and Arlys Lea were supper guests. After dark pictures which Roger Ridder has taken in Germany were shown, and also other pictures.

Seven of those present observe birthdays in July. They are A. G. Koerner, Mrs. Orville Stokesbary, Mrs. Lloyd Lau, Leona Lau, Mrs. Lee Ridder, Erwin Lau and Mrs. Roy Arnold.

KLEMME LADIES HAD PICNIC SUPPER IN TOWN PARK

Eighteen Klemme ladies got together for fried chicken picnic supper in the Klemme Park the evening of July 4th The Park was nice and cool and the ladies said they had their own July 4th celebration

Those present were: Mrs. Mary Waterman, Mrs. Herman Bridges, Mrs. N. G. Moberly, Mrs. Lena Schroeder, Mrs. Geo. Born, Mrs. Clara Barz, Mrs. Esther Barz, Mrs. H. Wille, Mrs. Frances Swalve, Mrs Louise Rosendahl.

Mrs. Ella Schneider, Mrs. Louise Josten, Misses Rosie and Anna Becker, Mrs. Edna Thada, Mrs. Otto Pringnitz, Mrs. Naska Bock, and Mrs. Louise Knoke.

TURN-AWAY CROWDS AT IOWA STATE PARKS

For the first time in Iowa state park history, parking and other facilities are proving to be inadequate for Sunday and holiday crowds.

Lake Ahquabi, Lake Macbride, Dolliver Memorial and Red Haw Hill Parks, have had turn-away crowds for two successive Sundays. Commission officials would not speculate on the reason for the tremendous increase in park visitors, but do believe it significant that the heaviest park use has been in the parks with artificial lakes. Fishing has been excellent, the weather hot and beaches packed to capacity on all good swimming days.

V. W. Flickinger, Chief of the Lands and waters Division, for the Conservation Commission and Wilbur Rush, Superintendent of State Parks, anticipate a 20 percent increase in park attendance over the record breaking two and three-quarter million attendance in 1948.

Vacationed In Black Hills

Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Hummel and three daughters returned home Saturday from a week's vacation spent in the Black Hills of South Dakota. They spent most of their time at Rapid City and made trips out from there. They had the pleasure of visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Paul Stromer who took them out to their ranch. Other highlights on the trip included a visit to the gold mines at Lead and a trip through the bad Lands.

Plan Colorful Menus, Easily Prepared Food For Holiday Occasions

HOLIDAYS are often hard on mother because there is not only the whole family home for all meals, but also guests which may number several. Consequently, the lady of the house is so busy with food preparation and consequent clean-up activities that she never has a holiday at all.

If you're planning to celebrate Independence Day at home, use some of these simple suggestions for meals. The colors and other suggestions are in keeping with the theme of the day, but the food is kept simple by day-before preparation, and by very easy last-minute undertaking.

Weather permitting, serve supper outdoors, and save getting formal about the service as is usually the custom in the dining room. You may use colorful paper plates and napkins, too, thus eliminating much of the dish washing that always comes after eating.

HERE'S an easily prepared menu which may be started the day before:

Tomato Onion Pie
Celery Curls
Carrot Sticks
Black Olives
Tutti Fruitti Salad
Ice Cream Cookies Lemonade

How to do: Prepare celery and carrots the day before and refrigerate. Place olives to chill. Prepare salad and place in freezing trays. Make cookies and make or buy the ice cream. An hour or so before dinner, prepare the tomato onion pie, and while it bakes, set the table on garden or porch.

Tomato Onion Pie
(Serves 4-6)

- 1½ cups crisp cracker crumbs
- ½ cup melted butter
- 2½ cups thinly sliced onion
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1½ cups canned tomato sauce
- 3 eggs, slightly beaten
- ½ pound sharp American cheese
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper

Mix crumbs and ½ cup butter. Press into nine-inch pie plate to form crust. Bake in a moderate oven (350°) for ten minutes. Fry onions in two tablespoons butter until lightly browned. Bring canned tomato sauce to a boil. Remove from heat and add cheese. Stir well. Add eggs slowly to tomato mixture. Add salt and pepper. Pour over onions which have been placed in the crumb crust and bake in slow (325°) oven about 45 minutes or until set.

Tutti Fruitti Salad
(Serves 6)

- ¾ cup shredded coconut
- 1 cup maraschino cherries, halved
- 2 oranges, sectioned and diced
- 1 cup crushed pineapple, drained
- 2 bananas, diced
- 1 cup whipping cream
- ½ cup mayonnaise

Toss together coconut and fruits. Chill and fold in cream which has been whipped. Fold in mayonnaise. Freeze until firm in refrigerator trays. Serve on lettuce cups.

Whatever your menu plans for the holiday, you'll want to have plenty of cookies to serve with fruit or ice cream for snacks and dessert. Make them appropriate by having star shapes and rectangles with stripes, as pictured.

For a porch supper on the Fourth of July you can plan this "patriotic" onion pie which fits into the color scheme of things with its rich red color. The pie has a crumb crust and a filling of canned tomato sauce, onions and cheese.

IF you want to serve barbecued frankfurters for a garden supper, these may be used in the following simple menu:

Barbecued Frankfurters
Picnic Salad Corn on the Cob
Rolls Butter Mustard
Relish
Fresh Fruit or Berries
Cookies Beverage

Bake the frankfurters in an oven with the sauce, or place them in a skillet so they can be cooked with the sauce on an outside grill. The menu requires little other preparation except for the salad.

Barbecued Frankfurters
(Makes 6 rolls)

- 6 frankfurters
- 6 rolls
- 1 tablespoon butter
- ½ cup chopped onion
- 1 teaspoon paprika
- ½ teaspoon pepper
- 4 teaspoons sugar
- 1 teaspoon mustard
- 4 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
- ¼ teaspoon tabasco sauce
- ¼ cup catsup
- 3 tablespoons vinegar

Melt butter, add onion and cook until clear. Add dry seasonings, sauces, catsup and vinegar. Cut a three-inch slit in each frankfurter and place them in a baking dish, slit side up. Pour sauce over them and bake in a moderate (350°) oven for 20 minutes. Place in split, with green onions, if desired. Serve extra sauce separately, if desired.

Picnic Salad
(Serves 6)

- 4 cups cubed, cooked potatoes
- ½ cup chopped green onion
- ⅔ cup diced celery
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon pepper
- 6 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
- ⅔ cup mayonnaise
- 2 cups grated carrot

Combine potatoes, onions, celery and seasonings. Add eggs and mayonnaise. Toss lightly with carrots, chill and serve with greens.

HERE are some cookies which will be appropriate for the holiday:

Orange Sugar Tarts
(Makes 5 dozen)

- ½ cup butter or substitute
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 egg
- ½ cup bran
- 3 cups sifted flour
- 3½ teaspoons baking powder
- ¾ teaspoon salt
- ⅓ cup orange juice
- 2 teaspoons grated orange rind

Colored Sugar

Blend butter and sugar until light and fluffy. Add egg and beat well. Add bran and blend. Sift flour together with baking powder and salt; add to first mixture alternately with orange juice. Stir in orange rind. Chill. Roll out dough to ⅛-inch thickness, working with a small amount at a time and keeping the remainder chilled. Cut into star shapes with floured cutter; sprinkle with colored sugar and bake on a greased baking sheet in a moderately hot (375°) oven about 10 minutes.

LYNN SAYS:

Flavor Tricks Improve Simple Dishes

Grated horseradish added to hollandaise sauce will win you many compliments when served with fish, baked, boiled or fried.

Mix strained honey with butter and heat. You couldn't have anything better for waffles, pancakes or French toast.

Introduce flavor to waffles by adding a tablespoon or two of mo[illegible] the batter just before baking.

Orange marmalade is an old favorite with toast, but try this idea for a real treat: place slices of cream cheese on top of the marmalade and broil until the cheese is bubbly.

Broccoli looks good and is tasty, too, if you dress it with plenty of melted butter and garnish with riced, hard-cooked egg.

Save your sausage drippings for gravy. Saute a few mushrooms in the drippings, then thicken with flour and add milk. This is especially delicious for chicken.

Chambray Fashion

Two-toned chambray styles this feminine warm weather dress by Terry Rodgers. Unique appliqued cut-outs and a modified "pussy-cat" bow in contrasting chambray highlight the plunging neckline of this fashion-right casual. A skirt with fullness flaring out from the hips, gives that extra freedom which adapts itself for all-around wear.

cabinets, for the records or albums or both. You may also want to have books and magazines on the subject in an easily accessible spot for this activity.

How to Restyle Rooms In Good Taste

Take a critical look at your furnishings and see whether they meet with your approval. Do you have any pieces of furniture which are not used? Eliminate them and substitute with something that would be of more use, either practically or decoratively or, preferably, both.

Sometimes it's wise to buy a whole matched set of furniture such as a suite of upholstered furniture. However, if this does not include enough of the pieces you'll need, or, on the other hand, contains too many pieces for the space or use you have, then try selecting sectional or separate pieces that will be most valuable.

One family may need only two comfortable easy chairs, while another needs three or four or even more. These may be bought separately, to harmonize pleasantly, or covered to match other pieces.

You no longer need to have all one kind of wood in your living room. Dark and light woods are used together, in good taste, in the same room because they compliment each other.

Perhaps you've found a desk in one of the light modern woods. There's no reason why you can't use it in a room with some dark mahogany or walnut finishes.

Be Smart!

Dotted Swiss is a revival of one of the soft fabrics of a generation ago, but no longer is it confined to the typical styling of the past. It is particularly popular for the pretty draped effects of the current season. Another new and equally interesting interpretation is the dotted swiss for jumper dresses, so stunning in dark grounds combined with white or worn without a blouse when weather or occasion dictates.

KATHLEEN NORRIS

Recall Forebears on the Fourth

CAN YOU TAKE your thoughts back, in this week of July Fourth, to a New England farm 100 years ago?

It is one of those picturesque farms that you and I see on our happy vacation trips; we stop with a queer inexplicable twist in our hearts as we look at the steep high roof, the elms sending leaf-shadows across the high small-paned windows, the well-sweep, the mellowed lines of barns and sheds stretching away toward orchard and pasture, the summer graciousness of one of the thousands of homesteads that were the American scene in the dramatic days of America's beginnings.

If we go in there are more exclamations of sheer admiration and delight. Oh—a spinning wheel and a loom! Oh—hand-hammered fire-irons painted like the redcoats of King George, so that any casual spitting upon them might be pleasurable as well as necessary! Oh, Revere teapots and Chippendale chairs, blue home-made and gay patch-work quilts, four-posters with faded calico valances, warming pans and melodeons, highboys and dressers in applewood or weathered maple!

The floors are soft, almost yielding beneath our feet; the doorways low and irregular, and between the old part of the house—circa 1800 and the new, added 40 years later, indoor irregularities are masked by cupboards, by steps up and down, by a narrow stair here and an angled passage there.

Draught of Patriotism

Who doesn't know New England, or that part of the Old South that matches it in Revolutionary age, doesn't know America And it isn't too late to pack some bags, climb into the car and cruise off in that direction now. As a great draught of patriotism and enthusiasm and wonder, it is a lesson we all need

Wonder—yes, that's what we women feel as we visualize the life women led on these beautiful old farms. Men led the hard life of farmers and settlers, too; up in the dark freezing nights of winter to look to lambs and calves, sweltering in the hot rocky pastures through the summer noons.

But the women! Ah, you foremothers of our present easy day, how did you do it, what made it worth your while!

The cemeteries tell a part of the story of these first American women. Stop to read the stones, when you pass an old graveyard. There you will find the Aarons, the Silases, the Johns and Joshuas and Williams, reaching decent ages; 68, 76, 90.

Women's Names, Too

And there you'll find, too, the women's names. Sarah, first wife of the above, aged 26. Mary Jane, 3rd wife of the above, 18. Eliza and Matilda and Abigail aged 23, 31, 19. It cost our women something, did America.

Imagine their waking in a stone-cold great house, with the snow packed outside, the November sky lowering and dark, the seventh child a fretful feverish teething burden at 11 months, the eighth child already on the way. Imagine the dark descent to the stone-cold, chatter-toothed struggle in the kitchen; ashes cold in the stove, snow on the low window sills, water frozen in the pail.

The floors we find so satin-smooth today were subject to all the spills and stains our battleship linoleum knows, and they and the childrens' clothes and the heaped heavy dishes knew no other cleaning agent than homemade bars of yellow soap.

They gathered bedraggled baby clothes and rumpled bed linen and school children's stockings just as you and I do, but they didn't have flying foaming washers and swift fragrant dryers. No, they soaped and scrubbed on tin-faced washboards, dried on kitchen lines, ironed with heavy iron pressers that cooled every few minutes and had to go back on the hungry great range that devoured firewood as a hippopotamus gulps down food.

They fought on, when the spring rains kept all the children, all the measles and mumps and whoops shut indoors, when boots brought in their own weight in mud, when milk soured on the way from the springhouse to the table, and when the terrible "second-summer" meant that the current baby was always a source of burning anxiety.

And they kept good, kept busy, kept rejoicing in the Lord. They preserved the niceties—washed small hands and combed unruly heads; changed linen, dragged steaming kettles to the wash tub.

They fostered learning; there was a switch ready if the schoolmarm—she boarded about among the different families—reported impudence or idleness.

One Can Think Bulges Away

Physiologist Cites Mental Procedure

NEW YORK.—Almost any matron with a bridge-table spread and an aching back can restore herself to competitive shape again, if she'll go lie down and think the bulges and pains away, Dr. Alda Kelly claims.

Dr. Kelly, a cheerful, slender woman, herself, has come up with a real morale booster for girls who want to reach for a sweet and still be able to touch their toes. She's worked out a reconditioning method through which she says you can get your girlish figure and fancies back merely by thinking you are exercising to beat the band.

That's right. You don't have to move a single muscle—except, of course, the one between your ears.

Dr. Kelly, a physiologist, calls herself a "neurosomatic reconditioner." That's scientific girl talk for a person who teaches people how to get the most out of life with the least possible amount of energy—and that includes banishing bulges, too. She said her system worked on 100 housewives in Cleveland, so there isn't any reason why it shouldn't work on a lot of others just as well.

Essentially, her plan involves the idea of sending the right kind of genteel, relaxed impulse from the brain to the nervous system. The nerves carry the good word to the muscles, which obediently become strong and supple without flexing or reflexing.

"Just pretending has the same effect as real motion, and it saves a lot of energy," Dr. Kelly has found. "A man can build up some muscles merely by thinking he's lifting weights. It's slow, but it works."

But Dr. Kelly specializes in problem girls. When a cranky, aching, overworked housewife goes to see the neurosomatic conditioner at the Shailer Emery Lawton foundation, she is put through a series of 24 treatments and gets home-work assignments of 10 minutes a day.

Mrs. Harassed Heckled House wife starts out by lying down and thinking she's a rag doll with the stuffings leaking out.

May a Careless Driver Collect Damages if Hurt in an Accident?

Speeding along a country road, a motorist swung out to pass the car ahead—driven by a woman. Despite his honking, the woman did not slow down at all. In a sudden rage, the man cut in sharply—and a little too soon. The two cars tangled and both of them skidded into a ditch. Despite the woman's carelessness, the court granted her claim.

Are You a "Trespasser"—If You Enter Someone's Property by Mistake?

Motoring at night on a dark country road, a man took a wrong turn and drove out onto a dock. Thinking it was a bridge, he kept going—until he plunged off the end, right into the water. Luckily, he managed to break a car window and swim to safety. He later brought a damage suit against the dock owner, blaming him for not putting up some kind of warning signal. However, the court rejected the motorist's claim, on the ground that he had "trespassed" on the dock. The judge said that, although the man had driven onto the dock by mistake, he was still technically a trespasser—and thus had no kick coming.

Marching Songs

Lesson for July 10, 1949

WE did not win all the battles we fought with Japan. The day of a certain naval defeat near the Philippines, an American "baby" carrier, left to its fate, was doing its best to get away from the pursuing Japanese. All afternoon it dodged and twisted. Enemy destroyers and planes were hot on its trail, and it was a "sitting duck" in case they really got the range. No one on board expected to live. The only question in anybody's mind was: How soon will they get us? But late in the afternoon, for some reason never explained, the enemy gave up the chase, and the American ship slipped off into the protecting night. The next day, as the men gathered for a special service of thanksgiving, the chaplain read the 124th Psalm. It came as a new Psalm altogether to those men, even to those who had known it by heart:

Dr. Foreman

"If it had not been the Lord who was on our side, when men rose up against us, then they had swallowed us up quick, when their wrath was kindled against us; then the . . . proud waters had gone over our soul. Blessed be the Lord, who hath not given us as a prey to their teeth."

"Let Me Write A Nation's Songs"

THE POWER to thrill has not been lost by the Psalms, as the men on that carrier found out. The group numbered 120 through 134 in our Bibles are known as the "Pilgrim Marching Songs," and were originally used by the Hebrews as they went year by year up to their capital city of Jerusalem and to the Temple which was the center of their religion. Then as now, the Hebrews were a singing people. A nation that cannot sing, a nation without songs, is a dismal country indeed.

Difference among various countries is symbolized by their songs, or the lack of them. The Chinese, for instance, have no song that draws them all together in the same way that Englishmen are united in "God Save the King" or as Frenchmen once were by the "Marseillaise."

When it comes to pass, as once it did in the United States, that one part of the nation will sing one song (say, "John Brown's Body") while another part will not sing that song but another one (say, "Dixie."), then civil war is at the gates. Only people who will sing together can be trusted to live together

Singing Church

IN the long caravans, marching up the rocky hillside trails to Jerusalem, the ancient Hebrews put their faith into stirring words set to music So it is always All over the Christian world, wherever and whenever the singing is good, religion is warm and vigorous.

Where the heart is full, there will be song. Revivals of religion are revivals of singing. To this day a stranger in a strange city, looking for a church home, is most likely to settle down in the church where the singing is the best.

It is not an accident that the Moravian church is at the same time the church that makes more of Easter than some other churches. It is the church where at funerals the music is never sad but joyous, not mourning-songs but triumphant hymns of Christian faith.

Patriotism and Religion

READ these marching Psalms through—the reading time is only a few minutes—and see for yourself how the ancient Hebrew men of God united their praise of Him with love for their country. To this day, in our Christian hymnals, patriotism and religion are often combined. The English national anthem, "God Save the King," is a prayer; so is "America the Beautiful." National hymns have a rightful place in a book of public worship. For while patriotism, by itself, is a poor substitute for religion, still a man who will not love his country lacks something of being a good Christian, and on the other hand a man without faith in God makes a very poor citizen.

Pack Hot or Raw?

Which is better—to pack tomatoes raw in jars for canning or to pack them hot- This is a question home canners frequently ask the U. S. Deparment of Agriculture.

Either way gives good results, tests at the Bureau of Human Nutrition and Home Economics showed, but the raw pack has several advantages over the hot pack. Raw-packed tomatoes hold their color and shape better than hot-packed. They also hold more of the natural fresh flavor. But more tomatoes can be put in a jar with the hot pack.

The raw pack saves one step in preparation and means one less kettle to wash, but calls for longer processing in the boiling water bath than the hot pack. Pint jars of raw-packed tomatoes need 35 minutes of processing; quart jars, 45 minutes. But with the hot pack only 10 minutes processing is needed by pint or quart jars.

Klemme Defeats Garner Soft Ball Team In Game Here

Klemme set back the Garner soft ball team here Thursday evening, 11 to 4. Garner scored in the first inning with one run, but that ended the scoring threat as the locals piled up a steady lead. John Eenhuis did a nice job of pitching for Klemme with Wayne Buseman catching. Klemme's fielding was a feature of the game with "Boots" Brinkman snagging infield grounders and flies that ordinarily would have been safe hits.

DEER IN THE WILD ROAM WOODS NEAR KLEMME

Quite a few farmers have reported seeing deer in the woods near the Harry Trumbell, Avery Bier and Anson Avery farms southeast of Klemme. Henry Ward saw a deer near his place just south of Klemme, and deer have been seen at the Woiwood farm northeast of Klemme.

Deer are also reported numerous in the Pilot Knob State Park in the north part of the county. Iowa may yet become a deer country and if the deer increase as they have the past few years, it may be possibe in a few years to come that an open season could be held.

Corn On The Cob July Fourth!

It's really rushing the season when you can enjoy sweet corn on the cob July 4th, but that's what happened at the Glen "Sport" Bridges home. Sport had some early sweet corn in his garden and his family had all the sweet corn they could eat as part of their July 4th dinner.

Sport gave the Editor a liberal supply and we also enjoyed corn on the cob for supper, The corn was well filled out and delicious. There is a lot more in the Bridges garden ready for the kitchen.

PLAN A SEWING CORNER

Half of the success of home sewing is due to a well organized sewing corner. If equipment is handy, it's easier to follow through on the little details which give a professional look to clothes made at home, say Iowa State College clothing specialists.

You're all ready to start sewing, and goodness knows where your equipment is. Perhaps the children have made off with the scissors. The thread you bought especially for that new suit material is put away in some drawer You wish you had remembered to buy the right size needles. Moreover, you hope you can get in two or three good hours of sewing without interruption.

Well, now is the time to make a good resolution to organize your sewing department. Start with your sewing machine and a good, comfortable chair. Place them near the window so you'll have plenty of light. Or, if you can't do this, plan to arrange for plenty of artificial light. There is nothing so tiring as detailed sewing in poor light.

Small Cabinet

Now round up all your sewing equipment and put it away in a small-size chest of drawers. Perhaps you have one which will suit the purpose stowed in the attic. The shape isn't important. The main objective is to have everything available right at your fingertips. And warn the family that this is "no trespassing" property. Shears and scissors for sewing were never meant for cutting out paper dolls.

If possible, bring the ironing board just as close to your sewing center as you can. It's those extra steps you have to take often which make you wonder whether it's important to press every step of the way. Yet clothing authorities at Iowa State College assure us that pressing is a key factor in giving that finished look to the clothes we make at home.

Here are some essentials to include in your sewing corner Get a soft pencil or crayon for marking and cutting your pattern; a smooth, clean yardstick with numbers on both sides starting from opposite end for extending the grainline markings on your fabric and checking the grainline.

Tailor's chalk comes with a glazed finish (not waxy) and in dark and light colors. Use it for making pattern markings on your fabric. It dusts off when no longer needed. Or get tracing carbon and a good quality of steel tracing wheel.

Scissors and Shears

As for shears, you'll want them 7 to 8 inches long with high carbon steel cutting blades. The under blade should be narrow with sharp edge all the way to the points. Get the bent handle style for cutting cloth on the table. Screw fastenings of blades, rather than rivets, allow for adjustments. Be sure you protect the points when you store your shears.

You'll also want a pair of smooth, lightweight steel scissors with sharp points and blades. These are handy at the machine to clip threads, shortcuts and curves.

As for needles, a combination of sizes 5 to 10 proves suitable for general sewing. Keep them in black paper they come in. Buy dressmaker pins for regular sewing; silk pins for fine sewing. Be sure they are slender, smooth and rustproof.

Plan a special spool drawer if you wish....with arrangement so you can see what you have at a glance.

As for pressing equipment, these come in handy; a sleeve board, tailor's ham or cushion, tailor's beater or clapper, sleeve roll (for pressing seams, rolled facings and sleeves and a presscloth.

PROPERLY USED EXHAUST FAN HELPS COOL HOUSE

Proper use of exhaust fans can do a lot of good in keeping houses cool during hot spells, says Erwin Johnson, agricultural engineer at the Iowa Agricultural Experiment Station.

An exhaust fan 18 to 21 inches in diameter placed in an attic window can remove heated aid to reduce the inside temperature to the outside reading. This should be done at night. Johnson advises turning the fan on between 8 and 9 p. m. and keeping it on until 5 a. m. Doors in the main part of the house leading up to the attic should be kept open. Also, keep windows and outside doors open to let the cooler night air in. Using a smaller fan than 18 to 21-inch diameter will not give satisfactory results, he says.

During the day keep doors and windows closed to retain the cooler air, Johnson says. A second way to keep daytime inside temperatures down is to use an exhaust fan in a kitchen window near the range while cooking This will force the hot air out immediately instead of allowing it to spread through tne house.

The effectiveness of exhaust fans depends largely upon whether a house is or is not insulated Uninsulated houses will be heated by radiation. This means they will heat faster and be more difficult to cool than insulated houses.

Johnson advises against pulling air through the basement during the daytime periods, as moisture will condense on basement walls.

At the meeting last Sunday the Council of Administration it was decided to have a "Membership Roll Call and Home Coming" August 21st. This year will be the 60th Anniversary of the Incorporation of the Goodell Church. Former members and friends are also welcome and invited.

HOT WEATHER ONE CAUSE OF LOWER MILK OUTPUT

High temperatures are- responsible for the drop in summer milk production to a much greater extent than most dairymen realize, says Floyd Arnold, extension dairyman at Iowa State College.

While a shortage of feed is the principal reason for dropping production, controlled experiments have shown that high temperatures alone can mean as much as 35 percent drop.

Arnold says the reason for this is that cows do not have sweat glands. Since they cannot perspire they try to keep out of the sun in an effort to keep cool. Thus, cows seeking shade will not eat enough grass even if there is a plentiful supply.

Best solution to the problem, Arnold says, is to provide cows with shade and plenty of water at the same place, and feed grain to supplement the grass. Feeding silage and hay is also recommended.

An inexpensive shed roof built near the water supply is one way to meet the problem. A few 10-foot poles with woven wire stretched across the top and covered with straw or tree branches is satisfactory. Dairymen having barns suited for the purpose can keep cows cool during the heat of the day by keeping them in. Placing gunny sacks in window openings or painting windows with blue calcimine will keep the sun from heating up the barn.

As a means of controlling flies, Arnold suggests spraying the cows and cowbarns with mathaxychlor.

TNING ROD REDUCES FARM FIRE HAZARD

p lightning rods if you rotection from Iowa's No. fire hazard, says Norval safety specialist at Iowa College.

ys that several factors for lightning's climb fourth place in 1943 to lace in 1947 farm fire ne thing, farmsteads in re naturally exposed to lightning. They're placed on relatively high ground that's good for drainage and sanitation, but makes them subject to lightning damage.

Lightning destroys at least 10 unprotected buildings for every hit it scores on buildings equipped with lightning rods, according to Wardle's records. About half of the farm buildings are equipped with lightning rods in Iowa. But, about half of the rods are inadequately or improperly installed, the safety specialist estimates.

He says that at least two grounds are required for every lightning rod system. They should be at opposite corners of the buildings, and the leads should make a complete circuit from one ground to another. Ground posts should be at least 10 feet deep.

Any hay tracks or other metal construction that comes within 6 feet of the lightning rod circuit must also be grounded. Never make any sharp turns in the lightning rod leads, since the lightning may not make the turn, Wardle cautions. He recommends a distance of 6 to 8 feet between rods.

SAVE SMALL FRUIT FOR

FESTIVE DESERTS

Small summer fruits, which taste so good straight off the vines, will be almost as good next winter if you can or freeze a good supply now. Raspberry shorcake is a sure favorite for any occasion.

With so many different kinds of well-known home fruits and vegetables to can and freeze this summer, there's just a chance that the small berries may be given less attention.

As a reminder, Jewell Graham, Iowa State College extension nutritionist, points out how good those berry pies or shortcakes will taste next winter, Too, it will be much easier to freeze the berries now and make jams and jellies you'll want after the heavy load of summer work has eased up.

Berry Variety

Raspberries are sure to be found in many a patch throughout Iowa this year, so there should be plentiful supplies for canning and freezing Although they are not generally grown here, blueberries, blackberries, boysenberries, loganberries and youngberries reach local markets at fairly reasonable prices. A variety of berries is sure to make meal planning more interesting.

Regardless of the kind, berries should be canned or frozen when they're firm but ripe And of course, if you can get them straight from the patch, so much the better. That way they will retain the best color, flavor and nutritive value

Have your equipment all set for action the moment the berries are ready. Wash the fruit thoroughly in cold water by lifting and rolling the berries gently Then lift them out of the water into fresh water or put underneath a spray of cold water. Discard all moldy or rotten fruit.

If you're putting fruit into the freezer for later use in pies or jam, mix the berries with sugar before putting then into the containers, Miss Graham suggests. Three parts of berries to one part of sugar by weight is a good combination for most berries, but you can vary that according to personal preference.

For use as fresh fruit, make a sirup of 5 cups of sugar to a quart of water, and pour over the berries just enough to cover Use any type of moisture-proof container. Always allow one-tenth the height for the container for expansion in freezeing.

Quick freezing is important. If you're doing the job in your home freezer, be sure it's not overloaded so that the temperature gets above -10 degrees. If you're taking the berries to the locker plant, it's up to the operator to see that they are properly frozen. However, he will be able to do a better job if you arrange to take him the berries at a time when there will be space in the fast-freezing room.

Canning

For canning fruits, the water bath is the best way to process. If the berries are firm, add ½ cup sugar to each quart of fruit, put in a pan and bring to a boil. Shake the pan to prevent sticking. Pack the berries hot and cover with hot liquid to within ½ inch of the top of the jar. If you use this method, process the berries in the boiling water bath for 15. minutes.

If the beries are soft, fill the jars with raw fruit and cover them with boiling sirup or juice. Then process the jars of fruit for 25 minutes. Either way you do it, place each hot jar in the boiling water bath as soon as you have adjusted the jar cover. Don't start counting time until the water boils briskly, Miss Graham reminds.

NO LAND BOOM IN IOWA UP TO DATE

Prices Are Well Below Peak Of 1920 And Mortgages Are Lower Too

Additional evidence that Iowa has avoided a land boom has available recently, says W. G Murray, head of the Department of Economics and Sociology at Iowa State College.

United States Department of Agriculture reports show that farm mortgage debts increased only 0.5 percent in Iowa during 1948, while farm mortgage indebtedness in the United States was increasing by 4.6 per cent.

States in the South and West have experienced a much larger farm mortgage debt increase in the past year. In Georgia, for example, farm mortgage debts rose 12 percent and in Colorado they went up 15 percent in 1948.

Low Rise In Cost

Other evidence of Iowa's favorable position that Murray points to is the relatively low rise in cost of land, as compared with that in other sections of the country. Land values in Iowa as of March 1949 were only 154 percent of the 1912-1914 base. In contrast, land values for the United States as as whole were 175 percent of the 1912-14 base period.

To indicate the success Iowa has had in avoiding a land boom to date, Murray compares present land value percentages with the peak in 1920, when Iowa land prices stood at 213 percent of the 1912-14 base.

Furthermore, he says there has been much less buying and selling of farm land and, as a result, much less mortgaging than there was in the state during the 1920 period. Also in contrast to 1920, Iowa is on a much safer financial base, with a total debt of approximately $384 million, compared with a debt of 1.5 billion in 1920.

Debts Decreased

Over a 3-year period from January 1, 1946 to January 1, 1949 Iowa has shown a net decrease in total farm mortgage debts of 17.5 percent, Murray points out. For the country as a whole, total farm mortgage indebtedness since January 1, 1946, had risen 9.1 percent or more than $425 million.

Despite the country's substantial rise in farm mortgage debts, the North Central States continue to show a decline. Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska and Illinois continued to decrease their farm mortgage indebtedness in 1948, although the average decrease was only 2 per cent, compared with a 7.6 percent decrease in 1947.

The increase in United States farm mortgages during 1948 was all in the holdings of private lenders. Farm mortgages held by insurance companies, commercial banks and other private lenders increased while holdings by federal land banks and the other government supervised lenders declined.

GARBLE GIRLS DISCUSS WORLD AFFAIRS . . .

So It Was Mickey Rooney Lost That Uranium!

. . . AND FIND IT'S ALL VERY CONFUSING

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE GARBLE GIRLS . . .

"Do you think they'll pin anything on Mickey Rooney for losing that bottle of uranium in that fight with Scott Lucas over American aid to the Taft-Hartley act?"

"It's an even bet. Mickey had no business giving that jug to Mrs. Whittaker in the first place, even for the honorary degree. By the way, what do you think of Margareto' Vickers marrying the Ago Lilienthal?"

"You mean the Aly Acheson, don't you?"

"Oh yeah. I read so many papers so fast. I can understand it in the Aly's case because he is a Moslem but she is supposed to be a strict vegetarian and there is no evidence that when she got on that bus with the top secret documents he got on at the same time, anyhow."

"I don't see why Martha Brien got so excited about it."

"She didn't think either of 'em should have fled the country as stowaways."

"Did you read where Judy Hickenlooper admits having kept all those Columbia library books?"

"Yeah, but they'll never convict Hickenhiss of anything, even in an extra session. It was a mistake to give either of them free scholarships."

"I get awful depressed the way things are going. Truman is too late to save Hong Kong, I'm afraid, even with Stan Musial and Johnny Mize offering to do it with 230 planes. Bob Porterfield and Harry Brecheen ain't doing so well with that Atlantic pact, either."

"What's the Atlantic pact?"

"It's the one to keep anybody on our side jumping to the Mexican league without a passport and loyalty test."

"Do you think the country's facing a big slump?"

"You never can tell so early in the season. The standing on Fourth of July is what counts. I think congress should vote for economy like ex-president Olympia recommended in the Capot report to General Symington."

"How are things going over there with the Big Six in Paris?"

"Ernie Durocher is causing trouble and they're still cross-examining Lee Shubert, but I think everybody will get pensions at the age of 45 before they get through, unless Vishinsky gets back into the lineup."

"What's the matter with him?"

"He's got a spur in his left heel."

"What're you doin' for fun these days?"

"Oh. I go to the races and baseball and the movies. I loved Spencer Tracy in The Peter Pan Handicap. And that pennant race between the Dodgers and Potsdam was a thriller. I thought for a time that Old Rockport would win."

Mary Margaret at Stadium

The Yankee stadium was hired the other day for an anniversary party thrown for Mary Margaret McBride, famous radio star. More than 42,000 people attended That's more than half the rival Yankee baseball clubs draw.

It was a sensational affair and Miss McBride scored standing up. It wasn't necessary for her to slide, although it would have pleased the fans no end.

And if she had had to slide she could have done it. Mary (Happy) McBride has the baseball spirit. She can hit and field. No position is beyond her. If you take note of the countless commercials the lady has delivered for dinner-table edibles you have to admit nobody has been more versatile "behind the plate" over so long a period.

Mary is in her way a pitcher, too. She has never had to be yanked off the mound in her career with the NBC club. Her greatest asset is her control. There is almost no wind up in her delivery. Smoothness marks her style.

Mary has a "chuckle ball," also, that is the talk of the league and her "nonchalant curve" is a wonder. She can fan 'em all with either.

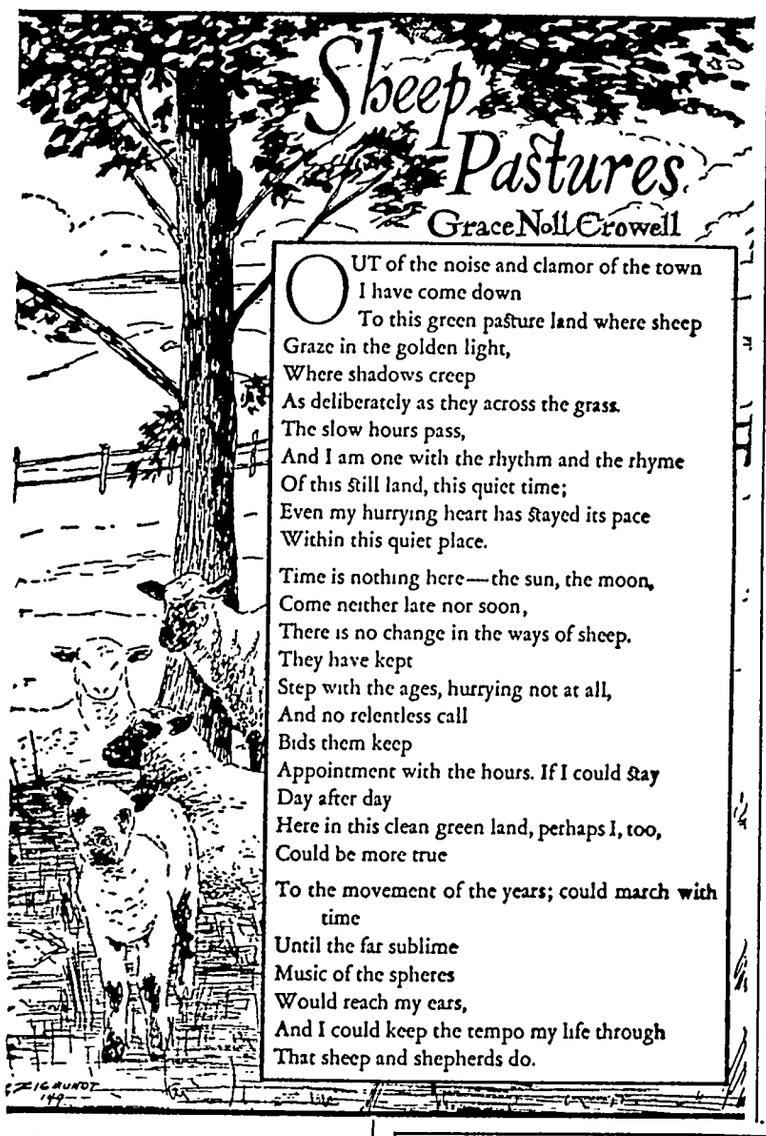
The lady is a good all-around player, too. Shortstop taxes her, but every other position is duck-soup—and she will name the brand of duck soup and tell you where to get it.



Sheep Pastures
Grace Noll Crowell
OUT of the noise and clamor of the town
I have come down
To this green pasture land where sheep
Graze in the golden light,
Where shadows creep
As deliberately as they across the grass.
The slow hours pass,
And I am one with the rhythm and the rhyme
Of this still land, this quiet time;
Even my hurrying heart has stayed its pace
Within this quiet place.
Time is nothing here—the sun, the moon,
Come neither late nor soon,
There is no change in the ways of sheep.
They have kept
Step with the ages, hurrying not at all,
And no relentless call
Bids them keep Appointment with the hours. If I could stay
Day after day
Here in this clean green land, perhaps I, too,
Could be more true
To the movement of the years; could march with time
Until the far sublime
Music of the spheres
Would reach my ears,
And I could keep the tempo my life through
That sheep and shepherds do.

SPORTSMAN'S HORIZON

By JIM RHODY

Sportsmen Optimists

From the cane-and-pole angler of the rural ponds, rivers and small streams, to the fishermen who whip famous trout and salmon streams with the best of equipment, Americans by the millions will be fishing this year as they have for so many years—but their numbers will be larger in 1949.

Each year the increase in the number of anglers brings added wrinkles to the brows of state conservation directors, who worry lest the supply of fish and game ultimately fail all sportsmen.

Of all the things that worry sportsmen, that appears to be one that deters them not; for no matter how they gripe about lack of favorite fish or game, they are always back next season, trying harder than ever to "bring home the bacon"—and were a statue ever carved to the world's one real optimist, it would have to be a composite figure of a rabid American, clutching both rod and gun and with the light of determination and faith shining from his eyes, even if it were only reflected from the polished gun butt or the gleam of a new fishing reel.

These Get Away

At Beaufort, N. C., these small fish wiggle their way to safety through strands of Guthrie net—a new selective type of net which brings up shrimps and usable fish and lets other types of sea life work its way back to freedom. The net is a snood-like attachment of oversize mesh, hard-twine net interlaced with soft twine strings attached to central part of regulation shrimp net. A U.S. fishery biological laboratory expert estimated this net would save billions of fish from destruction.

Rough Fish Trapped

Iowa is showing the way, somewhat, to other state conservation agencies through its program of trapping carp and buffalo and other rough fish, as a supplement to the tedious, expensive seining program now in effect.

Fourteen large fish traps on nine major lakes have been installed by the Iowa state conservation commission to trap rough fish. The traps are installed at the mouths of bays where fish enter to spawn.

Although the spawning season was barely underway when this report was made, large catches of carp and buffalo were recorded.

What Color Choice?

The age-old controversy as to whether fish show a color preference in choice of lures is one that probably never will be settled to the general satisfaction of anglers. But the fact that black as an attractive color is effective is coming from many sources

Certain it is that black plugs will take more fish on certain days and under certain water conditions than any other color, and the Louis Johnson company, creators of the Johnson "silver minnow," has reported excellent results with its new all-black spoon shown here.

Tests of the spoon have disclosed that it is particularly good both in early morning and late evening, and also for cloudy-day fishing.

Apparently its hue gives it the appearance of a "silhouette" in the water because of lack of adequate light, and the tricky action of the lure adds sufficiently to the deception.

Great Fishing Hole

Idaho, where 6,500 streams and 1,763 lakes are draped over a mountain landscape, is fast becoming one of America's greatest fishing holes.

More than 30,000 non-resident anglers joined some 170,000 Idaho citizens in luring the big ones during 1948. The general season this year will extend through October and the bag limit each day is 20 fish, or 10 pounds and one fish. One of Idaho's best bargains is the $3 vacationist fishing permit

By Lawrence Go

Should you marry a girl whose father dislikes yo

Answer: This might largely depend on how the girl feels about her father, since your greatest danger in this situation is that her remorse at having married someone whom he disliked might in time have the effect of "turning her against you." But most fathers do not relish the idea of giving up their daughters and may take out their resentment on any man one of them wants to marry. If this is the situation, you can only go ahead on the assumption that "Dad" will eventually realize his daughter is a woman and entitled to her own life.

Are normal children interested in sex?

House Dust Often Causes Alle

By Dr. James W. Barton

WE ARE familiar with allergy in which the tissues of some individuals (15 to 20 per cent of the population) react differently than most of us to certain substances that float in the air, are eaten in food, or injected under the skin. We see it in forms of hay fever, asthma, head colds, stomach upsets, hives and other skin eruptions.

Allergists, specialists in allergy, tell us that there are many substances causing allergy that are still unknown or not suspected. One of the commonest causes is ordinary house dust, to which one or more of the family are allergic but blame their symptoms on pollen or similar substances.

Some years ago a magazine mentioned a case of allergy in which the father of the household, afflicted with asthma, traveled ahead of his family to locate a district where he would be free of asthma. Finding such a place, he would send for the family. Shortly after the family arrived, his asthma again would afflict him. It after several such moving was learned that it was t the beloved family cat causing the asthmatic att

STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO

By INEZ GERHARD

DAN DURYEA (real name) has made his reputation on stage and screen as a heel. He has slapped Joan Bennett, Lizabeth Scott and Yvonne De Carlo. In "Manhandled," his latest film for Paramount, he twice delivers a short right to Dorothy Lamour's chin. As an actor no one can be slicker or slimier. In real life he's one of the nicest guys you could ask to meet, devoted to his wife and two young sons, active in PTA and with the Boy and Cub scouts. He played a cur on the stage in "Missouri Legend," which set him for a similar role in "The Little Foxes" on stage and screen. In some 25 pictures he has given such excellent performances that someone's description, "a heel with sex appeal," will probably type him forever.

If Alexander Knox doesn't like his role in "The Judge Steps Out" it will be his own fault; he collaborated on the screen play. A reporter for 12 years before taking to the stage, he starts his 10th year in films with this one.

Ben Johnson, star of "Mighty Joe Young," was the favorite stunt man of Gary Cooper, Errol Flynn, Johnny Weismuller and most of Hollywood's other male stars before John Ford and Merian Cooper discovered him in "Fort Apache." He was doing stunts for the picture on location at Monument Valley, Utah — now he's starring in their new picture.

In one of the biggest deals in radio history ABC has arranged with Ted Collins for a new series of shows, "Kate Smith's Music Room." Kate and Collins will play records, discuss songs and composers and present nationally known guest stars. Said to be a $5,000,000 deal. The show will run from 9 to 11 p. m. beginning July 4, but will not affect Kate's two MBS shows.

The Fiction Corner

MISTER GILL

By Richard H. Wilkinson

3-Minute Fiction

AT FIRST Mr. Otis Gill had seemed to take a liking to young Arthur Forbes. But he changed his opinion when the Champion began to buck the choppy seas of the open Atlantic. She was not a large liner, and the waves were running high. Arthur Forbes turned away suddenly and, clutching the deck rail for support shaped an unsteady course for the companionway.

Mr. Gill burst into guffaws of laughter.

"Seasick!" he said, addressing a young couple nearby and nodding toward the companionway. "Should have stayed home and tended to his knitting."

The young couple smiled politely but with a lack of enthusiasm. Neither of them felt equal to the task of getting up and following on young Arthur Forbes' heels.

The dining salon was located beneath the forward deck; Mr. Gill's table was at the extreme end, near that section where the vessel's bow began to narrow. He had hardly seated himself when he saw that young Arthur Forbes was placed two tables away and slightly behind. There was a plate of food on the table before the youth, but it was untouched. Like one in a trance Mr. Forbes was sitting with eyes widened greatly beyond their normal size, cheeks as pale as death.

After a time Mr. Gill saw that the youth at the other table was staring toward a port-hole, and his grin broadened. The port-hole was located far forward, and with each dip of the vessel one could see the entire slope of a wave, from trough to crest. Then for a space there would be nothing but open sky. It provided a sensation similar to riding on a roller coaster.

Mr. Gill knew that as long as young Forbes continued to stare through the port-hole his seasickness would steadily grow worse. And he chuckled at the thought.

After a while Mr. Gill found it was easier to stare straight ahead than to sit half-turned in his chair in order to watch young Forbes, who, after all, wasn't the most pleasing sight in the world. And in staring straight ahead Mr. Gill found that he was looking directly through the porthole at the swishing seas.

HE WATCHED idly for a few moments and then looked away, conscious of a feeling in his stomach not wholly normal. The sensation passed and he looked again at the port-hole, feeling more comfortable in this position. Instantly the same strange sensation attacked him again.

Mr. Gill was sober now; his face pale; his eyes glassy. Realization of what was happening to him came like a shock. He was seasick! Helplessly, miserably ill. Never in his life could Mr. Gill remember feeling so utterly at the mercy of anything.

Miraculously Mr. Gill reached the doorway and disappeared up the stairs. Instantly the dining salon was a bedlam of laughter. Up toward the bow young Arthur Forbes was wiping some white substance from his cheeks and grinning broadly. Several men came over and spoke.

"I'll change your order, sir. Bring you some hot food."

Mr. Forbes smiled. "Thanks. And say, steward, that was a smart idea of yours—asking me to play the role of the helplessly seasick passenger and placing Gill at that table directly opposite the port-hole."

The steward nodded, eyes atwinkle. "We have a man like Mr. Gill on board every voyage, sir. And we have that table placed there for just his type. No one else is asked to sit so far forward."

Mr. Forbes chuckled. "Think of everything for the comfort of your passengers, eh? Well, if you didn't I'm afraid this voyage would have proved almost intolerable—with Gill talking the way he was."

Casey Keeps Faith With His Team

By GRANTLAND RICE

THERE WAS A moment late last March down in St. Petersburg, when Casey Stengel was staring moodily into space.

He had sensed the fact that Joe DiMaggio would be out indefinitely—perhaps for a summer. Lindell and Berra were both limping. Charlie Keller was swinging without his old power. Yankee prospects were about as dark as the mouth of a railroad tunnel.

Grantland Rice

"So far as running the team is concerned," Casey said, "nothing can happen. I can't be any big bust with my three coaches—Bill Dickey, Frank Crosetti and Jim Turner. Here are three great fellows who know their stuff. I know they are all for me. I've never seen three men work harder. They are the first on the field and they are the last to leave."

Then Casey smiled. "It means a lot to any manager to have the help of such men," he said. "They don't make mistakes. I might—but they won't."

The fact is that Casey has made fewer mistakes than any manager I know this season. He has had his team hustling and working overtime. He has picked the right rookies. He has lost the tang his tongue once knew. He has been sympathetic in place of sarcastic. He hasn't tried to be funny at any man's expense. He has been a member of his own squad, not an outsider.

Stengel has done a fine job. And as he says, he has had the services of one of the best coaching staffs baseball has ever known.

Bill Dickey would be a helpful, soothing influence on any squad. Bill knows what it's all about and his advice is a big help. Frank Crosetti is one of the gamest infielders the Yankees ever had. He was always a hustling ball player. He has been a big help. So has Jim Turner, a 20-game winner with the old Boston Braves. Turner has turned in his full share.

So Stengel was right in pinning a wild laurel blossom on each of his aids. It was a nice move by Stengel, a move other managers might not care to make.

Casey has known enough team grief to sink two or three managers. But he has never shown any sign of losing faith in a club that has been the best in the league so far.

Yankees Sans DiMaggio

A day or two ago, I ran across a smart minor leaguer from other days. We began talking about the Yankees without DiMaggio.

"This reminds me," he said, "of something that happened when I was playing ball. We had finished the season before in fourth place. But at the start of the next season we lost our only star. He had a broken leg and was out. So all the papers plastered us down in last place.

"So we got together. We talked things over. We finally decided that even though this lost player was good, he wasn't the entire club. We decided to go out and prove it. We fought and hustled harder than we ever did before. We moved into first place. The papers all said we wouldn't be there long—not with our star missing. That made us hustle all the harder. I can tell you this—if we'd had our star, we wouldn't have finished third. As it was, we won the pennant."

The old ballplayer continued to ramble on. "There's a good chance the Yankee ball club, subconsciously anyway, had gotten tired of hearing that Joe DiMaggio was the entire ball club. After all, there were Raschi, Porterfield, Byrne, Reynolds and others—there were Kryhoski and Phillips at first—there were Coleman, Stirnweiss, Rizutto, Brown and Johnson.

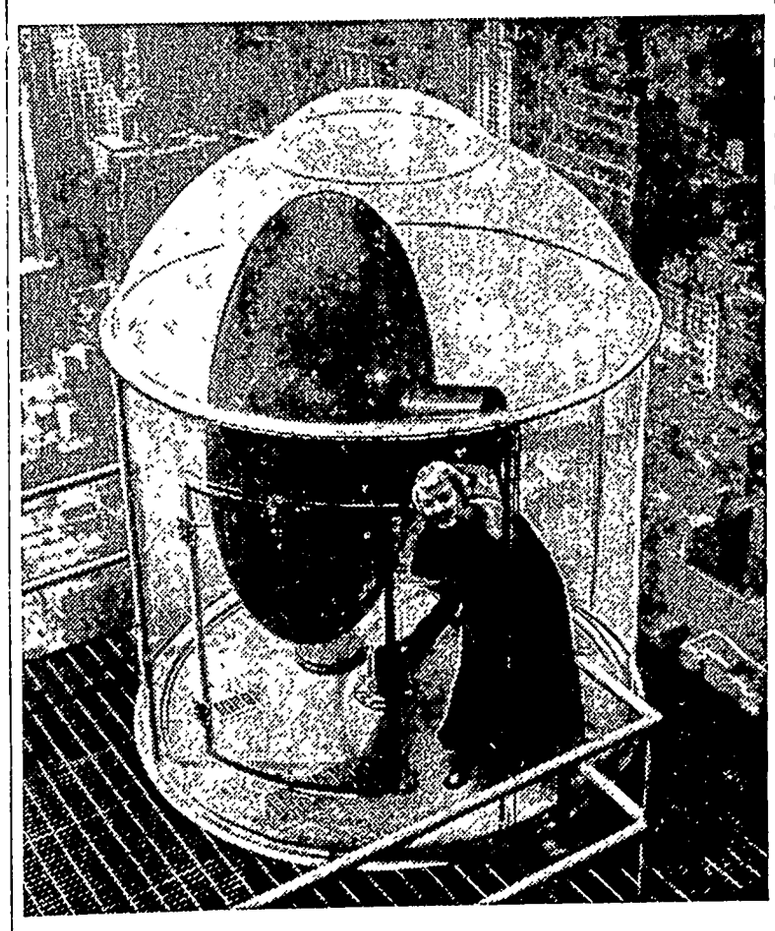
"There was and is a fellow named Tommy Henrich—close to DiMaggio in everything—there were Lindell, and Berra, Woodling and Bauer—not even a Cobb or a Ruth could have been the entire ball club with all these fellows on hand. Most of them are first-class ball players. They must have felt the inside urge to show they could also play some baseball.

"Here's another thing. As good as Joe DiMaggio and Tommy Henrich together are—they were not as important as the pitchers. Connie Mack once told me that the pitchers were 70 per cent of any ball club. With or without DiMaggio, the Yankees had a fine pitching staff."

A DUTCH BAKEL'S DOZEN . . . In this day of diminishing families it is something of an oddity the arrival in the U.S. of a real, old-fashioned, prolific example of the time-honored social group. The Franciscus Van Bakel family, all 13 of whom were among 1,032 recent arrivals on the liner New Amsterdam. At left is the head of the family, Franciscus himself, with his wife Hendricka and Francesca. The others are Godefrida, 19; Hendriken, 17; Maria, 16; Antonia, 15; Johannes, 13; Cornelius, 11; Cornelius, 10; Martien, 9; Theodorus, 7, and Hedrika, 4. The family is en route to Charlie, where they plan on operating a beet farm.



TOPS IN TELEVISION . . . Lodged on the pinnacle of New York's skyscraping RCA building, like a translucent bubble in the metropolitan air, is the new NBC television plexiglass radome housing receiving equipment for television. It's all-weather proof—cool in summer, warm in winter —as video star Kyle MacDonnell can attest after inspecting the "dish" which serves as a receiving antenna.

HOME, ALL IS FORGIVEN . . . Three of the banished black sheep of baseball, who were left out cold when the Mexican baseball league folded out from under them and Commissioner Happy Chase kept them from returning to big league ball in the United States, are pictured in Canadian minor league uniforms in which they were found following the announcement that Chandler restored them to grace in U.S. baseball circles. They are, left to right, Max Lanier, pitcher, with the Cardinals and Sal Maglie and Danny Gardella, formerly with the Giants.

FAVORITES OF FATHER TIME . . . Luke Appling, ancient but able shortstop of the Chicago White Sox, takes a lesson on how to play his position from Willie Hoppe, billiard wonder, who was a world champion before Appling was born. Still the world's three cushion title-holder, Hoppe won his first world's crown in January, 1906. Luscious Luke Appling has been with the Sox for 19 years, and is still going strong.

Yes, and we were disappointed too when our milk became "of flavored" for no apparent reason at all. We fully expected this co dition to clear up in a day or two, but when it persisted to stay th way, we became desperate.

We at once went to work to trace the cause of the sudden "off-fla or." We took samples to Iowa State College and had dairy experts he us to clear up the cause. We did not feel so bad when we were i formed a number of other dairies in the state had also experienced like trouble.

However, we have been checking everything very closely and f the past ten days or two weeks now, the milk has been normal in bo flavor and quality, and it should remain sweet and delicious.

GOODELL BRIDE — Mr. and Mrs. William Dempsey announce the marriage of their daughter, Donna Marie, to Howard C. Boller, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Boller, both of Goodell, which took place July 2, at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Goodell, with the Rev R. A. Ormsby of Belmond officiating in the double ring ceremony.

Nuptial music was furnished by Janyce Larson fo Belmond, a former classmate of the bride.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her attendant was her sister, Betty Lou Dempsey, and the bridegroom's attendent was his brother, Darwin Boller of Goodell.

A reception was held following the wedding service, at the Dempsey party room for the members of the immediate families.

After a short wedding trip they will be at home at Goodell, where a new residence is being built for them. Mr. and Mrs. Boller are both graduates of the Goodell High School. Mr. Boller served overseas with the U. S. army in World War II, and since his discharge has been working with his father in long distance trucking and in the service station business.

Returned From Vacation

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ulrich and family returned home last week after spending about ten days visiting at the home of Mrs. Ulrich's mother, Mrs Lee Hawkins and family at Peoria, Ill., and her sister, Mrs. Chuck Downes and Betty Hawkins, Mrs. Louise Neer of Peoria and Mrs. Les Bushong of Bellevue, Illinois. They stopped at Marion, Iowa and picked up Grandma Ulrich who visited a week at her daughter's home, Dr. Fern Spence and also visited a day at Waterloo with their cousins, the James Palmers, returning home on Tuesday.

DHIA MONTHLY NEWS REPORT

For the month of June, the Hancock DHIA tested 25 herds, 310 cows in milk, 26 dry cows, making a total of 336 cows tested. The average production per cow (including dry cows) was 958 lbs. of milk, and 35.4 lbs. of B. F.

Albert Katuin of Ventura, had the only new herd started on test during the month. There were 305-day lactations completed during the month. Some of the 305-day lactation records completed during the month were as follows:

Albert Abele and Sons of Garner, G. H. 305 days in milk, 14,312 lbs of milk and 507.6 lbs. of B. F.; G. H. 290 days in milk, 12,536 lbs. of milk, and 494.6 lbs. of B. F.; G. H., 287 days in milk, 13,010 lbs. of milk and 148.0 lbs. of B. F.; G. H. 201 days in milk, 11,749 lbs. of milk and 416.0 lbs. of B. F.

IOWA BONUS NATION'S BEST

For a long, long time we have thrilled to the Iowa slogan, "Of all the things that are good, Iowa has the best" and it has always given us a warm glow around the heart to know that the green acres of ripening corn, the lazy fat herds of grazing beef, and the almost endless streams of trucks and railroad cars loaded with choice porkers for the market, give ample evidence of the rich bounty the good Lord has bestowed upon us.

The loyal voices of grateful Iowans herald our great gifts of Nature throughout the length and breadth of the land, and we may even see them eloquently proclaimed in the otherwise dry and unromatic statistics of the Iowa and U. S. Departments of Agriculture. But we have been too inclined to be modest and too shy of a little wholesome bragging about the other good dthings of Iowa -- the good things we, as people, do for each other. We are thinking of veterans' benefits as a case in point. And, to borrow a phrase from a popular Broadway columnist, we'd like to pass on some "things we never knew 'till now" about the Iowa Bonus for veterans of World War II.

One - On the basis of population, Iowa will pay bonuses to as great, or a greater number of veterans than any of the leading states of the United States

Two - On the basis of population, Iowa has appropriated as great, or a greater sum of money for bonus payments than any of the leading states of the U. S.

Three - The period of active service for which Iowa is paying bonuses - September 16, 1940, to December 31, 1946, -- is longer by far than any other state of the United States.

Four - Iowa is the only state in the United States actually increasing the veteran's substantially increasing his bonus payment.

Five - Of all the states which were required by law to submit their bonus statutes to a vote of the people, Iowa will commence sending checks to veterans in the shortest time following approval of the statute by the people -- thanks to our alert and zealous Bonus Board composed of Chet B. Akers, Chairman and Auditor of State; John M. Grimes, Treasurer of State; Charles H. Grahl the Adjuant General; J. Lyle Musmaker, Greenfield; E. W McNeil, Montezuma; and Edward J. Kallemyn, Executive Secretary.

Six - Iowa has perhaps the most lenient residence requirements of any state paying a bonus.

Seven - Last, but anything but least: The actual amount of cash to be paid by Iowa to its living veterans is the most liberal of that of any state in the United States. Present figures indicate average checks will run about $390 - a figure much higher than that boasted by any other state in the United States.

We do not mean to say that the payment of a bonus, of any amount, can ever begin to compensate for the heroic service and profound sacrifices made by our members of the Armed Forces. But we do mean to say emphatically that old Mr. Iowa can mop the honest sweat off his begrimed brow, lean on his hoe, and with a pardonable grin of pride tell the whole cock-eyed world that whether it be corn, hogs, or bonus, "Of all the things that are good, Iowa has the best!"

TRADE IN KLEMME

TRY BUYING FROM YOUR KLEMME MERCHANT FIRST

Before buying that item out of town, try first to buy it from your local Klemme Merchant who is in business to serve you. If everyone would buy everything they possibly could from the local businessmen it would help our town to grow. Your home business man is no fly-by-night peddler , , , he is here every day to serve you, to give you advice and to make good on any merchandise not satisfactory.

It is not possible for a small town merchant to carry everything you need, but he will appreciate having your trade on what he does carry in stock. Your Klemme merchant does not object to you purchasing the things out of town that can not be procured in Klemme.

Your Klemme business man helps you support your schools, your churches and your community. He needs YOUR business and YOU need him in your community. Think it over. —Editor

ENGLISH GIRL VISITS FARM NEAR KLEMME

Miss Mary Jones of Bodenham, Herefordshire, England, is visiting in the home of Mrs. Marie Wille, of Klemme, during July.

Miss Jones is one of the international youth exchanges whom the 4-H girls' and boys' clubs and the rural young people's groups of Iowa along with the state and national extension services are sponsoring this summer.

While in Hancock County Miss Jones will visit 4-H clubs rural youth meetings, woman's homemaking groups, county committee meetings, and Farm Bureau township meetings so that she gets a picture of the farm life in Iowa.

Since Miss Jones lives on an 80 acre dairy farm in England, she was especially interested in living on a dairy farm in Hancock County. She says that Mrs. Wille's farm is much like her own except it is larger. She is here to observe family living in America as well as the youth groups and farm organizations.

BORERS INVADE POTATO FIELDS IN HANCOCK

Corn borers are invading the commercial potato fields, according to reports. Several potato plants were brought to the office of the County extension director Paul Henderson by Bernard Engstler, who operates a large commercial vetetable farm.

Engstler noted that the plants seemed to have droopy leaves and upon examination found borers in the stalks which were identified by Henderson as corn borers.

Just how much damage they may cause to the crop is purely a matter of speculation but Henderson ventured the opinion that the damage would not be great.

J. A. CHAMBERS TO ENTER REAL ESTATE BUSINESS IN KLEMME

J. A. Chambers was in Des Moines last week where he took an examination at the Iowa Real Estate Commission and has received a certificate which licenses him as a Real Estate Broker.

Mr. Chambers is now in the real estate business and already has several clients. He will deal in both town and farm properties. At present he will have his office at his residence, but expects to find down-town office quarters later.

This gives Klemme another business, in a good territory and Mr. Chambers should do well in that line of work.

ENGINEER ESTIMATES PROJECT WILL COST $50,000

Farm To Market Road Improved From No. 111 To Cerro Gordo Line

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors has approved plans for 9 miles of farm to market road grading from U. S. Highway 69 at the edge of Klemme to State Highway No. 111 between Kanawha and Britt, The plans were previously approved by the State Highway Commission. The road connects Klemme west with State Highway No. 111, and east to the Cerro Gordo County line and the road between Ventura and Meservey.

The estimated cost of the project is about $50,000 according to County Engineer Chas. F. Merten. A letting will be held on the project on July 19th at the Courthouse.

The Farm To Market Road east of Klemme was graded and graveled the past year. This summer the farm to market road was re-routed through Klemme over the new stretch of paving recently completed

FARM LOAN ASSOCIATION PAID OUT REGULAR DIVIDEND

Payment of a 5 per cent regular dividend by the United National Farm Loan Association of Forest City was announced this week by Wm. F. Johannaber, secretary-treasurer.

Checks are now being mailed to 282 Hancock and Winnebago county farmers and stockman, the association's stockholders

Mr. Johannaber explained that farmers and stockmen who obtain Federal Land Bank loans through the cooperative association become members and owners of the association by purchasing stock.

The dividend, Mr Johannaber said, was made possible by payment of a dividend to the association by the Federal Land Bank of Omaha, which is owned entirely by the National Farm Loan Associations in a four-state area.

Directors of the association at Forest City are C. M. Palmer of Forest City, president; J. E. Read of Forest City, vice president; Geo. A. Kilen of Lake Mills, R. B. Puffer and Lyal Fox of Britt.

HARVESTING OF OATS IN FULL SWING IN NORTH IOWA FIELDS NOW

Harvesting of oats is now in full swing in North Iowa Some of the farmers who had earlier oats were in the fields last week. The writer saw several fields in the shock Friday evening, and a couple which had been cut in windrows for combining.

By the end of next week most of the crop should be in the shock or combined. Some of the oats which had been brought to the Klemme Cooperative Grain Co. weighed 36 lbs. to the bushel and was of very good quality, according to the Manager, "Mike" Lemke.

County Planning To Honor Early Quinine Sponsor

ARROW ROCK, MO.—Belated honor to the memory of an obscure country physician whose courage and learning made possible the opening of much of the nation's frontier is being sought by the D.A.R. of Arrow Rock, Mo.

The doctor is John Sappington, who introduced quinine over the bitter opposition of fellow physicians, to defeat the malaria which in areas like Pike county, Ill., wiped out as much as 80 per cent of the pioneer immigrants in one year.

The D.A.R., through its committee chairman, Miss Mary Turley and Mrs. B. M. Lanham, is seeking the aid of Missouri physicians and others to erect a state memorial shrine to the doctor.

Learned of Quinine

Distressed by the malaria, which 125 years ago threatened to halt settlements of all the Mississippi valley, Dr. Sappington searched the world's medical literature for latest developments in treating the disease. Thus he was among the first to learn of it when two youthful French pharmacists isolated quinine from cinchona bark in Paris in 1820. Three years later, when manufacture of quinine was begun in Philadelphia, Dr. Sappington obtained a supply and after use on his patients knew he had the remedy he had sought so long.

Accordingly, Sappington's son was sent east for 100 ounces and through error, came back with 100 pounds. As other physicians ridiculed the treatment, and the doctor could not use such quantities in his practice, he took the bold step of opening a factory to make antifever pills. Soon the magic of the remedy became so well known that bells were rung at eventide in many a pioneer village to remind people to take the pills.

Published Book

When the business was at its height, Dr. Sappington published a book on fevers in which he revealed that quinine was the active ingredient in his magic pills. He advised readers to buy quinine at their drug stores and thus deliberately wrecked his business. His purpose had been accomplished. The threat to national expansion had been thwarted.

At his death, Dr. Sappington left a fund of $20,000 to aid needy students of Saline county, Missouri, to obtain an education. To date, F. C. Barnhill, Marshall, Mo., reports that, with the accrued interest, $217,614.80 has been expended, 13,584 students aided and $85,551.47 still remains.

Yet, despite great services of the country doctor, he lies virtually unhonored in a tomb amid the leaning tombstones of the Arrow Rock cemetery. Now, in long overdue recognition of the doctor's achievements, the D.A.R. has set out to provide a suitable memorial.

Reformed Head Hunter Gets Impressive Sight of N. Y.

NEW YORK.—A barefoot South Sea islander with a blue wool skirt, a GI haircut, and wearing a big smile arrived in New York for his first look at the "big fella place." He found it was the "now me get up no good" of his life.

By that, Robert Salau, 42, son of a reformed Solomon Islands headhunter, meant the biggest city in the world was the biggest surprise of his life.

He was amazed that the Empire State building looked just like the tattered picture he had carried halfway around the world.

It is "high up too much," he declared.

Salau, a Seventh-Day Adventist missionary, arrived on the Mauretania after a visit to England, France, and Switzerland.

Emphasizing his friendly remarks by brandishing an eight-foot war spear, he said his voyage on the big ship was "more better than a war canoe."

About 40 years ago Salau's tribe was persuaded by missionaries to stop chopping off the heads of enemies and also saving the skulls of deceased members of families. During the war Salau and thousands of other converts gave vital information to U.S. marines. He received a citation.

Australia to Divert River On One Side of Mountain

SYDNEY.—Australia is about to undertake the greatest engineering feat in her history, diverting a river on one side of the Australian Alps so that it flows into rivers on the other side.

Headwaters of the Snowy river will be made to flow west and north across the mountains into the upper Murry and Tumut rivers, instead of flowing eastward and southward as the river now does.

Its new artificial course will be cut through the mountains, then directed through natural valleys. It is all part of a huge hydroelectric project to cost Australia 680 million dollars over a period of years.

Greatest Call For New Workers In Accountancy

NEW YORK.—The honeymoon in job placement is over, and the "boys are actually letting the employers interview them," says Robert F. Moore, director of placement, Columbia university.

Job placements, Moore reports, are a little better than the last normal year, 1939-40. The greatest demand seems to be in accountancy. Salaries range from $225 to $450 a month, depending upon the profession and the educational qualifications of the student.

Each year Moore conducts a career clinic at Columbia. For eight weeks college students hear leading industrial, management, personnel and professional figures get down to cases in advising which job to seek, what to study to prepare for a career, where to look for a job and how to get a job.

These clinics have proved so successful, says Moore, he has written a book, "How to Blueprint Your Success," which probably will be the basis of a credit course he plans to offer at Columbia. Only one other university in the country —Indiana—offers such a course for credit.

Should Study Aims

Here's what Moore tells the boys in his career clinics: Ask yourself: "What am I? What do I want? Where do I fit?"

Most people fail in a job, he says, not for lack of skill, but for failure to possess such personal qualities as the ability to express oneself orally and in writing; ability to get along with people; patience in attaining job goals; perseverance; alert minds, not necessarily Phi Beta Kappa, but more than merely willing to get by; proper attitudes and mobility.

The interview is the first important step in getting a job. It's a 50-50 proposition. The employer finds what you have to sell that he can use. The interviewee discovers whether the company offers opportunities to satisfy his aims, interests and qualifications.

Certain Qualities

The employer wants to know about such personal qualities as appearance, manners, grooming, ethical make-up and how well you meet and impress people.

You want to know if the job gives you an opportunity to make the best use of your qualifications; whether it is a worthwhile investment in terms of selling your services, loyalty and the best hours of your life. What are the drawbacks and disadvantages of this job?

Moore offers some practical tips on how to get ready for an interview. He tells the boys to learn something about the job and the company. This calls for self-analysis of your objectives, aims and interests.

Illusions Shown as Normal, Ofttimes Are Lots of Fun

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—If you think you're seeing things, you're normal. If you don't, you're not.

That is the state of affairs at Franklin institute here.

The institute put on the largest collection of illusions on earth to prove that illusions are normal, and fun.

There was an uphill goldfish bowl, a room that tilted the rest of the world crazily, a stationary automobile that moved and roses that were there, only weren't. Or you could watch a talking head—with no body to support it—or a motionless flag appearing to wave.

Psychologists estimate that 20 per cent of the population is illusion blind and can't recognize them. If one sees an illusion it proves normalcy.

It's time to worry when one doesn't see them.

The illusions at the institute were baffling, until they were explained.

It was puzzling to pass your hand through a pot of roses and never touch a rose. They weren't in the pot. They were behind it. It was ridiculously easy to understand, once it was explained. Mirrors.

The same explanation disclosed the secret of the talking head, the trick seen at nearly every sideshow. The body belonging to the head was cleverly concealed in a glass case.

Elderly Ladies Hitch-Hike Distance of 1,616 Miles

MOBILE, ALA.—A Canadian mother and grandmother, both in their 50's, completed a 1,616-mile trip that cost them only $11.75.

The sisters made the entire trip from Ottawa to Mobile by thumbing it, thereby fulfilling a lifelong ambition to take a hitchhiking trip.

The two, Mrs. Hattie E. Thompson, 54, and Mrs. Pearl Empey, 52, live in Ottawa. They came to nearby Theodore to visit a brother, W. W. Mackie, whom they hadn't seen in 47 years. Mrs. Thompson has five grandchildren.

"Everyone was very nice to us," they said, "and nothing eventual happened."

Altogether they caught 43 rides, one of them on a truck in Pennsylvania. The longest ride was 346 miles from Rogersville, Tenn., to Birmingham.

They covered the entire distance in five days.

GOOD FEEDING, CULLING KEYS TO DAIRY PROFIT

The individual dairyman operates at greatest efficiency only when his cows are producing at top capacity, according to Don Voelker, extension dairyman at Iowa State College.

To get top capacity, it is necessary for the dairyman to observe two of the cardinal rules for proper dairying--correct feeding and good culling.

To illustrate his point, Voelker points to the May record of the Iowa dairy herd improvement associations. During May, sows tested in Iowa DHIA's produced more butterfat than was produced in any single month since the records started 40 years ago. Butterfat production averaged 33.9 pounds per cow—an increase of .9 pound over the previous one-month record.

Iowa's bumper crops of 1948 showed their influence here, Voelker says. With plenty of grain on hand, farmers continued to feed grain to their herds during April and May when cows were on pasture. This practice is always recommended for cows producing more than 1 pound of butterfat per day.

VACCINATE FOR CONTROL OF NEWCASTLE DISEASE

Newcastle disease has become so widespread in Iowa that the only safe method of control is preventative vaccination, says Dr. C. D. Lee, extension veterinarian at Iowa State College.

While use of preventative vaccination has become necessary, this in no way implies that sanitary precautions against the disease should be relaxed, Lee said. Clean houses, clean ranges, separate rearing of old and young birds, and prohibiting unnecessary visitors are just as necessary as ever.

As for the vaccines available for controlling Newcastle disease, Lee said there are two—live virus and killed virus vaccines. Either will produce satisfactory immunity, and which to use will depend upon what a flock owner wishes to accomplish.

Live virus vaccine can be used safely after chicks reach four weeks of age and before pullets come into production. It can be used very well on birds 8 to 12 weeks of age. Vaccination with live virus vaccine will prevent Newcastle for life.

Live virus vaccine should not be used if some other disease is prevalent in the flock. For example, if live virus is used when birds are coming down with coccidiosis, high mortality will usually result. Lee cautions that birds vaccinated with live virus may be carriers of Newcastle disease for a while. For this reason all birds susceptible to the disease on the same premises must be vaccinated at the same time.

Killed virus vaccine can be used on birds of all ages from day-old chicks through production. It can be used on laying hens without hurting egg production, and will not spread the disease. It will produce disease resistance in chicks hatched from vaccinated flocks until chicks reach 2½ to 3 weeks of age.

Also, when birds are vaccinated with killed virus vaccine, no Newcastle carries can result, and if some other disease is present, mortality is not increased. Immunity produced by killed virus will last for several months and possibly for life.

These vaccines are available at most poultry remedy houses, hatcheries and through veterinarians.

HEALTH FOR ALL

False Notions About TB

Some people stubbornly cling to false notions, even after they have been proved wrong. False notions about inconsequential matters seldom get us into any serious trouble. But subscribing to false notions or superstitions about things like health and disease can and frequently does cause a great deal of harm.

For example, the facts, about tuberculosis, a disease which kills nearly 50,000 Americans annually, are too often misunderstood. In this "enlighted" twentieth century, it is amazing how many people hold fast to misconceptions concerning tuberculosis which were disproved decades ago.

One false notion that still seems to persist about tuberculosis is that the disease is inherited. No one inherits tuberculosis. The disease is caused by a germ, the tubercle bacillus, which is transmitted from a person with active disease to another.

Tuberculosis sometimes seems to strike several members of one family. But this is usually because one member of the family contracts tuberculosis and, in the close associations of family life, the tuberculosis germs are spread to other members of the household.

Some people still insist that tuberculosis must be accompanied by a hacking cough, emaciation and the spitting of blood. Actually, tuberculosis can be present in an early stage without any of these symtoms. That is why doctors advise regular physical examinations, including chest X-rays. Then if a person does get tuberculosis, he has a better chance of finding it in an early stage, and can take measure against it at a time when it is easiest to cure.

There are still some who believe a certain climate is necessary to cure tuberculosis. As a matter of fact, tuberculosis can be cured in any climate The basic factors involved in arresting tuberculosis are complete and proper rest under medical supervision, which is usually best obtained in a sanatorium. There are sanatoriums in every state and it is usually better for a tuberculosis patient to seek treatment in an sanatorium near his home than needlessly to travel great distances for it.

There are some who think that anyone over forty is safe from the disease. Although tuberculosis leads the causes of deaths from diseases among the young people between 15 and 34, it strikes all age groups, as it does people of varying economic status, and different enviroment and all types of physical descriptions.

Those who make it their business to learn the truth about tuberculosis have taken a wise step toward protecting themselves against the disease. Correct information on the disease can be obtained from the local health department or from the tuberculosis association in the community.

This column is sponsored, in the interest of better health, by: The Hancock County Tuberculosis Association.

2,4-D IN SPRAYER MAY HARM FLOWERS, SHRUBS

Valuable flowers, vegetables and scrubs can be severely damaged by using a sprayer that has not been thoroughly cleaned after use with 2,4-D, says E. P. Sylwester, extension botanist at Iowa State College.

When equipment contaminated with 2,4-D is used to apply insecticides on sensitive plants such as roses, petunias, Zinnias, tomatoes, beans or grapes, injury may result. When one sprayer can't be reserved solely for use with 2,4-D, Sylwester says to clean the spray very thoroughly before using it to apply fungicides and insecticides.

The sprayer should be washed several times with hot soapy water, flushed with clear water and then let stand overnight filled with a solution of 1 quart household ammonia to 2 gallons of water. Booms, hoses and gaskets on the sprayer need to be flushed several times with clean water and then with the ammonia solution.

After cleaning, fill the sprayer with clear water and test it on a tomato plant. If injury from spraying apears in 2 or 3 days, the cleaning process should be repeated, Sylwester says.

Severe case of injury to crops and valuable plants by spray fumes, spray drift and contaminated equipment already have been reported this year.

QUICKLY GROWN CHICKEN WILL MAKE BEST FRYER

The frying chicken that appeals most to the housewife and tempts the appetite of the whole family is one that has been grown quickly and processed while still young and tender, says L. Z. Eggleton, extension poultryman at the Iowa State College.

The best fryers are birds that reach the weight of from 2½ to 3½ pounds in 10 to 12 weeks. Such fast growing birds are soft-meated and tender, and will fry very quickly, Eggleton says.

Good fryers in past years have been marketed New York dressed, but the fresh-frozen packs with the pieces already cut up are becoming increasingly popular. The frozen-packaged chicken is ready for the pan and requires no further preparation before cooking.

From the producer's point of view, the fryer that brings the highest profit is also the fast grower that weighs from 2½ to 3½ pounds at a market age of 10 to 12 weeks, Eggleton points out. He thinks that, in general, Iowa poultry raisers will realize the most profit from cockerels sold within those weight limits, since the ratio of gain per pound of feed drops of rapidly after those weights are reached.

NATIONAL FARM SAFETY WEEK TO BE JULY 24-30

Iowa farmers will join those of the nation in observing National Farm Safety Week, proclaimed by President Truman for July 24-30. Theme for the week is "eliminate unsafe practices."

According to Norval Wardle, farm safety specialist at Iowa State College, emphasis is being put on doing the job safely. It is known that 70 percent of all farm accidents are the result of doing the jobs incorrectly.

Eliminating unsafe practices includes removing hazards to safety that result from poor condition of equipment around the farm and home, and learning the correct way to operate new machines.

Wardle suggests setting aside each day of the week to consider the hazards to safety involved in one phase of farming. Sunday has been set aside to correct hazards connected with relaxation; Monday, hazards in the home; Tuesday dangers of handling livestock; Wednesday, falls; Thursday, highway; Friday, machinery. On Saturday review the progress made in removing the hazards.

SCOOTER

Charlotte, Iowa, residents were interested in a trip to Charlotte made by 76-year old Frank Grant, of Cambridge, Illinois, on a three-wheeled scooter. The vehicle, which he made himself, is powered with an engine which formerly turned a washing machine. It has no speedometer but Grant made the 30 miles from Davenport to Charlotte in an hour flat.

AROUND IOWA

FIRE IN TREE

William Demers of near Schaller was standing in his front door last week, when lightning struck a nearby catalpa tree, setting it on fire. The Schaller fire department came out and poured water on the tree, apparently putting out the blaze When the tree broke out in flames again, Mr. Demers, just to be on the safe side, cut it down and extinguished the blaze himself.

POISON

Michael Fitzpatrick, three of Strawberry Point, opened a can of Black Leaf 40, a concentrated insecticide and took a few hearty swigs. He was rushed to the doctor, who pumped him out, and by the next day was back to normal.

BROKEN NOSE

While breaking a piece of board with her hands, Mrs. John Hildman of Wesley was injured when a chunk flew up, hitting her in the nose and blacking her eyes. When she consulted a doctor the next day, he discovered her nose was broken.

LOST EYE

A ball, thrown through a window pane, cost eight-year old Gary Wittmeier of Luverne the loss of one eye last week. A fragment of glass entered the eye, which was removed by surgeons at Rochester.

VISITED TEACHER

S. J. Johston of Remsen enjoyed a visit from two of his former students recently. They were Mr. and Mrs. Forest Stumbo, now of California, and their recent visit with Mr. Johnston was the first time he had seen them in 45 years, when they studied under him in rural school.

LIKED HOME

Mayme Coyle of Waukon put her five-year old canary, Dickie, out on the front porch last week for a bit of sun. Dickie took off like a veteran flyer. The next morning he was back in the Coyle yard, weary from his travels and apparently glad to get back to the comforts of his bird cage.

CACTUS

An unusual sight in Iowa is a display of blooming cactus, in the yard of Mrs. J. A. Hayslett at West Branch. The original plants were brought from Texas. The twelve trumpet-shaped blossoms opened for the first time recently.

NO FIRE

The McGregor fire department found smoke but no fire last week. When a passing truck driver turned in an alarm, the department rushed to a building from which smoke was pouring. Inside, commercial fisherman Dave Mead was smoking carp.

PIPE

Butch, a cocker pup belonging to Merle Mestller of Grinnell, attracts a good bit of attention by wandering around with a pipe in his mouth, held properly by the stem. As yet, he hasn't learned to smoke it.

DENTISTS

Monticello residents are hoping for no aching molars. Dentists James Inkletofer went to the hospital for an appendectomy, was followed a day later by dentist Frank Patterson, also for major surgery.

KEEP PIGS COMFORTABLE WITH PORTABLE WALLOW

Farmers who fatten hogs during the summer month will find it pays to devise some method to keep them cool and to control lice and mange. One of the best ways of doing this is to build a portable hog wallow, says E. L. Quaife, extension animal husbandman at Iowa State College.

It is best to build two or three hog wallows rather than one large one. These can be moved when pastures are rotated and will prevent mudholes from forming.

Quaife suggests a wallow 4 by 8 feet or one 6 by 10 feet. These will handle 50 to 75 pigs.

These wallows may be built from 2 to 12-inch material. Tar can be used to fill in the cracks between the planks. One end should be slanted and cleats put on it so the pigs can get out easier. The wallow may need cleaning once or twice during the summer. Build the wallow on skids so it can be moved from one pasture to another.

To begin with, it is best to fill the wallow just about half full of water, according to Quaife. After the pigs get used to it, you can put in more water.

A good hog wallow is one good way of keeping down lice and mange. You can float crankcase oil on the water or place a solution of lime sulfur in the water for lousy or mangy pigs. Otherwise, just plain water will do the job.

Keep the hog wallows out in the open. At times the water will be too cold for pigs if it is placed in the shade, Quaife says.

You can get complete plans for buildig these wallows by writing to the Iowa State College Agricultural Extension Service.

High Jumper

On a dark and stormy night the trainman was signaling to the engineer when he dropped his lantern to the ground. A yard clerk passed by tossed it back to him on top of the car. In a few minutes the engineer came rushing up.

"Let's see you do it again!"

"Do what?"

"Jump from the ground to the top of that boxcar."

THIRTY-EIGHT IN COUNTY TAKE T. B. TESTS

Good progress in the current search for unknown tuberculosis cases in Hancock County is reported by Harriet Oxley, R. N., public health nurse. To date 38 persons have had tuberculin tests and have consented to have x-rays taken at a conference in late July at Garner.

"The most gratifying part of this search," declared the nurse, "is the splendid response by residents of Hancock County to our suggestion that they have tuberculosis skin tests and, if necessary, chest x-rays."

Harriet Oxley, at the request of family physicians, has been visiting persons who according to State Health Department records have had close contact with cases of tuberculosis, and other persons they wish to have checked.

She is advising these persons to have skin tests made by the physicians and if he recommends, chest x-rays. The x-ray will be taken at the conference conducted by the State Health Department and the Iowa Tuberculosis and Health Association.

Commented Harriet Oxley, "We are trying to find unsuspected cases of tuberculosis at an early stage when there is the greatest opportunity for a cure."

She explained that it is possible to have the disease without being aware anything is wrong and added, "It is good common sense for persons who have been exposed to tuberculosis to find out if they have contracted the disease."

Ancient Treasure Of Persian Gold Brought to Museum

CHICAGO.—A royal treasure of Persian gold from the period 500 B.C. has been bought by the University of Chicago's Oriental institute.

University officials said the valuable collection was bought from a European art collector for an undisclosed price. It is the only collection of its type in the western hemisphere.

Thorkild Jacobsen, director of the institute, said the treasure consists of 53 pieces of gold, each exquisitely carved. He said it is an example of the art of the last oriental empire before Greece and Rome took over cultural leadership.

It is from the period of the Emperors Darius and Xerxes and survived the looting and plundering by soldiers in the time of Alexander the Great.

Intricately designed, the medallions are believed to have been adornments for the vesture of royal personages. They are the work of Persian goldsmiths and Jacobsen said they rank in craftsmanship with what the finest modern jewelers could do today with improved tools and miscroscopes.

He said the treasure represents an art supported by unlimited wealth.

How the gold survived the last 2,500 years is supposition. But historians believe that some Persian prince, fleeing from Alexander's men, may have buried the treasure for safekeeping.

One piece is a complete necklace consisting of 96 separate pieces—20 lion heads, 53 granulated beads and 23 other beads made of two parts.

The most prized single piece is a four-inch winged and horned lion. The ribs, muscles and feathers are chiseled to form the body. Experts said it is a rare piece of relief art work, the lion having been cut away from the medallion by hand.

The university said a microscopic examination showed that small rings on the back of the medallions, for the purpose of sewing the medallions to clothing, had been soldered with the same quality of gold as the jewelry.

Looter Emphasizes Stand Bacon Wrote Shakespeare

BIRMINGHAM, ENGLAND.—Shakespeare's works are so highly prized that a copy of a 1550 manuscript in which he made marginal notes is valued at $200,000.

But some people think Shakespeare got credit for plays actually written by Sir Francis Bacon.

Today police are searching for a man who broke the glass cover of a case containing the $200,000 manuscript and left a note saying:

"Read 'The Mystery of Francis Bacon' by William T. Smedley, now out of print but not wholly unobtainable, and in particular Chaper 21, Pages 158 to 159, which explodes the whole theory of Shakespeare's authorship."

The manuscript, "Hall's Chronicles" was believed to be undamaged.

Humane Society Gives Break To Blind Man Because of Dog

ATLANTA.—Big Boy, a German shepherd with a beggar's cup on his harness, had a room with a view and his sightless master learned that humane societies can serve people, too.

Big Boy and W. C. Knight, 34, appeared in Recorder's Court. Knight faced charges of cruelty to animals by starving the dog that led him through downtown streets and shared a beggar's bread and a windowless room.

Patrolman S. E. Caldwell testified that on occasion Knight was known to buy liquor instead of bread, contributing to the dog's scrawniness. He picked them up when he noticed Big Boy's thin frame, and called the Atlanta Humane Society.

Oby T. Brewer, president of the society, told Recorder A. W. Callaway that he wanted only to help the dog into health, and that Big Boy could stay with his master if Knight would care for him.

Knight, his head bowed before the bench, promised to stop drinking and to care for Big Boy as Big Boy cared for him. Callaway levied a $12 fine and suspended it.

Hopes For Whooping Crane Preservation Growing Dim

NEW YORK.— Another hope for preservation of the nearly extinct whooping crane has just been dashed.

The National Audubon society has received word from the U.S. fish and wildlife service, with which it has been co-operating in attempts to preserve the species, that two eggs laid by a pair of captive birds in the Arkansas national wildlife refuge in Texas have been destroyed.

The eggs were broken up by the parent birds.

Only 33 whooping cranes, remnants of untold numbers, are now known to exist. The others have flown north as usual to nest in some undiscovered Arctic breeding ground.

Artist Finds Nepal Full of Contrasts On Strange Journey

NEW YORK.—Artist Charles Baskerville traveled two days over high mountain passes to get into Nepal.

Admission to the tiny kingdom on the northeastern frontier of India is "by invitation only." But when he got there he found the country lined with paved roads and plenty of American-made automobiles.

"They carry in the automobiles on the heads of coolies," Baskerville said. "There are no railroads."

Baskerville, who just returned from his strange expedition, was the first western artist in history admitted to the country, and he made his manners by painting portraits of the maharajah and the king.

"I found the maharajah worldly and charming," Baskerville went on. "He's the prime minister and the real ruler of the country. He spoke English fluently and sat for me in flowing bird-of-paradise headdress. I thought a bunch of grapes were dangling over his ear, but they were rubies. As for the king, he's less articulate than the maharajah. He has been out of the country to Calcutta twice, but that's all."

To entertain his royal hosts while doing their portraits, Baskerville hung a large mirror at an angle, so they could see what he was doing. They were fascinated.

"The maharajah may open the country to industralization," said Baskerville, "He thinks no place is safe from intrusion now, because of paratroops."

He forsees factories rising in the midst of the Nepal valley, a bird-haunted tropical paradise given over to cotton, wheat and rice.

"I was a guest seven weeks," Baskerville went on. "They gave me a private house and plenty of servants. But I was under constant surveillance, more for my own protection than anything else. Sometimes I was almost swamped by friendly mobs. I went everywhere and painted everything. One day 28,000 Hindus came over the mountains and swam in the Bhagnuth river—sort of the Ganges of Nepal—and considered holy."

Chicken Wings Replacing Wings of War at Air Base

SANTA MARIA, CALIF.—The wings of war have given way to chicken wings at Santa Maria air base.

Four years ago 15,000 men lived here in a big "city" of 3,476 acres, but after V-J Day the camp was a ghost town until Santa Maria officials got the idea of converting it into a giant chicken farm.

More than 200,000 broilers and fryers are being fattened in the former barracks and warehouses. Special feed and 24-hour lighting hurry the maturing process, so that each bird lives only 10 weeks from egg to frying pan.

A packing company has leased the base refrigerator building and expects to handle about two million chickens a year.

Cook Takes Long Chance And Defies Holdup Man

CINCINNATI. — A 34-year-old hotel cook took "a long chance" and refused to give up his money—even at the point of a gun.

The chance paid off. He kept his money and the alleged holdup man was jailed.

The intended holdup victim was Robert Pohlman of neighboring Covington, Ky.

He told police a young Negro accosted him as he was walking across an Ohio River bridge from Covington to Cincinnati.

"He pulled a pistol and said: 'Give me your money or I'll shoot.'" Pohlman said. "I told him he was crazy and I kept walking."

The holdup man, apparently angered over Pohlman's failure to obey him, fired a shot into the air and repeated his demand.

Pohlman still refused and ran to the center of the bridge where he flagged down Bridge Patrolman John Waring, who was coming on his motorcycle to investigate the shooting.

When the alleged gunman, later identified as Odel Murphy, 19, Cincinnati, saw Waring, he fled, but the patrolman took him into custody a short distance from the bridge.

Later, Pohlman told newsmen: "I just got mad when he asked for my money but, now that I think it over, I believe I took a long chance."

Eleven Autos Get Involved In Two Traffic Accidents

FORT WORTH, TEX.—Two identical traffic accidents within a short distance and time of each other involved 11 cars and caused numerous smashed grills, dented fenders, and ruffled tempers.

Six cars were stopped nearly bumper-to-bumper while waiting on another motorist to make a left turn at an intersection. A seventh motorist skidded into the rear car, resulting in every car in line bumping into the one ahead.

A similar accident at nearly the same time three blocks away involved four cars.

BOY'S 4-H PROJECT ENROLLMENT SUMMARIZED

With 205 county 4-H boys coming into the last lap of their project work for the year, it's a good time to take a look at enrollments in the various 4-H projects carried on during the 1949 club year.

If enrollments are an indication of interest. 4-H'ers in this county lean towards Baby Beef projects. They lead in number with 90 boys enrolled who are feeding and taking care of 140 animals, according to Leonard L. Book, county extension youth assistant.

Running in second place are Purebred Litter projects with 33 boys taking care of 262 animals throughout Hancock County, Book said. Boys' 4-H club members have been feeding and caring for the animals throughout the entire feeding period to gain actual experience in this work he pointed out.

So far as other projects are concerned, 24 4-H'ers are enrolled in Market Litter projects, 16 in Dairy Heifer and cows projects, 8 are feeding Market Flock, Baby Beef projects rank top with Hancock boys and 7 are working with Landscaping and Agronomy.

The rest of the Hancock boys enrolled in club work are working with Beef Heifer, Riding Horses and Poultry.

Climax of the year's project activity will come with the Achievement Show. Some of the outstanding animals also will be shown at the Iowa State Fair and other mid-west shows, Book said.

Considers Budget

The Hancock County Board of education met at the courthouse in Garner last Wedensday to consider the budget for 1950 and to discuss transportation problems.

HAYING

When a pulley gave way as he was helping get a sling full of hay into the loft, Don Galbraith of Newell was struck by the flying pulley and received a fractured skull.

AVERY SUNBEAMS VISITED BY ENGLISH GIRL

The Avery Sunbeams met at the home of Mary Ann and Marlene B. on July 8th. 15 members answered roll call by telling how their home could be made safer.

For new business we decided what each girl would take to the county achievement show.

Mary Ann B. gave an interesting account of her trip to Ames.

The club bought a dress for Mrs. Arnold's new baby girl.

Pauline K. and Lois L. volunteered to be our demonstrating team at achievement show.

The meeting was then turned over to the program chairman, Darlene O. First a demonstration by Lois H. and Mary B. on baking angel cake.

Mary Ann gave a demonstration on frosting a cake. Doris gave two talks: "The Storage of Fresh Vegetables" and "Breakfast in Other Lands". Lois L. gave a talk on place of vegetables in the diet. Harriet Ostendorf gave a demonstration on the cooking of white vegetables.

The latter part of the meeting Miss Van Wert, Mrs. Wille and a girl from England came. She told us many interesting facts about the 4-H in England.

LIGHTNING

A lightning bolt which trailed along behind a summer thunderstorm brought death to W. Waderich of Ute last week. When the storm broke, Mr. Waderich called his brother and family and took refuge in the cave. After the storm was over, he went down to inspect a swollen nearby creek and was struck while standing under a tree. His brother, five feet from him, was stunned by the same bolt but will recover.

UN CHAPEL WILL HAVE NO ALTAR . . .

'Divers Are the Ways to Approach God'

. . . IT CAN BE A MANGER OR A MOSQUE

By H. I. PHILLIPS

'DIVERS ARE THE WAYS . . .'

"The chapel of prayer in the new United Nations headquarters will have no altar or windows. A shaft of sunlight will come through the roof. A huge marble slab, memorializing the war dead, will be the only object in the simple, cylindrical structure."—News Item.

No altar. . . .

No stained-glass windows. . . .

No man of Sorrows with His example of love, sacrifice, sorrow and ultimate victory that has stirred millions through the centuries. . . .

Just a shaft of sunlight beating in from above to symbolize hope, truth and an omnipotent power . . .

Yet here can be the Universal Temple, the Cathedral of the Earth, the Prayer Room of All Races, Creeds and Sects, all communing with a Supreme Being in the realization that without it they are as video puppets!

A shaft of sunlight! Nothing more! Yet in it the Christian, Jew, Confucianist, Buddhist, Mohammedist and Zoroastrianist may know the mysteries of faith, see the holy of holies and seek the inspiration and guidance desired by all men.

In it, the Christian will see the manger at Bethlehem, hear "Holy Night," perceive the shepherds watching their flocks by night . . . know the cleansing beauty of the Sermon on the Mount . . . feel the horror of Golgotha . . . thrill to the Resurrection morn!

Here may the Jew commune with Moses and his ancient prophets, the Turk turn to Mohammed and the Indian seek guidance from his separate gods. In this simple chamber may all hear the timeless voice!

May this be a "room at the inn," a manger, a temple and a mosque, breathing the true essence of divinity.

Here may troubled men, charged with a great duty in an hour of frightful peril, subscribe to the words of Sri Ramakrishna:

"As one can ascend to the top of a house by means of a ladder, a bamboo, a staircase or a rope, so divers are the ways to approach God, and every religion in the world shows these ways. Different are the ways that lead to the Temple of Kalighat; similarly varied are those that lead to the House of the Lord."

"There will be no windows . . ."

Yet on these walls and in these shadows may men of all faiths find truth, charity, brotherly love and respect for the eternal verities.

Here, denied all symbols, may they hear the flutter of wings, stir to distant trumpets, and mark, "Thou shalt not kill" in a dozen tongues.

"A marble slab will be the only object in the room . . ."

In it may the envoys see the devotion of the gallant dead, the sufferings of the widow and orphan.

May its rugged simplicity picture the kid in the sandlots suddenly defending a bloody barricade and echo the schoolgirl's laughter suddenly changed to words of comfort in a field hospital.

This is the indispensable structure, the all-important chamber. This is the simple, unadorned place without which all the elaborated council chambers will be as a field without sun or rain.

This is the cornerstone!

In Many Tongues

HE WHO has suffered much speaks many tongues.
He can be understood, he understands
The language of the countless ones who reach
For sympathy with weak imploring hands;
To each in his own tongue he has the words
That bring the quick relief of tears; he speaks
And suddenly old heavy burdens lift,
And there is hope again for him who seeks.

O you who have grown weary of your load,
Shoulder it bravely again a little while.
There will be those who may require of you
Help to go some first bewildering mile
With grief or pain. God will have need of you
As His interpreter that you may tell
Them of the hope ahead, of the healing years,
And of His love. Oh, learn the language well!

'UNIVERSAL MAN':
Johann von Goethe

From every state in the union and from many foreign lands, distinguished visitors are pouring into the historic little frontier town of Aspen, Colo., to pay honor to a man born 200 years ago.

The Goethe Bicentennial Convocation and Music Festival (June 27-July 16) is presenting an imposing roster of thinkers, writers, statesmen, philosophers, educators and musicians who will seek to re-examine and re-interpret the works and philosophy of Johann Wolfgang von Goethe, the Universal Man, as it pertains to the atomic age

HEADING the impressive list of lecturers is Albert Schweitzer, of French Equatorial Africa—philosopher, doctor, musician, theologian — acknowledged throughout the civilized world as the foremost modern disciple of Goethe.

The music festival, running in conjunction with the convocation, will feature compositions based on Goethe's works, monumental music of equal stature to Goethe, and music contemporary to him and known to have been inspirational to him.

LABOR:
Bad Timing?

Was the postwar buggy ride of consumer demand and increasingly higher wages really over?

The Ford motor company thought so and said so.

CONFRONTED with a list of demands by the united automobile workers union, the company made a significant counter-proposal

Instead of pay raises and pension, health and welfare plans as drafted by the union, the company proposed to peg wages where they are for another 18 months.

Such action, said the company, would "set a stabilization pattern for the entire (national) economy at this critical time."

THE UNION, among other things, had demanded that wages be pegged to the cost of living.

Pointing out that the cost of living is down and that the market for cars might drop up to 32 per cent after this year, the company declared flatly that it would reject any change in the work contract which would mean higher labor costs—whether in the form of wage increases or pension or welfare funds.

THUS the issue was hastening to a showdown. Could industry stand firm against another round of wage increases, or would labor with its organized power so stifle industry that capitulation would be inevitable?

MIRROR Of Your MIND

Pity Never Akin to Love

By Lawrence Gould

Is pity really sometimes "akin to love?"

Answer: Far from it. We get the idea that it is from the fact that when we are little, our mothers appear to give us more affection when we are sick or unhappy, but to try to win someone's love after you have grown up by making him sorry for you is a serious mistake. If he feels you're blaming him, he'll hate you for it, and if he does not, you'll ultimately bore him. The English psychiatrist, Dr. Laura Hutton, truly says that "In the long run most of us are attracted by happiness in others, not by unhappiness"—or "hard luck."

Is being an "old maid a disgrace?

Answer: Certainly not, though the notion seems to "die hard." It's each person's business to adjust to life on a basis that accepts his or her limitations, and a girl who has been so conditioned that she is afraid of marriage or cannot accept the role of wife and mother should no more be blamed for staying single than a cripple be blamed because he walk." There is no worse than the sort in which a forced herself to take a she does not love "so as an old maid." Single life nitely better.

STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO

BY INEZ GERHARD

BETTY CLARK, star of the Sunday ABC "Betty Clark Sings," is one of those rare people who should be a lesson to all of us. It wasn't too surprising to learn that 12-year-old Betty recently was graduated from elementary school with an average of more than 90 per cent. She looks very intelligent. I was slightly surprised to learn that she skips rope and goes roller skating once a week. And of course she is exceptional as the only child in America who has her own network show. But what makes all she does especially remarkable and courageous is the fact that charming little Betty has been totally blind since birth.

The Fiction Corner

INFECTIOUS LAUGH

By Richard H. Wilkinson

IT WAS ETHAN PRYOR'S laughter that first attracted Abigail to him. When Ethan laughed every one else laughed. The sound had that mirthful, appealing quality that was infectious It was good to hear It gave you a feeling of well-being

This all happened in 1929, when Ethan's retail antique business was netting him $15,000 a year. It was easy to laugh then. They were a jolly couple.

In 1931 Ethan's retail antique business dropped off from one-half its top amount to one-third, then to one-quarter.

That year passed and the next. The Pryors didn't find it so easy to laugh. They gave up their seven-room apartment and moved into a less expensive one In January of 1934 they moved to a single room in an unfashionable part of the city. Ethan was barely making enough to keep them from starving.

3-Minute Fiction

Abigail hunted for a week and eventually won for herself a job. It wasn't much of a job. She sat behind a glass window all afternoon and evening selling tickets for a stock company performance. The stock company wasn't doing so well. It looked as though it might fold up any day. But it paid $15 a week and would have to do until she could get something better.

Inspired, a little ashamed, Ethan went job hunting himself. He hunted a week, two weeks, without success. He began to brood. Abigail did her best to cheer him up, to get him into a happy frame of mind.

"Let's hear the old laugh ring out, darling. A pleasant frame of mind is half the battle." She sat on the arm of his chair. "Tell you what. Let's celebrate. Let's take $5 and go down to Tony's. We can have a gay time for a change."

THEY WENT to Tony's. They drank wine and ate a big dinner. They danced. They sat and watched the floor show. It wasn't a bad floor show. Among other things there was a comedian. The comedian was sad. He wasn't funny. But Abigail laughed. She laughed as though she thought he was tremendously funny

Ethan looked at her. A fond light came into his eyes. She was trying to be gay. She was doing all she could to bolster up his spirits. He could at least help.

Ethan laughed. It was the old time, mirthful, appealing laughter. It rolled out and filled the room. Others heard it. Others laughed They couldn't help it. They laughed with Ethan. The comedian was inspired.

After the show a man came up and sat down at Ethan's and Abigail's table. Abigail introduced him as the owner of the stock company show where she sold tickets. His name was Jones.

"Listen," said Mr. Jones. "We'll pay you $5 a night to come and laugh at our show. It's supposed to be a funny show. You can put it across."

Ethan scratched his chin. He looked at Abigail. He said: "Well, I dunno. For $40 a week I might consider it."

"Sold!" said Mr. Jones.

Ethan looked at his wife when he got home. "You planned it!" he accused.

"Sure," said Abigail "When you have something it should be cashed in on. You can laugh your way to riches, my dear."

Times were getting better. People were buying antiques. By the beginning of 1936 he was doing quite well. That summer he enlarged his shop

Well," said Abigail, happily, "I guess we laughed our way through that depression all right."

Ethan kissed her. Then he threw back his head and began to laugh. He laughed loud and long "There!" he said. "That laugh isn't going to cost any one a cent. From now on I laugh because I want to and free of charge. Honey, I love you."

"Ditto," said Abigail.

Indicted

There was much of mystery and charge and counter-charge in the events out of which grew the federal indictment of Preston Tucker (above). Tucker and five others were indicted by the government on charges of mail fraud, conspiracy in violations of the securities and exchange act. Tucker has retaliated with charges that the securities and exchange commission has made it impossible to continue production of the Tucker car, which was to be powered with a motor in the rear.

RED HUNT:
Harvard Cool

Harvard, the nation's oldest university, was having nothing to do with any Communist-hunting.

There was a reason, officials said. They felt that to do so might be a danger to the university's freedom and to its academic integrity.

AND, Harvard held, American freedom is the school's "true glory," as it once told a man who tried to "buy" it for 10 million dollars.

The Harvard policy statement in connection with Communist-hunting activities was put this way:

"There will be no harassment of professors for engaging in open and legal meetings. There will be no apparatus of inquiry and 'closer watch.'

"The harm done by the effort necessary to discover even a single clandestine party (Communist) member would outweigh any possible benefit."

PROMISES:
Made for Housing

House Republicans indicated they were tired of the federal housing wrangle. So, they promised, they'd introduce a housing bill to substitute for the administration's program.

It was said to include a plan for privately-owned homes and some low-rent property. In fact, the substitute measure would embody most of the administration's slum-clearance ideas.

KEEPING HEALTHY

Preventing Deaths from Append

By Dr. James W. Barton

SOME YEARS AGO the physicians and surgeons of Philadelphia made a determined effort to cut down the death rate in appendicitis. Within one year they reduced it to less than half of what it had been.

How was the death rate reduced by more than one-half in this short time?

These physicians had learned from their own experiences three definite truths. First, that the sooner the operation was performed the better; second, that no food should be given; and third, that no pain-killing drug should be used until the cause of the pain was found not to be appendicitis, as this drug masked or hid the symptoms.

When a pain occurs in the abdomen, even as high up as the stomach, many think that a dose of castor oil or of Epsom salts is the best treatment, as it clears away poisons or wastes. This would be good treatment in most cases but for the fact that appendicitis is such a common cause of pain in the abdomen. A sluggish liver and gall cause gas, and gas pressu pain. Constipation is anot mon cause of pain in the

The reason a cathartic, tor oil or Epsom salts, i ous, should appendicitis ing the pain, is because tic stimulates so much in the intestine and th amount of movement m the appendix to rupture. A appendix causes peritoniti fatal.

When a pain occurs in right side of the abdome may have started higher stomach a few hours bef remains in the appendix r an hour without shifting e call a physician at once.

In previous days it was usual for patients to be tra to a large city for an o which meant delay and a chance of rupturing the Today, the "nearest" hos surgeons capable of remo appendix in minutes.

HEALTH NOTES

When the ankle or any other joint is sprained (not just strained), the injured part should be placed in hot water and kept hot for an hour at a time until swelling disappears. The joint then should be bandaged and placed on a chair if the patient is sitting or on a pillow if lying down. After a few days' rest, the joint is gently moved (without weight on it), and massaged toward the heart.

Some years ago I tried up the number of causes ache. When it ran over stopped. Some researcher over 200 causes.

Baseball Born 166 Years Ago

By GRANTLAND RICE

IT SEEMS RATHER peculiar, with baseball rated as the national pastime, with the game sweeping the country today, that no set record of baseball's beginning is at hand. Abner Doubleday has been credited with taking a commission from the dying Lincoln, which of course never happened.

Baseball came in before Lincoln or Doubleday were ever known. I have had records showing that baseball was a game around 1840. A well-known game. Will Irwin, one of our greatest writers and reporters, once wrote several articles proving that Gen. Abner Doubleday had nothing to do with the discovery or invention of baseball. As Will Irwin is the most responsible person I've ever known to go fully into the subject, I'll go along with him.

Grantland Rice

Now a worthy reader in Pelham, N.Y., sends me a copy of a letter that has been in his family since 1833. The letter was sent to "Mr. William H. Butler, Nathaniel Hall, Nathaniel County, Pa., March, 1833." The sender was Charles C. Cain. Here is a portion of the 1833 letter:

"I suppose nowadays you play ball considerably. If I can judge by our conditions up here, it is the time of the year to play ball. I think it was a great pity that we couldn't teach these lazy rascals to play that beautiful game—Base Ball."

I have seen correspondence before that proved to me baseball was played around 1840 and there were fairly good teams before 1850.

It is only natural that different types of games were played in those early days. It may be that General Doubleday was the one who measured out the modern diamond, but there were many changes year after year—such as underhand pitching and out on the first bounce. No game springs full blown into existence over night.

This letter to William H. Butler, written March 22, 1833, referring to baseball by its right name is the first recorded instance I know with full proof attached. This makes baseball 116 years old which brings it more dignity and tradition.

Two Ways to Hit

There are two ways on tap when it comes to the matter of hitting a baseball well. One is the system Nap Lajoie used some 40 years ago. The other has a standard bearer in Ted Williams, one of the best of the moderns.

"I believe in making a pitcher put one over the plate," the Red Sox star tells you. "If a ball is two inches wide, I'll let it go. That's why I wait so late to swing on many occasions. You can tell in advance whether a pitch is going to be good, wild or near the corners."

Nap Lajoie never liked this system. "I make up my mind in advance," he said one day before a game. "I make up my mind to sock the next one if it is anywhere close. I'd just as soon swing at a ball eight inches off the plate. The main point is that my mind is all set to hit this next one. Naturally if it's a bad pitch or too wide, I'll let it go. But you certainly get more timing in your swing when you are mentally set to hit the next one."

"I never worked much on either theory," Ty Cobb said. "I always wanted to hit the ball as solidly as possible. It might be over and too low. It might not be over and just the right height. There is one thing you have to watch in batting. That's your balance, keeping your weight back of the swing.

"One of the chief faults in hitting is overeagerness or over anxiety. This makes you throw your weight forward too soon. As you step into the ball, your hands and body must be working together.

"Young ballplayers, especially, fall into this habit of lurching forward ahead of schedule. Their weight is out of place. I used to keep an old-timer on the bench to watch me when I get into a slump."

He'd tell me what fault I was committing — swinging too fast, swinging too fast—waiting too long waiting too long—bad foot action.

"It would be a smart thing for managers to have a veteran observer on the bench today to check on mistakes or faults. In both golf and baseball the player can rarely tell what he is doing when something goes wrong. Your pro can help you in golf. You should also have a good pro to help in baseball."

New Tack in Health War

WHILE the American Medical association in national convention and otherwise continuing to bombard the administration's national health insurance program as socialized medicine, administration leaders in charge of the program took a new tack before house and senate committees by asserting that the national health insurance program would prevent, not cause, socialized or state medicine.

And the testimony of J. Donald Kingsley, assistant federal security administrator, speaking for Oscar Ewing, the administrator, who is ill, at least gives you something to think about in mulling over this much-debated subject. Here's what Kingsley told the committees.

The problems confronting the people insofar as the medical bill is concerned are not medical problems, but economic problems; that the first is the manpower or doctor shortage and the hospital or facility shortage; second, the manpower and facility distribution, in that hospitals and doctors are not distributed where they are needed and, third, that another economic question is one of inadequate medical purchasing power.

He declared the doctor is doing his part of the job of preventive and curative medicine magnificently and the results they achieve in those areas where they are given a chance are proof of that, but a common financial problem underlies, which is not the problem of the doctor, but for the economist and the statesman.

The thing that national health insurance is expected to cure, according to Kingsley, is the fact that today a substantial proportion of our population must depend upon public or private charity or go without the type of medical care that modern medicine knows how to provide.

And here are some statistics. The federal government is today providing medical care for some 24 million citizens; government owns and operates three-fourths of all hospital beds, government already employs directly thousands of American doctors and pays fees to many hundreds more, the taxpayers' money finances full medical care for all members of the armed forces and their dependents and for all disabled veterans.

It provides hospital care for needy veterans, for merchant seamen and complete care for tubercular, mental and other chronic patients. It pays the cost of limited medical care for those on public relief rolls. It gives members of the congress free medical service and free hospital and doctor service in government hospitals such as the naval hospital at Bethesda, Md., and Walter Reed hospital in Washington.

In addition the taxpayers carry the load on that vast field of medical service such as public health. For all this the taxpayers are paying millions upon millions of dollars.

GE Head Optimistic

One of the top business executives, Charles E. Wilson, of General Electric, sees no drastic depression ahead, not more than a 15 per cent decline all along the line by the second quarter of 1950 with the high level of 1948 again reached by the end of 1951.

This is a bright picture painted by Mr. Wilson. But government economists and some members of congress are taking no chances. Even today they are dusting off the full employment act of 1946 and its provisions for bolstering the economy and what's more, a new bill is in the offing.

The thought behind this new proposed plan is that if unemployment goes as high as five million it's dangerous and something should be ready, so a drastic plan will be attempted with government playing a leading role. The proposed plan of expansion is backed by Senators Murray, Montana; Pepper, Florida; Kilgore, West Virginia; Kefauver, Tennessee; Humphrey, Minnesota; McMahon, Connecticut; Sparkman, Alabama; Thomas, Utah and many congressmen.

Vet Bill Costly

Some weeks ago we wrote about lack of responsibility in this congress and gave the backing and filling and final killing on the Rankin veterans' pension bill as an example. Now comes a new veterans bill and the house whooped it through by a vote of 365 to 27. It is expected to cost about 65 billions over the next 50 years or better than a billion a year. What makes one sort of cringe are the demands of veteran's groups.

LIBERTY BUSY BEES MET FRIDAY AFTERNOON

Ten members, two leaders, Miss Van Wert, and three guests of the Liberty Busy Bees 4-H club stood around the table in the kitchen of Celestine Buzecky's home Friday afternoon, where our regular club meeting was held.

"This is the proper way to make a loaf of bread. Now Gloria Haefner will show how to make some bread variations with the remainder of this dough," Mrs. Floyd Greiman said as she placed a nicely shaped loaf into the bread pan Gloria demonstrated how to make walunt cinnamon rolls, clover leaf rolls, fan tans, crescents, biddy hens, twin rolls, parker house rolls, and knots. The loaf and rolls were left to rise and the girls then listened to a talk on Foreign Breads by JoAnn Greiman.

Earlier in the afternoon the meeting was called to order by the president, Bethel Habercamp. The girls answered roll call by telling how far they were in their expense account books. It was decided that Bethel and Jeanetta Greiman will domonstrate at the county Achievement Show. Vivian Stromer, Marilyn Zrostlik, Eunice Huenemann, Celestine. and Gloria were chosen to be responsible for planning our special feature for the Achievement Show. It was also decided that our local Achievement Show will be held in the evening in connection with a Farm Bureau program. Pat Legge, Marlene Weisbrod, Susan Habercamp, Sheryl, Jo-Ann, Beverly Haberkamp, and Darlene Raul are to plan the program.

A demonstration, "The Care and Use of a Pressure Sauce Pan," by Vivian, a talk. "Frozen Foods and How To Cook Them," by Sheryl Bredlow, and a talk, "How To Cook Cabbage and Ways of Serving It" by Celestine made up the rest of the program.

A delicious lunch was served by the hostess and before going home the bread, now baked, was sampled and a picture of the club was taken.

SPORTS WINNERS AT BRITT NAMED

Herman Limberg of Woden pitched a one hit game to lead his Bingham 4-H team to the championship at the Hancock County farm sports festival in Britt last Wednesday.

The Bingham 4-H team will represent Hancock County in the state contest at Ames this fall as a result of its 15-0 win over the Liberty 4-H team. Almost 100 people participated in the sports events of the day.

No Hits, No. Runs

In the morning it was Limberg's no hit, no run game that helped his team win over the Garfield club 18-0. In moving up to the championship game Liberty beat the Boone 4-H'ers 22-8. Delwin Stromer of Garner was the winning pitcher.

All Farm Bureau families in the county were eligible to compete in the events, according to Paul Shurts, Hancock County Farm Bureau fieldman, as well as families of Farm Bureau members who live in towns in Hancock County.

Winners in the baseball throw for distance were: for men 17 years and over. Herman Limberg of Woden; for boys 14 to 16, Alton Limberg, of Woden; for boys 13 and under, Jim Zeigler of Woden.

Winners In Dashes

In the dashes the winners were: boys 12 to 14, Jim Zeigler; boys 9 to 11, Paul Eisenmann of Woden; boys 6 to 8, Dean Henderson of Garner; 5 and under, Dale Henderson of Garner. For girls 12 to 14, Shirley Meyer; 9 to 11, Donna Cink of Woden; 6 to 8, Mirium Stromer of Garner; 5 and under, Mavis Lindberg of Woden.

Klemme Lady Wins

In the Nail Driving for women 16 years and over it was Mrs. Roy Schaefer of Klemme who won. For girls 15 and under the winner was LaVaune Verlo of Woden.

Winners in chair quoits were: girls 18 and over, Marjorie Fox of Britt; 17 and under, LaVaune Vedlo.

Clock golf winners: girls 16 and over, Carol Nuehring of Klemme; 15 and under, Shirley Meyer of Woden.

Those that were the best in dart throwing were: girls 16 and over, Mrs. Roy Schaefer; 15 and under, Ruby Earles of Britt.

Combining Is Most Popular Method Of Harvesting Oats

The Editor, while flying to and from Garner to Fort Dodge Sunday morning observed that nearly all fields of oats were being harvested by the combine method.

As nearly as we could judge and observe, there were between 20 and 25 fields for the combine method as aginst one field in the shock. That will bring up a problem. How long can these very few fields of shock method hold out, as it seems the threshing machine is definitely out of the picture and it will be hard for these few farmers who are shocking their grain to find machines to do the threshing.

Combining out of the windrow seems to be nearly 100 per cent rather than cutting and combining at the same operation.

H. C. D. P. I. MEETS

Hancock County Dairy Products Improvement Association held their annual meeting Friday, July 8th at Britt. This organization is made up of all the creameries in Hancock.

The annual report was read by fieldman, Nick Venechuk, which was followed by a business meeting and election of officers was held. They are as follows: Jens Jensen, of Britt, re-elected president; Bill Riemer, Garner, re-elected vic president and Norman Hanson, Crystal Lake, selected secretary. Other directors are: Clarence Attig of Woden, Olaf C. Eliason of Kanawha, and Melvin Buseman of Klemme.

The fifteenth annual reunion and dinner of the Koerner families was held Sunday at State Park, Clear Lake. Eighty-four people were present for the picnic and social time.

Those attending from Klemme were Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Koerner, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Koerner, Terry and Kathleen, Mrs. Emilie Arnold, Mrs. Martha Ridder and Donald Fredin, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gibbs and Isabelle, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Stille and Lois, Mr. W. F. Stille, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Ridder, Maralee and Dennis, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Bridges and family and Mr. and Mrs. Orville Stokesbary and family. Other communities represented were Charles City, Rockford, Mason City, Clear Lake, Meservey, Forest City, also St. Paul, Minn., Colorado Springs, Colorado and Norfolk, Va.

A business meeting was held and Lester Stille was re-elected president, Mrs. L. A. Ridder, secretary-treasurer and Mrs. Lee Anderson of Charles City, the genealogist. The reunion will be held at the same place next year. While the older people enjoyed visiting the younger ones enjoyed swimming and boating.

County Farm Bureau Enters Sports Festival

The Hancock County Farm Bureau will send one of more than 80 county teams to the Iowa Farm Sports Festival at Ames September 8, 9 and 10 Entrants from the county eligible to appear in one of the 40 events at the Rural Olympics won their places at the Hancock County Festival on July 13th.

In the seventh annual sports fest, competing counties will seek district titles and will also strive to displace Webster County's 1948 championship entry. Last year, Hancock County was particularly successful in the following events: Boys 4-H All Star and RYP soft ball.

As in the past years, the local Festival was run under the supervision of a special committee, made up of Rev R D Stuebbe, chairman; Mrs. Earl Schultz, Mrs. Harlan Nuehring, Mrs. Verlyn Friedow, and Mr Owen Taylor.

It took him twenty years but the Rev. Alfred Bredesen, now of Florida, won a checker match last week from Knute Hamre of Decorah. During the twenty years or more they have played together, Hamre has always been the winner.

HELLO, FOLKS

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Faris are the parents of a baby boy born Sunday at the Belmond hospital. The Faris family resides on the Gerald Swyter farm south of Klemme.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon McLaughlin of near Belmond are the parents of a baby boy born Sunday, July 17 at the Belmond hospital. Mrs. McLaughlin is a daughter of Mrs. Daisy Lemke of Klemme.

New County Attorney Arrives To Take Over In 1974

County Attorney and Mrs. Curtis Riehm are the proud parents of an 8 lbs. baby boy born Tuesday, July 19th at the Forest City hospital. The future attorney has been named Charles Curtis and he has a sister who will probably pester him.

PUBLIC SCHOOL BUS TRANSPORTATION

The Fifty Third General Assembly passed and amended laws dealing with the transportation of pupils to public schools which will affect many pupils riding the buses and also the parents of the children.

The state will reimburse the sending district approximately $13.00 more per each pupil than last year, or in Hancock County an average of about $33.18 per pupil per year. Last year the average per pupil state reimbursement in Hancock was $20.18 for both high school and grade pupils.

The parents of high school students, attending where assigned, will no longer be required to pay the difference between what the costs are and the $23.00 as they have been required to do in the past few years. The sending district, the township in most cases, will pay the total amount above the state aid. The average per pupil cost of bus operation in Hancock County was $56.45 for the school year 1948-49 Assuming the transportation for 1949-1950 are the same. This means the state will pay approximately $33.18, the sending district the balance or about $23.27 on both high school students and grade school pupils who are attending schools where they are assigned by the local school board.

Under normal conditions, the pupils no longer can be required to meet a bus more than two miles from home, or more than three quarters of a mile without being paid at the rate of 28 cents per mile one way per day per family by the sending district. As a general practice all receiving schools will attempt to make a gate pick up of pupils and at the same time eliminate back tracking, to keep the costs as low as possible.

The county board of education must approve all bus routes in Hancock County. It is the duty of the board to see that each family gets the best bus service possible and at the same time eliminate duplication of bus service. This means everyone may go to school where he wishes but state aid can only be received where the services of the bus servicing the home are used.

High school and elementary pupils in a closed subdistrict residing more than one mile from the school to which they are assigned will be eligible to state and township aid for transportation. The distance formerly was two miles.

The additional state aid in transportation will undoubtedly be the first direct evidence of the increased appropriation made for public schools in Iowa by the Fifty Third General Assembly

Many changes were made in the laws and regulations governing public school bus service in Iowa to correct or to give added and better service to the pupils. The school bus transportation laws are not perfect and undoubtedly minor changes will be necessary to make the present bus system work better and more efficiently, but we must not lose sight of the fact that Iowa has done more in providing bus service for public school pupils in a shorter time and has any state in the union.

Chicken Dinner Served Sunday

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Barz prepared a fine chicken dinner Sunday and had as their guests Mrs. Esther Barz, Grandma Wille, Mr. and Mrs. Les Hartbeck and Miriam, Mrs. Clara Barz, Mrs. Lena Schroeder, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barz, all of this commuity, and Mr. and Mrs. Will Barz of Garner.

Freeze Foods for Future Use
(See Recipes Below)

Freeze your Foods

ROAST TURKEY in mid-summer, broiled chicken in January and strawberry shortcake in December, these are some of the items which are a real possibility on menus if you have facilities for freezing your food This may be a freezer right in your own home, or it might be space rented at one of the large lockers that are now available in so many localities.

Foods know no season when it's possible to freeze them, and, this, of course, is one of the best ways to avoid meal monotony. You simply freeze the food when it's at the peak of the season, then eat it when you want it.

Freezing food is one of the simplest of preserving methods since foods require only a minimum of preparation, and they retain their freshness until thawed and prepared.

How to Prepare Meat For Freezer

IT'S a simple job to freeze meat for future meals and you need follow only a few simple rules to do it successfully.

When choosing animals for freezing, select those healthy ones of size and weight which will produce the quality of cuts preferred by the family. Excessive fat is unnecessary, but an ample covering of fat protects the lean from drying out during the frozen storage. This latter does not apply to veal since that meat has little fat.

These rules apply whether you purchase meats from a market or produce house. Ask for quality cuts from prime cattle, and mention that you intend freezing them and the butcher may be more careful in his selection.

Once the carcass is prepared, chill the meat immediately as bacteria grow rapidly at the high temperatures. Molds, bacteria and yeast may ruin the flavor of the meat unless it is chilled at once.

Meat cutting is no job for a novice and should be done by the butcher or an expert meat cutter at a locker plant. You, however, should specify cuts you want, if you've purchased a carcass or part of one. It's a good idea to have the meat cut in family size portions to eliminate waste, since the meat cannot, or should not be frozen once it has been thawed.

It's popular, too, to have meat boned since it requires less freezing space, and since the bones cannot puncture wrapping paper once they're eliminated.

Proper Wrapping Saves Quality

IT'S UNWISE to economize on wrapping paper for frozen foods since the meat may dry out and "freezer burns" often result. Regular butcher paper, ordinary waxed paper or grocery store type paper are not used. Moisture and vapor-proof paper bags or cartons made especially for this purpose are best. They should be easy to fold, wrap or handle, tough enough to resist tearing, and capable of receiving an ink or china pencil mark for labeling.

LYNN SAYS:

Use These Freezing Tips to Help You

Varieties are of great importance in the successful freezing of fruits. Apples for sauce, for example, should be Baldwins, Greenings, Northern Spy or Yellow Transparent types.

Study the freezing space which will be available to you, and plan how much of each fruit, vegetable, meat or poultry you will have. Don't overstock one item so that you can't freeze something you want.

LYNN CHAMBER'S MENU
Chicken Shortcake with Gravy
Buttered Lima Beans
Carrot Sticks Beverage Cookies
Peach Salad in Cherry Gelatin
Peppermint Ice Cream

Each bundle of meat in the freezer should contain enough meat for your family for a meal. Waxed or waterproofed paper may be used between each hamburger, steak or chop since this makes them easy to separate and hastens thawing once they come out for use. Or, in this case, you may readily remove two or three chops without thawing the whole package.

Pull the proper wrapping tightly around the meat to smooth out all possible air and eliminate air pockets. The package should be smooth and firmly packed to conserve storage space.

Seal the paper with a "drugstore fold" which means bringing one edge over the other and folding it over the shorter sheet. Now twist or fold the ends and seal with acetate (scotch) tape. This tape is not affected by moisture or cold.

Label all packages so you can easily identify them when you want them. The label should contain the type of meat enclosed, the number of servings or the weight in pounds, and the date on which it was wrapped for freezing.

As soon as the meat is wrapped and labeled, place in the freezer. If you do not have a freezer at home, store the packages in the refrigerator until you can take them to the locker, but this should not be more than a few hours.

Frozen Poultry Keeps Well

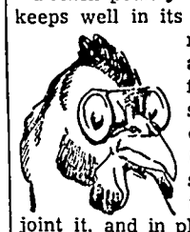
Frozen poultry is one food which keeps well in its frozen state, and requires even less attention than freezing meat since you yourself can prepare it for freezing with no special tools. Clean the bird and disjoint it, and in place of cooking it, wrap it for freezing to be cooked several months later.



Birds are killed, bled, plucked, chilled and dressed before they can be packaged. If you desire, it's a great convenience to stuff the poultry and freeze it in that state, so the poultry is ready to pop in the oven for Christmas or Thanksgiving dinner. Do not use sage in the dressing if you expect to keep the bird more than three months since the flavor permeates the meat.

Here's a guide for chicken to be frozen: broilers should not weigh over two and a half pounds dressed, or be over 12 weeks old; frying chickens should weigh from three to three and a half pounds and be 20 weeks old.

Fowl for fricassee may weigh from four to six pounds and can be from one to two years old. A roasting chicken should weigh four to five pounds, but is best if not more than a year old. Capons should weigh from 7 to 10 pounds but should not be over 8 to 10 months old.

---

Fruit juices for breakfast or beverages are easily frozen. Select good juices from well-matured fruits and chill thoroughly. Extract the juice and pour into paraffin coated tubs or cylinders. Freeze immediately.

Water used for washing fruit, berries and vegetables should have ice in it unless the temperature is lower than 65°.

Speed the harvest to the freezer just as you speed food to the can for canning to prevent food value loss and deterioration.

TRADE PACT:

Britons Jump Gun

In matters affecting its own welfare, Great Britain never has taken any but the realistic view, hence the signing of a five-year trade pact with Argentina — a pact to which the United States has vigorously objected.

THE PACT, calling for exchanges totaling 500 million dollars the first year, and looking to at least an equal volume the other years, commits the two nations to virtual barter.

The U.S. objected to the pact on the grounds that it violates the spirit of free competitive international trade

Argentine President Juan Peron rapped outside criticism in a speech at ceremonies marking the end of negotiations which lasted more than five months.

"It is not possible," he said, "to hide the evil intentions and evil designs behind this criticism. This type of economic warfare is a sign of incapacity."

OPEN criticism of British action came from Senator Wherry (R., Neb.) who accused Britain of "selfishly promoting her own economic interests at the expense of the U.S. and European countries." He contended that the pact "defeats the very purpose of recovery and free exchange of goods in the world."

Paul G. Hoffman, U. S. economic cooperation administrator, also was concerned. He said he was strongly opposed to this type of "bilateral agreement" and that he would use every influence to discourage such two-way pacts.

LANDLORDS:

'Freeze' Is Out

Landlords would breathe with some relief as they read the latest announcement by federal housing expediter Tighe Woods.

Woods said "the freeze principle of rent control is now a thing of the past."

FOUR new rules easing rent controls would indicate that was the situation, but a closer look might raise some doubts.

First, owners putting more value into their property would be in line to collect increased rents. Then, local rent officials would have more leeway in adjusting rent ceilings in harmony with local real estate principles. Third would be the elimination of the "freeze" principle, and, fourth, making an "opinion" as to probable rent hike limits available to landlords before they actually repair or improve their property.

BUT—and there were three of these—the tenants still have protection. The proposed repairs or improvements can only be made with the tenant's permission, however, with these conditions the tenant may be overruled:

1. If the improvement is needed to maintain the property.
2. Where the improvements are consistent with local "practices and customs" or property management.
3. If the change is such as would increase the rental value in a normal market where free bargaining prevailed.

The rules were dispatched to all rent offices, Woods said.

BONUS BILL:

Idea Won't Die

Tennessee's Representative Rankin was nothing if not persistent. The Democratic legislator again was planning a measure to obtain a bonus for U.S. war veterans.

THE chairman of the house veterans committee disclosed that he was grooming a multi-billion dollar bonus bill as a follow-up to veterans' pension legislation. He indicated he might seek action at this session.

Whether he knew it or not, he was in for some rough sledding, for even as he discussed the proposed measure, some members of his committee voiced the belief there would be no more major veterans' benefit bills reported out of committee at this session.

COMMENTING on his measure, Rankin said he regarded adjusted compensation — or bonus — as a possible solution to the whole question of veterans' benefits.

He has managed to bottle up measures to extend the "52-20" GI jobless pay beyond the July 25 expiration date, terming unemployment payments "rocking chair money."

The bonus bill, Rankin argued, "would deduct from the compensation all this sit-down money, on-the-job-training and college benefits."

AIRLIFT:

An Anniversary

The winged boxcar flew into Berlin's Templehof airdrome. It landed five tons of steel wool and textiles on the concrete airstrip at exactly 12 o'clock.

THE LANDING was accomplished in magnificent solitude.

However, it was an event of a sort that seldom goes unnoticed.

For that landing rounded out one solid year of "Operation Airlift" the hottest weapon in the cold war.

Despite that, it was probably one of the most unattended birthdays in history. The American twin-engine C-82, nicknamed "the flying boxcar," trundled to a loading station like any other plane.

THE FLIGHT, made by Lt. Michael B. Seeley, Bakersfield, Cal., was the 235,314th of the 365-day airlift. His load brought the total to a million, 943,655.9 tons of food, coal, machinery and other supplies that kept Berlin going during the Russian blockade.

The combined British-American task force was dumping an average of 8,200 tons daily into the city with such ease nobody paid much attention to it any more.

WAGES:

Hike on Way?

A bill to increase the present minimum wage in the United States from 40 to 75 cents an hour had cleared its first hurdle and was on its way to further consideration.

THE measure was approved unanimously by the senate labor committee.

Senator Pepper (D., Fla.), a committee member, said the labor department figured that if the bill became law it would mean pay raises for about 1 25 million workers who in interstate commerce now make less than 75 cents an hour.

However, the senate committee did not go along with the idea that the law should be broadened to include many workers not covered by it now.

PEPPER said that the bill had been broadened so that it included only an additional 100,000 non-farm workers. These, he said, are engaged in processing agriculture products in so-called "areas of production."

Recovering

Eddie Waitkus, star first baseman of the Philadelphia Phillies, who was shot by 19-year old Ruth Steinhagen, was up and around again. It was believed he would be able to rejoin the team and play some more ball this season.

SEARCH:

Keep It Legal

The United States supreme court ruled that search and seizure must always be within the law and that states as well as the federal government must guarantee citizens protection against illegal practices.

BUT there was a difference. The court held, that evidence illegally secured may be used in state courts, if state law so permits, but such evidence still cannot be used in federal courts.

Big Name Horses Are on Trial

By GRANTLAND RICE

THE NEXT FEW days and weeks of racing will find a flock of celebrities in the headlines. Their names will include Citation, Coaltown, Capot, Ponder and a few more.

There have been three big feature races with the same weights so far—the Derby the Preakness — and the Belmont.

Grantland Rice

Capot not only won two out of three but also ran 1-2 in each start. Capot's on top—but he still has a battle left.

There is no longer any question now that Olympia won the Derby for Ponder. Capot could pick his own pace in the Belmont, but some horse with speed had to go after Olympia in the Derby. Capot was the only horse with the speed to challenge which in turn cost him the race.

If the Greentree horse could win the Preakness and Belmont because there was no pacemaker to kill off first, he could surely have taken over the Derby under similar circumstances.

But for all that, Ponder was the surprise horse of both the Derby and the Belmont. He will still be dangerous over any stretch of ground beyond a mile, especially at a mile and a quarter or a mile and a half.

His form from two-year-old class has bounded far up and if Capot falls away later on, it is quite likely that Calumet's stretch runner will move up.

In the meanwhile it will be interesting to see when and where Citation will run again Jimmy Jones says the champion is ready.

"We have been in no hurry," Jimmy says, "to get him working too soon with Coaltown on hand. There is nothing to be gained by running Citation against Coaltown."

Whether or not Citation is ready, Calumet has no great worry with Coaltown, Ponder and Wistful on hand.

It is only natural that Chicago should get the call with these standouts, due to the matter of weight assignments If Calumet can get her stars in at 130, it would be rather foolish to take higher weights.

In the meanwhile Hollywood Park is quite anxious to know what Calumet will do about the $100,000 Gold Cup race on July 16, where Coaltown and Citation can get in at 132 pounds. The hitch here may come from Ben Jones' statement that 130 pounds is all that any horse should carry. The extra two pounds would make little or no difference, but it might leave an opening for increased weights later on.

In any event the next few weeks should be replete with interesting turns, now partially covered by the fogs. Citation, especially, is due to break into the headlines soon.

Make The Target A Barn

So far this has been a formless baseball season in the main and the main reason is quite evident—the pitching.

It isn't so much a matter of the base hits and runs that have been accumulated. It isn't so much a matter of the home runs driven in winning flight over the fences or into the stands. It has been largely a matter of bases on balls.

I can't recall a season where so many passes have been issued day after day. Eight—10-15-18 or 20 have been on the menu. Teams get 13 hits and 20 runs. They get 8 hits and 11 runs.

There isn't any reason why a big league pitcher shouldn't be able to get a pitch across the plate at least a reasonable number of times. But it is nothing to see some pitcher open up any given inning by filling the bases on passes.

Pitchers will tell you that if they give the batter a good ball to hit, he'll probably hammer it out of the lot. But isn't it better to have him do that with nobody on than to fill the bases first and then hand the batter a grand slammer? I do not remember another season that has ever yielded so many grand slammers, a home run with three on, as 1949 has offered with the campaign only a quarter over.

Lack of control has also been responsible for so many home runs The pitcher rapidly works himself into a hole and then has to split the plate At least he has to try. The order of march today is to first fill the bases or walk at least two men. After this the home-run ball, squarely over the middle with little on it, is served up.

I USE RED STAR DRY YEAST IN ALL MY BAKING RECIPES
RED STAR DISSOLVES FASTER... IT'S SPECIAL ACTIVE
30 MINUTE ROLLS
2 packages Red Star Special Active Dry Yeast
1¼ cups warm water (105° to 110° F.)
¼ cup sugar
1¼ teaspoons salt
1 egg
3 cups sifted all purpose flour
2 tablespoons shortening, melted and cooled to lukewarm
Step 1: Dissolve yeast in warm water (105° to 110° F.) in large mixing bowl. Step 2: Add sugar, salt, and unbeaten egg. Add flour gradually Beat well with electric mixer on low or medium speed, or by hand with large wooden spoon. Add shortening, beating until thoroughly mixed. Step 3: Spoon dough into well greased muffin pans, filling about one-third full Step 4: Let rise in warm place (90° to 95° F.) until dough has risen level with top of muffin pans (about 25 to 30 minutes.) Step 5: Bake in moderately hot oven (375° to 400° F.) 20 min. Step 6: Remove from pans and serve warm. Yields 18 to 24 rolls.

The Hancock County, Iowa Board of Supervisors met in sesson on above captioned date pursuant to adjournment with Clint Daniels, F. J. Schoun and George Th. Gerdes present.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved as read.

On motion and second the bond, application, and permit for the sale of cigarettes for the following are hereby approved: Evanson Service Station of Forest City; Frank Liska Service of Duncan, and Bleich General Store of Miller.

Be It Remembered that on this, the 11th day of July, 1949 the Board of Supervisors of Hancock County, Iowa, met in session for the purpose of filing and considering the estimate for the local budget of said county. There was present a Quorum as required by law. Thereafter and on said day there was filed the following estimate:

Young Methodists Attending Camp Quest At Okoboji This Week

Camp Quest opened at Lake Okoboji Sunday evening with a group of 5 young people from the Klemme Methodist Church attending, from the Intermediates. Mrs. Vivian Mace accompanied them as Counselor, and Miss Novella Bredbenner went as a member of the camp staff.

Those attending are Noel Egeland, Reverdy Mace, Cecil Jacobs, Daisy Schaefer and Kay Jacobs.

New Business For Klemme

Another new business will be launched in Klemme in the near future: a shoe repair shop, which is needed badly here.

Some time ago Kenneth Kluckhohn purchased a complete line of shoe repair machinery, equipment and supplies.

Mr. Kluckhohn is now taking schooling in shoe repair work and when he feels fully qualified to turn out first class work, he will open his shoe repair business in Klemme.

INTENSIVE CONTROL IS NEEDED FOR FLIES NOW

Recent warm humid weather means that the fly season will be on in earnest from now until the end of summer, says Earle Raun, extension entomologist at Iowa State College. He points out that house flies in large numbers have arrived early this year. The effect they will have on health and living conditions for the rest of the summer will depend largely on the control measures taken.

Raun says that sanitation is still the biggest factor in any fly control compaign, and he urges Iowans to clean up around homes and farmsteads Refuse and trash piles should be removed, and covers need to be provided for all garbage cans. Gardens and yards ought to be kept free from rotting vegetables and fruit. City dumping areas should be covered with borax.

For city fly control, Raun suggests a thorough ground spraying of garbage cans and alleyways. He points out that heavy spraying will leave plenty of residual DDT to kill flies that hatch later. For further protection, walls and ceilings of food handling establishments may be sprayed. Care should be taken to keep DDT from direct contact with food and cooking utensils. Screen doors and window screens, along with garbage cans and garbage can racks, may be painted or sprayed with DDT. The entomologist recommends putting a 5 percent oil solution on screens and garbage cans. Emulsions with concentrations of DDT down to 5 percent, or 2½ percent wettable DDT powder solution, also may be used.

On farm spraying jobs, DDT is still all right to use on animals other than dairy cows and beef cattle that will be marketed with 30 days after spraying. DDT doesn't deteriorate with age, and any supplies left over from other years may be used effectively, Raun says. Mix the DDT at the rate of 1 pound of 50 percent wettable powder per 12½ gallons of water and apply 1 to 2 quarts per animal every two weeks.

For dairy cows, 1 to 2 quarts of a ½ percent solution of methoxychlor every 2 or 3 weeks will offer effective protection from flies

Around barns other than dairy barns, a 5 percent DDT emulsion or a 2½ percent wettable powder spray may be applied on walls, ceilings and floors at the rate of 1 gallon per 1,000 square feet. Dairy barns and milk houses may be sprayed with methoxychlor at the same rate as DDT, Raun says.

AS JUNIOR PULLS ON POPPER'S SHOES . . .

F.D.R. Treads Across the Political Stage

. . . NEW DEALERS RUSH TO SHINE 'EM

By H. I. PHILLIPS

NEW ROOSEVELT THREAT . . . It looks as if there is to be another Franklin D. Roosevelt in the American political picture, like it or not. The big build-up for Junior is on and he starts off with this advantage or handicap, all depending on your viewpoint: He looks like popper, talks like popper and screens like popper. He is what might be called "a spittin' image."

—*—

Even if it makes you wince, there is no escaping the fact that all these things shape up into an appeal to millions of American voters. Franklin Junior is a mere kid, a long hop from a statesman and a green hand on the squad, but the name, the model and the manner represent advertising assets.

—*—

Any company selling soap, shaving cream or cigarettes that had lost its trademark and suddenly discovered an exact duplicate would cheer no more loudly than the New Deal addicts are cheering at the moment. They think Junior has the same box-office appeal. "Run this right," declared a smart Democratic politician the other day, "and in five or six years there will be plenty of voters who will think daddy has returned from the grave." "Wanna bet?" is the answer of others. "The imitation never sells like the original. No matter how they stage-manage it, Junior will always be just a copy." But neither side is positive. And that's what is causing so many arguments.

—*—

Elmer Twitchell went out as an Inquiring Reporter the other day and asked the question, "Do you think F. D. Roosevelt, Jr., is ever likely to be President?" The results follow:

McSheddy, Jabez, Z., housepainter and lifelong Republican: "When you ask me that smile!"

Botts, Peter D. L., skywriter and Democrat: "The kid is as good as in. I knew the old man woud spring a surprise like this."

Hemstitch, Rudolph, advertising agent and G.O.P. leader: "Would you mind repeating that question. And if I heard you right the first time, please pass the aspirin."

Crummett, Alonzo, engineer and New Dealer by habit and instinct: "Listen, bub, if the kid sounds right over radio hookups, develops that old toss of the head and shows a scorn for other people's dough, he is good for five terms."

Peezle, Hemingway D., unemployed member of the National Republican club: "I was afraid something like this would happen. There's no justice. Just when a Republican gets to feeling confident somebody slips him a Mickey Finn."

Raviola, Antonio F., lifelong Republican: "The Democrats have all the luck. Why do not Republican Presidents have sons who look like their fathers?" (Would that be good?—Ed note.)

Steukle, Arabella H., housewife and leader in the Women's New Dealer Club: "If Truman doesn't improve, the next candidate on our ticket won't have to look like a Roosevelt. He can look like anybody but Truman."

Ye Broadway Bugle

"Miss Liberty" is the most talked-of coming musical and we think some of the sets should be done by James M. Flagg . . . and that the cast should include Red Skelton, George White and Gloria Blue . . . How about an alternate title "Twin Bedloes?" . . . Several ticket brokers have been ordered to close . . . They might have been prepared for it by the reviews of their hearings . . . Liz Taylor, we see, will marry Bill Pawley, Jr., instead of Glenn Davis, the former West Point grid star . . . Liz says there was never anything serious between her and Glenn . . . He just misunderstood the signals, eh?

Branch Rickey has returned a ball player and $25,000 to Pittsburgh following a claim that the player he turned over in exchange had a sore shoulder . . . We don't know about the player's shoulder, but there's no stiffness in the Rickey arm when he can hand back that much moolah . . . Some of those video vaudeville shows are going to collapse if there is ever a bladder, seltzer bottle or wig shortage.

"THEY THAT WAIT UPON THE LORD"

(ISAIAH XL, 31)

O WEARY one, lay hold on God and claim
This glorious promise, prove its depth and length,
And let it warm your being like a flame:
Who waits on God, he shall renew his strength.
Your weariness shall pass forevermore;
You shall forget your sorrow and your tears,
You shall be young again—God will restore
The years to you, the seeming wasted years.

You shall mount up as eagles, you shall fly
On strong swift pinions through the dazzling noon,
Or cleave the night on wings to reach the sky,
One with the racing wind, the stars, the moon.
And you shall run and not be weary, Heart,
The golden hills shall fall beneath your feet,
The journey's ending will be as the start,
So fresh you will be, and the way so sweet.
But more than lifting wings, or strength to run,
Will be the joy, after the old restraint:
To walk unburdened, free beneath the sun,
The long bright miles before you, and not faint.

STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO

BY INEZ GERHARD

NEXT OCTOBER the Lux Theater of the Air will celebrate its 15th anniversary on the air; the whole studio could be filled with stars who have appeared on the program, with a special section of young actors and actresses who made their dramatic debuts in radio on it. Gregory Peck, Bette Davis, Ginger Rogers, Robert Taylor, Barbara Stanwyck, Wanda Hendrix, Ray Milland, Walter Huston and many others have been starred on the theatre. Margaret O'Brien was about the youngest when she made her debut. As she had not yet learned to read, she had to memorize her lines. Next year's line-up of stars will be impressive, as usual.

HE-MAN'S CODE

By Richard H. Wilkinson

3-Minute Fiction

ANDY had sensitive eyes and delicate hands but Leonie, born and bred a westerner of pioneer stock, was human. She loved him. It wasn't until after they were married that she discovered he was a physical coward.

She found out the night of Serena Boone's engagement party. Tony Swift was there. As usual he was drunk. He was a handsome devil, this Tony, tall and bronzed and reckless. He had been Leonie's childhood sweetheart. Folks said she would have married him if it weren't for his drinking.

The first thing Tony saw when he came through the door was Leonie and Andy dancing together. A scowl crossed his face. Then he laughed. When they whirled past him he stepped up and whacked Andy on the back.

"Tony's cut," he grinned. "Make way for a man."

Leonie flushed. Andy hesitated, looked at Tony, then gave way smiling. "Sure thing," he said. "Your dance, Tony."

As soon as she could, without appearing too obvious, she asked Andy to take her home.

There she accused:

"Why did you let him insult you? Oh, the shame of it!"

Andy was startled and bewildered. "Let who insult me, honey."

"Who?" She stared at him. "Tony Swift, of course! I was never so humiliated in my life."

"Tony? Oh, you mean because of what he said? Shucks, honey, Tony didn't mean anything. He was drunk."

The appalling truth flashed across Leonie's brain in that moment. Andy was a coward! He'd been afraid of Tony, which was why he evaded the issue! With a little whimpering cry she turned and ran sobbing from the room.

A week later, on Saturday night, Andy stopped by at Seth Lancey's store to see Seth on a matter of business. A couple of boys from his mine were there, drinking at the bar. Minutes later, talking with Seth, he heard a rumpus out front. Investigating he discovered that two boys were engaged in a brawl with three men from the Bar V cattle ranch. Andy stood by and watched a while. Others joined in. It began to look as though the place would be wrecked. Andy got out of there.

Leonie heard about it the next day. That settled things for her.

ANDY was bewildered and unhappy. The next day he found himself brooding over the situation. By mid-afternoon he could stand it no longer. Leaving Noah Tait in charge of operations, he drove home. As he strode up the walk he heard a cry. He burst open the door and found Tony Swift trying to kiss his wife. Tony wasn't drunk. He was babbling something about Leonie really loving him.

Tony whirled at the sound Andy made. His lip curled. "Oho! The sissy from Bos——"

Andy strode across the floor. His face was black. "I guess," he said bitterly; "you're dumb, after all. You need teaching." He struck out. Tony tried to dodge, but Andy's fist clipped him on the chin so hard that he went down.

"Damn you!" He lunged, but Andy wasn't where he expected. Andy's fist flashed out again, and again Tony went down. Andy jerked him to his feet and hit him again. He hit him a third time and a fourth. Blood covered Tony's face. Tony whimpered for mercy. Andy dragged him to the door and threw him out.

"Andy!" Leonie fled into his arms. "Oh, my darling, you were wonderful! Oh, precious, forgive me for what I said. Andy, why didn't you do that before—that night at the dance?"

Andy frowned. "Why, shucks, honey, I don't like to fight. Don't you see? He was drunk then. There was no need."

Leonie laid her head on his shoulder. "I see, darling. Of course I see."

But she didn't.

PUZZLE NO. 7

SPORTSMAN'S HORIZON

By JIM RHODY

Cane Polers Adept

After a recent demonstration, this writer is convinced that there must be scores of cane pole bait-fishermen over the nation who could give the expert tournament casters some real competition.

Everyone knows that the tournament competitors, equipped with 5½ or 6-foot rods, lightning fast, diminutive tournament reels, with no level-wind attachment, are able to hurl a one-half or three-eighths ounce tournament weight the length of a football field, or farther. Light lines also aid the caster in this performance.

But how many know that there are some cane pole fishermen who can cast a minnow and small sinker that same, or greater, distance?

But to the tyro, the ability to duplicate the cane pole angler's dexterity and adroitness is singularly difficult, and it is only after a long trial-and-error method that the beginner becomes proficient—if he ever does.

There is no almost-"alive" action of the rod tip here to aid in delivering the lure In fact, few cane rods have enough flexibility to permit the lure to put an arc in the rod at any step of the casting procedure.

Getting to the performance we witnessed, we saw a cane pole fisherman, with a minnow and small sinker attached to his line, throw more than 100 yards of line off his reel—and this from a sitting position! He did it repeatedly and seemed to think there was nothing unusual in the feat. His line tested 15 pounds and his reel was a beaten up model, with level-wind attachment, which was then more than six years old and hadn't cost more than $6 when he bought it.

The performance was one of which any top-flight caster could have been proud and was of a quality to attract as amazed spectators several fly-rod users and plug casters who happened to be on the lake at the time.

How It Started

According to the legend, the story of how artificial lures came to be invented has an affinity with so many of the gadgets that enhance the pleasures of fishing—they were first envisioned by a country boy.

He was the driver of a six-mule team and was expert at handling the long bullwhip which he carried over his shoulder. One afternoon, the mules stopped at a creek to drink and the boy noticed that trout were leaping hungrily a few yards away.

He thought, "Gosh, one would taste good for supper!" He climbed off the wagon and began cracking his whip against the surface of the water. Suddenly, a fine trout leaped and struck the red tip, or tassel, of the bullwhip.

The boy landed that fish, then stood in his tracks and by the same method managed to catch a good mess.

And that, they say, was the beginning of the rod and reel, flies and plugs.

'Stratoline' Does Job

Without a lot of technical blather involving obtuse theory and theorizing, the Cortland line company has come up with a triple-taper fly line that seems to be what the doctor ordered in the matter of easy and effective fly casting. Their "Stratoline" is made in all the popular tapers, but in sensible dimensions and weight distributions which do the job a perfect fly line is supposed to do.

Cortland has managed to put the "weight forward" principle of line construction in its proper perspective and, as a result, the "Stratoline" almost "casts itself." We tested an HCF line on an 8-foot, 3½-ounce Heddon rod, and were delighted with the results. The quick taper of the H-line to C, the length of C-line which tapers quickly to F, brought out the ultimate in rod action and ease of casting.

Turtles Voracious

Game Manager Harold A. Steinke of the Wisconsin conservation department wonders how many trout go into the making of a snapping turtle.

Steinke shot a snapper which had a 10 by 8-inch shell on the banks of Jenning's creek. He found the turtle's stomach contained three brook trout, six and one-half inches each and still in full color, plus one four-inch chub and two seven-inch lamprey eels.

'Money Q... Are Symp...

By Lawren...

Can "money troubles wreck a marriage?

Answer: Only when combined with other, though perhaps unconscious factors. People to whom lack of money has brought actual hardship may take out their bitterness on one another, since it's natural (if childish) to want to blame someone for your troubles. But most quarrels over money are no more than an excuse for venting irritation over deeper and more intimate dissatisfactions which the people are unwilling to discuss—or perhaps even admit. An otherwise happy, well-adjusted couple will not "split up" over money.

Self-Demand Infant Feeding

By Dr. James W. Barton

ONE OF THE jokes commonly current is that Mrs. Smith "must" have perfect children because she brings them up by the book. As a matter of fact this bringing up by the book has saved the lives of thousands of children for, whereas, before mothers were taught proper infant feeding, about three in every 10 children died at birth or during the first year Today only about one in 20 dies during this period.

The first great gain in extending the life span began with the saving of the lives of children by proper feeding during their first and second years

In the Canadian Medical Association Journal, Dr. C. K. Rowan-Legg, Ottawa, states what we all seem to forget is that the child has an emotional life as well as just the physical, and needs more than food to keep him healthy and happy "The feeding of infants with a definite amount of food at fixed intervals neglects the emotional side of the child's life. ## Right With God

Lesson for July 24, 1949

"GET RIGHT with God" is an expression which has been sometimes used by people. It is not a coarse or cheap idea. It is the most important thing you can do. Think what it means to be wrong with God! That means to be out of harmony with his will, going "across the grain of reality" as the old Greeks used to say. To be wrong with God means to be a rebel against reality, to have the power of the universe working against you, and so to be headed for sure destruction. Wrong with God, you cannot win. Right with God, you cannot lose. To be right with God means to be in line with the purpose that runs through all things; it means in the simple language of the Bible, to live as a child of God.

Dr. Foreman

Mule or Man?

THERE are two ways in which man can come into line, so to speak, with God. One is by being whipped into it, and the other is by a free act of will. The poet of the 32nd Psalm begs his readers not to be like mules or colts (Ps. 32:9). These animals can be broken and controlled by their masters But they do not understand what is going on, and if left to themselves they would never serve.

> They have to be caught, harnessed and driven. But God does not want to treat human beings like that. Getting right with God is not a business of getting into harness, being beaten into walking on the right road.

That is not God's way. He pleads with us through his inspired poet: Be not as mules—be men!

Facing Up to Yourself

THE short good Bible word for being wrong with God is Sin. The very first step toward being right with God is to see yourself as you are. No one ever went to a doctor till he at least suspected he was sick. No one ever went to school of his own accord who thought he knew everything. And no one will come to God who thinks he is as good as he needs to be. When life goes hard with us, when everything about our life seems twisted and rotten, we make all sorts of excuses for ourselves, we lay the blame on our parents or our friends of the social and economic system in which we live (doubtless all these have a share in creating our troubles), but we hate to look at ourselves in the mirror of truth.

> This comes first: recognizing our own wrongness, not just weakness but wrongness. When we reach the point where we can say with the Psalmist, "Create in me a clean heart, O God, and renew a right spirit within me," then we are on the right road.

"Hide Thy Face"

THERE are two things we never hear about in the Bible. One is that God never forgave anyone who did not repent, and the other is that he refused to forgive any one who did repent. But repentance is not merely regretting that a wrong was done, still less regretting being caught. Repentance, the kind the Bible describes (as in these Psalms for example), means a complete change of attitude, it means coming over on God's side and seeing sin the way he sees it, seeing life the way he sees it.

> God's forgiveness is not of the grudging, remembering, reminding kind. But condoning and forgiving are still a world apart. Condoning means saying in effect, It is all right, it makes no difference, you can go on sinning for all I care.

Some human "forgiveness" may be like that, but not God's. His forgiveness is based on real repentance, and the aim of it is to save the sinner from his sin.

Plenteous in Mercy

THE Psalmists saw clearly what kind of God we have. He is not like the holder of a mortgage waiting till the first time some payment is deferred gives him a chance to pounce down and evict his tenant. We are not criminals against whom God is a prosecuting attorney, trying to pile up evidence against us. "If thou shouldest mark iniquities, who shall stand?" We are children, lost and wandering children, rebellious and disobedient children, but still children; and God holds open the door of mercy.

CONTROL WEEDS IN GRAIN STUBBLE

There Will Be Fewer In 1950 If Killed Before They Produce Seeds

Get the drop on weeds this year by controling them in small grain stubble, says E. P. Sylwester, extension botanist at Iowa State College.

He lists ragweed, smartweed, velvetweed, foxtail and cockleburs as bad actors in Iowa stubble fields. By killing these weeds off before they can produce seed, weed control requirements for next year can be kept at a minimum.

Close Mowing

Sylwester suggests several ways of keeping weeds down in stubble. He says that close mowing is an effective way to keep weeds from producing seed. Not only does it control barnyard grass and foxtail, which are resistant to 2,4-D, but mowing also keeps down such annual as smartweed and small ragweed. Extremely heavy pasturing is another way to prevent foxtail and barnyard grass from going to seed.

Early Plowing

Early plowing followed by harrowing, if necessary, is probably the most common and one of the most practical ways of laying the groundwork for clean, weed-free fields next year. When dry weather hasn't made the ground too hard for plowing, weeds can be killed and the field readied for the next spring in one operation, Slywester points out. Late summer moisture conditions are usually such that any regrowth of weeds that occurs after plowing can be kept down with a harrow.

Spraying

Sylwester says that spraying with the ester type ef 2,4-D is a good way to kill weeds in stubble fields, particularly where the ground is too hard to warrant plowing. Chemicals will cost onl 50 to 75 cents per acre, and that's cheap when compared to the cost of damage that weeds can do when they get a good start. Sprays are especially effective in fields infested with perennial weeds such as Canadian thistle, bindweed or morning glories.

Value

To illustrate the value of weed conrol, Sylwester cites tests carried out in 1947 Portions of a cornfield infested with cockleburs were sprayed, and parts were left untreated. The plants in rows that were sprayed and free of weeds averaged 1 pound of corn per stalk. Where no treatment was used, there were nine cocklebur plants to the acre, and the yield averaged one-third pound per stalk, a two-thirds reduction.

PUPATION COUNT INDICATES HEAVY SECOND BROOD CORN BORER

Pupation of second brood corn borers is now in progress, and the moths will be flying about August 1st, Paul Henderson, the county extension director said this week.

Henderson said, reporting information received from Harold Gunderson, extension entomologist at Iowa State College, that these moths will look for late-planted fields to lay their eggs. Eggs from the second brood are laid primarily on the developing ear and the leaves above and below the ear.

In warm August weather these eggs will hatch in 3 to 4 days, then the worms will borer into the ears, shanks and stalks. Damage per borers is about equal to that of the first brood.

Henderson suggest that any farmer having late-planted corn should examine it for egg masses each day starting August 1, continuing to about August 20. When 100 egg masses per 100 plants are found, the field should be treated with 1½ pounds of actual DDT per acre. A single treatment is recommended, and spraying is preferred.

Since the corn is tall, high clearance equipment or airplane will have to be used. Spray should be concentrated in the area of the ear, using 7 to 15 gallons per acre and three nozzles per row. Higher volumes of spray will give better control. If it is possible, apply 25 to 50 gallons per acre, putting on 3 pounds of 50 percent DDT wettable powder.

Farmers not able to put on that volume will have to depend upon either the emulsifiable concentrate or colloidal DDT. Airplane spraying generally gives poorer control than ground equipment.

There are many uneven fields where part was damaged by cutworms and replanted, but which was hit by borers. In this case many plants will be susceptible to second brood borers. It will pay to spray, Gunderson thinks, if 25 percent or more, is late planted corn. However, if the entire field was attacked by first-brood borers treatment will not be necessary. As a general rule corn is susceptible to only one brood.

A single treatment is recommended for the second brood of borers. In early planted corn, second spraying sometimes were necessary because new leaves were developing rapidly which, if untreated, would harbor borers. No new leaves are being developed in late planted corn

Henderson recommends that check strips should be left in a representative part of the field to determine the effects of the treatment.

Farm Boy Has Freak Accident

Kay, oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Burk suffered a accident Wednesday afternoon.

Kay had helped his mother take lunch to the men in the harvest field and upon returning to the house was carrying the water thermos jug from the car and was swinging the jug around in boy-fashion when he stumbled and fell. His hand caught in the handle of the jug and he fell upon it breaking two bones in his left hand.

Made Air Trip To Omaha

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Jorgenson, Jr. and daughter, Judy flew the Klemme Times' Cessna airplane to Omaha Sunday to visit with Mr. Jorgenson's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Davis, who have recently moved into their new home at Cedar Point, Omaha. Other relatives at the Davis home were Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Chapman and Mr. and Mrs. Dave Chapman of Kansas City.

The Klemme people made the trip to Omaha in less than 2 hours and returned home in 1 hour and 32 minutes.

Last Wednesday Mr. and Mrs. Don Schaefer and their seven months old baby daughter Monica, chartered an airplane at Mason City and flew to Waterloo for a visit. It was the baby's first airplane ride and she seemed to enjoy it and had no ill effects from the ride.

New Side Walk Put In On South Side Of Klemme Park

Men began work on Monday morning pouring cement for a block long cement sidewalk running east and west along the south side of the Klemme Park.

This makes a nice improvement to Main Street and adds much to the beauty of the Park as well as being of great convenience to pedestrians. The old walk was a gravel pathway.

HANCOCK SUPERVISORS WILL VISIT CHEROKEE

The Hancock County board of supervisors and Herman Paul, steward at the Hancock County home, have been invited to attend a luncheon at the state hospital at Cherokee Tuesday, August 2.

The purpose of the meeting is to discuss the treatment and care of the mentally ill and ways and means of improving care and treatment. New legislation with reference to treatment and removal of patients to county homes will also be discussed.

The meeting has been called by Henry Burma, chairman of the state board of control of state institutions in Iowa.

REPUBLICAN WOMEN'S CLUB ORGANIZED IN COUNTY

A group of Republican women from over Hancock County met at Hull's Cafe at Garner Monday afternoon to form a county-wide Republican Women's club to take the place of the several smaller clubs in the county.

Mrs. H. G. Voetberg of Garner was named president of the new organization; Mrs. Fannie Hammill of Britt, 1st Vice President; Mrs. Clarence Smith, 2nd Vice President; Mrs. Elmer Haas, 3rd Vice President; Mrs. Lester Stille, Klemme, 4th Vice President; Mrs. Fern Peck Katter, Garner, Secretary and Mrs. E. F. Bock, Garner, Treasurer.

All Republican women in the county are asked to join. The annual membership dues were set at 25 cents. The purpose of the club is to form a stronger Republican women's organization and to get out the votes at elections.

TAXPAYERS MAY ATTEND BUDGET ESTIMATE HEARINGS

Public hearings will be held on each tax budget published the past two weeks in the Klemme Times.

Of special interest to taxpayers will be the hearing of the Town Budget on Monday evening, August 1st at the Community Hall at 8.00 o'clock.

The School Burget Estimate hearing will be on Mondty evening, August 8th at 8:00 o'cleck at the school house.

Tax payers may attend these hearings and may present their objections if they have any. If you have any objections to make on the spending of public funds, this is your opportunity to tell the tax bodies what you think. Don't wait until tax payments are due in 1950 and then complain.

Rev. Griewe Will Speak At The Mehodist Churches Sunday

Rev. Fred Griewe of Garner will be the speaker at the morning services at both Klemme and Liberty churches Sunday morning, July 31st. Services at Klemme at 9:30 and at Liberty at 10:45.

Attending Conference

Rev. E. M. Egeland left Sunday for Lake Geneva, Wisconsin, where he is attending a Jurisdictional Missionary Conference Mr. Egeland is the Algona District Missionary Secretary and was one of nine in attendance at Lake Geneva from the North Iowa Conference.

Water Supply Important To Milk Production

Have water handy for cows that are to maintain high milk production during hot summer weather says Paul Henderson, county extension director.

The amount of water needed by cows in hot weather varies with the quantity of milk they produce and the percentage of water in their feed. Ordinarily, dairy cows drink about 50 percent more water when warm summer tempertures take over, Henderson says.

He estimates that a good dairy cow needs 15 to 20 gallons per day. She will drink eight to ten times every 24 hours if water is readily available. Where the tank isn't handy, the cows probably won't get all the water she needs to keep production up.

Henderson recommends locating the water tank whereever the herd congregates on hot summer days. He suggests a shady area that's centrally situated in the pasture, or any cool, breezy spot that cows have easy, frequent access to.

Good Hunting

It isn't necessary to be a professor to forget to remember to return a borrowed umbrella. Any one can do it with a little practice as Mr. Smith found out. He was carrying an umbrella because it looked a little like rain. An acquaintance he chanced to meet mentioned that the umbrella that Smith was carrying was one he had loaned him several months ago. Smith was extremely abject in his apologies and insisted that the man take it before he forgot it again.

Smith was determined that he wouldn't be caught with somebody else's umbrella again so he headed for the nearest department store and purchased one for each member of his family. He boarded a bus for the return home and who was sitting opposite him on the bus but the acquaintance to whom he had just returned the umbrella.

The other man eyed Smith's armful of umbrellas rather admiringly.

"Darned good hunting, Smith," he complimented him.

No Come-Down

A famous author was attending a party when a very unimportant writer came up to him and belittled himself to the author. He admitted that he was a poor writer, a hack, and shouldn't even be included in the great man's company.

The author listened patiently for five minutes, then said, "Why do you make yourself so small? You were never that big."

Still Stuck

Gerald had inherited the chore of mowing the lawn every week from his three older brothers. That was an old family custom. When the latest addition to the family was old enough he was shown how to do it and there was no escape.

It was the day to mow the lawn again when he was told that another baby had been brought to the house. He beamed happily at the good news.

"And what do you think?" his father continued. "You now have a baby sister."

Gerald's face fell as he muttered disconsolately, "Golly, I'm stuck with the lawn."

MAKING CONVERSATION

The green car rolled to a smooth halt and the driver leaned out of the window and called to the old man with a cane. "Am I on the right road to Springfield?" he asked.

The old man looked up and said, "Eh?"

The driver shouted, "Am I on the right road to Springfield?"

"You'll hev to talk a leetle louder, young feller, I'm a mite deef," the old man replied.

The driver tried a third time, then realizing the case was hopeless, continued on his way.

He had traveled about three miles when he came to a farmhouse in front of which the farmer's wife was standing.

He stopped the car and called, "Am I on the—?"

"Keep right on this road," she said, "I heard you the first time."

FAIR ENOUGH

"May I take Johnny to the zoo tomorrow afternoon?" his elder sister asked.

"Certainly not," snapped the boy's father. "If the zoo wants him, let them come after him!"

Too True

Neighbor—"Ah, your baby looks very pretty in that dress. Where are you taking her?"

Mother—"To her grandmother's house for a general overmauling."

Playing It Safe

Love was apparent in every move the young man made. His visit to the jeweler confirmed everybody's suspicions. The jeweler, himself, was a very good friend of the young man's family.

"This is the best ring I have," he told the moonstruck youth. "It's pretty expensive but I'll give you a good price. I think your girl will be very pleased with it."

"All right," replied the young man, "I'll take it. And will you have 'From Frank to Jessica' inscribed inside it, please?"

"Now wait a minute, son," cautioned the jeweler, "don't go overboard on this thing. As I said before, this is an expensive ring. Why don't you be satisfied with just 'From Frank' on it?"

CAUSE AND EFFECT

The colored barber's corn likker had left his hand a little unsteady so that when he shaved the Colonel he left a number of knicks and scratches. The Colonel grimaced ruefully in the mirror and observed:

"See what drinking of hard liquor does to a man, Zeb?"

"Yassah," replied Zeb. "It sho' do leab de skin tender, doan' it?"

Imagine!

A visitor who had come to New York to see the sights boarded a Fifth Avenue bus in a slightly limp condition. He talked to the driver about this and that until the driver was forced to suggest that he go up to the upper deck to enjoy the fresh air and view. He had a happy jag on so he complied with the driver's request. But hardly ten minutes had passed before he was breathing into the driver's ear again.

"What's the matter?" asked the driver, "get tired of it already?"

"Oh, no," the drunk assured him, "I like it a lot up there. But between you and me it ain't safe. There's no driver."

CLEAN CONSCIENCE

It was a very pretty hat. Very pretty, indeed. But it had feathers. That was unfortunate because the lady who was eyeing it covetously couldn't bear to think of little birds being killed for their ornamental feathers.

"I'd like to buy it," she said, "but I'm afraid I wouldn't be able to sleep properly knowing that some poor feathered creature gave his life for me."

"Don't worry about that," said the milliner, "those feathers were taken from the carcass of an owl. An owl, you know, lives almost exclusively on mice. So you can see for yourself that it is more of a cat than a bird."

LONG VOYAGE

Comparing notes on the size of the ships in their respective navies, a British sailor and an American gob reached the climax of their argument with the Limey's claim, "Why, the bridge of one of our flagships is so big that the captain moves from port to starboard on a motor scooter."

"You call that big?" sneered the American. "Why, the galley on one of our larger ships is so big that the cook has to go through the Irish stew in a submarine to see if the potatoes are done!"

Double-Take

"They ought to treat me better than that," grunted the one-eyed, bald-headed man as he emerged from the barber shop. It seems he had asked the barber to give him a haircut at half-price because he had less hair than most men. But the barber had pointed out that it took more time to find the hairs so he really should pay more than the usual customer.

"Well," he said to himself, "I'll go into the movies here and try to forget all about it."

"Say," he said to the cashier, "don't you think you ought to let me in for half-price. I've got only one eye, so naturally I can see only half the show."

"On the contrary," she replied promptly. "It will take you twice as long to see the show, so you'll have to pay double."

In Bo McMillin, Uncle Charlie also had one of the best football players and one of the smartest quarterbacks football has ever sent to any field. His "Praying Colonels" were sensations as long as McMillin, Roberts and Weaver were around—and not so bad a few years later on.

His Big Day

I doubt that the Harvard game was Moran's big day. This came when he was coaching Bucknell. In those days, regulations were loose and every coach did the best he could.

Charlie told me the story later He had swept the prairies and the hills for all the talent he could get together, and no coach could do a better job along these lines
